YANKS SHRED OKINAWA LINE

TANKS HELP IN 1,000 YD. GAIN; 2 TOWNS FALL

Carrier Planes Raid Kyushu Bases

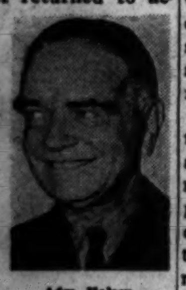
GUAM, June 3 [Sunday]—(AP)—Adm. Halsey, just returned to action in the Pacific with his United States 3d fleet, sent carrier planes against potential suicide plane bases of the Japanese homeland on Kyushu Island Saturday, while the 10th army tore into disintegrating enemy forces on Okinawa and captured two villages.



Adm. Halsey

The Yanks ranged below the collapsed Naha-Yonabaru line Saturday for general gains backed by tanks and heavy artillery, due to a cessation of rainy weather.

In the west coast sector southeast of fallen Naha, the 1st marine division gained 1,000 yards below Shuri and crossed the Naha-Yonabaru east-west highway. Near the center, the 96th infantry division captured Chan village, which is two miles below captured Shuri, and pushed on below Chan toward Tera village. The Yanks seized high ground near Kamizato.

Aim to Cut Off Japs

On the east coast side, the 7th infantry pushed southward in a move aimed at cutting off the Chenin peninsula and reopening the Nakagusuku harbor, once anchorage of the Japanese fleet. The 7th captured Ogusuku town, two and a half miles south of occupied Yonabaru and speared toward Shinzato.

The 77th infantry mopped up Japanese stragglers around fortress Shuri.

Japanese survivors of the shattered Shuri line appeared to be mustering a large portion of their waning strength for a last stand defense of Naha air field, largest on the island.

Sixth marine division patrols operating south of Kokuba river reported that Naha peninsula on the west coast was alive with enemy troops in the vicinity of the air field south of Naha.

Japs Are Broken Up

Naha and Chinen peninsulas form the wings of the arrowhead shaped southern end of Okinawa, where there is an estimated 25,000 survivors of the Japanese Okinawa garrison, originally figured at about 85,000.

The nubs of Japanese resistance on the east and west indicate the Nipponese are broken into widely separated forces.

Into this southern area Adm. Halsey hurled tons of heavy shells yesterday—his "calling cards," as he put it, to announce his return to action with the 3d fleet.

Bag 36 Jap Planes

Hellcats from flattops of Vice Adm. John S. McCain destroyed or damaged 36 Japanese planes as they bombed five Kyushu air fields in support of the ground campaign on Okinawa.

Today's fleet bulletin listed two enemy planes shot out of the air, 11 destroyed on the ground and 23 damaged in attacks on Miyazaki, Kokubu, Kushira, Kagoshima, and Chiran.

ILLINOISANS TO MEET FRIENDS ON GUAM AT CELEBRATION TODAY

BY HAROLD SMITH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., GUAM, June 2—Tomorrow is Illinois day on Guam. More than 500 men from Illinois are expected to attend a gathering in a scenic recreation area near Tumon bay. A special registration system will enable individuals to locate friends they have not seen since joining the service.

Two Chicago Seabees originated the Illinois day plan six weeks ago. They are Bosun's Mate 2/C William H. Mabry, 31, 6621 S. Laflin st., a former Marquette park athletic instructor, and Specialist Small Laundry 3/C Harry L. Snyder, 41, 1318 Wilson av., who was in the automobile finance business.

U. S. RULE READY FOR OKINAWA'S 300,000 PEOPLE

BY THOMAS MORROW
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OKINAWA, June 2—As American forces slug southward and toward the end of the campaign, military government officials are polishing up the machinery to guide the lives of an Okinawan civilian population expected to total 300,000 before the last cave is probed.

The immediate problem is the adjustment of wages to be paid to the prices established for commodities. Under the present rate of 10 to one and pre-invasion prices, 15 cents would purchase a pair of pants, 3 cents a village hair cut, shave and shampoo, 3 cents a lipstick, ½ cent a pound of sweet potatoes and $8 a new set of store teeth.

On the same basis a village school teacher's salary, plus a government allowance, totaled $10.50 monthly, a man heading a village finance department drew $6 a month. Monthly costs of living in the villages where they toiled ran from $4 to $6 monthly.

Will Employ Natives

As the fighting stops and life returns to normal, the natives will be employed by the Americans for labor, houskeeping chores and laundry work. They will be encouraged to busy themselves with fishing, making soap, flour, charcoal and bamboo products and raising sweet potatoes, rice, and tobacco.

One town, whose inhabitants range from a confidence man to a school principal, is an example of present native living conditions. Headed by Lt. Col. Donald T. Winder, officer in charge of the 3d amphibious corps military government section and a former Chicago attorney, the village was carved from the bombed rubble of a former town and is made up of 4,000 men over military age, 6,000 older women and 7,000 children.

Cleanup and building work was done by native working parties and includes 239 buildings, a children's playground complete with swings, teeter-totters, and various games. The only military officials are naval Lt. William S. Allen Jr., Seattle, Wash., the mayor, and army Capt. Jean A. Fox, Shelbyville, Ind., chief of police. They will step down as soon as competent native replacements are found.

Each of the 58 living compounds has a native hansho, or headman. They have chosen an executive committee or city council of the men who eventually will select a mayor.

Confidence Man Caught

Home grown policemen have led to the disciplinary pit, a square hole in the ground, the first Okinawa confidence man. He was gathering up the natives' savings with the sales talk that native money was valueless with the American arrival and that he had been appointed to collect.

The first work of the city council was to establish an orphan asylum, an old people's home, and an insane asylum. The inhabitants were enthusiastic after these were suggested by the military government men, altho the custom was for insane persons to wander about freely while their fellows spat on them in contempt.

The native terror of the invaders, fed on Japanese propaganda, has changed to acceptance, and, as far as can be seen outwardly, contented coöperation. Col. Winder said the Okinawans are most amazed by the Americans' kind treatment of old folks, which is in exact opposition to the Japanese reaction to their elders.

150,000 to Join 5th Holy Hour Rites Tonight

Three and a half hours of merged religious devotion and patriotism in Soldiers' field tonight are expected by Catholic leaders to draw 150,000 persons to the lake front stadium. The occasion is the 5th annual holy hour of the Holy Name society of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Chicago. The principal celebrant will be Archbishop Stritch, assisted by visiting members of the hierarchy, and hundreds of the archdiocesan clergy and monsignori.

Civic dignitaries headed by Mayor Kelly will be present and delegations from the service forces of the Chicago area will attend. The ceremonies will be divided into a preliminary program and the holy hour proper. The welcoming address by the Rev. Edward J. Kelly, executive director of the union, will open the preliminary part at 6 o'clock.

War Dead Kin Take Part

Then will follow a band concert by the sailors of Navy pier and the pledge of allegiance to the flag led by John Zvetina, president of the society. Zvetina also will address the assemblage on the meaning of the holy hour.

At this point an honor guard composed of Chicago firemen and policemen will form an aisle down the field thru which will pass the ecclesiastical and gold star family processions. The latter will be relatives of the 4,210 Catholic service men of the archdiocese who have lost their lives in the war.

Archbishop Stritch to Speak

The recognition honors for the dead will be a dramatic point of the evening with soldiers, sailors, and marines taking part. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Daniel Byrnes, general chairman of the holy hour executive committee, will be one of the speakers of the religious portion of the hour and Archbishop Stritch will deliver two meditations, one, "Nazareth," in which the ideals of the Christian family will be stressed, and the other, "The Peace Mission of the Christian Family."

The massive altar at the north end of the field will depict the holy family of the Savior, symbolic of the dedication of the hour. A solemn procession of the blessed sacrament will precede the climax of devotions when Archbishop Stritch will celebrate solemn benediction of the sacrament. In event of rain the hour will be postponed until June 10.

Army Halts Red Cross Recruitment of Nurses

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP)—The American Red Cross announced today that it had been asked by the army to stop accepting applications from prospective recruits because the army has enough nurses. The Red Cross said nurses who have served their senior cadet period in army hospitals probably will be sufficient to meet the need for replacements in the future.

NEW YORK TO GREET GEN. BRADLEY TODAY ON HIS RETURN HOME

New York, June 2 (AP)—Gen. Bradley, commander of the 12th army group, will arrive at New York airport tomorrow from Europe, the army disclosed today.

The general is scheduled to speak at military academy graduation exercises at West Point, N. Y., Tuesday.

Mayor La Guardia announced that Gen. Eisenhower would arrive here June 19 and the day would be proclaimed "Eisenhower day."

The mayor said Eisenhower would come from Washington and would go to West Point after his New York visit. At Abilene, Kas., it was announced the general will be there June 21 for a family reunion at the home of Mrs. D. J. Eisenhower, 83, his mother.

HUGE NAZI GOLD HOARD HAULED OFF IN TRUCKS

PARIS, June 2 [Reuters]—Protected by Mustang fighter planes and infantry men, trucks recently transferred the great German hoard of bullion and currency discovered in April by the United States 3d army. The hoard, which was found in the salt mine at Merkers, near Mulhausen, was moved to Frankfurt in the world's richest convoy. Each truck carried $12,000,000 to $80,000,000. Some were loaded so high with currency that extra high sides had to be set up. It was reported in April that more than 100 tons of gold, believed to be the entire reserves of the Reichsbank, had been found in the mine.

LINDY IN EUROPE AS PLANE FIRM'S TECHNICAL AID

Hartford, Conn., June 2 (AP)—The United Aircraft corporation said today that Charles Lindbergh, its technical adviser, had been in Europe since before the defeat of Germany and that he probably would stay for some time.

The company said Lindbergh was continuing the work of studying the corporation's equipment under war time conditions.

The corporation said it did not know precisely where Lindbergh was at the moment.

Allied Chiefs Will Meet in Berlin Today

PARIS, June 3 [Sunday]—(AP)—The four power allied control council for Germany will meet in Berlin late today for its initial session, it was learned.

Supreme headquarters called upon the American war correspondents' committee to supply five men on a pool basis to cover the first meeting.

Agree Upon Zones

General Eisenhower is the United States representative on the council. The other members are Soviet Marshal Zhukov, British Field Marshal Montgomery, and the French Lt. Gen. Koenig.

From competent sources it was learned that boundaries for the occupation of Germany have been agreed upon for some time, except for minor details. The job of the council is to set up a control policy, the carrying out of which will be left to the occupation armies. The move into the respective occupation areas will take some time.

Places for Five Newsmen

Supreme headquarters arbitrarily set the number of correspondents to cover the meeting at five, saying there were no places for more.

The places were divided one for the American news services, one for special newspapers, one for radio commentators, one for still pictures and one for motion pictures. There was no indication of how many British and French correspondents would be taken. The American correspondents' committee, which has repeatedly urged full press representation at such events, accepted the pooling arrangement under protest.

DICTATORSHIP AIMS DENIED BY DE VALERA

WATERFORD, Eire, June 2 [Reuters]—Eamon De Valera, prime minister of Eire, who entered the town preceded by a cavalcade of horsemen and two bands, tonight addressed a meeting of between 2,000 and 3,000 and denied allegations that he and his party were trying to establish a dictatorship in Eire.

De Valera devoted the first part of his speech mainly to urging the people to learn Irish. English, he said, was a language imposed upon the country by foreigners. If they lost their own language they would be a mere province of Britain.

Speaking of the presidential election De Valera asked the people of Eire to vote for the nominee of the Fianna Fail party.

Volkswagons Delivered at Last—for U. S. Army

PARIS, June 2 (AP)—A number of Volkswagons—once Hitler's promised "people's car" which became the German equivalent of the jeep—have been produced at Wolfsberg over a 10 day period under direction of Col. Grafton S. Kennedy of the United States 9th army ordnance to help relieve the transportation shortage.

BIG FIVE CLASH OVER STALIN'S 'SACRED' VETO

Parley Periled by Reds' Stand

Delay Parley End

Washington, D. C., June 2 [Special]—President Truman has been notified that the security conference in San Francisco will not adjourn on June 6, as had been scheduled, but that it will adjourn "some days thereafter," Charles G. Ross, Presidential press secretary, announced today. Mr. Truman will adhere to his plan of addressing the final plenary session.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 2—Soviet Ambassador Gromyko tonight refused to accept any alterations in the "sacred" Yalta formula on veto power for the Big Five nations at the world security conference here while the chieftains of the parley called a third emergency meeting within 24 hours, striving frantically to avert a new crisis.

A. A. Gromyko

It was reported Dictator Stalin opposed even the slightest retreat from the Yalta formula under which any one of the Big Five could prevent action of any kind by the security council in the new world organization.

In the rococo splendor of State Secretary Stettinius' penthouse on the Fairmont hotel Gromyko was reported to be resisting all appeals for softening of the formula from his four colleagues, Stettinius, Ambassador Halifax of Great Britain, Joseph Paul-Boncour of France, and Dr. Wellington Koo of China.

Russia Expected to Win

Gromyko was said to have told the others that he saw no reason why the soviet stand should not be acceptable to them. Despite the warmth of the debate, the general expectation among conference observers was that the Russians might win the battle. Any new compromise offer, it was noted, would be followed by another long delay while a reply was awaited from Moscow.

The Big Five meeting, which had been called at 7:30 p. m. [Chicago time] broke up an hour and a half later, with the leaders announcing that a statement was being prepared and would be released shortly. Several sources indicated the statement "would have meat in it," altho its purport was not indicated.

The Big Five leaders sweated over their statement for two hours, and shortly after 11 p. m. [Chicago time] announced there would be none released tonight.

Wrangle at Midnight

A bitter wrangle featured the first meeting last midnight at which Gromyko handed over Moscow's verdict on a technical committee's suggestions for minor modifications of the veto power. Progress had been halted for a week while word was awaited from Dictator Stalin.

"The Yalta formula is sacred," Gromyko was quoted as telling the conferees. "Soviet Russia does not want to change in any degree the agreement reached by the great

ARMY WILL REVISE NEW DISCHARGE OF VETERANS ON POINTS

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP)—A soldier who has acquired sufficient points since May 12 to gain his discharge from the army won't be able to get out at once, the war department explained today.

The men who have been discharged from the service since May 12 had 85 points or more as of that date.

At a future time the army will fix a new point revaluation time. Points accumulated between May 12 and the new date then will be figured and those who have the proper score discharged. Calculation was expected to take about six weeks, beginning in mid-May.

DAMASCUS MOBS KILL AND LOOT IN ANGER AT FRENCH

BY CLAY GOWRAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

DAMASCUS, Syria, June 2—Two French Senegalese soldiers were caught and killed by an angry Syrian mob today as British forces began the task of moving the French troops from their barracks in this ancient city under cover of a curfew. A French officer with the Senegalese was injured.

In other outbreaks a French sentry guarding headquarters was wounded; another mob desecrated the French flag; a French citizen was seized and held hostage for several hours, French troops fired on passersby from their barracks, wounding two who were rescued by British tanks, and two homes of Frenchmen were looted as Syrians looked on happily.

Since noon, Damascus has been quiet but there was angry tension as Syrians went about the grim business of burying those killed in the three days of fighting.

Dismiss French General

There was rejoicing this afternoon when they heard the news that French Gen. Oliva Roget, who directed the shelling, bombing, mortaring, and machine gunning of this poorly defended city, had been dismissed by Gen. Humbolt, supreme French commander in the Levant. At noon the British took Humbolt on a tour of the city in an armored car to see what French weapons and troops had done in their all-out attack.

A British army commission also inspected the French barracks, looking for hostages which the Syrians claim the French colonials had taken and also for loot seized by Senegalese and Circassian troops.

The good feeling that Syrians hold for the British and Americans was comically illustrated when James Carter of Cleveland, O., a photographer for the OWI, took pictures of the two wounded civilians at a hospital. Nurses, stretcher bearers, and doctors stopped in the act of removing the wounded men from the ambulance and posed happily. The final touch came when the patients, who were only slightly hurt, raised their heads from the stretchers and grinned toothily at the camera.

Hundreds Believed Dead

This afternoon I toured all the Damascus hospitals in an attempt to get some sort of an estimate of how many were wounded and dead. Any accurate estimate is impossible because of the present disorganization and the shattered state of telephone communications, but the dead must number hundreds and the wounded well over a thousand. Some of the dead still sprawl in the streets where they fell.

In the British military hospital I found an 8 year old boy dying with bullet wounds thru his abdomen. A 12 year old orphan was facing amputation of both of his legs. Half a dozen other wounded children were in the hospital, while many others were cared for in other institutions.

Bullets Fired Into Hospital

At the new Damascus medical university maternity hospital Miss Aghavine Boghossian, the American trained acting matron, showed me what the French had done to her building. More than 60 bullets smashed thru the walls and windows into the rooms despite the fact that the hospital was undefended and clearly marked. Tuesday night two newborn babies were in the third floor nursery when two French bullets ripped the window just above their heads.

"Last Tuesday night was horrible," said the acting matron. "Bullets continually slashed thru the windows, and we were forced to move the patients into the basement. In addition to caring for the wounded there, we delivered three babies right in the basement while the fighting was the heaviest."

In one room I visited a bullet had passed thru an outside window, across the room and out thru a window into the corridor. I put my eye to the bullet hole and found myself looking directly at a sandbagged window in the French military hospital about two blocks away.

Trumans Leave Capital to Visit Missouri Home

FRENCH REBUFF BRITAIN; SPURN SYRIA PARLEY

Levant Armed by London: De Gaulle

BY ROBERT SAGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, June 2—Without mincing words, Gen. de Gaulle today laid the blame for the troubles in Syria squarely in the lap of Britain. He charged that Syrians who fought the French "carried arms furnished by the British," and that a "crowd" of British agents precipitated the uprising. "Everyone knows their names," he said, "and I would blush to give them to you."

Gen. De Gaulle

De Gaulle suggested that a four power conference, including Russia, negotiate the question "of the whole Arab world." Britain, he said, is not the only interested party because the United States and Russia have now made their positions known.

Spurns Tripartite Parley

The French leader told of French-British political and economic clashes in the middle east dating from World War I. and clearly indicated his refusal to submit the problem to a tripartite meeting of France, Britain, and the United States as proposed three days ago by Prime Minister Churchill.

He said Churchill's message "will change nothing," and added: "I haven't thought it necessary to reply to this message."

"We must finish with dictates and crises," De Gaulle said.

"Let there be no mistake," he said, "the entire French people are gathered around their government to see that its interests and dignity are respected and, if necessary, to make them respected."

Chides British Methods

De Gaulle was in fine fettle as he replied to Churchill's note in kind, that is, by addressing more than 200 newspapermen instead of sending a message thru diplomatic channels, in return for Foreign Minister Eden's action in announcing the contents of Churchill's message to the house of commons before it had been delivered to De Gaulle.

"We are not yet used to these new methods," De Gaulle remarked, "but doubtless as time goes on we will learn."

His talk, which lasted more than an hour, was interspersed with humor and irony, which several times brought laughter from his audience, and at the conclusion he was greeted by applause.

The head of the government pointed out that in recent years France had withdrawn her troops from the Levant to fight the Germans, particularly at Bir Hakeim, until there were only three battalions left. To these two more were added recently, making in all between 4,000 and 5,000 French troops, in addition to the so-called "special troops"—Syrians under French officers [it is understood there are about 20,000 of these].

At the same time, De Gaulle said, the British retained nearly 600,000 troops in the Levant, including the entire 9th army.

"I don't know," he commented, "perhaps there's some danger from the Japanese there."

One Artillery Battery Used

Referring to the highly colored British stories of the French bombardment of Damascus, De Gaulle said a single airplane and one battery of artillery were used.

When an English correspondent asked if De Gaulle did not think the means of repression were disproportionate to the provocation, the general answered that when some one fires at you, you fire back, and he reminded his questioner of recent events in Athens. The casualties and damage were considerably less in Damascus than in Athens, he said.

During the questioning about British agents, a French correspondent asked about the activities of Maj. Gen. Edward Spears, former British minister to Syria and Leganon, De Gaulle replied:

"I refrain from interpreting any intentions. The diplomat of whom you speak represented his country at Beirut [Beyrouth] for three years. It is difficult for me to imagine that he carried out a policy different from that of his government."

Names Chief Difficulties

De Gaulle said the difficulties in the middle east came from these two principal sources.

1. The fact that Syria does not represent a geographic or political entity, like Irak, Palestine, and Egypt.

2. The British attitude.

He asserted that the initiative of landing in Syria in 1941 was taken by the Free French, who drew the English in after them. "The matter will be established on document by history," he said.

Recalling that the Lyttelton-De Gaulle accords were signed July 23, 1941, and agreed that France should continue to play its role in Syria and Lebanon and should alone be in charge of maintaining order, the general said this order lasted until the afternoon of May 31, 1945.

Claims British Oppose Moves

In the meantime, he said, the British consistently opposed any increase in the number of French troops in the Levant on the excuse that French ships were being used by the allied pool and troops would have to pass thru Egypt. These excuses no longer hold and so there's trouble, he said.

The French thesis, as outlined by De Gaulle, is that France wants to negotiate treaties with Syria and Lebanon, settling outstanding economic and cultural questions, and also wants to obtain bases, the same as England and the United States. France wants an international settlement of the entire middle east question.

Expect British Reply

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 2—An informed British source tonight said a full reply to Gen. De Gaulle charges undoubtedly will be made in the house of commons or otherwise by an official spokesman.

In any case, this source said, there is no truth in the accusation that British agents agitated against the French in the Levant.

Meantime, it was confidently expected that a conference to wash out the middle east's dirty linen will be convened as soon as possible.

Russia's request that China be included is being given sympathetic consideration since it would result in a full dress Big Five assembly.

Moscow's call for a conference is taken here by some observers to mean that Marshal Stalin has decided to throw his weight onto Britain's side, but others find it hard to reconcile this conclusion with De Gaulle's dealings with the Kremlin.

In some diplomatic quarters France is seen as trying to play the middle against both ends. One observer put it thus:

British Help Widen Rift

"The rift between Britain and France has widened ever since De Gaulle replied to Prime Minister Churchill's western bloc approach of last Armistice day by putting the appeasement of French Communists before good relations with Britain, turning his back on the west and going straight to Moscow. And the rift has been unintentionally assisted by the British policy of continued support and appeasement of De Gaulle."

However, the present row is seen as beneficial by another observer due to the fact that it has made plain to British statesmen the "error they committed in promoting De Gaulle to the pinnacle of political leadership and failing to make a distinction between De Gaulle and France" in later actions in which the French leader adopted an almost violently anti-British attitude, bringing the nations "to the verge of armed hostilities in Syria."

TERROR AGAINST ARGENTINE PRESS LAID TO REGIME

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 2 (AP)—The Argentine opposition group Patria Libre [Free Fatherland] charged today that the Argentine government closed 14 newspapers recently and arrested at least 10 editors in suppression of a free press.

A report issued thru a group of former Argentine government officials in exile here asserted that the Argentine undersecretariat of press information devotes part of its annual budget of 6,000,000 pesos [$1,500,000] to subsidize newspapers "published irregularly."

Charge Nazis Are Aided

New York, June 2 (AP)—A broadcast Tass agency dispatch today quoted a Montevideo message as saying that three prominent Hitlerites were being given asylum in Argentina and that Argentine officials were protecting them. The dispatch listed the three as Richard Schroeder, a chief assistant to Nazi Labor Minister Robert Ley; Walter Wilkening, recently a collaborator of Gestapo Chief Himmler, and Wilhelm Schreckenbach, a leader of the Gestapo in France.

ASKS ARGENTINA BE GIVEN TIME FOR REFORMING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 2—Oscar Ibarra-Garcia, new Argentinian ambassador to the United States, today asked that judgment against his nation be withheld until the revolutionary government, still experiencing turbulent times, can put into effect the democratic processes to which he said it is dedicated.

He pledged in an interview that his government will modify extreme regulations as rapidly as possible.

Ibarra [he's Ambassador Ibarra in Argentina despite the double name] denied there is any Fascist or totalitarian tendency in his country. He was state undersecretary when the new regime broke with the axis.

UPSURGE OF RED MILITARY STIRS FEAR IN CAPITAL

Stalin's Use of Force to Win Aims Expected

BY WALTER TROHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 2—Russian demonstrations of militarism since the fall of Germany are being followed with the gravest interest in military and diplomatic circles here as the soviets cement their holds on the sphere of influence they have carved in shattered Europe.

Altho Russia nominally is at peace since the surrender of Germany, no step has been taken toward demobilization of the Russian army, such as was begun in this country even tho the United States still is at war with Japan.

Instead, various Red armies, estimated by the army and navy journal at 10 or 12 millions strong, are conducting maneuvers to take advantage of lessons learned in the war with Germany. The maneuvers are bringing the army up to the minute on tactics, organization, and logistics.

Reds Increase Army

Rather than decreasing the army, the soviets during the week announced plans to increase the Red army by some 2½ million or 3 million young men. Youths 15 and 16 are to undergo basic military training.

The youths are to be trained by veterans at Tomsk, which lies almost in mid-Siberia. The training of such a formidable force in the heart of Siberia is assumed to be giving deep concern to the Japanese.

In addition to these military programs in Russia, by which Russia is being maintained as an armed camp, the Russians have undertaken military programs in the so-called satellite countries. Twelve of the thirteen eastern European nations of 1933 are recognized as in the soviet sphere.

Cut on Russian Pattern

It was announced recently that the Czechoslovak army would be patterned after the Red army in organization, training, and equipment. The Romanian, Bulgarian, Hungarian, and Polish armies are being cut on the Moscow pattern. The Yugoslav army is considered to be virtually a component of the Red army.

Observers have noted that Dictator Stalin is building the reverse of the cordon sanitaire in eastern Europe. He is bringing these nations into the soviet sphere as a possible first line of Russian defense against western Europe.

As Russian influence is spreading, the British have been seen working desperately to establish a counter sphere including France, Belgium, Holland, Norway, Italy, Denmark, and the rest of western Europe into line against the east.

Ready to Back Aims

Under the soviet military programs in and out of Russia proper, Stalin is prepared to maintain the security of his country and back by force, if necessary, his aims in Europe and in Asia.

While the Red army is short of equipment, no shortage of man power exists and there is an over abundance of surging nationalism, which makes for excellent Russian morale.

It has been reported reliably here that the soviets are overcoming industrial shortage by moving machinery, equipment, and even technicians from conquered territory—particularly Germany—into Russia, probably deep into the newly created industrial areas in the Ural mountains, where they will be far from possible bombing attacks.

According to informed sources the soviets moved all oil refining machinery from the Ploesti oil fields in Romania into Russia. This machinery was the property largely of British oil interests, altho some of it was American owned.

Arms Aims Doubtful

It also is said that the Russians have been moving machinery from the German industrial region in Silesia and from satellite countries as far west as Austria.

The soviet military program is attracting deep attention here, not only because it indicates Stalin is preparing to back his demands by force but also because it spells no hope for post-war disarmament. If Russia plans to maintain a mighty military machine, observers are convinced, other nations will have to turn to building large armies to protect their security.

And large armies, observers are convinced, dispel any hope of permanent peace such as is being advanced at the San Francisco conference, because history has shown that where there are large armies, leaders find means of putting them into battle.

REVEAL TANKS FORCED EGYPT'S KING INTO LINE

PARIS, June 2 (AP)—One of the stories of the war untold until now concerns a crisis in British-Egyptian relations early in 1942. The British are reported to have given King Farouk his choice between abdication and naming a premier favorable to the allies while their tanks rumbled up to the palace gates.

King Farouk

It has been hinted at here and there but never been told fully because of the rigid political censorship which blanketed the middle east at that time.

[This dispatch was shown to the British foreign office in London, which refused to confirm, deny, or even comment on it. Tucker was in Egypt as a war correspondent shortly after the events he describes.]

Tell Story of Crisis

This is the story as it came from persons who should know, some of them British:

Late in January, 1942, a crisis forced the Egyptian government of Premier Hussein Sirry Pasha to resign. King Farouk's choice for the new premier was Ali Maher Pasha, a former premier and a friend of the monarch but a man whose anti-British sentiments were well advertised.

Early in February Miles Lampson, British ambassador to Egypt, saw the king and explained that Ali Maher was unacceptable because of his pro-Italian sentiments. As an alternative the British ambassador suggested Mustafa Nahas Pasha.

[Later Nahas Pasha did become premier, and in April, 1942, he ordered Ali Maher's arrest "for reasons of public security." Dispatches at the time said the discovery of a British plan for defense of Egypt among the papers of an Italian general captured in Libya led to the arrest of Ali Maher, who was described as one of a limited number of persons who had access to the plan.]

King Rejects Plea

Farouk refused Lampson's request. Pressure was brought to bear and the king is said to have politely asked Lampson to leave.

Greatly upset, Lampson asked Alexander Kirk, then the United States minister to Egypt, to intervene, and Kirk is reported to have explained to the king how pleased the United States would be over the nomination of some one friendly to the allied cause.

At 4 p. m. on Feb. 4 Lampson asked for another interview with the king. The interview was set for 5 p. m. and Lampson arrived on the dot accompanied by Gen. Robert Stone, commander of British garrison forces in Egypt.

When they entered the palace Lampson is said to have put it very bluntly to the king.

Monarch Gets Ultimatum

"Here are two papers," he is reported to have said. "One calls for your immediate abdication. In that event a plane is waiting to take you to South Africa. The alternative is to name Nahas Pasha prime minister."

New Zealand troops surrounded the palace grounds. Palace guards defending the gates were quickly overpowered and two light British tanks rumbled up to the doors, making Farouk virtually a prisoner in his own palace.

Those who witnessed the interview have been quoted as saying that the king remained frigidly silent. Then he is reported to have said, "You leave no alternative since I have no intentions of abdicating." He added, "But I shall not forget."

Farouk maintained his icy demeanor until Lampson and Stone had left. Then he is said to have raged thru the palace for an hour banging tables and kicking pictures off the walls.

Subsequently the British and Americans were able to fight a successful war from Cairo, and Egypt eventually came in on the allied side. But a casual examination of Farouk's utterances since then shows numerous gibes at the British.

MacLEISH TELLS U.S. OF A STRANGE CITY: CHICAGO

He Thinks Its People Live in the Past

BY WILLIAM MOORE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 2—World figures at the international conference heard an apology for Chicago and the middle west tonight from Assistant Secretary of State MacLeish, a poet and internationalist whose confirmation in his present post was vigorously opposed in the senate.

Archibald MacLeish

MacLeish, who has made his home in the east for many years, sneered at Chicago nationalists, accusing them of wishing to live in the past, but gave the rest of the Chicagoans a generous O. K. by telling the radio world they really have the courage to face the facts.

The whole idea of the middle west, he said, is one that belongs in a museum of ideas.

The assistant secretary offered as plausibility for his competence to interpret benighted Chicagoans and middle westerners the fact that his family has lived in Chicago a century. And he spoke from Chicago.

It's a Strange Place

MacLeish introduced a National Broadcasting company report on the international conference here. Other speakers on the program, who spoke from the conference city, were Cmdr. Stassen and Rep. Eaton [R., N. J.] of the American conference delegation.

"Chicago," MacLeish said, "may strike some listeners as a strange place from which to broadcast about the united nations conference at San Francisco.

"There is a theory around the country that Chicago has no interest in such matters—that Chicago is isolationist—that Chicago thinks it is safe in the middle of its middle west and doesn't like foreigners anyway.

"There is no question but that some Chicagoans talk that way and in public and as loud and long as possible without stopping.

Idea of One World

"But it doesn't follow that the rest of the Chicagoans agree with them. No one has ever yet been able to tell the people of Chicago what they ought to think.

"My own family," MacLeish continued, "which has lived in this city [Chicago] close to a hundred years, provides convincing proof of that. They talk, for the most part, like Americans anywhere else—the four out of five Americans whose minds were made up, even before San Francisco started, that an international organization for peace and security ought to be set up and that the United States should be a part of such an organization—that the world was one world and you had to treat it as one world or take the consequences . . ."

Telling the lessons learned from the war by Chicagoans, MacLeish said:

"They know that the whole idea of 'the middle west' is an idea carried over from the steam locomotive and the first Morse code—an idea which belongs in a museum of ideas, not in a living vocabulary . . ."

Courage to Face Facts

"It would be a mistake to assume, because some Chicagoans wish to return to a nostalgic and suburban past in which the risks are avoided by refusing to think of the risks, that the rest of the citizens of Chicago long for such imaginary safety. . . . Most Chicagoans also have the courage to face the facts."

Stassen reported on the progress of the conference.

Eaton lamented that "one thing we are up against" is "a revival of nationalism."

He praised State Secretary Stettinius as "one of the ablest young men ever to enter the service of his country."

As for those who criticize the charter being drawn up here, Eaton said:

"You will always have people like the musician who wants to play the fly specks on his music rather than the notes."

Minister Van Kleffens Leaves Frisco Parley

LEAGUE COURT'S JURISDICTION IS LEFT OPTIONAL

U. S. May Use Service in Disputes

BY EUGENE GRIFFIN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 2—Jurisdiction of the international court of justice of the security organization being formed here will be optional with the members, similar to the jurisdiction of the old World court, it was announced today.

Green Hackworth

The United States, represented by Green Hackworth, legal adviser to the state department, and Great Britain, Russia, China, and France—the Big Five—had argued in committee for the optional clause. Smaller nations, including Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and most of the Latin Americans, had held out for several days for outright compulsory jurisdiction.

Wins by 31-14 Vote

The optional text was accepted last night by a vote of 31 to 14 on the second roll call.

Member nations may at any time declare they recognize as compulsory and without special agreement, in relation to any other member accepting the same obligation, the jurisdiction of the court in legal disputes concerning: interpretation of a treaty; any question of international law; the existence of any fact which, if established, would constitute a breach of an international obligation; the nature or extent of the reparation to be made for the breach of an international obligation.

May Refer Disputes

If the United States does not accept the compulsory jurisdiction of the court, it still may refer matters to it for arbitration. The United States and Saudi Arabia were the only two countries which never were members of the old court.

The question of jurisdiction was the last important problem before the court committee. It has been decided the court shall consist of 15 judges elected to nine year terms by the general assembly and the security council of the international organization. The court may give advisory opinions on international matters in dispute or question. It will sit at the Hague, the Netherlands.

TYRANNY AGAIN PERILS EUROPE, POPE PIUS SAYS

VATICAN CITY, June 2 (AP)—Pope Pius XII. expressed the hope today that the German people, purged of nazism, "can rise to new dignity and new life," but said post-war Europe was menaced by a "tyranny no less despotic than those for whose overthrow men planned."

Pope Pius

In a world broadcast on St. Eugene's day, his name day, the pontiff reviewed the Vatican's pre-war German policy.

The holy father defended the rights of the small nations "to take their destinies in their own hands" and said the future "harmonious relations between men" was threatened by mobs of "dispossessed, disillusioned, disappointed, and hopeless men."

Czech Promises Cited

"We have at last to deplore," the pope said, "in more than one region the murder of priests, the deportations of civilians, and the killing of citizens without trial or in personal vendetta. No less sad is the news that has reached us from Slovenia and Croatia [provinces of Yugoslavia].

However, the pontiff added, "we will not lose heart" as "the speeches made by competent and responsible men in the last few weeks make it clear that they are aiming at the triumph of right."

The pope declared that the Vatican concluded the 1933 concordat with Germany "to set up a formidable barrier to the spread of ideas at once subversive and violent," and asserted that Pius XI., his predecessor, denounced the nazi regime in 1937 after the "solemn pact" had been deliberately violated by the Germans.

Church's Warning Early

"Nobody," he said, "could accuse the church of not having denounced and exposed in time the true nature of the National Socialist movement and the danger to which it exposed Christian civilization."

The pope said that in the years of his nunciature in Berlin he had "occasion to learn the great qualities of the people, and we were personally in close contact with its most representative men."

"For that reason," he added, "we cherish the hope that it can rise to new dignity and new life when once it has laid the satanic specter raised by national socialism, and the guilty have expiated the crimes they have committed."

The pope described the peace in Europe today as "yet very fragile, which cannot endure or be consolidated except by expending on it the most assiduous care . . ." and called on all the peoples of the world "to devote themselves to it, each in his own office and at his own place."

Ending of Wars First Task

The pontiff said the "primary task of the peace framers is to put an end to the criminal war game and to safeguard vital rights and mutual obligations as between the great and small, the powerful and the weak."

"The medium and small nations," the pope said, "claim the right to take their destinies into their own hands. They can be led to assume, with their full and willing consent, in the interest of common progress, obligations which will modify their sovereign rights. But after sustaining their share—their large share—of suffering in order to overthrow a system of brutal violence, they are entitled to refuse to accept a new political or cultural system which is decisively rejected by the great majority of their people."

The pontiff, apparently referring to the world security conference at San Francisco, said "the whole of mankind follows the progress" of a new peace organization.

GREECE AT WAR WITH JAPAN FROM START, SAYS GOVERNMENT

ATHENS, Greece, June 2 [Reuters]—The Greek government today announced that it regards itself as having been in a state of war with Japan ever since war broke out between Japan and Greece's allies, the Greek news agency reported.

"Greece, who came into the present war to defend the elementary rights of men and nations, and who fought alone for long months by the side of Great Britain against the oppressors of freedom and independence, has always regarded as her own enemies those of her great ally, just as she regarded as her enemies those of the two other great powers, soviet Russia and the United States," the official statement declared.

"Not only did Greece break off diplomatic relations with Japan, but the Greek fleet took part in a number of military operations against Japan."

FRANCE TO TAKE OVER 47,000 MI. OF AIR LINES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, June 2—More than 47,000 miles of commercial air lines, stretching from Hong Kong in the east to South America in the west, will come into possession of the French state as a result of an ordinance just approved by the De Gaulle government, nationalizing French air transport. This represents some 6,000 miles more than the total distance covered by French commercial air lines before the war.

It is stressed, however, that the nationalization measure by which the state buys the stock will not kill private enterprise in air travel. The lines affected are only those operating regularly all year.

Companies running air taxi service, or exploiting tourist planes during holiday seasons, will be allowed to continue as in the past.

Included in the nationalization will be a new line to be called Air France Transatlantique, which will have a monopoly of French commercial air traffic between this country and the United States.

HOW LONG REDS STAY ON DANISH ISLE 'UP TO BIG 3'

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, June 2—At a press conference today, the Russian Gen. Konatkov said that the duration of the Red army's occupation of Bornholm "will be exactly as Marshal Stalin, President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill decide." He answered affirmatively when asked whether they would "decide together." He said there were no more Russian troops on Bornholm than necessary to chase out the Germans and answered "there is nothing about that in the reports I receive," to a question whether the Russians are building bases and air fields on the island.

STALIN DEMAND FOR VETO STIRS FRISCO PARLEY

leaders, Stalin, Roosevelt, and Churchill."

The United States, Great Britain, China, and France had not proposed any substantial changes. They are unanimous with Russia in their agreement to retain the veto over settlement of all disputes by peaceful means or otherwise. But they had proposed a few alterations intended to assuage, in some degree, the protests of middle and small powers.

Copies Closely Guarded

Only two copies of the Moscow answer were available and they were closely guarded while all present at the meeting, including the technical experts, were pledged to the strictest secrecy.

The discussion continued heated at a second meeting this morning which continued for three hours. It broke up until this evening when arguments were resumed at a third gathering.

The entire American delegation attended the second session. Sen. Vandenberg, Comdr. Stassen, and other American delegates, afterwards would not talk to reporters. They refused to comment on reports that the Russians went so far as to object to stripping from the big powers the right to prevent a complaining nation from being heard by the security council.

Appeal by Stettinius

Stettinius made an urgent appeal to the leaders to break the log-jam of work which has held up completion of the world charter. The solution of virtually all other problems, he told them, depends on their decision as to what extent the principal powers of the new world league are to be concentrated in the hands of the big nations.

The American chairman has been embarrassed, it is known, because he was forced to notify President Truman that the conference would not adjourn June 6, as had been scheduled, but "some days thereafter." Mr. Truman told his press conference in Washington yesterday that he expected adjournment to come about June 10 but few here believe that expectation justified.

The President will adhere to his plan of addressing the final plenary session. It is not known, in view of the delay, whether he may revise his western trip to visit Olympia, Wash., before, rather than after the adjournment of the conference.

Agree on Preamble

Meanwhile, a drafting subcommittee finished a tentative text of a preamble to the charter which began:

"We, the peoples of the united nations, determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war . . . reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and value of every human being."

The actual wording of a preamble, however, will not be approved until the entire charter is ready for adoption. It probably will be drafted by the coördinating committee, on which all 49 nations are represented.

The veto problem boils down to this: The agreement reached by the late President Roosevelt, Stalin, and Prime Minister Churchill at Yalta vested the five permanent members of the council—the United States, Russia, Great Britain, China, and France—with veto power over the settlement of international disputes.

Small Nations Protest

At the conference the small nations protested that this power should not extend to the peaceful settlement of disputes between nations which might threaten peace, but only to actions taken involving the use of sanctions or military force.

The squabble spread to contention over the right to veto even the "discussion" and "investigation" of disputes.

The United States proposed a modification which broke down "investigations" into two categories—"formal" and "informal." The latter the committee classified with "discussion" as exempt from the veto. The former was construed as the first in a possible series of successive steps that might lead to force and therefore should be subject to the veto.

The little nations were not satisfied and now Russia, it appeared, was not satisfied either, regarding even this small concession as too great.

Meanwhile, the committee on trusteeships must face the question of the independence or self-government of dependent peoples, next Monday.

REDS TO ABSORB KOREA IN YALTA DEAL, SAYS RHEE

Charges 'Secret Pact' Among Big Powers

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 2—Dr. Syngman Rhee, first president of the the provisional government of Korea, tonight said in an interview that he is prepared to disclose Russian plans to absorb Korea, a nation of 30 million people, which has been battling Japanese aggression for 40 years.

Dr. Syngman Rhee

The Korean leader, who suffered imprisonment and torture at the hands of the Japs some years ago for his efforts in behalf of Korean independence, is ready to release the text of a secret agreement concluded at Yalta under which Korea, with its vast resources and strategic position, is to be turned over to the soviets.

"The discovery of this secret agreement was made by a man whose word is unimpeachable," said Dr. Rhee. "He vouches for the authenticity of his discovery and offers to prove its truth."

Letter Not Answered

Dr. Rhee said he had called upon Russia to deny the existence of the agreement and to state the soviet policy toward Korea, but his letter was never answered. The plea was addressed to Soviet Ambassador Andrei Gromyko.

"Your excellency is fully aware, I am sure, of the fact that Korea will never acquiesce in any post-war plan short of complete restoration of her lost independence without qualifications," the Rhee letter said. "Our people everywhere feel profoundly disturbed."

Dr. Rhee disclosed that he is prepared to prove the existence of the secret Yalta agreement on Korea as he returned from the San Francisco world security conference where Korea was denied a seat by the United States, altho this country was pledged to establishment of a free and independent Korea at the Cairo conference between President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Appeal for Seat Denied

The Korean appeal for a seat at the conference was turned down by Durward Sandifer, secretary general of the United States delegation, in an official communication which stated that it would be premature to accord Korean leaders recognition as a Korean government. The rejection added that in the light of the fact there is no government "which is recognized by any of the united nations, the United States delegation could not appropriately sponsor participation in the conference by a Korean delegation."

Dr. Rhee said that Sandifer maintained this position altho the Koreans were able to prove that the provisional Korean government has been recognized by both the Chinese and the French republics.

The Korean leader said he was also put off because Korea was not a member of the united nations as of March 1, but Argentina, Syria, Lebanon, White Russia, and Ukrainia were granted seats at the conference altho they were not previously in the "united nations" class.

Would Not Join Reds

"It would seem that Korea was not granted a seat because the provisional government refused to join with the handful of Korean Communists," Dr. Rhee said. "No nation can establish an absolute unity between the communist minority and the nationalist majority.

"It is our solemn intention to establish a government modeled after that in the United States. Can it be that this is contrary to the policy of the united nations?

"Without any question it will be most difficult for Russia to communize Korea if we were to be admitted to the assembly of nations. This admission was denied us. It would seem, then, that it is desired that we be communized."

Sought Recognition

Dr. Rhee said that for three and a half years he and fellow Koreans have been seeking recognition of the Korean provisional government, lend-lease aid, a membership on the Pacific war council, admittance to the UNRRA, Dumbarton Oaks, and finally the San Francisco conference, but to no avail.

"There are American citizens who want to know why this unjust discrimination against the Koreans. It is evident that the truth—that Russia has a plan for Korea—cannot be told. How can any one in authority say we cannot help the Koreans because the Russians have a certain plan for that country.

"This is not the first time that Korea has been the victim of secret diplomacy. But the Korean people are just as firm against being sold out for the second time in 40 years. Koreans will never surrender in their fight for justice and liberty."

Double Honors

First Lt. Audie L. Murphy, who holds every army medal.

WITH UNITED STATES 3D DIVISION IN AUSTRIA, June 2 (AP)—Double honors were conferred today on Lt. Audie Murphy, 20, of Farmersville and Greenville, Tex.

Lt. Gen. Patch, commanding the 7th army, presented the lieutenant with the congressional medal of honor for valor, and then to Murphy's astonishment pinned the legion of merit on him. Murphy's legion of merit tied him with Capt. Maurice Britt of Arkansas as the most decorated man in the United States army. The legion of merit was awarded him for continued bravery in volunteering for dangerous missions between Jan. 22, 1944, and Feb. 18, 1945, in fighting at Anzio, Rome, and southern France. Half a dozen generals and nine United States senators saw the ceremony and each shook Murphy's hand.

Capt. Andrew Garvy, 6000 Sheridan rd., Chicago, and Pvt. Kenneth Roberts, Owensburg, Ind., received the silver star.

GREW DECLINES VIEWS ON REDS ON GERMAN SOIL

Washington, D. C., June 2 [Special]—The United States cannot give "adequate consideration" to reports of Russian actions in the zone occupied by the soviets in Germany until it has representatives functioning in that area, Acting State Secretary Grew said at the press conference today.

Mr. Grew made the statement in response to questions concerning the Russian threat to execute 50 Nazis for every Russian soldier or official attacked and concerning charges of Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] on "competent authority" that the Russians were liquidating the upper crust of professional men in Germany.

"The United States has no representatives functioning in Berlin or other areas under the control of the Russian armies, and therefore adequate consideration canont be given to such questions as those raised by Sen. Brewster's statement," Grew said.

Robert Murphy, political adviser in Germany for Gen. Eisenhower, reported today on conditions in Germany to President Truman and said afterward he was hopeful the allied control council for Germany could be established "in the very near future."

U. S. 'WELCOMES' INDEPENDENCE MOVE BY ARABS

New York, June 2 (AP)—United States approval of the development of the "Arab league"—dedicated to helping Arab states toward independence—was expressed tonight by William Phillips, special assistant to the secretary of state, in a speech before a meeting of the Institute of Arab American Affairs, honoring the visiting regent of Iraq, Prince Abdul Ilah.

The first official American blessing for the recently formed league introduced a new element into the tense Levantine situation. French and Arabs have been fighting in Syria, which is a member of the seven nation Arab league.

Fought for Freedom

Phillips said that "the determination of the Arab people to reëstablish their independence and to play a role in world affairs to which they feel themselves entitled by reason of their brilliant past and their talents and industry, undoubtedly was one of the factors which motivated them during the first World war to fight for their freedom [from Turkey].

"Unquestionably the same determination contributed to their decision recently to form the league of Arab states.

League "Welcomed"

"We welcome the development of Arab coöperation and are confident that the strengthening of the ties between the various Arab countries will not only be to their common benefit but will also enable them to make important and constructive contributions to the great tasks awaiting the united nations."

Phillips also announced plans to put American air lines and direct radio-telegraphic communications into every near eastern country in the near future if those countries agree.

Laval Believed on Way to Paris from Barcelona

PARIS, June 2 (AP)—Official circles said tonight they had no information on a report that the arrival of Pierre Laval in Paris from Barcelona was imminent. The Surete, however, alerted a special section which had been designated to take charge of the former Vichy chief of government when he arrives. The Luxembourg radio reported last night that he had agreed to return to France to face trial after a previous report that he had killed himself.

Take 2 Towns; Carrier Planes Hit Japan

200 raiders were in action for two hours. In previous carrier attacks on Japan, the Pacific fleet has sent over as many as 1,500 planes.

Army Planes Also Attack

Nimitz's bulletin also reported a strike by army Thunderboldts at Kyushu Friday preparatory to the fleet assault. Escort carrier planes Friday also blasted Sakishima, southernmost group of islands in the Ryukyus below Okinawa.

In addition to hitting Kyushu, Halsey's planes on Saturday struck Minami Daito, 200 miles east of Okinawa.

Search planes hit small shipping off the main Japanese island of Honshu. Mustangs struck enemy air fields in the Bonins above captured Iwo Saturday.

Regrouping of Navy

Only yesterday, Adm. Nimitz announced a naval regrouping for the next phase of the war with Japan which put Halsey back in action in place of Adm. Spruance and his 5th fleet. The announcement coincided with indications that new far-reaching blows against Nippon are impending.

Halsey took command last Sunday, boasting his fleet could move anywhere from the north to the south pole and even, if need be, into Tokyo bay.

Nimitz announced that Spruance and his carrier force commander, Vice Adm. Mitscher, who started their 5th fleet cruise with the first carrier plane attack on Tokyo last Feb. 16-17, would have temporary headquarters here. No new assignment was announced for Mitscher.

Nimitz Takes Army Command

Nimitz also disclosed that the amphibious phase of the Okinawa campaign was over, and this carried the implication that expanded operations against Japan could be expected.

The admiral announced that he was assuming direct control of all forces in the Ryukyus, including Lt. Gen. Buckner's 10th army on Okinawa. Spruance previously had been the over-all commander in the Ryukyus.

Spruance to Plan War

Vice Adm. Harry W. Hill, in another change of command, replaced Adm. Turner as immediate head of the amphibious forces in the Ryukyus. Turner, recently promoted to full admiral, is commander of all the amphibious forces of the Pacific fleet.

Nimitz disclosed that Spruance had been awarded the navy cross for "extraordinary heroism" in the Iwo and Okinawa operations and that he would be engaged in planning mightier campaigns, possibly including invasion of Japan's mainland or strikes against the China coast.

Spruance's command, in its four months of operations, softened up Japan with carrier raids for the Iwo invasion and, after supporting that campaign, turned to the Ryukyus and Okinawa. This operation, during which the fleet has been subject to continuous Japanese suicide air attack, included repeated carrier raids on southern Japan air fields.

Called Marianas Area

Halsey and McCain, in their previous 3d fleet cruise, supported the United States 7th fleet's Philippine invasion coverage; helped cripple the Japanese fleet in Leyte gulf and off Formosa, and then raided the China and Indo-China coasts.

Nimitz further announced that the navy's "forward area," including Guam, Saipan, and Tinian, had been changed to the "Marianas area." Vice Adm. John Hoover continues in command of the area.

Halsey and his chief of staff, Rear Adm. Robert B. Carney, toured Okinawa after assuming command.

2 GIRLS SEIZED IN LOVERS' LANE KILLING IN GARY

Two Negro girls were seized in Detroit, Mich., last night as suspects in the murder of William Grady, 31, of 4013 Catalpa st., East Chicago, a steel mill foreman, who was found shot to death early yesterday in his automobile parked in a lovers' lane at 1433 Pennsylvania st., in Gary.

Police, who discovered the body after they received an anonymous telephone call, said Grady apparently had been shot while in the company of a woman. Investigators said a trail of blood from his car indicated that his assailant also had been shot.

The two girls, seized on a prostitution soliciting charge, answered the description of a pair seen with Grady after he left a party given in honor of his brother, Sgt. Herbert Grady, who is home on furlough. One of the girls, Florence McCoy, 19, had been shot in the left arm. A .38 caliber revolver was found in her possession, police said. The other girl is Bolitha Jackson, 16, of 3554 South Park way.

14 CHICAGOLAND SOLDIERS BACK FROM OVERSEAS

Camp Shanks, N. Y., June 2 [Special]—Fourteen from the Chicago area were among the 725 temporary duty returnees who debarked today from an army transport at Camp Shanks. After being processed, the men will leave tomorrow for Fort Sheridan, Ill., where they will be granted furloughs before being reassigned. Those from the Chicago area included:

Pvt. Donald R. Spencer, 3454 Walnut st., Chicago; Corp. Stephen J. Zabora, 5123 S. Fairfield av., Chicago; Pvt. James S. Pascarella, 1611 Shields av., Chicago Heights, Ill.; Pvt. Frank J. Witucki, 1008 Butterworth, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Corp. Samuel Gall, 208 E. Michigan av., Saline, Mich.; Corp. George Sullenbarger, 516 Liberty st., Belding, Mich.; Sgt. Ward H. Woodin, 1159 N. TOKYO CIVILIANS DIG INTO GROUND TO AVOID BOMBS

GUAM, June 2 (AP)—B-29 raids have inflicted "shockingly great" damage on Japan's major industrial cities, Tokyo radio admitted today.

Raids on Tokyo have forced the capital's residents to dig subterranean homes, it added, predicting martial law might be declared to meet the devastation. The broadcast said thousands of dugouts are being built to house the homeless.

A Japanese broadcast quoted an editorial in the Tokyo Mainichi saying that "because of the fact that the number of war victims has increased to such a tremendous amount we certainly would not be surprised if we see a necessity of adopting martial law."

Worse than 1923 Fire

Domei radio broadcast a Nippon Times article declaring the damage in Tokyo from the American raids was greater than caused by the 1923 earthquake and fire.

This account added that "with the battle at the front absorbing the major energy of the nation, there is only a limited possibility of succor and aid from the nondevastated regions."

"Japan's cities may be burned out but the spirit of the people, which is the essence of the nation, can never be destroyed," said the Times.

Heart of Osaka Burned Out

Airmen returning to their Marianas Islands bases from the latest incendiary attack, made on Japan's second largest city by more than 450 Super Forts yesterday, reported it was so effective that the "heart of Osaka seemed to be burning out." Some veteran fire raiders placed it among the most successful B-29 raids on Japan.

Ten Super Forts failed to return. About 36 Tinian based B-29s landed on Iwo Island because they were short of gas. Losses were attributed largely to anti-aircraft fire. Japanese interceptors were timid.

Explain Bombs Used

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP)—The chemical warfare service disclosed today Super Fortresses are dropping four different types of incendiary bombs on Japan and that research is under way to develop more fiery calling cards.

Two of the bombs spread flaming synthetic lava formed by jellied gasoline, powdered magnesium, liquid asphalt, and other ingredients.

One is the M-76 or "goop" bomb, a 500 pounder, which scatters lava into out-of-the-way places. The other is the 10 pound M-74 equipped with a mechanism which throws burning lava 25 yards.

The two other types are the 100 pound M-47 and the six pound M-69 cluster. The M-47, packed with jellied gasoline in a thin wall, is capable of scattering chunks of fire for 40 yards. The M-69 is made up of bomb clusters scattered by a time fuse, releasing a shower of fire sticks.

WOUNDED YANK FEIGNS DEATH 3 DAYS AND LIVES

Escapes Japs Who Rifled His Clothes and Pack

BY HAROLD SMITH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH U. S. 7TH INFANTRY DIVISION ON OKINAWA, May 4 [Delayed]—Pvt. Richard Arnold McCurdy, 25, of Boise, Idaho, mourned as dead by his comrades of E company, 17th infantry, crawled back to them from no man's land early yesterday with one of the most blood curdling tales of the war.

Critically wounded, he lay for three days and nights in rain, scorching sun, and murderous gunfire in Jap territory. He was without food or medical care and had less than a quart of water. On several occasions he played possum as Jap soldiers looted him.

Today, already well on the road to recovery, the husky, six footer told his story.

It's Remarkable, Says Doctor

Lt. Col. Harold B. Damron, Elizabethton, Tenn., commanding the 74th station hospital, said: "This is the most remarkable case of human endurance I've seen in seven years of practice. This man's simulation of death thru repeated crude tests by the enemy was utterly amazing.

"The most impressive thing to me was his self-control during his ordeal."

On April 30 at daybreak his outfit stormed a nameless knoll guarding the approaches to Conical hill.

"We assembled on a transverse ridge 200 yards ahead of our front positions, and the knoll lay 100 yards beyond," McCurdy said. "We had cleaned the Japs off the ridge, but could not dig in there because of the intense enemy fire.

"We jumped off at the signal and rushed down the south slope four squads abreast. We had gone only 20 yards when Nip machine gun fire ripped our flanks and knee mortar shells erupted all around us. We were dazed but decided to sweep on.

His Assistant Is Wounded

"I had a BAR [Browning automatic rifle]. My assistant [Pvt. Wilson McLair, 25, Center Ridge, Ark.] received back and leg wounds here. I told him to lie low and we'd get him help. I ran along parallel with the ridge to keep whatever cover I could and, reaching the end, I saw my squad leader [Sgt. Micky Floresmun] and another doughgboy getting heavy grenade fire.

"I crowded close to the hillside and started making for a little depression. Suddenly it felt as if my legs were cut off. I collapsed and couldn't move them. It was just like I didn't have any more legs. [Presumably this was from a mortar fragment that entered his back near the spine and injured his left lung].

"I tried to crawl for the little hole, but the Japs spotted and got me in the right arm. I lay face down and played dead. In fact, I figured I was about done for.

"I could hear our guys withdrawing. Our machine gunners and the Japs kept up a steady duel, the bullets singing over me. I lay without moving for perhaps half an hour. The pain was intense. I was sure I was going to die and wondered what was holding it up, wishing it would hurry and be done with.

"I thought of my wife, of my poor kids and my family, and I was sorry for them rather than for myself. Any move I made started blood spurting from my back. All that day I remained on my belly.

Hope Doesn't Die

"But my hope was not dead. I kept thinking the boys might crawl out and find me even if they had left me for dead. By lifting my head cautiously I could see six of my buddies dead on the hillside. I played with the idea of crawling back but kept trying my legs and they wouldn't move. The flies were swarming and I could feel them in my back wound.

"That night the Japs came. They rolled me over, but I acted dead. They went thru my pockets carelessly. They took my BAR and fired several shots toward our lines, laughing and talking. I thought they'd stab me to make sure I was dead. At last the Japs went away. The mosquitos practically ate me alive, but I guess I got some sleep.

"Next day the firing continued overhead, and the artillery fell close by. It kept the Japs down and I managed to work my pack off and loosed my canteen belt to get my first drink of water. One canteen was punctured by a bullet. The other was full, but I spilled a lot trying to drink. At no time out there was I hungry, but after my water was used up I suffered from thirst. Late in the afternoon I first felt the maggots in my back. I thought they'd eat holes in me.

"It had rained hard several times thru the night and day and I suppose the cold helped to keep me numb.

"That second night the Japs came three times. The first two really gave me a going over. I could see them quite plainly in the moonlight. They were average size and seemed to be in their right minds. They stuck their thumbs up under my eyeballs to see if I was dead. The pain was almost unbearable, but I didn't flinch. They jabbed their fingers in my cheeks. Whenever they turned away I'd take many short breaths so that I could hold my breath while they were looking.

Wounded in Knee

"They opened my pack and rifled it. They went thru my pockets and found my wallet with little but Jap money in it. When they opened their canteens to drink I was afraid they'd pour water in my nostrils, which would have meant taps for me. The second bunch of five or six searched me for what the first ones had left. There were 10 or 12 in the third bunch. They tried me for life, too. They stepped on my fingers, but they sank into the mud and it didn't hurt so much.

"Most of the third day I was out of my head and can't remember much. Our artillery poured all it had almost on top of me, and I got a chunk in the right knee, but I was so low it didn't bother me. Some time during the night I started out, lying flat and pulling myself with my elbows and pushing a little with my legs which had got their movement back. Rain was making the ground slippery. It was cold. Four times I had to stop and vomit. But after four hours or so I got to the top of the ridge and yelled to the boys not to shoot."

McCurdy is the father of three children, Richard 6, Patricia May 4, and Floyd Alton 2. He was inducted last June 29, and joined the 7th on Leyte on Feb. 1.

YANKS MAKE 6TH SEA INVASION OF MINDANAO ISLE

MANILA, June 3 [Sunday]—(AP)—American forces made their sixth amphibious landing on Mindanao Island Friday in a move designed to encircle and exterminate isolated Japanese garrisons.

The landing was made at Lauyon, 75 miles south of Mindanao's capital city, Davao, and on the western shore of Davao gulf.

Doughboys rushed ashore against light opposition, quickly secured their beachhead and moved inland in search of the enemy. The landing was made under cover of strong aerial and naval support.

The Japanese pulled back from the beach under shelling by a destroyer force commanded by Rear Adm. A. D. Struble. Yanks found a destroyed Japanese radio station near Lauyon.

Guards Gulf Shipping

The maneuver was a shore-to-shore operation, shifting some American forces, probably from Maj. Gen. Roscoe B. Woodruff's 24th infantry division in the Davao sector.

It was not immediately indicated how many Japanese were in the Lauyon sector, an important area, for that city guards the entrance to Davao gulf. Heavy guns set up along the coast could harass any shipping entering the gulf.

Japanese in the Lauyon area probably were cut off on southern Mindanao, as Woodruff's outfit bisected the island in their recent sweep thru the center to attack strong enemy forces guarding Davao.

Gen. MacArthur recently estimated 50,000 Nipponese troops remained on Mindanao, the bulk of them in centrally located Bukidnon province. However, Woodruff's division has encountered stiff resistance and been forced to repulse strong counter-attacks northwest of Davao.

In all, four United States infantry divisions are engaged in the Mindanao campaign. The 31st, 40th and Americal all are in the north-central sector.

Advance on Luzon

On Luzon Island the 24th infantry division continued its advance into the Cagayan valley from Santa Fe, while to the east the 33d infantry division occupied positions on highway 11 seven and a half miles northeast of Baguio. These operations were supported by bombers which dropped 220 tons and fired many thousands of rounds in assaulting Japanese supply dumps and concentrations.

The United States 13th and Australian air forces carried their neutralizing attacks on Borneo into a fifth successive day with more than 140 tons of bombs, attacking air facilities, personnel and supply areas and supporting Australian ground forces mopping up operations on near-by Tarakan island.

LA FOLLETTE TO QUIT ARMY AND RETURN TO LAW

BY DONALD STARR
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., June 2—Col. Philip La Follette, former governor of Wisconsin, today is en route to the United States for discharge from the army and to return to the practice of law in Madison, after almost three years overseas on the staff of Gen. MacArthur.

Col. Philip La Follette

Before leaving, Col. La Follette was awarded the Legion of Merit, fourth highest decoration, by MacArthur for meritorious service during the Philippine campaign as executive officer of the public relations staff.

Entering the army as a captain in March, 1941, after serving in the last war as a 2d lieutenant, La Follette came overseas in September of the same year. He has been thru the New Guinea, Papua, Bougainville, Bismarck archipelago, Leyte, and Luzon campaigns.

His wife, Isabel, and two daughters, Judith, 15, and Isabel, 9, are living in Madison.

Chicago's Music Center for Steinway, Chickering, Lyon & Healy . . . Capehart, Magnavox, RCA Victor . . . Conn, Pan-American, Cavalier, Martin, Ludwig, Gibson . . . Hammond, Estey . . . Victor, Columbia, Decca, Capitol . . .

The whole idea sprang from Patrick Joseph Healy himself soon after he and George Washburn Lyon had hung out their first music store sign. Although they had "set up shop" as a store for Sheet Music and "small goods," young Healy had no intention of remaining "cramped or limited" in his ability to serve his customers.

Never before had there been a business house of "Everything Known in Music"—but the thought appealed to the man's faultless sense of service... Why should a customer who came to his store for Sheet Music or a Violin String have to "run from place to place" for the instrument on which to use it?

Cultivating a Crop of "Columbuses"

It wasn't long until the "discoveries" from beyond the usual musical horizons began to be seen at Lyon & Healy's . . . One morning the staid, old Square Pianos had to "move over" for the new Uprights (the first in Chicago) . . . Then the Lyon & Healy Harp reached the "Golden Age" of perfection . . . Soon new "Columbuses" in the firm brought the amazing news about music on wax cylinders . . . then followed the piano that played from "holes punched on paper."

And so like a great musical magnet, the name of Lyon & Healy seems to attract to itself all the finer things of the musical world—and with them the people best fitted to serve the desires of Chicagoland's musical public.

CHANT OF MORO GIRL GIVES CLEW TO HEROIC YANKS

Her Song Tells How Japs Killed Two Airmen

JOLO, Sulu Archipelago (AP)—The chant of a Moro dancing girl at a festival in the village of Parang attended by officers of the 163d infantry, 41st division, revealed to American authorities the story of a heroic attack by navy patrol planes on a Japanese convoy in the early days of the war.

After an elaborate feast the girl, wearing elaborate combs of gold in her braided hair and rings of pearls on her fingers, appeared before the army officer guests and to the accompaniment of the pulawtas [native cymbals] she began her chant.

An interpreter told Lt. Col. Leonard A. Wing, Bozeman, Mont., regimental executive officer, that she was singing the story of how the Japanese had come to the island, and of the fight of the Moros and of two American flyers who had been captured and executed by the Japanese with Samurai honors.

Natives Tell of Incident

The Americans became greatly interested in the story of the flyers and from many native sources were able to piece together an account of what happened.

Three days after the Japanese landed at Jolo on Christmas eve, 1941, six navy patrol bombers raided Jolo where a large concentration of enemy shipping stood off port.

The Catalinas attacked at low level, Dec. 27, and succeeded in sinking one crowded Maru type enemy transport and a cruiser. But antiaircraft fire was intense. Two of the Catalinas were shot down.

Moros who watched the action said a number of men bailed out. The figure varies but the most reliable accounts indicated that at least nine men were helped by natives to reach the small island of Siasi in the Sulu group and from there taken by vinta sailing boat to Tarakan, Dutch Borneo. They escaped.

Three Killed in Crash.

Three more flyers were killed in the crash. Their bodies were buried by natives at night without the knowledge of the Japanese. And there were two flyers whose parachutes brought them down near an enemy warship. These were the men who became heroes in the Moro legend.

As the story is told now on Jolo, the captive Americans were taken before the Japanese commander, Commodore Sizaki, who demanded that they reveal their base and the number of planes still operative. The Japanese air blitz of the Philippines still was under way at this time.

The Americans refused to tell the enemy anything but their names and serial numbers. Questioning went on for several days but the two flyers would not betray any information of value.

All Witness Execution

Then the Japanese commander called a dress parade of all his forces on Jolo. Standing at attention at Jolo air field with the Japanese flag fluttering overhead, Nip soldiers looked on stolidly while the two Americans were brought before them with their hands bound behind their backs.

Pointing to the prisoners the Japanese commander extolled them for their bravery in refusing to reveal information to an enemy. He told the Japanese troops that these Americans should serve as an example to them if they were faced by similar circumstances. Then the two flyers were given the "privilege" of dying for their country.

Their heads were cut off.

Rear Adm. Frank D. Wagner, commander of navy air, 7th fleet in Manila, was notified of the facts. He had been skipper of Patrol Wing 10, based at Cavite when the war broke out, and it was thought likely these men had belonged to his group. The admiral sent a young New York City intelligence officer, Lt. Goldsmith, to Jolo for further investigations.

Name Some of Rescued

Goldsmith talked with Yusuf Abubakar, a polished young Moro attorney, graduate of the University of the Philippines law school, former newspaper man on the Manila Bulletin whose grandfather, Hadji Butu, had been grand wazir, or prime minister, to three sultans. It was Abubakar who sheltered the nine Americans on Siasi island and helped them escape. He identified the men as Lt. [j. g.] J. B. Dawley; Lt. Comdr. Richardson, Ensign I. W. Brown, Radioman Whitford, Pilot Bounds, Machinist McLawhorn and three others whose names he did not know. He said they arrived in Tarakan two days before that island off Borneo was occupied by the Japanese.

Capt. Ned R. Graves, Spokane, Wash., regimental chaplain of the 163d infantry, meantime, succeeded in locating the graves of five American flyers. Councilor Habibom, mayor of Sionogan village, had buried three of them Dec. 28, 1941, in the sand near his village, and later accorded them the honor of a true Moslem burial in the hills. Chaplain Graves said the flyers had been placed in a traditional Moro vault with their heads pointed to the north and their eyes faced east in the direction of Mecca.

The bodies were exhumed on May 4, 1945, by Chaplain Graves and reburied in the little American cemetery near Jolo.

While the big guns of navy ships are pounding enemy installations to pieces adead of invading troops, navy men are on shore directing the fire and watching its effectiveness. This little known phase of navy work—shore fire control—was described yesterday in navy offices here by two Chicagoans who are experts in it. They are Lt. John B. Sackley Jr., 28, of 5456 Lakewood av., and Lt. E. J. Calihan, 29, of 2324 Addison st. They are home on leave with sea duty of 32 and 30 mnoths, respectively, to their credit.

They spent 25 days with the marines on Iwo Island in constant communication with their ships offshore. They would relay to their gunners information as to the size of shell which would be most effective against a particular target and would correct errors in aiming. They said that the giant 16 inch shells from the battleships changed the contour of Mount Suribachi.

AIR VET KEEPS THEM FLYING IN PHILIPPINES

Ex-Rickenbacker Pilot, Dawson Has Tough Job

BY WALTER SIMMONS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., June 2—A former member of Eddie Rickenbacker's famous World War I. squadron now has one of the most exacting air force jobs in the Philippines.

Col. Leo H. Dawson

He is Col. Leo H. [Joe Dawson, Denver, Colo., a hard boiled, dynamic and good natured veteran of more than 25 years in the air corps. He is the commanding officer of the 5th air service area command, the maintenance and supply division of the army air forces in the Philippines.

In his stock of supplies, Col. Dawson carries 20 times as many items as Montgomery Ward. From the jumbled truckloads of crated parts and supplies arriving from ships he must create order so precise that requisitions ranging from spare engines to a pair of shoe laces can be filled instantly.

Stacked with Supplies

He has two air fields stacked toweringly with supplies which must somehow be got under cover before the rainy season starts.

"Every time I wake up at night," he says, "I find myself in a praying position."

When he arrived, Col. Dawson found the air fields littered with broken Jap planes and heavily cratered by Yank bombs. Swiftly clearing and repairing the fields, he erected warehouses and hangars as big as a football field.

Col. Dawson is the originator of the preventive line maintenance system adopted at all air force fields thruout the United States, under which all motor vehicles are checked thru a maintenance line every 10,000 miles or 30 days, whichever comes first.

Keeps Them Running

He also has placed this system in effect in the Philippines. It keeps vehicles running, and almost eliminates the need for spare parts.

The over-all air service area command boss in the Pacific is amiable, hard-hitting Maj. Gen. Clements McMullen, whose wife lives in San Antonio, Tex. He also is a veteran flyer who still delights in piloting a four motored plane thru any kind of weather.

10 Chicagoland Yanks Help LCI in Pacific Make Record

BY HAROLD SMITH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, June 2—Ten Chicagolanders, about one-sixth of the total crew, help man a tiny but mighty assault ship here for minor repairs and remodeling, and to give her doughty sailors some well earned rest after rugged war duty.

She is the LCI [landing craft infantry] No. 437, one of an immense fleet of small, essential little assault craft which have played a highly important but largely unheralded part in the spectacular success of this war.

Two in Deck Force

Quartermaster 3d Class Joseph Huber Jr., 21, 1824 Dempster st., Evanston, is adept at reading and sending visual signals. His work is closely allied with that of Radioman 2d Class Ted E. Novakoski, 25, 9516 Ridgeway av., Skokie.

The deck force has two Chicagoans: Seaman 1st Class John J. Tracy, 19, 2803 E. 79th st., and Seaman 1st Class John Contre, 19, 5543 N. Nottingham av. Fireman 1st Class Andy Raup, 19, 3938 Polk st., and Fireman 1st Class Eugene Hempfling, 19, Evansville, Ind., are in the black gang responsible for keeping the ship moving.

Their ship is of the type originally designed to land troops on hostile shores but since has been pressed into service for numerous other purposes. It now serves as rescue vessel, scouting craft, and communications and control ship.

In landing operations she gives the infantry support, moving close in to help keep the enemy down until the foot troops can land and make their beachhead. Equipped with rockets, the ship packs the biggest wallop for its size of any naval craft tho it is one of the smallest seagoing vessels in the service.

This ship participated in the invasion of Kwajalein, Guam, and Iwo Islands. Developing engine trouble en route to Guam from Kwajalein, it limped in the night before landing day and, with hastily repaired engines, took its scheduled part in the Guam assault.

Attacks Machine Gun Nest

Moving toward the shore ahead of the first provisional marine brigade, the ship took an enemy shell hit in the stern, but had no casualties and kept on fighting. It is the only ship in its original group of nine which thus far has lost no men.

On D-day plus 3 at Guam the ship moved boldly into Jap-held Apra harbor, with a minesweeper, to attack a machine gun nest on Gabgab beach on Orote peninsula, which had been giving the marines trouble.

Tho the ship went to within 400 yards of the shore, the Japanese did not open fire. It wiped out the enemy positions with gunfire and retired without incident.

At least one of the 10 Chicagoans, Lt. [j. g.] David Maxwell, 23, 821 Michigan av., Evanston, Ill. gunnery and communications officer, has just received his orders back to the mainland after spending 18 of his 20 months in the navy in the Pacific theater.

CHINESE PERIL U. S. AIR BASE HELD BY JAPS

CHUNGKING, China, June 3 [Sunday] (AP)—Chinese troops today imperiled the Japanese-held former American air base of Shaoyang [Paoching] in south-central China after smashing enemy fortifications on the town's approaches, the Chinese high command said in a special bulletin.

The bulletin said Japanese troops were falling back to Shaoyang's outskirts after Chinese veterans seized three outer bastions—Yenkowpu, eight miles west; Tankow, 19 miles northwest, and Chukowpu, 23 miles northwest.

Shaoyang is one of the most important strongholds in Hunan province guarding the west flank of the ruptured Japanese corridor to Indo-China, and its capture would cut the inner line of Japanese defenses stretching from Hankow to Hong Kong.

A 150 mile gap already has been torn in the southern end of Japan's overland corridor.

Push Toward Indo-China

At opposite ends of the breach, Chinese troops slogged 15 miles across south China's bleak plateau lands to within 22 miles of the Indo-China border and posed a new threat from the south to the big former United States 14th air force base at Liuchow.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's forces carved out a 15 mile gain in Kwangsi province near the Indo-China frontier when they pushed enemy rearguards from Suilo along the Indo-China highway and reached the vicinity of Szelo, 65 miles southwest of liberated Yungning [Nanning].

The Chinese advance carried troops under Gen. Chang Fah-kwei within 115 miles of the Indo-China capital of Hanoi.

Attack Highway Junction

Eighty-five miles northeast of Yungning, Chinese forces which had advanced to the area of Tsinkong [Chienkiang] began to attack the enemy garrison "entrenched in the city," an important highway junction town, the high command said.

The 14th air force headquarters revealed that 11 American air bases in China were evacuated between July, 1944, and January of this year. Two of these—Yungning and Suichwan, the latter in Kiangsi province—have been recovered.

BLASTED BY SUB, JAP TRANSPORT KILLS OWN MEN

Depth Charges Hit Troops Struggling in Water

[This is another of a series of stories on submarine activities and men of the underseas fleet in the Pacific.]

BY HAMILTON FARON

AT SUBMARINE BASE IN PACIFIC, June 2 (AP)—Ruthless destruction of Japanese soldiers by their navy "comrades" is the most vivid memory of one submarine man who has seen action in all parts of the Pacific.

It was not far from the Japanese homeland that a submarine on which Robert [Benny] Bentham is a torpedo man launched a torpedo at a loaded Japanese troop transport.

The "fish" sped to its mark. The ship obviously was doomed. Troops had gone over the side seeking to escape the sinking craft.

"The troops were swimming in the water, hanging onto pieces of wood," Benny recalled. "While she was going down the crew of the transport were throwing depth charges, blowing everything in the water to hell. It's just another indication of Jap indifference to personnel."

Spokesman for the Gang

Benny and a dozen or so of his shipmates were lounging in a quonset hut, resting on the beach after a patrol—a patrol described as a "dry run" devoid of interesting action.

Chunky, his red beard contrasting with his blond hair, Benny was the unanimous choice of his gang to "tell the guy about our boat."

Benny, who says he likes to "hibernate like a bear and live off my fat" had been a member of the crew for 16 months, having come aboard in Australia, but he's anxious to get back to his job as a postal clerk in Seymour, Conn.

He hesitated a moment, then with Ed Ault, motor machinist's mate 3d class, Duke Center, Pa., helping to recall details, he began what became a saga of his boat—a story of adventure under the Pacific best told in his own words:

"On one patrol we went up the coast of Borneo, up Macassar straits.

"Then we went on station and the first day ran into a ship convoy and got some ships. We patroled that area a few weeks and didn't see another thing until the last day when we got some more out of another convoy. It was mostly just a dull, monotonous routine patrol.

Happy in Dungarees

"We had orders into Pearl Harbor and went thru the Philippine Islands [then in Japanese hands] because that was the shortest route. There we picked up a Philippine barque loaded with people from 6 to 65 years old and brought the most intelligent man aboard. He was happy after we outfitted him with dungarees.

"On another patrol we went to the Western Pacific. I don't remember this very well execpt that's where we heard the loudest depth charges."

Pick Up a Convoy

However, after comparing recollections with Ault, he continued:

"On that patrol we picked up a convoy—I've forgotten how many.

"A can [Jap destroyer] there had us pretty well in her sights. She was really laying them on us when we were submerged. We heard that can cracking up as she sank right over us. [Apparently the victim of another American sub.]

"Then we chased the convoy, and when we got thru, the only thing left was one escort. I think it was a PC boat that went into port without its convoy.

"Next we went down to the Marshalls, and everybody in the crew was impressed by the visual might of the United States navy, for a task force was anchored in the lagoon.

"The Cowpens sent over a dozen cases of beer and gallons of ice They were impressed by our score, I guess.

"We left the Marshalls about noon on patrol, but the fleet had been moving out since before dawn. We more or less lined up to watch them streaming out—carriers, battle wagons, cruisers, and cans, dozens of them.

"On our way in off-station we were going back to the states and everybody was buoyed up. But one day we came across a life raft. In it was an aviator from a navy plane. When we got him aboard he was dead.

"But then we got home and had some leave, and everybody appreciated that."

67 DESTROYERS LOST BY U.S. IN WAR THUS FAR

42 Submarines Next on List of Casualties

Washington, D. C., June 2 [Special]—Destroyers, the fighting "expendables" of the fleet, have taken the most punishment from enemy action and the hazards of the sea thus far in the war, a survey of official navy department reports disclosed today. Sixty-seven of them have been sunk.

Submarines are next on the list, with 42 of them having been reported lost. Other losses reported to date: 12 aircraft carriers, 10 destroyer escorts, 9 cruisers, 5 gunboats, 2 battleships, 1 target ship, and 1 seaplane tender.

In addition a score of minesweepers and minelayers have gone down, while the toll of lesser craft, such as torpedo boats, landing craft, and small escort vessels, is much higher. No attempt was made to summarize their losses.

Heavy Pearl Harbor Toll

The two battleships sunk were the Arizona and Oklahoma at Pearl Harbor. Six others were damaged in this attack: Maryland, California, Nevada, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Tennessee. The target ship Utah and the seaplane tender Langley were lost in this same catastrophe, as were the destroyers Cassin, Downes, and Shaw.

Of the 107 surface warships included in this survey, 31 were sunk by air attacks. Besides the ships lost at Pearl Harbor, they included 16 destroyers, 6 carriers, 1 cruiser, and 1 gunboat. Most of the Pearl Harbor victims were later restored to service.

Submarine torpedoes accounted for 10 destroyers, 4 destroyer escorts, 3 carriers, 1 cruiser, and 1 gunboat. Combined air and submarine attacks finished off two carriers, the Yorktown and the Hornet.

In surface actions the toll from gunfire and torpedoes included 16 destroyers, 7 cruisers, 2 destroyer escorts, 1 carrier, and 1 gunboat.

Storms Claim Five Destroyers

Five destroyers have been lost in storms and three in collisions. One was destroyed by an internal explosion.

Following is a summary of the losses in various types of action:

AIR ATTACK

Battleships: Arizona, Oklahoma.

Cruiser: Chicago.

Aircraft carriers: Lexington; light carrier Princeton; escort carriers Saint Lo, Ommaney Bay, Bismarck Sea, and Liscome Bay.

Target ship: Utah.

Destroyers: Peary, Sims, Meredith No. 1, De Haven, Ward, Maddox, Mahan, Reid, Cassin, Downes, Shaw, Beatty, Landsdale, Halligan, Bush, Calhoun, Abele, Pringle, Brownson.

Seaplane tender: Langley.

Gunboat: Mindanao.

AIR ATTACK AND SUBMARINE TORPEDOES

Carriers: Yorktown, Hornet.

SUBMARINE TORPEDOES

Cruiser: Juneau.

Carriers: Wasp; escort carriers Liscome Bay and Black Island.

Destroyers: Jacob Jones, Sturtevant, Hammann, O'Brien, Porter, Henley, Hambleton, Reuben James, Leary, Gwin.

Destroyer escorts: Shelton, Leopold, Fiske, Davis.

Gunboat: Plymouth.

SURFACE ACTIONS

Cruisers: Houston, Astoria, Atlanta, Quincy, Vincennes, Northampton, and Helena.

Escort carrier: Gambier Bay.

Destroyers: Blue, Duncan, Cushing, Monssen, Preston, Hoel, Johnston, Cooper, Duncan, Pope, Porter, Laffey, Barton, Portland, Benham, Walke.

Destroyer escorts: Roberts, Rich.

Gunboat. Oahu.

LOST WITHOUT CONFIRMATION AS TO CAUSE

Destroyers: Edsall, Pillsbury, Jarvis, Corry, Glennon, Meredith No. 2, Abner Read, Perkins.

Destroyer escorts: Fechteler, Eversole, Shelton.

Gunboat: Asheville.

LOST IN COLLISIONS

Destroyers: Perkins, Ingraham, and Borie [rammed enemy sub].

Gunboat: St. Augustine.

LOST IN STORMS

Destroyers: Truxtun, Hull, Spence, Monaghan, Warrington.

SUNK BY MINES OR TORPEDOES

Destroyers: Rowan, Bristol, Buck, Chevalier, Strong.

Destroyer escort: Leopold.

MISCELLANEOUS LOSSES

Destroyer Turner by internal explosion.

Submarines Listed

Following are the submarines that have been reported lost:

Sunk: S-26, S-28, R-12.

Lost: Flier.

Destroyed to prevent capture: Sealion, Darter.

Overdue and presumed lost: Shark, Perch, Grunion, Argonaut, Amberjack, Grampus, Triton, Pickerel, Grenadier, Dodado, Runner, Wahoo, Grayling, Pompano, Cisco, S-44, Corvina, Capelin, Sculpin, Scorpion, Grayback, Trout, Tullibee, Robalo, Gudgeon, Herring, Golet, Seawolf, Harder, Growler, Tang, Escolar, Shark No. 2, Barbel, Albacore, Swordfish.

Among the battleships that have been reported damaged after Pearl Harbor are the South Dakota and the Maryland. Cruisers listed in this category are the Marblehead, Chester, San Juan, San Francisco, Honolulu, Raleigh, Boise, Chester, Minneapolis, New Orleans, Pensacola, St. Louis, Birmingham, and Houston No. 2.

Damaged carriers included the Franklin, Enterprise, Kilkun Bay, and White Plains. Destroyers reported damaged were Stewart, Talbot, Smith, Patterson, Sterett, Grant, O'Brien, Barton, Laffey, Farenholt, Lavallette, and Ross.

Damage Reports Incomplete

Reports of damaged ships are incomplete, as the navy has not identified all of them. Its reports often refer to damaged ships in such phrases as "other units suffered damage."

Among the seriously damaged cruisers was the Birmingham, which suffered 649 casualties while trying to aid the carrier Princton when it exploded.

On May 22 Vice Adm. Land, chairman of the maritime commission, reported that 6½ million tons of merchant shipping had been lost since the war began. It represented more than half of the entire prewar merchant fleet, but has been made up by the construction of 56 million deadweight tons.

Dutch Will Hurl Full Power at Japs, Says Former Premier

BY JAMES SLOAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 2—Holland has undergone terrible agonies under the German occupation and the fighting which brought freedom, but is ready to take firm strides along the road to recovery, Dr. P. S. Gerbrandy, former prime minister, said here today.

Dr. P. S. Gerbrandy

Gerbrandy, whose London emigre government resigned recently in fulfillment of its pledge to make way for a fully representative regime as soon as the country was freed, said he is confident whatever sort of administration takes over the country it will throw its full weight into the war against Japan, "that monster of the east."

Will Rebuild Military

Even while Holland is making the first moves in the great job of reconstruction at home she will put her greatest efforts into fighting alongside America and Britain in the western Pacific, by rehabilitating her army, navy, marines, and air force, so she can "give everything we have to fulfill the promises we have made in this field to fight that fight together with our stanch allies," Gerbrandy added.

Three quarters of the Netherlands empire is still flooded with Japs, Gerbrandy said, drawing a parallel between the Asiatic enemy and the Germans who inundated thousands of acres of rich Dutch farm land in the futile effort to bar the allies' pursuit.

Communications Disrupted

The Nazis completely disrupted Holland's communications, cutting practically all railways and bridges, whose lines are blocking virtually every one of the many rivers and canals on which the Dutch are dependent for much of their internal transportation.

The restoration of transport is "one of the most terrible problems facing us, but it is improving somewhat," Gerbrandy said.

Years of effort will be required to dry out the vast areas flooded by the Nazis. The worst of this damage is on the fertile Walcheren Islands, where the salt water destruction probably will necessitate 15 to 20 years of heavy salvage operations.

WMC APPEALS FOR 15,000 TO REPAIR SHIPS

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP)—Repair of battle damaged navy ships is the most urgent Pacific coast war job, War Man Power Commissioner McNutt said today in appealing for 15,000 more government shipyard workers. In a statement, McNutt declared:

"Ship repair in government yards on the Pacific coast is lagging to such an extent that the end of the war against Japan may be seriously delayed.

"Lines of damaged craft are waiting in the harbors of some west coast ports for repairs.

Hiring Falls Behind

"The hiring rate [in these yards] has not kept pace with enemy attacks on naval vessels in the Pacific.

"I have been informed by the navy department that manning these ship repair jobs is equally important to putting highly trained gun pointers on combat ships to meet the onrushing attacks of the Japanese suicide airmen."

So urgent is the need for workers, McNutt reported, that the navy has agreed to pay the travel expenses to the job. Ship repair yards are in the Los Angeles, San Francisco bay and Seattle-Puget sound areas.

Many Quit After V-E Day

McNutt reported that altho employment in west coast yards rose to 100,000 in April, by mid-May it had dropped to 98,500. He described as "alarming" a tendency of some shipyards workers to quit, since Germany's defeat.

McNutt said the most important need is for highly skilled craftsmen such as electricians, machinists, sheet metal workers, coppersmiths, instrument makers, riggers and ordnance men.

BEACH BUSTERS FROM MICHIGAN INVADE OKINAWA

Kalamazoo Plant Builds Hundreds a Month

BY CHARLES CHEADLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 2—The Kalamazoo plant of the Ingersoll Steel and Disc division of Borg-Warner corporation has just been awarded the army-navy E for excellence in production of its famous Beach Buster [LVT-3], a landing vehicle that crossed the sharp coral reef protecting the beaches of Okinawa.

The LVT-3 is the principal war product of this Ingersoll plant. It is one of those contraptions which the navy, strongly backed by the army, said it would like to have, but no one knew how to make.

Its inventor is Ben A. Swennes, the corporation's director of research, who worked it out in his laboratory at Rockford, Ill. Swennes looked at some other amphibious craft, watched them go thru some pretty severe tests, and got out his drawing board.

Designed in Two Weeks

The design of the Beach Buster came into being in two weeks. The first pilot model was ready in a few months. The craft is being turned out here at the rate of several hundred a month by 1,800 shop workers, who are on a 66 hour week because more workers cannot be found.

The Beach Buster is no child's toy. It weighs 26,000 pounds and can haul 13,500 pounds in its open hold. That's a lot of cargo for a 17 foot open faced amphibian which can run up a beach at a 45 degree pitch or snap off and run over a seven inch tree.

A Tribune reporter took a short trip in one and found its riding qualities are no worse than those of an automobile with four flat tires crossing a railroad bridge, but it takes its driver where he wants to go.

Two Eight Cylinder Engines

It has about two feet of freeboard in the water and makes you wonder how it stays afloat. It has two Cadillac eight cylinder engines tucked away in its side compartments. The power is neatly handled by a unique exchanger and differential under the driver's feet.

The rear of the LVT-3 is a ramp that can be dropped to the beach in two seconds. The vehicle can be unloaded by jerking it out from under a false bottom in the hold with a rope tied to a tree. It can be and has been converted into a 75 mm. gun carrier, a troop transport, a rocket ship, a hospital ship, and to a few other uses.

At Okinawa it got its first real test, and official navy reports said it left little to be desired. Where the 10th army went ashore the beach is protected by a wide coral reef, under water only two hours a day. At least five divisions of men and thousands of tons of equipment had to be got ashore, and in a hurry.

The Beach Buster helped to do it. Its double row of U-shaped tracks carried it thru the water and over the reef. The tracks, hollow, and of the hardest steel, took a terrific beating, but enough of them stayed whole to complete the landing.

In addition to being a true combat vessel the Beach Buster can drop its side armor and turn into a cargo ship. It is made of heavy steel, but brackets on the side permit additional armor plate to be fastened on. This can be removed quickly when the beachhead is set up and the vehicle can then handle its full limit of cargo.

The Beach Buster is strictly an accent on youth. Swennes is in his late 30s, and the plant is run by Robert Ingersoll Jr., son of its founder. Young Bob took over the plant when he was 30, three years ago, and is its sole boss.

Plans Peace Time Program

Young Ingersoll has completed and locked in the safe plans to keep every employe busy, with overtime, after the war. The plant had a high peace time employment of 300 men, and it built stoves, boilers, and repair parts for Sears, Roebuck & Co. It did 3 million dollars a year gross business.

The Beach Busters cost the navy $30,000 each, plus $12,000 in spare parts. At the present monthly production that is more than 100 million dollars a year, including parts bought from 250 supplying firms.

Young Ingersoll has plans to keep the peace time output at 50 millions a year, nearly all of it produced in this plant.

Happy Ending

Navy Lt. William J. McCartney kisses his bride after wedding in Groton, Conn.

Groton, Conn., June 2 (AP)—Culminating a romance that began when a navy fighter plane crashed thru the roof of her father's house last October, Celia Alice Bergeron, 25, a SPAR, and Lt. William J. McCartney, 24, the navy flyer whose plane started it all, were married in Sacred Heart church here this morning.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philibert Bergeron, Groton. The lieutenant is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. McCartney, Toledo, O.

The bride, putting aside her SPAR uniform for the occasion, wore the traditional white wedding gown. She was given away by her father, who unwittingly played Cupid when he invited the flyer to a housewarming after repairs to his home were completed after the crash.

RECORD 462,569 PASSENGERS USE AIRPORT IN 1945

During the first five months of 1945 a record number of 462,569 passengers have arrived at or departed from Chicago airport on scheduled air line flights, Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt reported yesterday. The previous high for a five month period, Hewitt said, was in 1944 when 284,298 passengers used the air field from Jan. 1 to June 1.

The number of commercial planes in and out of the airport up to June 1, Hewitt said, totaled 30,656 and represented an increase of 70.4 per cent over the 17,982 planes that landed or took off from the field on scheduled flights during the first five months of 1944. The airport also has handled 24,739 nonscheduled military plane flights.

The amount of mail and air express handled has increased greatly in the last four years. In the first five months of 1941, a total of 1,852,602 pounds was handled. In the same period in 1943 the figure was 4,625,416. In 1944 it was 6,075,431, and this year 8,369,552 pounds.

Work on the foundations for the new $700,000 terminal building, interrupted last week after rain had filled the excavations, will be resumed again tomorrow, Hewitt said.

Norse Declare Holiday for Return of King Haakon

OSLO, Norway, June 2 (AP)—King Haakon will return to Norway Thursday and the day will be declared a national holiday. This will be the king's first sight of his homeland since he left it five years ago to the day to continue the fight against Germany from London. June 7 also is Norway's independence day.

IL DUCE'S LAST DAYS MARKED BY WIFE'S SCOLDING

Berates Him Over His Mistress

BY P. E. BRIQUET
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Clara Petacci

CHIASSO, Switzerland, June 2—An abiding faith in his destiny dominated the last days of Benito Mussolini's life in a villa at Lake Garda, it was disclosed today by the Fasano correspondent of the Milan newpaper, Italia Libera.

It was the story of the private life of the once powerful duce, a story which told of Mussolini's dominance by his mistress, red haired Clara Petacci, and the break between Mussolini and his wife, Donna Rachele. This is what Italia Libera said:

Mussolini, following his dramatic rescue by German paratroopers, arrived at Gargnano on Lake Garda on Oct. 12, 1943, in a limousine, escorted by Nazi SS elite guards. He was thin, pale, and worn out. He was not expected to live long. But his stay at this and other Italian watering places soon revived his health.

Duce Heavily Guarded

He lived in Villa Feltrinelli, a large white building, in bad taste but sumptuously furnished. Mussolini was heavily guarded at all times. To reach him a visitor would have to have at least four passes. Besides a battalion of legionnaires, Italian and German policemen, he also had his German elite guards, who bossed everybody.

Mussolini was at his office from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. daily. His most frequent visitor was Guido Buffarini-Guidi, his interior minister, who was condemned to death last Monday. Secretary of State Alessandro Pavolini arrived at the villa almost every day. Almost constantly with him were Gen. Basile and Francesco Barracu, Mussolini's undersecretary, who was later shot and hanged with the duce. Other frequent visitors were German Ambassador Von Rahn, Bombacci, former head of the Italian Communist party, Roberto Farinacci, and other neo-fascist big shots.

Mussolini spent several hours every afternoon cycling to his tennis courts. Toward the end he was getting fat and his daily tennis game was supposed to keep the vain duce slim.

Surrounded by Germans

Mussolini was surrounded by Germans. His personal valet was a German; his adjutant was a German, and he had German anti-aircraft batteries scattered thruout the villa park. Every night Mussolini treated himself to a movie in his parlor. After the usual German propaganda film, he would see lighter Italian features. Among those found at Gargnano were "The Great King," "The Wild Girl," and one of the last movies he saw was "This Lost Soul."

Donna Rachele, her children, Romano and Anna Marie, Bruno's widow, and all her former servants entered Villa Feltrinelli soon after Mussolini's arrival. His family didn't bother him very much. He ate and slept alone.

Twice a week, Mussolini would drive to Gardone, farther south, to see Clara Petacci. Buffarini-Guidi was believed to have encouraged this liaison, and Donna Rachele hated him for it. She tried to have the home minister barred from the duce's villa.

Visits Him Secretly

Clara was never seen publicly in Gargnano. She had a private telephone line to Mussolini and during the last few months came to his villa secretly. An auto would take her to the Feltrinelli garage, where thru a secret stairway she was led directly into Mussolini's office.

Some one in the household whispered about these trysts to Donna Rachele and she upbraided her husband in some of the loudest scenes in the Mussolini family history. Since 1943, Mussolini was just an unfaithful husband to Donna, and she had long doubted his greatness. The scenes became so violent and frequent between the two that it was the talk of all the servants and near-by residents.

Donna Rachele, a simple woman, scolded Mussolini for his scandalous conduct at a time when the Italian people had need to believe in his moral principles. Her advice was useless and only served to make a complete break between the couple. To get to speak to the duce, Donna Rachele had to petition for an audience just like all the others.

Still a Strutting Duce

Mussolini's ability to decide things for himself was gone. Any one asking for some privilege or concession got what he wanted. The Germans realized this and all orders had to pass thru SS Col. Jander, who did as he pleased. This sometimes infuriated the duce.

In spite of the bad news, Mussolini was always optimistic. Neo-fascist soldiers were brought to the villa for Mussolini to review. That bolstered his courage. His servants said he was the same strutting duce in Villa Feltrinelli as he was in Rome.

At dawn a few American soldiers arrived across the lake on an amphibious truck. The small town was beflagged in welcome. On the villa's stairway an American soldier was seen waving Mussolini's famous "Sword of the Islam"—a GI souvenir!

Hulks of wrecked landing craft (foreground) lie on Omaha beach, Normandy, a year after D-day. Offshore are sunken vessels which formed a breakwater for allies' landing operation on June 6, 1944. Many other battle scars have been removed from area, but these hulks remain as beachhead monuments.

U. S. Engineers Dredging to Release Liner Europa

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, June 2 [Reuters] — United States army engineers have begun dredging to release the Europa, former German luxury liner of 49 thousand tons, from the silt bed at Bremerhaven. The ship is unharmed by bombing. It was revealed tonight in London that the Europa is to be commissioned as a transport for 8,000 United States troops "very soon."

REPORT FINDING HIMMLER PLAN FOR BRUTE LABOR

LONDON, June 2 (AP)—The Luxembourg radio said today a secret document had been found in which Heinrich Himmler planned to reduce the people of eastern Europe to the status of uneducated brutes.

Jews would have been exterminated entirely under the nazi plan and others would have been taught only to write their names, perform hard labor and learn that "it is the divine law to obey Germans," the radio said.

"The higher SS and police officers will have to decide which child is racially high grade and Germanic enought to get a higher education," the radio quoted the paper as saying. "Such a child will be sent to Germany and educated in the German way. Parents have two choices: either to stay in the east—but they must have no more children — or they can go with the chosen child to Germany and be good Germans. If this plan is followed systematically for 10 years there will be only an inferior population left available for road building and quarries and as mobile workers. Thus they will contribute to our eternal creations."

SZCZEPANSKI ESTATE $166,179

The estate of Adam Szczepanski, president of the White Eagle Coal company, who died last No. 25, was estimated at $166,179 in an inheritance tax appraisal filed yesterday in County court.

GIs FUNNELING GERMAN HORDES BACK TO HOMES

Yanks Wonder When Their Time Will Come

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MUNICH, Germany, June 2—The American armies which whipped Germany now have the task of disbanding the men whom the fuehrer called to war. In Bavaria alone the Americans are setting up machinery to disarm and disband 800,000 German soldiers. The first batch of 200,000 men of the German 1st army arrived in the districts of Aibling and Eversberg, south of Munich, and are being reprocessed as rapidly as possible to get them back to work in their home districts.

For GI's and officers, whose main topic of conversation is "When do we get home?" the job of seeing that the Germans get home quickly is viewed with mixed emotions. It is hard to see the vanquished Germans strut thru the villages assigned to them or crowd the roads with their vehicles under direction of their own military police.

Women Go Along

Many German cars spread generous whiffs of alcoholic fumes, and women in civilian clothes accompany the vanquished in their cars to add to the holiday touch. The Germans say the women belong to their military organization, but those in the grey suits of the wehrmacht and the schutzstaffel are easily distinguishable. They get traveling priority because both American officers and Germans are anxious to get the women out of the disbanding area as fast as possible.

Officers of the 6th corps, which fought the German 1st army from Italy thru France and Alsace and across southern Germany, are directing its dissolution under orders of Maj. Gen. W. H. Morris, commander of the 10th armored division. Since the German 1st army surrendered under the terms of the Berlin agreement, its members are treated as "disarmed Germans" and not as prisoners of war, a term which applies only to Germans seized in combat before V-E day.

Disposition of Arms

The Germans are divided into small groups for examination. Military intelligence officers retain security suspects. All men and women living in the area of the 7th and 3d armies who are passed by the Americans are sent by trucks to the capital of their home county after removal of all their military insignia. There the authorities provide them with civilian food and clothing cards. Then the men are expected to go home and resume work.

As long as the German troops are in the disbanding area they are allowed to retain their arms. At the time of the surrender provision was made that 100 men and officers of a division would be allowed to retain their weapons, which they turn over to a German collecting point in the disbanding area. The weapons then are repaired and cleaned by the Germans, who turn them over to an American ordnance outfit.

Colonel Minus Uniform

One of the problems facing the officers directing the German armies is the thoro distrust of the GIs manning our roadblocks for Germans traveling in single cars. Officers whom I interviewed beamed with pride over the "alertness of the GIs" even if it occasionally caused complications. There was the case of the German colonel who was to command one of the German camps. He arrived at American headquarters clad in underwear, shoes, and a raincoat some one had lent him. He had been deprived of his uniform along the road but refused to state who had taken it. There seemed little doubt that the job was done by GIs.

Just before I learned of this incident I had seen a German officer bawl out a German soldier on the main square of the village in truly Prussian fashion. When I stopped to watch the German officer ordered me to proceed as if the Germans still were the masters. When I told him the Americans were giving the orders he became all smiles. The colonel who lost his uniform had probably tried his Prussian style on some GIs.

Colombia Quells Revolt of Rebels in Prison

BOGOTA, Colombia, June 2 (AP)—A government bulletin said last night that police had put down a mutiny inside the central penitentiary. Several military leaders who had been imprisoned on charges of participating in the unsuccessful revolt of July, 1944, had seized control for several hours yesterday morning. The government had rejected a proposal by Gen. Eduardo Bonitto, described as one of the leaders, that the accused revolutionaries be released in exchange for returning control of the jail.

BARES GOERING RACKET IN FARM SLAVE WORKERS

PARIS, June 2 (AP)—At Wimsbach, Austria, where Capt. Milton C. Wakefield, Ravenna, O., has military government headquarters, a German appeared recently and asked for a pass to resume work as overseer of large farms. "I work for Hermann Goering," the man said.

Investigation disclosed that Goering, now a prisoner of the allies, had been supplying all farms and estates in the vicinity with slave labor whose only recompense was two meals daily, and had staffed farms with Nazi overseers.

Crops were harvested and checks sent to Goering in Berlin. This overseer was still sending checks after Berlin had fallen into the hands of the Russians.

Lord Haw Haw Still Held in Hospital in Germany

SECOND ARMY HDQS., June 2 [Reuters]—William Joyce, accused of broadcasting for the Germans as Lord Haw Haw, is still in a hospital bed but Margaret White, the woman described as his wife will leave Lueneberg for Britain by air tomorrow afternoon, it was learned today. Joyce's condition is expected to improve sufficiently to allow him to be moved to Britain in three or four days.

TWO BAGS OF TOOLS STOLEN

From his car parked at Milwaukee av. and Rockwell st., some one stole two bags of tools valued at $300 and a tire and tube valued at $50, Jack Horlick, 3029 Belden av., told Shakespeare av. police yesterday.

CHARGES SOVIET ABSENCE HURTS WAR CRIME BODY

LONDON, June 2 (AP)—Lack of Russian coöperation was described by a Yugoslavian delegate tonight as a "great obstacle" in efforts of the allied war crimes commission to bring axis war criminals to justice.

Soviet Russia is not a member of the international commission which now is in the third day of its meeting seeking to speed punishment of axis war criminals.

"Absence of our soviet ally is greatly felt," Dr. Rademir Zivkovic of Yugoslavia told the 16 nation conference.

"This has caused not only a gap in fulfilment of the delegates' tasks, but also has been a great obstacle to their efforts to overcome difficulties of a practical nature."

Japs Being Dealt With

Col. Abe MacGregor Goff, an American delegate, told the commission that the United States already is taking care of Japanese who mistreated civilians and service personnel in the Philippines. He supported a demand by Lt. Col. Oldham, an Australian delegate, for immediate listing of Japanese offenders, and said the United States would like to help in tracking down the Japanese, once their inner island circle was broken.

Seek to Prevent Escapes

The conference studied ways to prevent escape from the hangman's noose or firing squad of those who directly executed policies of axis arch criminals. A conference spokesman described these as criminals "not quite at the top" in the axis governments, but responsible for carrying out the commands of their superiors.

Crimes for which the commission hopes to bring punishment include such things as mass starvation, forced labor, compulsory migration, looting of art treasures, countrywide economic plundering, and mistreatment of foreign women workers and their children.

German Admits Clubbing Yank

AHRWEILER, Germany, June 2 (AP)—Testimony ended today in the trial of three German civilians accused of killing an American airman last August.

One defendant, Peter Kohn, 32, sobbed as he told of the fatal clubbing. "I remember how many dead people we had in Speicher as the result of an air raid, he cried. "I forgot myself."

The airman, attacked when he parachuted to earth, has not been identified.

Kohn, who lost his left arm in battle against the Russians near Orel in 1942, said he struck the flyer with a 3 foot club "only on the arm or shoulder." Under cross-examination, he said "I might have hit him on the head. I don't know. I lost control of myself.

"It is possible I kept on hitting him after he was down on the ground. I don't know."

The defense called only three witnesses—Kohn; another defendant, Matthias Krein, and the village priest. After closing arguments by prosecution and defense the eight-man American military commission will give its verdict.

DANES PILE UP FARM GOODS; LACK EXPORT

BY EINARR CHRISTIANSEN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, June 2—Uncertainty prevails in Danish agriculture. More than four weeks have elapsed since the liberation and considerable supplies of bacon and butter have accumulated, but exports have not been resumed in spite of hunger in other liberated countries and a reduction of food rations in Britain.

On the other hand, news has been received that allied supreme headquarters has dispatched the first 10,000 ton shipment of coal from the Ruhr and a 500 ton shipment of salt to Denmark as promised for June. The coal was dispatched by rail, indicating that the German railroads have been repaired to an extent permitting exports. Danish coal stocks are almost exhausted.

The Danish tourist organization is preparing propaganda for the United States, England and Scandinavia, and is destroying leaflets printed in German. Fashionable hotels all over the country have posted bills saying, "Deutsche Unerwunschst" [Germans Not Wanted].

REVEAL SWANK OF ROOSEVELT'S ELEVATOR PLANE

Its Luxury Points Way for Post-War Ships

Santa Monica, Cal., June 2 (AP)—The Douglas Aircraft company disclosed today the hitherto hush-hush design of the elevator-equipped, luxury plane that carried the late President Roosevelt to Yalta.

The same plane took Mrs. Martha Truman, 92, from Kansas City, Mo., to Washington to spend Mother's day with her son in the White House. It will carry President Truman to the San Francisco conference for his speech at the closing session.

Trail Blazer in Luxury

The special C-54 Skymaster was built last year for the army air transport command from drawings by E. Gilbert Mason, chief interiors-design engineer for Douglas Aircraft. Some of its features, he says, give a hint of luxuries that will make post-war passenger planes "more comfortable than any means of transportation the world has known."

In the presidential plane, a battery-operated elevator just aft of the main passenger loading door hoists the plane's collapsible, chromium steel wheelchair from a ground ramp to a corridor in the passenger section. Mr. Roosevelt, a plant spokesman said, often preferred to sit in the wheelchair between pilot and co-pilot while traveling.

The plane, which carries 15 persons, has sleeping accommodations for six. Its private stateroom measures 7½ by 12 feet and has seating room, with its sofa and two folding chairs, for seven persons.

Within reach of the President's swivel chair are a magazine rack, oxygen mask, reading lights, and telephone connecting with the pilot's compartment and three other sleeping sections. A lavatory adjoins a short distance across the carpeted floor.

The conference table has the great seal of the United States inlaid on its wooden top and countersunk ash trays at the four corners.

Draperies Embroidered.

Upholstery is of all-wool worsted, draperies of blue gabardine. The latter were embroidered with the insignia of the army, navy, coast guard, and marine corps.

All very luxurious, you agree, but will the ordinary plane passenger of tomorrow enjoy such swank? Not at first, at any rate, but Mason predicts:

"Seats will make into berths in two minutes by pressing a few gadgets. Upper-berth passengers will be able to sit up full height. Upper berths, like the lowers, will have luggage racks, windows, reading lights, mirrors, thermos bottles, and makeup kits."

Pupils Elect Colin Kelly as Name for New School

Eugene, Ore., June 2 (AP)—The late Colin P. Kelly Jr., one of the war's first heroes, edged out Douglas MacArthur and other generals in an election here. School pupils, selecting their own name for a new suburban junior high, gave Kelly 153 votes to MacArthur's 146. Trailing were Generals Eisenhower and Marshall, James Fennimore Cooper, Charles L. McNary, and Thomas Jefferson.

SHOWS LIBRARY NEED OF SPACE USED BY G. A. R.

J. B. Fleming Tells of Terms with Vets

The Chicago Public library, which leases space to the Grand Army Hall and Memorial association for $10 a year and in turn rents back a part of that space for about $300 a year, doesn't want to keep up this arrangement for another 100 years, Joseph B. Fleming, president of the board of directors, said yesterday.

The library, largest circulating library in the world, needs the 9,500 square feet of floor space in a small assembly hall and offices that the G. A. R. occupies on the library's second floor under a 50 year lease that expires Jan. 1, 1948, Fleming asserted.

One of the largest activities of the library, that of collecting and mailing books to service men all over the world, is carried on in the rented space in the old Chicago Historical Society building at Ontario and Dearborn sts., because quarters are not available in the present building, Fleming said.

Dates Back to 1891

Fleming said that a bill now before the legislature directing the library to renew for 100 years its lease with the G. A. R. has given many people the impression the library intends to eliminate the memorial hall to soldiers and sailors of the Civil war.

In 1891, when the state gave the city permission to build a library on the land it owned at Randolph st. and Michigan av., it instructed the city to acquire from the Soldiers' home any interest that organization had on the state's land. That interest consisted of state authorization to erect a memorial on the north quarter of the present library site.

Annual Expense Over $6,000

Under the terms of its 50 year lease with the association, the library must maintain the memorial hall forever, and expects to do so, Fleming said. However, the association leased an assembly hall and several small ante rooms and offices only for 50 years and these are what the library now needs.

The library has paid annually from $6,000 to $8,000 to heat and maintain the quarters exclusive of the memorial hall, and is bound to continue to do so until the lease expires, Fleming said.

Fleming said that he and Carl B. Roden, librarian, will appear before the house of representatives next Wednesday to present their case.

COLONEL IN DOG PRIORITY FUROR AWARDED MEDAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 2—Col. Ray W. Ireland, the Chicagoan who was blamed for the air transport command scandal which arose when Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt's mastiff, Blaze, got his priority plane ride across the country, has been awarded the legion of merit, it was learned today.

Col. Ireland

The decoration was not given for shouldering the responsibility for the scandal, according to the citation, but for making plane arrangements for the Yalta conference.

After Ireland was taxed with the blame for the "A" priority given the dog in a congressional investigation, suspicions were voiced on Capitol hill that the officer had been made the goat of an incident which roused nation-wide indignation.

"Diplomacy" Is Cited

"His diplomacy in correlating the activities of all agencies concerned contributed to the harmonious relations that were established," one sentence of the Ireland citation read.

Rep. Shafer [R., Mich.] said this portion of the citation might as easily have applied to securing the priority for Blaze "just as a sort of favor" to Mrs. Anna Boettiger, sister of Elliott, who was then living in the White House with her father.

"I'm not suspicious by nature, but I find it hard to reconcile the award of the legion of merit to the colonel with the severe condemnation visited on him by his superiors for giving Blaze an airplane ride," said Shafer. "That is, unless the colonel is being rewarded for standing up and taking it like a soldier when the heat was on the White House and the war department."

Service Men Bumped Off

Ireland, who was general traffic manager of the United Air lines in Chicago when he joined the ATC as a colonel in 1942, granted Elliott's dog an "A" priority when he received a call from Mrs. Boettiger asking him to arrange the dog's transportation to the west coast to Elliott's movie actress wife, Faye Emerson.

Not only did the dog get a ride across the country but Blaze was delivered to Miss Emerson by a major in uniform, who brought him to Hollywood in an army truck. The dog's flight was disclosed when service men protested because they had been bumped off an army transport plane, while the dog remained because he had the priority.

"A serious mistake has been made and it cannot be justified," Maj. Gen. H. L. George, chief of the ATC, testified before the senate investigating committee.

F. McCORMICK'S PLEA ON FUNDS TOLD AT HEARING

Middletown, Conn., June 2 (AP)—Testimony that Fowler McCormick, Chicago industrialist, and his wife tried unsuccessfully to persuade John D. Rockefeller Jr. as trustee to discontinue payments from the family fortune to WAC Sgt. Muriel McCormick Hubbard was introduced yesterday in the Superior court trial at which McCormick is attempting to remove Dr. Frances M. Clarke as guardian of Sgt. Hubbard's adopted children.

An adoption agreement between Dr. Clarke and Sgt. Hubbard, McCormick's sister, was approved by Probate Judge Leonard O. Ryan in May, 1944. Several months before, McCormick brought suit, which still is pending, asking removal of his sister as guardian of the children, Edith R. Hubbard and Elisha Dyer Hubbard II., charging she was an "unfit person" because she beat the children and "was addicted to the use of alcohol."

McCormick is assailing Dr. Clarke's guardianship, charging her with being "temperamentally unfit" to be the children's foster parent. On the stand for the fifth consecutive day, Dr. Clarke, an elementary school principal at New London, asserted Rockefeller was "greatly interested" in Sgt. Hubbard's military career and called attention to a letter among the exhibits in which Rockefeller termed Sgt. Hubbard, his niece, "a good soldier."

Police Hunt Pack of Dogs for Attack on Housewife

Three dogs sniffed the fresh bakery goods Mrs. Sophie Pukszta, 52, of 1212 W. Erie st., was carrying home yesterday and then leaped on her back and bit her and tore her dress. She ran to the nearby Racine av. station and police started search for the dogs and their owner.

$400 VANISHES; GIRL IS SOUGHT

A girl wearing red shoes was sought by police yesterday on report of Stanley Wobniewicz that she was in his watch repair shop, 1118½ Milwaukee av., when an envelope containing $400 disappeared from a drawer.

RADIO DEALERS WANTED NOW!
Sell Internationally-Famous Radio Line on a Direct Factory-to-Dealer Basis. Big Volume and Profit Opportunity. Exclusive Franchise.
Since 1939, hundreds of America's leading department stores, radio and appliance dealers have endorsed and adopted the Sparton Cooperative Merchandising Plan (S. C. M. P.)
HERE'S WHAT THE S. C. M. P. CAN DO FOR YOU
1 If you qualify as a Sparton Radio dealer, you will be given an exclusive franchise for your community.
2 All radio shipments will be made to you direct from the factory, at dealer-delivered prices.
3 You will be sure of a dependable source of supply.
4 You will be able to offer customers a full line of fine radios—consoles, table models and combinations—some with FM (Frequency Modulation)—at lower-than-usual prices.
5 You will be relieved of the necessity of offering special discounts or costly trade-in allowances.
6 And last—but not least—your selling effort will be backed up with seasonal promotional helps and a powerful campaign of national advertising.
Think what a relief it would be, if you wiped away the headaches!
Think what it would mean to you in sales and profits, if you were able to offer top-quality nationally-accepted radios in direct competition with the biggest retail outlets!
Are you interested in the S.C.M.P.?
Then—here's what to do about it!
Additional dealer appointments are now being made. But—only a few territories are open.
So—act fast!

58 WILL SHARE HONORS IN LAST 'CITIZENS' SHOW

Tribune and CAC to Be Hosts to Pupils

Fifty-eight of the 69 members of the honor roll of "Citizens of Tomorrow," the CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S youth radio show heard each Saturday morning at 10 o'clock on W-G-N will participate in the final transcribed program Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in W-G-N's audience studio.

These outstanding boys and girls, all members of senior classes, come from Chicago, suburbs, and Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin. Each of the 58 students will be introduced on this half hour show and in 15 words or less will tell of their ambitions in life. The show, the last program of the sixth series of "Citizens of Tomorrow," will be broadcast Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

To Honor Those in Service

Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies, will pay tribute to the four members of the honor roll who are already in service. They are Sheldon E. Barron, Marshall High school; William Branen, Waller; Boris Yarotsky, South Shore, and William Fulka, Roosevelt High school of East Chicago, Ind. Several of the honor roll students will not be able to be present because their commencement exercises are being held Wednesday.

The honor roll party will be guests of the Chicago Association of Commerce at luncheon Wednesday in the Hotel Sherman and will be welcomed by Thomas B. Freeman, president of the association. Guy M. Gillette will speak.

Will Visit Tribune Tower

The group will make a tour of Tribune Tower and will be guests of THE TRIBUNE at dinner at the Hotel Sherman at 6 p. m.

The names and home towns of the honor roll students in Chicago and nearby territory follow:

Lily Barker, 3900 N. Odell av., Steinmetz; Dorothy Ann Basner, 3313 W. Dickens av., Foreman; Clement P. Bilhorn, 3846 N. Kedvale av., Schurz; William Binstock, 520 Stratford pl., Lakeview; Sally J. Dodo prepares for return to Texas.

Because a Chicago police sergeant has a long memory and sharp eyes, the Texas owner of a trick dog will have him back soon. The animal, a brown and white Scotch shepherd named Dodo, is believed to have journeyed to Chicago in the company of a soldier. The animal was found yesterday romping in the yard at the rear of the home of Richard Lannon, of 6952 Vernon av., by Sgt. Emmet Murphy of the Woodlawn station.

Murphy recognized the pet from a description in a circular sent to police of various cities by officials of San Antonio, Tex., who said that the dog's mistress, ill in a hospital, had not been informed that her pet had strayed.

The soldier whom the dog is believed to have accompanied since has returned to duty at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. Murphy took Dodo to the dog pound to stay until arrangements can be made to ship him home.

Textile Men to Return After U. S. Seizes Plant

Greensboro, Ga., June 2 (AP)—The army took over the Mary-Leila Cotton Mills, Inc., today under Presidential order and a war department spokesman said workers who left their jobs eight weeks ago in a labor dispute would return Tuesday. The action affected 300 workers. At Atlanta, the regional war labor board said the company had refused to abide by two WLB orders involving the company and the Textile Union Workers of America [CIO]. The mill manufactures cotton sheeting used in fire bomb containers.

PREDICT ¼ MILE WING SPAN FOR FUTURE PLANES

BY CHARLES GOTTHART
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Swampscott, Mass., June 2—Engineers who developed the most powerful jet engine in the world, which drives the fastest airplane in the skies, today concluded a conference here with predictions of an amazing future for this war born power plant.

The conference, first of its kind, attracted 200 scientists and corporation officials who participated in the development of the fighting plane P-80 and its jet engine, designed by the General Electric company.

Army air forces officials permitted the disclosure of some of the engine's secrets in the first newspaper tour of General Electric's jet plant at nearby Lynn.

Quarter Mile Wing Spans

Future airplanes with quarter mile wing spans will result from knowledge developed thru research in jet propulsion and gas turbine engines, said Reginald G. Standerwick, General Electric engineer who directed the engine's development. There is virtually no limit to potential power, he said, predicting a vast army of post-war household and industrial developments stemming from gas turbine and related research.

The only present limitations are in metals sufficiently tough to withstand the terrific heat generated, he explained.

"But with metals available today we will be able to build low priced private planes powered by gas turbine driven propellers, and helicopters with jet propulsion gases being emitted from the trailing tips of the propeller blades.

Household Power Package

"Transcontinental and transoceanic transportation will call for power plants of ever increasing size. These are ideal applications for gas turbine driven propeller planes, augmented by the correct proportion of jet propulsion."

Standerwick predicted that future gas turbine plants, powered by a new super-fuel developed by chemists, would provide household heat, light, and refrigeration "all in one package."

Some of the information disclosed to the jet engine experts at the conference was withheld from the public because of military secrecy, but officials said the engine was "in volume production" at two General Electric plants and at an Allison engine plant of the General Motors corporation.

Ideal Power Unit

Expert opinion at the conference, called by General Electric and the army air forces and held in the new Ocean house, was that jet engine already was the ideal power unit for fighter planes where speed was the major factor, while the gas turbine harnessed to a propeller with an auxiliary jet would develop into the power plant for transport and cargo aircraft.

Engineers inspected a cutaway of the super-jet, and the operation of this simple engine with its one moving part was explained in detail. Air rams into the front of it while in flight, and a compressor whips the air into a series of combustion chambers, where intense heat is created by the burning kerosene. The blazing hot air and gases then pass thru a turbine connected by a shaft with the compressor-impeller. This turbine spins 15,000 times a minute and withstands heat up to 1,700 degrees. The air then passes out of the exhaust, releasing the reactive force that drives the plane forward.

Altho the pilot does not hear it because the plane is traveling at the speed of sound when in flight, the noise is terrific at the Lynn plant where the engines are tested. The roar can be heard five miles away.

COL. GABRESKI HOME AGAIN; LOOKS AHEAD TO WEDDING JUNE 11

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 2 (AP)—Tears of joy welled into the eyes of Mrs. Stanley Gabryszewski today as she embraced her flying ace son, Lt. Col. Francis S. Gabreski, for the first time in nearly two and one-half years.

The flyer arrived by train from Chicago this morning and within a few minutes was whisked by his mother and sister, Lottie, into an automobile en route to his Oil City, Pa., home.

In the states on a 60 day leave after 10 months in a German prison camp, Col. Gabreski said he plans to stay in Oil City until "a couple days" before June 11 when he is to be married at Prairie du Chien, Wis., to Kay Cochran, his college sweetheart.

Leader of a Thunderbolt fighter squadron, the ace was forced down July 20, 1944, and taken prisoner. He has 28 enemy planes to his credit.

QUEBEC PIVOTAL SPOT AS CANADA ELECTION NEARS

Campaign Closes in Drive for Province's Seats

BY ARTHUR EVANS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ont., June 2—Canada's National election moves into its final week with Liberals and Progressive-Conservatives concentrating on Quebec province, traditional bulwark of the Liberal party. Prime Minister King was due for a speech tonight at Montreal, and John Bracken, leader of the Progressives, or reconstructed party of the Tories, is set for an address at the same spot Tuesday.

The Liberals are emphasizing that a strong over-all majority in the next Canadian house of commons is essential to finish the war against Japan and to deal with post-war social and economic problems.

From the start of the campaign, the Liberals have taken it more or less for granted that they would win the largest number of seats. Prevailing belief here seems to be that King will keep office. But whether the Liberals will have a working majority of the 245 seats in the house of commons is still a question.

Outcome Hinges on Quebec

Quebec with 65 seats in the house is the province on which the outcome most largely hinges, and there the Liberals are indicated to have been strengthened since King's Winnipeg speech accusing Bracken of playing both ends against the middle on the conscription question, of saying one thing in French Canadian Quebec and taking an opposite stand in the other eight provinces.

Meanwhile as a curtain raiser for the June 11 national election, Ontario's provincial election Monday has the spotlight. It is the equivalent of a state election in the United States, and this time it is attracting unusual attention as showing possible political trends.

State socialism as advocated by the Coöperative Commonwealth federation is an underlying issue which has the Liberals and Tories worried. Ontario, the workshop of Canada, has one-third of Canada's population and produces one-half of the industrial output of the nation.

Has Largest Block of Seats

Ontario has the biggest block of seats in the Canadian house of commons, 82.

Two years ago the CCF became something of a political phenomenon by winning 34 of the 90 seats in the provincial election. Tories took 38, less than a majority; the Liberals 16. Now the great puzzle is whether the CCF is on the upgrade or the downgrade.

Both Liberals and Tories have been assailing the socialistic doctrines of the CCF as aiming at the stifling of free enterprise in Canada.

Both parties, too, have been accusing each other of deals and connivings with the radicals. The campaigning has been frantic and has been made all the more muddled by charges of a political secret police gestapo, operating in Ontario, made by E. B. Jolliffe, CCF provincial leader, and heatedly denied by Premier George Drew, Conservative.

Radio appeals ceased late last night, the law requiring a two day lapse between final blasts and election day.

Pledges to Quit, If True

In the final gasps over the air last night, Premier Drew pledged the voters that he will resign if the Jolliffe charges of a secret political police should be established by the royal commission, on which he has appointed Justice A. M. Lebel of the provincial Supreme court.

Also on the air was Mitchell Hepburn, Liberal ex-premier, who is seeking a comeback. He viewed the campaign as a "last ditch stand for Toryism" and said: "I have never found Tory funds so high and Tory prestige so low," he said. "Never has there been so much Tory money available."

Child Bride

[Associated Press Wirephoto]

James Markle, 19, with his bride, Iola Brack Markle.

Mount Clemens, Mich., June 2 (AP)—James Markle, 19, bridegroom of Lola Brack Markle, 13, pleaded innocent of perjury and statutory rape in Justice court today.

Markle, remanded to jail when he failed to provide $2,000 bond, and his bride of a week avowed their love for each other and insisted they would wait until Lola comes of age. Lola was being held by juvenile authorities.

Prosecutor Wilbur Held said Markle admitted obtaining a marriage license here May 21 by giving Lola's age as 18.

A VOTERS' GUIDE TO REFERENDUM ON TRANSIT RULE

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK

Here in simple form are answers to questions that Chicagoans have been asking about the referendum on the traction plan, to be held tomorrow:

Q. What traction proposals are to be voted on? A. A city franchise ordinance and an enabling act for the establishment of a metropolitan transit authority.

Q. What powers would the authority have? A. It would purchase the elevated and surface lines, and later the Chicago Motor Coach company, and unify and operate them as a single transportation unit.

Seven Man Board Provided

Q. Who are the principal proponents of this scheme? A. Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly.

Q. How would the authority be governed? A. By a seven man board, four to be named by the mayor and three by the governor. Terms would be staggered. Board members would receive salaries of $15,000 each and the board could vote more for the chairman.

Q. How would the authority finance the purchase of the L and surface lines? A. By borrowing 87 million dollars on revenue bonds secured only by earning power of the combined properties. The offer is 75 millions for the surface lines and 12 millions for the L.

Q.—What is the status of these companies now? A.—Both are in bankruptcy in the federal District court. The L has been a steady loser over many years; the surface lines have been able to earn in all years since receivership proceedings started in 1927; their first mortgage bond interest of $3,600,000 a year has been earned regularly.

Sale Procedure Explained

Q.—How would the sale of the two companies' assets be made? A.—Thru the court, which would submit the offer, as well as a statement the offer is a fair one, to the present security holders. Two-thirds of the investors would have to approve the deal to make it effective.

Q.—How would the fairness of the price be determined? A.—Judge Igoe of the District court has asked the advice of the Illinois Commerce commission and the Securities and Exchange commission on this point; however, he can overrule their findings.

Q.—Has any price as low as 87 millions been set before? A.—No. A recent unification plan would have had the valuation carry securities of 179 millions. This was rejected by the commerce commission, which had set a rate base for the two companies of 162 millions.

Provisions Attached to Loan

Q.—Would the purchase money be available? A.—Investment bankers have indicated they would lend 87 millions, provided the Illinois Supreme court validates the legislation and provided the bankers' lawyers give unqualified assurances of financial safety.

Q.—Why have the governor and the mayor recommended public rather than private ownership of local transportation? A.—Because, they explained, no private company could operate and improve the system.

Q.—How much of an improvement is promised? A.—A 123 million dollar program spread over 10 years.

Q.—Where would the funds come from? A.—Perhaps 30 millions from the surface lines' cash, which would be acquired along with other assets, and the rest from earnings.

Q.—In the event of default of interest on the revenue bonds, what remedy would the investors have? A.—They could mandamus the authority board to raise fares; they could not foreclose on the properties.

Exempt from Paying Taxes

Q.—Would the authority have taxing powers? A.—No, but the authority would be relieved of paying 3½ millions of taxes that local bodies now collect annually from the surface lines and L. Income from the bonds would be free of federal income taxes.

Q.—Is there any limit on the power of the authority to increase fares? A.—There is none.

Q.—What is the status of suburbs in the scheme? A.—They may join the authority or stay out; they must get referendum approval of their voters to come in.

Q.—Will any suburbs vote now? A.—One, Elmwood Park.

The election today will have no binding effect on the security holders of the surface and L lines; they are still to be dealt with. It would take an estimated 6 to 18 months to complete the transactions and get the authority in full control, assuming there are no unexpected delays.

GUN DISCHARGED IN ERROR KILLS NURSE MAID, 13

Janet Mae Le Ruez, 13, of 9649 Emerald av., was killed yesterday when a .45 caliber pistol she found in the home of Richard D. Linville, 9656 Emerald av., was discharged accidentally. The girl was rushed to Little Company of Mary hospital, but died en route.

Janet Mae Le Ruez

Janet had gone to the Linville home to care for the three Linville children, whose father is an official of the Pure Oil company. When she found three guns in the home she called her chum, Dorothy Nordmark, 13, of 9652 Emerald av.

Dorothy told police that when she entered the Linville home Janet had the .45 pistol in her hand and wanted to shoot it out the window. Dorothy said she remonstrated and started toward Janet to take the gun away from her, but it was discharged before she could reach the girl's side.

Janet was a student at Christ the King parochial school. She was the daughter of George A. Le Ruez, general manager of the service division of General Electric company.

OSWEGO GROUP ASKS U. S. HOME FOR REFUGEES

Oswego, N. Y., June 2 (AP)—The Oswego citizens' advisory committee asked President Truman and congress today to permit refugees at the Fort Ontario shelter to "reside at places of their own choices" in this country or in their home countries.

Despite the government's "benevolent and generous" intention, the shelter has "taken on the psychological aspect of a prison" and some of the 982 refugees have been driven to insanity and suicide, the committee said in a resolution.

Noting that all the refugees had agreed to return to their native countries after the war, the committee said it did not "seem fair" to hold them to "inhumane" agreements they had "accepted only in desperation."

The citizens' committee was formed to act as a liaison group between the refugees and the people of nearby communities. Its members represent business, civic, educational, religious, and labor interests in the vicinity.

BRIDGING THE GAP

to Victory-Era Production

This plant occupies 23 acres, providing 313,000 sq. ft. of manufacturing floor space, two spur tracks, loading dock and receiving platform, capable of holding six cars on loading platform, two under cover at receiving platform and five on the outside. Martins Ferry Division of Blaw-Knox Company is located at Martins Ferry, directly across the Ohio River from Wheeling, W. Va.

YOU know best how long it will take you to get back into peacetime production after the Government gives you the green light. You also know that if you don't get into the field early with goods, your competitor may get there first.

Let us bridge your reconversion gap by taking over your manufacturing problem, in whole or part. If yours is a quantity-production product—close tolerance or not—we can make it. If necessary, we will tool up for your product.

Frankly—unlike the other nine great plants of the Blaw-Knox organization—our Martins Ferry plant is a "war baby" with no established market to return to. But we do want to keep our splendid plant going, keep our capable engineering group intact, give continued work to our skilled and loyal workers and otherwise utilize the valuable experience and equipment that went into the making of the "Fightin' Forties" (40-mm AA) for the Navy. And if we can make them we can make anything!

This may be important to you: Martins Ferry provides the additional manufacturing facilities you need without any capital investment. You can put more emphasis upon selling as you shift your manufacturing responsibilities to others.

Let one of our engineers discuss this matter with you . . . NOW. This may be the solution of your most immediate problem.

To help win the war is our first objective. Until that is assured, ordnance material is the order of the day. Do you need help? If so, get in touch with us at once!

120 CASES DAILY ARE HANDLED BY JUVENILE COURT

2,052 New Petitions Are Filed in Year

BY RITA FITZPATRICK

What of youth today? What of the Billy O'Briens who suddenly go berserk and smash in the heads of law abiding citizens, of the petty thieves who plunder at will, of the sex crazed youngsters who know no restraint? What is done with and for them?

So far Cook county's answer to the increasing problem of juvenile delinquency has been the Juvenile Detention home and the Juvenile court. Daily, an average of 120 cases come before Frank H. Bicek, Juvenile court judge, who has sat on the same bench for 12 years. Not all deal with juvenile delinquents. Yet, last year 2,052 new petitions were filed in delinquency cases, 1,617 affecting boys and 435 girls.

Average of 250 Inmates

The Juvenile Detention home keeps an almost unwavering average of 250 inmates thruout the year, altho the average stay of a youngster is 12½ days, Francis Scully, superintendent, disclosed yesterday. The home is not a punitive institution, he explained. It is merely a spot where youngsters, caught in offenses by the police, are kept awaiting trial in Juvenile court.

To realize the part that the home and the court play in protecting and prosecuting the young offender, Chicago needs only to turn back the pages of its history.

In the year previous to the enactment of the juvenile law in 1899, more than 500 youngsters, or 50 per cent of all tried, were sentenced to penitentiaries along with hardened, adult criminals. With the enactment of the law, jail commitments were discontinued.

Held Wards of State

The law, entitled "An act to regulate the children," included the recognition of a delinquent child as "a ward of the state" and not as an accused or convicted criminal. It also provided for a special court for children's cases, a separate place of detention for children, the abolition of fines and imprisonment, the system of returning the child to his home on probation, and the appointment of probation officers to supervise him.

The Juvenile court, a branch of the Circuit court, was organized July 1, 1899, and within a year's time heard 2,300 cases. Its purpose was defined as the welfare of the delinquent, the dependent, and the feeble minded child. Less than 1 per cent of all delinquent children brought before the court were held to the grand jury.

Several Schools Operated

Delinquent girls were confined to the Chicago Refuge for Girls, the House of the Good Shepherd and the State Training School for Girls at Geneva. In 1902, the Chicago Parental school was opened for truants and in 1904 the St. Charles School for Boys at St. Charles. Today, cases are referred to technical and industrial schools as well as "reformatories."

In the beginning, 23 probation officers, all unpaid volunteers, worked in coöperation with the court. Today there are 90 salaried officers with case loads running from 75 to 125 families.

In 1942 a complaint division was set up as a separate department to centralize all complaints and control the filing of delinquency petitions.

8,093 Complaints in Year

During the year from October, 1943, to October, 1944, the department handled 8,093 complaints. Of these 1,134 were referred to private agencies, 1,967 adjusted in the department, 2,967 accepted for investigation, and in the remaining cases, the police were authorized to file delinquency petitions. The children represented in these complaints included 4,344 dependent children, 1,454 delinquent girls, 4,115 delinquent boys and 84 feeble-minded children.

Only delinquent children are confined in the Juvenile Detention home, a policy introduced by Judge Bicek to protect the dependent child. A young offender is first brought into the in-take department of the home and given a complete physical examination. His case then goes thru the complaint division where it is decided whether it warrants investigation. After investigation, any needed petitions are filed.

In the meantime, the child may or may not be given psychiatric tests, depending upon the nature of his offense. The psychiatric tests first were introduced in connection with juvenile work in 1909 by Dr. William Healy. Today, a staff of 10 is supervised by Dr. Jerry R. Hora.

THIS IS WHAT YOU WILL VOTE FOR

Tomorrow the voters of Cook county will go to the polls to elect 20 judges of the Circuit court and four in the Superior court. That one is in the bag. Thanks to the device known as coalition, there will be only one ticket in the field.

A judicial election, even with only one ticket in the field, still qualifies as a general election, and thus is not only an appropriate, but also a most propitious occasion to submit a number of questions to the voters of Chicago. Residents of suburban Cook county will not have to worry over most of the propositions and the best advice we can give them is to use the two hours allotted them for going to their polls in sowing their war gardens to rice, water cress, or perhaps pond lilies.

The referendum propositions may, for practical purposes, be regarded as also in the bag. As a theoretical matter they could be defeated. As a practical matter voters will neglect this election in large numbers, except for the machine vote faithfully turned out by the Democratic organization, which will record a unanimous "Ja."

What we have to say about these propositions, thus, is not offered as advice, but as a service of information. Whether an individual goes to the polls or not, the decision at the polls is binding on him.

The most important proposal is that to create a Chicago transit authority, which is to be the vehicle for the public ownership of local transportation lines in Chicago and some of its suburbs. We have gone to some length in pointing out the true meaning of this proposal. Public ownership, to a greater or lesser extent, will substitute political manipulation for economic judgment. It will mean the indirect subsidization of local transportation by the taxpayers, inasmuch as the estimated profits of the local transportation lines, which have been earmarked for future development, will come almost wholly out of tax exemption at the expense of the remaining real estate taxpayers.

There has already been talk of a uniform 10 cent fare on the street cars and rapid transit lines thruout the city. In spite of all these very obvious defects, we think it a good thing that the public ownership proposal will be adopted. Chicago's local transportation is stagnant, and thru an excessively prolonged receivership and a stalemate with the city on a franchise, has fallen into an intolerable condition as regards equipment and service. Public ownership, dubious as its merits are, offers the best hope of ending that stagnation.

Chicago voters will also pass on, and, barring a miracle, approve 50 million dollars in bond issues. The larger part of these bonds will contribute materially to making Chicago a better city in which to live. The largest issue, 24 million dollars, is proposed by the Chicago park district. This money is to go largely for the development of small parks in crowded areas of the city whose needs have too long been neglected while park funds were being used to beautify Chicago's magnificent front yard on the lake front.

A collateral issue of 2 million dollars is proposed by the city for the purchase and development of playgrounds. This also is useful, but the existence of the two propositions on the ballot does call attention to the governmental idiocy of having a park district charged with the development of parks and boulevards, and also a city department charged with the operation of playgrounds and certain small parks. Either the playgrounds should be turned over to the park board or, better yet, the park district and its functions be made a department of the city government.

A bond issue of 15 million dollars is proposed for airport development. This sum is only a starter to what Chicago must spend if it is to maintain a position which its geographical location and other advantages make possible as the center of air traffic.

There is another city proposition on the ballot for 5 million dollars for slum clearance, actually, in the words of the referendum proposal, "for the purpose of rehabilitating or redeveloping blighted or slum areas." This language seems to limit the use of the money sufficiently. Nevertheless, the taxpayers of Chicago must be alert to see that the money is spent for the actual clearance of slums and is not diverted to the building of public housing projects on vacant land, which will contribute nothing to the solution of the problem of blighted areas, the gravest of all problems that the city has to deal with.

There are three other propositions of bond issues on the ballot, none of which should pass, tho all undoubtedly will. They are for the issuance of 2 million dollars in bonds for modernizing fire and police stations, a million and a half for new garbage trucks, and half a million dollars for a city garage and repair shop. It may be, and probably is, true that all of these expenditures are needed. They are not, however, activities for which a municipality should bond itself. Fixing up fire stations and buying garbage trucks are matters that should be financed out of the current tax income of the city government.

These propositions are on the ballot for the same reason that they are going to be approved by a large vote. The city tax revenue is being used for excess payrollers who turn out and carry elections, including those to put the city in debt for purposes which should be financed out of the money wasted on pay rolls.

The amendment to the Municipal court act, submitted to referendum, represents another unjustifiable burden on taxpayers. It authorizes raising salaries of deputy clerks and bailiffs from $2,500 to $3,500 a year. They're not all worth it.

UNDESERVED JEOPARDY

The house has voted to extend the statute of limitations until six months after the defeat of Japan for the purpose of trying by court martial any one accused of negligence of duty in connection with the Pearl Harbor disaster on Dec. 7, 1941.

It may be sensible to keep the judicial channels open, altho army and navy boards of inquiry reported last December that no cause for action had been discovered against any officer, but the process is doing a serious injustice to Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short. They were originally charged with negligence in the report of the Roberts commission, but the subsequent finding of the boards of inquiry that no grounds for action had been found should have served to clear them.

Despite the administration's lack of candor and the refusal of the secretaries of war and navy to make public a complete report on the investigation of the disaster, sufficient evidence has come out to convince everybody that there was negligence in Washington and that the commanders in Hawaii, whatever their shortcomings may have been, were made scapegoats. Kimmel and Short have retired to civilian life. If, in the indefinite future, blame is to be fixed for Pearl Harbor the failure of responsible executive officials in Washington to do all they should have done to warn against the attack and prepare for it cannot be overlooked.

HE CALLS HIMSELF AMERICAN

A speech delivered recently before the Canadian club of Toronto by Lawrence Hunt, a New York lawyer, demonstrates that the only thing more offensive than a patronizing Britisher is a lickspittle American who patronizes his own country. Mr. Hunt's address was entitled "America's Debt to Britain." His fellow countrymen will be surprised to hear that they owe not only their skins but their souls to Britain.

For a combination of toadying to Britain, sneering disrespect of the United States and the sacrifices of its people and its fighting men, pure insolence, and complete disregard for the facts, Mr. Hunt cannot be beat. He complained in his opening remarks that he hadn't been invited back to glorify the empire for the edification of the Toronto club for five years. He had striven to please in his previous appearance in 1940, when he demanded America's entrance into the war, but maybe his auditors did not have sufficiently strong stomachs to endure another siege of his oratory in the interim, even if it left nothing to be desired in self-abasement and the desire to ingratiate by demeaning this country.

Mr. Hunt's thesis was that America's salvation depends upon becoming the tail of the empire kite. Those Americans unwilling to agree he described as "blinded by false prejudices, or, worst of all, poisoned by that inward feeling of inferiority which finds its outward expression in suspicion and arrogance." He said that all those who dispute that this country "really needs" the empire are either "ignorant trash," "yellow journalists," "pompous political asses," or "breast-beating intellectuals." If we don't "acknowledge America's immeasurable debt to Britain in this war" we are "afflicted with an inferiority complex."

Mr. Hunt's reasoning on this and other points is a bit obscure, but it would seem that we have fallen heir to all of the abuses with which the British empire is synonymous. We are, for instance, imperialists, who "do not propose to preside over the liquidation of the American empire." "Advice to other nations is by far the greatest American export."

Laced into this prune whip were all the stock arguments: "Great Britain gave us time . . . to save our skins." "She helped us to save our souls." "Great Britain is, of course, doing her full share of the fighting." "The number of British divisions in full action against the enemy on the European continent almost exactly equaled the number of American divisions." [In fact, the ratio on the western front was about four American to one British and allied.] "The greatest land victory so far against Japan has been won in Burma by Lord Mountbatten." [With 380,000 Japs dead in the Philippines alone.] In reverse lend-lease and other aid, Britain's contribution "is probably as great as our own." [Have the British spent almost 39 billion dollars assisting their allies?]

All this obviously is nonsense, but Mr. Hunt's self-flagellatory promptings were not satisfied even by going to such lengths. "Like you," the most unabashed of the species assured his audience, "we have a profound contempt for toadies." So Mr. Hunt advises his countrymen to take the manly course and follow the "noble and gracious example" of the British in acknowledging that we didn't save them, but that they saved us.

Mr. Hunt is probably a product of his heredity and environment. New York in revolutionary days was a hotbed of Toryism, and he is one of the not inconsiderable number of those from the eastern seaboard who still cherish the crown. He is a graduate of the New Deal, a former senior litigation attorney for the national labor relations board, and the New Deal has always faithfully put this country at the service of Britain. He was nominated by the Toronto Globe and Mail to succeed James H. R. Cromwell as American minister to Canada, but somehow Washington slipped up on that one.

We are not particularly surprised to hear the sort of guff that Mr. Hunt preaches, but we would be surprised to hear it from any American except an easterner with such a confirmed history as a devoted servant of king and country.

The most remarkable disappearing act in history, if Adm. Doenitz is to be believed, is that of the Nazi party.—New York Sun.

MAY HAVE TO DIG OUT JAPS

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA

Gen. MacArthur's command includes not only the Philippine Islands but a vast area collectively designated as the Southwest Pacific. Excluding the Philippines, that part within which military operations are going on is more than 3,300 miles wide from west to east and 1,500 miles from north to south. The most important operations in progress are in Tarakan and in Bougainville, 2,750 miles apart. This is farther than from Chicago to Panama.

American forces started in 1942 to oust the Japanese from this enormous area. In the summer of that year the start was made at Guadalcanal, and almost simultaneously in New Guinea. Almost three years have passed. What is the net result?

Guadalcanal is one of the Solomon Islands. We now hold that island in the group, and New Georgia and part of Bougainville. The Japs hold about two-thirds of Bougainville, and Choiseul Island. On Bougainville, Australian troops relieved the Americans last October and November. The Australians have since been using two divisions to recapture the rest of Bougainville, one each in the north and south sectors of that island.

There the Japs retain bases that are visited and supplied by submarines, with occasional air contact. The Japanese bases have been under an air and sea blockade for three years. When this started it was believed that nothing more would be needed to cause the Japs to die of starvation. It hasn't happened. Japs raise their own food, and their subs bring them enough ammunition to keep the war going.

From 150 to 250 miles west and northwest from Bougainville are two islands—New Ireland and New Britain. Each has a Japanese base, Kavieng and Rabaul, respectively, which by air are 150 miles apart. No allied campaign has started in New Ireland. In addition to the sea and air blockade, hardly a day has passed for two years when American planes have not bombed Kavieng. American troops landed on New Britain a year and a half ago. They were replaced last autumn by Australians who are seeking to advance on Rabaul. At last report the Australians were 50 miles away and not making much progress. Rabaul has been bombed continuously and even more than Kavieng. The Japanese haven't been budged.

In New Guinea, Australian troops have been fighting alongside Americans from the summer of 1942 to a year ago. Since then the Americans have generally pulled out, leaving the Australians to do it alone. The east half of New Guinea, an island 1,500 miles long and at places 375 miles wide, has almost been cleared of Japanese. The Australians have just captured Wewak, on the north coast, and driven the Japs back into the hills. They believe they have these Japs cut off from the submarine barge line by having occupied the entire coast. Assuming this turns out to be correct, it is hoped that 15,000 to 20,000 Japs have been bottled and will ultimately be exterminated.

In the west half of New Guinea the Japs hold the south coast and the Australians a number of stations on the north coast. No serious fighting has taken place in this sector for some time.

Tarakan is on the northeast coast of Borneo. It is a small island, valuable for its oil wells, whose product is so pure that the oil does not need refining. If we can secure the wells it will be of enormous help in solving the oil supply for invasion forces against Japan or China. Tarakan is only 800 miles from Manila, while California, the next nearest source, is 7,000 miles away. All we need is the wells and connections to ships in the bay.

On May 1 an Australian division invaded Tarakan. They have had some hard fighting, but have taken some of the oil fields, and the town of Tarakan. With them is a token force of Dutch, and an over-all protection by the American 7th fleet and air force. Japs have been driven inland to jungle hills, where they seem to have cave and tunnel positions similar to those in the Philippines and in Okinawa. An attack on these has just been started.

The remainder of the rich Netherland Indies is under Jap domination. The Japs' principal holdings include the large islands of Sumatra, Java, and Celebes, and all of Borneo except tiny Tarakan. How much benefit the Japs get from these is unknown. As far as we can learn, traffic by surface ships is very limited because of the American air and sea blockade. There are no means of judging how extensive the submarine barge traffic may be. There is also surface barge traffic. Cheap wood barges, traveling by night only, move from island to island, hiding by day in any available cover or bay.

There seems to be a fairly large number of these barges, for our air forces are constantly reporting them. Apparently they are becoming less numerous. Whether this is because of the efficiency of our blockade or is partly the result of improved and better submarines, is not certain. Both factors have probably had their influence.

Reviewing three years of war in the Southwest Pacific, we have established a line of bases from the Solomon Islands and along the north coast of New Guinea to the Philippines which safeguards our line of supply. This has been very successful. The hope that by-passed Japanese positions would be forced out, or starved out, hasn't been realized. No Japanese has voluntarily retreated, and none has so far been starved. In a tropical country, where many food products grow profusely, starvation is rare. It looks as if it will be necessary eventually to fight all of these Japs.

Editorials of the Day

MR. MORGENTHAU'S POLICE

[Illinois State Journal]

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau is asking the budget bureau of congress for funds to recruit an additional 5,000 field agents to help capture income tax evaders. While losses due to "tax gyps" doubtless are high, it is extremely doubtful that the treasurer's new policemen would pay their own way. Instead, would not congress and Mr. Morgenthau be doing their country a greater service by changing the income tax regulations?

The intricacies of the current system are so many and so varied that confusion is to be expected. Naturally there are individuals who will take advantage of this situation. But it is doubtful if 5,000 more sleuths would solve the mysteries of Mr. Morgenthau's income tax.

Thought of such an organization naturally is distasteful to liberty-loving Americans. They want no part of anything that smacks of a Gestapo. This was proved clearly in prohibition days. If Mr. Morgenthau can persuade congress to hand him a huge police force, why can't others do likewise?

TABLE TALK

[Hartford, Conn., Courant]

When two housewives get together these days the conversation veers naturally into one channel. They dwell not on the latest movie nor on the permanent they are planning to get. Instead they get right to the heart of the matter troubling them most—meat! Listen closely as you ride the bus and you will get such conversational fragments as: "We had halibut the other night." "Two weeks ago I was lucky—I got a pot roast." "I'm going to get some shad. Tom likes shad. He mentioned it the other night. But you can't eat shad every day."

And so it goes, wherever women are gathered together. Who can blame them? Theirs is the job of performing the greatest dietary prestidigitation in American history. Little does the average husband realize the planning, the wheedling, the foot work that the little woman has gone thru in order to provide that lone meatball that looms up like a precious jewel on his plate. And nearly the same size too.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

KEEPING AHEAD OF INSECTS

INSECTS often have proved more menacing to fighting men than the enemy. We owe a lasting debt of gratitude to the scientists and physicians who contributed toward prevention and control measures along this line. The fruits of their labor will continue to benefit the peoples of the whole world for years to come, long after the dogs of war have been securely muzzled.

The principal maladies of military significance attributable to these organisms, or to insanitary conditions in general, have been plague, typhus, cholera, typhoid, dysentery, yellow fever, and malaria. Even today the danger is not over. The constant shift of our armies to all quarters of the globe has posed an increasingly difficult problem. But, thru our advanced knowledge of preventive medicine, we have managed to remain in the driver's seat.

Furthermore, our government has taken steps to avoid their importation by returning soldiers. With modern transportation, dissemination would be greatly facilitated were we not alert.

The importance of these little fellows cannot be overestimated. Typhus, which is transmitted by lice, was one of the contributing causes to Napoleon's failure to beat the Russians. The Roman empire was said to have disintegrated because of various epidemics among the military and civilian populations. In the Spanish-American outbreak, insect borne disorders took more lives than did bullets. The statement is also made that both the Germans and the English were stalemated in the Gallipoli campaign in World War I. due to the large number of warriors incapacitated by malaria.

Why are troops so susceptible to disease? The men usually come from different parts of the country and are exposed to ailments and insects to which they hold little or no immunity. Being in close quarters, infections are easily transferred. In addition, the lack of cleanliness which prevails in many foreign areas is favorable to the growth and multiplication of vermin of all sorts. Lastly, under combat, there is less chance for soldiers to protect themselves and their food from contamination.

In the early days of this war, fumigation with methyl bromide of louse infested garments undoubtedly prevented the spread of typhus. Later, MYL powder was found effective in delousing the body. An improved product, DDT is the best insecticide yet developed, and its large scale production has made it available to millions. Those who suffered from cooties in the last war realize the importance of this discovery.

The carriers of scrub typhus also have been eliminated by applying certain chemicals to the clothes. This procedure, together with clearing away the grass, underbrush, and decaying wood, has banished these pests from many camp sites. Sulfur dust and the flame thrower have helped to eliminate them from the soil. The mites causing scabies [the itch] have been destroyed by new, quick acting remedies. The role of the flea as a sower of disease is well known and, here again, DDT powder is valuable as a repellent. The incidence of malaria, dengue, and filariasis has been reduced greatly by controling mosquitoes.

It is conceivable that in the future man gradually will get the upper hand over insects. The very thought of this possibility is welcomed not only from the medical standpoint but also from the sense of comfort such a Utopia will afford.

HE CHILLS

J. H. F. writes: It is impossible for me to enjoy swimming because I nearly freeze in just cool not to mention cold water. A physical checkup finds me in perfect health altho I am underweight. How can I overcome this trouble?

REPLY

Many men have this reaction, especially when slender. They do not have as much fat under the skin as the fair sex. Conditioning is your only hope. Frankly, I don't think it is worth the effort as there are other forms of exercise equally good.

THE BOIL HABIT

Mrs. H. writes: What causes one boil after another?

REPLY

These lesions arise when the staph germ invades a hair follicle. Either we get the upper hand or they do. If our resistance is lowered, they stand a better chance. Their growth is encouraged by uncleanliness which makes the skin more susceptible. By proper treatment of the first boil, reinfection is often minimized.

ULCER "SHOTS"

J. A. B. writes: Are there any shots to cure stomach ulcers?

REPLY

Many types have been used in the past, but in general, physicians have discarded them. Enterogastrone is a more recent treatment and has proved successful in a number of cases. Unfortunately, daily injections are necessary which makes it impractical for general use.

WHISTLER

E. S. writes: Would constant whistling at work have any bad effect on the lungs?

REPLY

It depends on your musical ability and the tune. If you concentrate on a few bars of "The Music Goes Round and Round," for example, more than your lungs might get hurt. I see no danger to health in the practice.

THE PRODUCT OF DECEIT

Momence, Ill., May 28—Over the week-end I listened to a forum discussion of the meat situation and also read several articles advancing ideas on the subject. In all of these, sooner or later, the black market was blamed for a large part of the shortage. Right here let me say I do not condone black markets, but there is a factor contributing to their growth that I have never heard discussed, yet which, I believe, activates many people in their silent support of them. That factor is lack of respect for governmental edict.

In the last 12 years so many asinine rulings have been put out from Washington that now it has become the smart thing to circumvent the regulation if possible. Even in this the people are not entirely to blame. The pattern has been made for them by the very officials who invent the rules. Have not all of us watched, with more or less disgust, those in high places twist the meaning of an order to suit their purpose? Time and time again we have seen congress make a law only to have the executive branch interpret it to mean something entirely different. Haven't we seen one bureau deliver some complicated ruling only to have another bureau practically nullify it? How can citizens be expected to respect any law when their own elected representatives and their appointees constantly are seeking loopholes for evasion of these laws?

It is my honest belief that "cracking down" by the OPA will not cure the black market. As long as there are people to support it, it will flourish. If we could only have the plain unvarnished truth about things! Articles like your editorial explaining the weight differential between the dressed carcasses of beef give honest facts any one can believe. How much better than the bombastic assertions that there is "more beef on the range than ever before," and the half-veiled hint that it is farmers' greed for more money that is causing the meatless day or days.

Only truth and common sense will restore the people's faith in the government and its pronouncements. If they are made to realize the exact situation, if they really believe an honest effort is being made to be fair, then their support of black markets will dwindle and at least one excuse for the shortage will not exist.

FARMER'S WIFE

SUCH CHARMING PEOPLE

Oak Park, Ill., May 28—An editorial in Sunday's TRIBUNE called attention to the manner in which English gentlemen dealt with the unwashed Socialist, Ramsey MacDonald, when that radical became premier. They made a tea hound out of him, and a most obnoxious one at that.

One source of British power in the world over the centuries is the manner of the British upper class, so easy, so charming, so brave, so tolerant, and always "doing good," so firmly packed, so easy on the draw.

When Prussian generals were recently pictured in THE TRIBUNE as they surrendered they wore monocles, evidence of their aping of British manners.

British upper class manners not only take in English Socialists and Prussian Junkers. They take in East Indians and leaders of many shades in most parts of the world. Had these Britishers had a better chance to work on the Japanese, the Japs never would have broken with the British.

British captivate even Americans.

These facts should not lead to an oversimplification of our relations with Britain as THE TRIBUNE tends to simplify a most complicated situation.

NO PROOF OF PAYMENT

Chicago, May 28—Fifteen years ago I borrowed from a Chicago loan company and had paid back all but $45 when I became ill. After a time the company threatened to take my piano and an aunt paid up the balance for me. I had completely forgotten the matter until I applied for a loan from the same company recently. I was told that their records show that I still owe the $45. As I needed the new loan urgently, I signed an agreement to pay the amount again. My aunt has died and I am unable to find the receipt for the final payment. 1. Will I be compelled to pay this $45 because I acknowledged the debt by signing the agreement? 2. Is there a statute of limitations on such loans?

C. S.

1. It is a question of proof. The circumstances that you have acknowledged the amount as still due and that you have no proof to the contrary, would seem strong against you.

2. Yes. The Illinois limitation period on written contracts is 10 years from the maturity date or from the last payment or promise to pay, whichever is later.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT

THEIR NECKS ARE CLEAN

Chicago, May 28—I don't read a lot of books and magazines but I skim over most of them. The things I notice most are articles and jokes about teenagers. Being one myself, I naturally read all I can about them. Most of them ridicule us. The jokes are always illustrated by drawings of girls in ugly, sloppy sweaters, uneven skirts, slopping dirty stockings and worn out shoes. It certainly angers my friends and me to see the teen-ager represented in this way. It is about time some one put these cartoonists and writers on the right road.

In the first place, our hair may be long or short, but it is always clean and neat. It isn't straggling down our backs in ugly knots. Our sweaters are long, but they are clean. We wear them with good posture and not round shoulders. Our skirts are clean, pressed, and even. Our stockings are clean and fit our ankles. Our shoes are well heeled and soled and our loafers are shiny.

We don't dance upside down and with our feet around the other person's neck. We do wear jeans and shirts at times, but we don't wear them where they don't belong. We haven't bird brains—we have growing minds.

Don't humiliate us by making us sloppy—help us; after all we will have the jobs of tomorrow. We have to be neat. There are exceptions to everything. We have to admit that. But I don't see jokes about the smeary-faced, peroxided fat women of 40, trying to look like 20.

If there were such jokes the neat ladies of 40 would be embarrassed. Well, we are, too. Don't always look to the ignorant, sloppy side of us teenagers. We are your children.

STEINMETZ HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT

TOO STRONG

Chicago, May 28—Only a few weeks ago the gullible people were being told that the dear old city hall gang could operate the street cars and L much more efficiently, and with all new equipment, primarily due to the fact that they would be able to "save" the money which the present operators pay as taxes.

Now we hear that they would be given a universal fare of 10 cents. This is an increase of 2 cents on the surface lines, which we are told carry 77 per cent of the traffic.

Most people believe that the hike to 12 cents in the L fare is prearranged in order to scare the voters into the thought that public ownership is desirable.

As a prerequisite to voting on the June 4 traction, everybody should be made to take a trip thru the city hall, county building, park board offices, school board, and alleys. Chicago needs a change. The machine is too strong, and you could take strong in several ways.

T. J. CONNERY.

NO MEAT FOR REPUBLICANS?

Chicago, May 24—The American Meat institute breaks out in print today in a curiously worded advertisment, strangely conciliatory in nature to the bungling burocrats of the present administration.

It states, in effect, that one great reason for the "meat shortage" is that so many people are now in the armed forces and that huge supplies are necessary for these people.

That being the case, does not the civilian requirement decrease by just that number? If you take 10 million civilians and put them into military uniforms, in what way does that increase the meat requirement for the total population?

On the basis of the startling reasoning put out by this institute we may soon be presented with the argument that there are so many New Dealers that there is no meat for the Republicans.

E. V. M.

BORN TOO SOON

Wichita, Kas., May 26—Had Abraham Lincoln been living today, the Rotary club would supply him with a set of books, the Lions club with a good reading lamp, and the Kiwanis club with a wooden floor for the cabin. He would have had the protection of the child labor law and government old age insurance. A kindly philanthropist would send him to college with a scholarship. Incidentally, a case worker would see to it that his father received a monthly check from the county, the OPA would reduce his rent by 50 per cent, he would receive a subsidy for rail splitting, another one for raising some crop that he was going to raise anyway, and still another subsidy for not raising a crop which he had no intention of raising. Result: There would have been no Abraham Lincoln.

Moral: It is indeed very much less blessed to receive than it is to give.

HENRY WARE ALLEN

FURLOUGH RATIONS

Oak Lawn, Ill., May 21—My son has returned on furlough after 32 months with the combat engineers overseas. He participated in the Algerian, Tunisian, Sicilian, and Italian campaigns. He spent 550 days at the front. Now they have finally given him a 48 day furlough, the first in almost 4 years of service. We went to the ration board for his rations and he was given 60 red points, 120 blue points, and 30 gallons of gas—no sugar stamps. We were told there would be no sugar stamps issued until the canning sugar was released. I told the lady at the board that I understood a service man was to get a gallon of gas a day and she said only for 30 days. I told her I thought these boys who had been gone so long and lived on K rations should be entitled to a little more consideration, and I was told that they are instructed to treat them just like civilians.

This was almost too much for me to take when I thought that my son had made so many sacrifices to make easy jobs for these people sitting behind desks. Does any one think that these boys are going to take all this after what they have been thru? They expect no glory and want no favors, but they do expect and deserve a square deal, and I'm one mother that is going to fight to see that they get it.

I may sound bitter, and I am, and have a right to be. I lost one son, a Mustang fighter pilot, last August just before he completed his tour of duty. Another son in the coast guard, only 20 years old, has seen a great deal of action, including the capture of Nazis in Greenland. Now, do we have to sit back and have them come home to be pushed around by the civilians they have been fighting for?

THE TRIBUNE IN INDIA

EASTERN INDIA AIR DEPOT, May 18—The "Overseas Trib" has been coming thru on the dot. Yours is the best overseas paper I have seen yet. The inclusion only of stories of interest to the GI's shows you have men doing the editing who have been in the army. From their own experiences in the last war, your editors know how hard it is for the average civilian to understand a soldier's interests.

As for India, I can't write about it very well now. I have been here too long. India has lost its freshness for me. I can understand now why your foreign correspondents must keep on the move.

Thanks again both from myself and the fellows who share the "Overseas Tribune" with me.

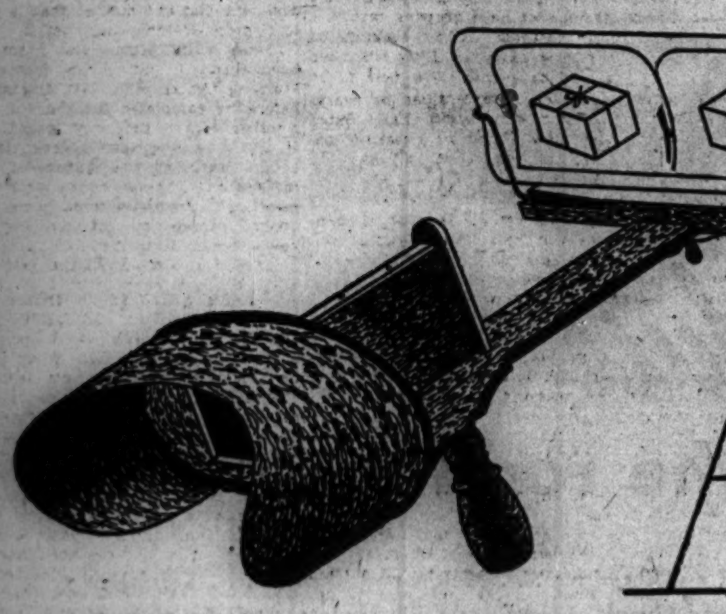
Mrs. M. S. writes: "I am a gold star mother and recently received a pension form to be filled out. As things now stand I am not entitled to a pension because my husband and I are working. Should I fill out this form and by so doing put my name on the list so that if I need the pension at some later date I will be on record?"

Penalties including fines and imprisonment are prescribed in any instance where a claimant for pension makes a fraudulent statement and where a claimant fraudulently accepts money to which he is not entitled. Because you are not now able to show dependency it would be useless to file a claim. Failure now to file a claim will not in any way affect any claim you may file in the future.

Mrs. V. G. writes: My husband, an officer, was killed last August. Because we were separated he named his mother beneficiary of his life insurance. Last February I received payment from his social security and an inquiry from the government about our marital status because of the gratuity pay. I replied that there was neither legal separation nor divorce. Am I entitled to the gratuity pay and widow's pension?

You are entitled to the gratuity pay and the pension. Application for the pension should be made to the Veterans administration, on form 534. After completing the application send it directly to the Veterans' administration, Washington, D. C.

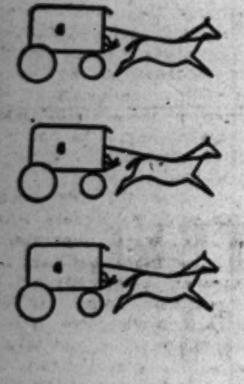
Marshall Field & Company



A BUSTLE WAS ALL SHE COULD MANAGE

or, how it came about that we delivered the goods

YESTERDAY—Ah—those jerking, frisky cable cars and their giddy 4½ miles an hour—they're what made our colossal delivery service begin. Of course, 'way back in '68 one lone buckboard, resplendent in Marshall Field & Company green, made deliveries clear from Chicago Avenue, north, to 12th Street, south. But in 1882, the cables spread like a web across the sprawling city—buckboards just couldn't keep up with 'em! Why now, Madam could travel from Cottage Grove out south, or from Lincoln Grove north, all the way down to the Loop. It was just about then—doing all that traveling—that Madam complained: "A bustle is all I can manage on these dangerous cable cars," she said; "please carry my packages for me." And so our delivery service grew—prize horses, matched bays, show horses drew the shiny green wagons out to the limits of the cable car lines . . .



TODAY—it is one of the greatest store delivery systems in all the world. Two hundred and eighty trucks travel a 35 mile radius, average 1,800,000 miles a year (in a peace time year)—more than 72 times around the world—without ever leaving Chicago and vicinity. Our drivers have become local institutions—pushing stalled cars, returning lost and wandering children—and our delivery service has become one of the greatest in the world.

TOMORROW—holds our promise! We've answered your needs in the '90's, in a difficult today, and we intend to have the answers in the complicated postwar world ahead. That's our job, our responsibility, our promise—to you, who made us what we are today. (Chapter IX of the story "Marshall Field & Company and Early Chicago.")

AVERAGE FARM WIFE ALSO HARD UP FOR MEAT

She Serves Chicken as Store Stocks Wane

BY GAIL COMPTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Madison, Wis., June 2—The farmer is not waxing fat on steaks, chops, and roasts, contrary to the envious belief of city people, a tour of farms in Illinois and Wisconsin reveals.

Until a month ago farmers had adequate supplies of meat but now the farm wife is standing in line at the village butcher shop willing to take anything, just as is the city consumer. The exceptions to this rule are those farmers fortunate enough to have a locker in a cold storage plant.

A majority of the farmers do not have locker space and are forced to buy their beef, pork, and lamb in the nearest town. Now that these supplies have dried up the farmers are without a source of meat. They have the edge over city people in that they have good supplies of poultry and eggs, but many farmers reported they are consuming their laying flocks in order to get meat.

Use Points for Butter

Typical is the case of Farmer J. J. Murphy and family, who operate 10 acres near Winnebago, Ill.

This past week Mrs. Murphy has not been able to get any beef or pork. Chicken from their own flocks has appeared on the table several times as have egg dishes.

"We do not have a locker nor do most of our friends," Mrs. Murphy said. "Our butcher shop in town has so little now we have to phone first to see if it is open before we make the trip."

Red points are another worry of the Murphys. Altho 25 cows are milked twice each day on the farm no butter is churned and carefully hoarded meat points must go for store purchased butter. Often the choice lies between affording the points for butter and getting a piece of meat, Mrs. Murphy reported. As long as the chickens hold out butter will take precedence, she said.

Dairymen Buy Bottle Milk

Small town grocery store operators reported that the farmers are competing with the town people for available fresh meat supplies. These farmers are low on meat points as are the city consumers and most of them are buying oleomargerine instead of butter, the operators said. In the majority of the stores visited butter was stacked in the refrigerators but butter substitutes were lacking.

"Farmers around here have to buy butter because they can't get margarine," said S. J. Becker, grocery store operator in Oneco, Ill. Farmers are not churning butter because they are getting excellent prices for their whole milk from the dairies. Subsidies paid by the government on whole milk and butter fat production also make it more tempting to sell all the milk than to keep some out for home use. As a result it is not an uncommon sight to find a milkman delivering several quarts of pasteurized milk to a farm house.

Meat Canning Thing of Past

Years of abundant meat supplies in near-by towns have caused farm wives to give up canning meat and their husbands have not taken the time or effort to build smoke houses for curing farm butchered animals. As a result the meat shortage has caught them unprepared and farm wives expressed reluctance over canning meat again and trying to live on it.

The fortunate farmer who possesses a frozen food locker is experiencing no difficulty in eating well. A home killed steer or hog gives him plenty of meat. However this does not mean he sits down to a sirloin steak or pork roast at each meal. Such cuts are few on an animal and a farmer consumes a good quantity of utility cuts for every pound of prime meat. The farmer without a locker has no way of handling several hundred pounds of meat without allowing much of it to spoil.

Thus the city house wife can take some comfort, as she waits patiently in line at the meat store carefully counting her few red points, in the thought that she has a companion in misery in the farm wife. And if anything it's a bit harder on the country consumer for she can look out of her back window and see plenty of prime meat—all of it on the hoof.

OPA'S REVISED MEAT PLAN WINS PACKERS' O. K.

The American Meat institute, representing packers thruout the nation, said yesterday that the meat distribution pattern, revised yesterday by Price Administrator Bowles, follows a plan already set up and used by many meat packing companies.

In what he termed a "fair distribution plan," Bowles directed all commercial slaughterers to deliver into each county at least 80 per cent, by weight, of the proportionate amount of the civilian meat supply, as they did in the first quarter of 1944.

The institute promised coöperation with the OPA, assuming that the order, when received by the packers, conforms to the press announcement describing it.

PLEDGES TO END RATIONING SOON AFTER WAR ENDS

Protest to Marshall

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP)—A request for immediate investigation of reports of scanty food rations to American soldiers in the Philippines was sent to Gen. Marshall today by Rep. Brown [R., O.], who wrote that relatives were complaining bitterly that service men are denied meats and other foods available in local markets for civilians. Brown said he was informed soldiers are forced to use canned rations and are requesting boxes of food from home.

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP)—Price Administrator Bowles in an interview today said food rationing and price controls can be lifted within a "reasonable time" after the Japanese war ends. He said the period between the war's end and the elimination of controls would depend upon how soon victory comes.

If by any chance it should come soon, it would be necessary to retain price ceilings and rationing for some time, Bowles said. Victory in a year, on the other hand, probably would mean quick lifting of controls.

"I have made it a policy," Bowles said, "never to predict exact dates for the end of rationing and price control.

Glad to End Controls

"I'll be glad when we can get rid of all food controls, but it will depend entirely on the supply and demand picture when the war ends."

Rep. Anderson [D., N. M.], who will take over July 1 as secretary of agriculture and national food boss, today proposed that civilian food experts follow the armies and speed plantings. He told reporters he had talked it over with President Truman. Since Anderson was drafted to congress to try to improve the food situation there appears to be no question but that his ideas will be heeded.

With a world shortage of sugar, Anderson said every Pacific island clear to the China coast is a potential sugar producer. And every ounce of extra food that can be produced in liberated Europe, he commented, will ease by that much the drain on this country.

Canning Quotas Uncertain

Civilians, depending more than ever on fruits and vegetables, must wait some time before they know how much their share of this year's commercial canning pack will be.

A high war food administration official said an estimate of the civilian quota cannot be made because it is not known how much will be produced or how much the army and navy will require. He said there might be some reduction in civilian allocations compared with last year.

$5 Federal Tax Stickers Must Be on Cars by July 1

CANNING SUGAR QUOTA HERE CUT TO THIRD OF 1944

Coupons to Be Issued Again in Week

Issuance of home canning sugar coupons in the Chicago area, halted Thursday to refigure quotas, will be resumed one week from tomorrow, James F. Riley, acting director of the office of price administration, announced yesterday.

Chicago and seven surrounding counties have been allocated 10,267,838 pounds of sugar for home canning this year compared with last year's allocation of 32 million pounds. The 167 local boards will be allocated sugar on the basis of one-third of the amount each allowed in 1944 and will receive coupons on a monthly instead of seasonal basis.

The average family in the Chicago area will be allotted 10 pounds of sugar a person for canning, Riley indicated. The largest allotment will be 15 pounds a person, while some families are expected to get only a pound or two for each member. Last year's canning season allowance was 25 pounds a person, including a five pound bonus.

Less Used for Canning

Actual usage of canning sugar in the area was 4 million pounds in 1942 and 6 million in 1943. That last year's greatly increased consumption of 32 million pounds was not entirely used for canning purposes is proved by the fact that it would have canned 128 million quarts of fruit, and not that much fresh fruit was sold in the area, Riley said.

"The 1945 allotment should be sufficient to take care of all fruits and berries if every pound is used only for canning," he said.

The ration boards in the area have 100,000 applications for sugar on file, Riley said. Each board will receive a sugar quota according to the probable available quantity of fruit in the area, and applications will be processed on the basis both of the availability of fruit and past habits of canning.

Riley urged housewives to apply for only as much as they need, and not until they are about ready to use it.

Hope for More Canning

Despite the critical sugar shortage, government authorities hope even more home canning will be done this year than last, when 3½ billion quarts of fruits and vegetables were put up.

E. G. Moore, assistant director of information for the department of agriculture, in Chicago for a war food administration victory garden conference, said that most emphasis this year will be placed on the home canning of vegetables, for which sugar is not necessary. Stocks of commercially packed vegetables will be down 25 per cent from last year, a larger reduction than in canned fruit stocks, he said, altho they, too, will be smaller.

He termed it a mistake for housewives not to can because of the sugar cut, especially housewives in large towns and cities whose gardens rarely contain fruits, except for strawberries or perhaps cherries.

Pound for 4 Quarts

Each pound of sugar is sufficient for four quarts of fruit, and the sugar may be stretched with honey or corn syrup, he said. That would make an average of 40 quarts of fruit a person from the average allotment of 10 pounds of sugar.

Moore and other agricultural officials expressed the hope that the complicated method of obtaining canning sugar, for which housewives must sign a pledge agreeing to notify the board how much food is canned and how much sugar it takes, will not kill home canning efforts. They agreed, however, that it is likely to have a noticeable effect.

Save, Grow, and Can All Food Possible, Truman Asks Nation

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP)—President Truman called on the American people today to produce, preserve, and conserve all food possible as a "real contribution to the final victory and the peace."

He issued this statement:

"In this fourth year of war the need for every ounce of food which the American people can produce and preserve is greater than ever before.

Cites Need of 'Hungry World'

"The supply lines to feed our troops and the millions fighting and working with them are the longest in the history of warfare. Along the thousands of miles of these lines, food must be kept moving. Our soldiers in Europe are eating more canned fruits and vegetables because they are changing from combat rations to regular meals.

"Beyond our tremendous military requirements lies the task of working with other nations to help liberated peoples regain their strength and rebuild their countries. There can be no lasting peace in a hungry world.

"We Americans must do our part to help swell the nation's food supply.

"I call upon every American to help discharge this obligation in every way possible:

"By growing a victory garden—whether it be in the back yard, in a community or company employe plot, or on the farm. There is still plenty of time to plant in most parts of the country.

"By dedicating ourselves to growing larger and better gardens and seeing them thru to the harvest.

"By preserving our food at home or in a community canning center. Civilian supplies of commercially canned fruits and vegetables are now at the lowest point of the war, and next winter will be one-fourth less than last year.

Some Crops Damaged

"By conserving food in every possible way—wasting not an ounce. In anything so hazardous and difficult as growing food, we cannot afford to take chances. We must always reckon with the weather, which in some parts of the country delayed plantings and damaged some fruit crops. We must plan for maximum production.

"With millions of American men and women dedicated to this task, our food will make a real contribution to the final victory and the peace."

VISITORS BARRED FROM PERSHING HOSPITAL SUITE

Report His Health Has Failed Considerably

BY HENRY WALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 2—General of the Armies John J. Pershing, commander in chief of the American Expeditionary Force in World War I., has been unable to receive any visitors in his suite at Walter Reed hospital for the last several months. He is 85.

Having known the general since the last war, and having visited him frequently during my last stay in Washington two years ago, I called at the hospital today to pay my respects before going overseas again and was informed by Maj. James T. Gilbert Jr., in charge of the patient, that it had been decided by the hospital authorities that no callers could be admitted.

"Failed Considerably"

"The general has failed considerably since his serious illness last autumn," said Maj. Gilbert, "and in the last month or so he has suffered a certain relapse which makes it inadvisable for him to see any one. In the interests of his health and in his present condition we do not believe it would be proper to allow even an old friend to see him."

Col. George Adamson, who represents the general in the quarters in the state department which Pershing selected years ago when that building housed the state, war, and navy departments, said the general had replied to a cabled message from Gen. Eisenhower on V-E day.

"The general is not as well as he was two years ago when you last saw him," said Col. Adamson, "but I will tell him that you called and wished to be remembered by him.

Keenly Interested

"The general seemed keenly interested at the time in the collapse of the German army," said another informant at the hospital, "and he showed considerable concern that the American army did not fight its way into Berlin, but halted 40 miles short of the goal on the Elbe instead, to permit the Red army to capture the German capital alone. Frequently, however, he fails to recognize callers, even old friends, which causes embarrassment, and which resulted in the no-visitors ruling."

The general never tired of asserting in our former conversations that the allies had made a grievous mistake in granting Ludendorff an armistice when the kaiser's army still remained intact on French and Belgian soil. He said the United States army, either with or without its French and British allies, should have marched across Germany to Berlin and paraded down the Unter den Linden, battle flags flying, to prove visually and materially to the enemy, civilians as well as military, that they had been defeated, and defeated by America.

TOM CONOLLY, THEATER ARTIST, IS DEAD AT 89

One of the colorful characters of the old Auditorium theater, Thomas Conolly, the artist in plaster who helped ornament the interior when the building was new and who remained to become an authority on playbills, will be buried tomorrow.

Conolly, who was 89, was born in Shropshire, England, and learned the art of fashioning plaster ornaments while a boy. He came to Chicago in 1889 with a group of artisans brought to put the finishing touches on the new opera house. He remained with the opera company and collected playbills. In his collection were some dated in the 1700s, from the Covent Garden and Drury Lane theaters in London. He came to be regarded as an authority on drama history. He also was in the real estate business. He distributed $14,000 among boyhood friends when he visited in England in 1927. He died Friday.

Mr. Conolly lived at 7531 Oglesby av. He is survived by a son, Cassius. Services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel, 2700 E. 75th st.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Mary Burch Frey

Mrs. Mary Burch Frey, 60, died yesterday in her home at 1435 State pkwy. She was the wife of Charles Daniel Frey, president of the advertising agency bearing his name. Mrs. Frey was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Burch of Chicago, and was graduated from Monticello seminary. She was a member of the Fourth Presbyterian church. Surviving, in addition to her husband, are two daughters, Mrs. Gail Borden of Dayton, O., and Miss Barbara Frey, and a son, Lt. Charles Daniel Frey Jr. of the navy. Services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the home.

Mrs. Mary Hercules

Services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in the chapel at 15335 Broadway, Harvey, for Mrs. Mary Hercules, 63, of 65 E. 153d st., Harvey. Mrs. Hercules, who died Friday, was the widow of Dr. Clarence A. Hercules, a practicing physician in Harvey for 22 years until his death in 1942. Surviving are two sons, Corp. William of the army and Seaman 2/C Clarence on sea duty in the South Pacific.

James Parker Highsmith Jr.

James Parker Highsmith Jr., 44, of 2337 Commonwealth av., division sales manager for the Bibb Manufacturing company of Macon, Ga., died yesterday, presumably of a heart attack, while playing golf on the Hickory Hills course. He is survived by his widow and three sons, James Parker III., 6, and John and Robert, twins, 2.

Mrs. Louise R. Wendt

Services for Mrs. Louise R. Wendt, 67, old time settler on the south side, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 7111 S. Halsted street. Mrs. Wendt died Thursday in her home at 6827 S. Winchester av. She was the wife of Fred W. Wendt, news dealer. Besides her husband, she leaves four daughters and three sons.

Miss Mary Morrissey

Services for Miss Mary Morrissey, 86, will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow in St. Clara's church. She died Friday in the home of Mrs. Catherine Ebbeson, 11027 Green Bay av., one of her 10 nieces and nephews. A sister, Mrs. Nora Hennessy, also survives.

TWO GIRLS TELL OF TAKING BABY FROM CARRIAGE

Philadelphia, Pa., June 2 [Special] —A tearful mother today surrendered two daughters, Irene, 15, and Janet, 11, to police and said the girls had admitted taking 3 month old Thomas V. Ripley Jr. from his carriage yesterday afternoon. The baby was found dead from a broken neck last night in a clump of bushes on the lot of a vacant house.

The mother, Mrs. Dorothy Stanley Jones, said her daughters admitted taking the baby when she quizzed them about their whereabouts yesterday afternoon after learning they had stayed away from school.

The girls said they took the baby because they wanted to play with it, and left it wrapped in a blanket in the bushes where its body was found.

They found the Ripley baby in his own carriage in front of the nearby Ripley home. Mrs. Barbara Ripley, 30, wife of a former marine, had left the child unattended while she went to a store.

Detective Lt. Irvin Mock said charges of abduction and stealing a baby carriage have been placed against the Jones girls. He said there is no indication that a homicide charge will be added.

16 PRISONERS, 4 OFFICERS HURT IN MEAT RIOT

Jessups, Md., June 2 (AP)—Sixteen prisoners were shot and three guards and a state trooper wounded tonight before 900 Maryland House of Correction convicts, who apparently rioted because of a meat scarcity, could be driven back into their cells and order restored.

For more than three hours the inmates, all serving short terms for minor offenses, ran wild in the cell tiers despite dousings with fire hoses, tear gas and an offer by the state superintendent of prisons, Harold E. Donnell, to talk to a committee of their number.

The inmates fought with buckets of scalding water and bottles and with clubs torn from cell furniture and fittings, smashing thousands of windows in the huge building and starting a quickly-quelled fire in the shirt shop.

Superintendent J. Leroy Wright said there had been very little meat served the prisoners since April, when the institution's slaughtering permit was canceled by the office of price administration pending a re-survey of quotas, and that a request for more information had held up granting of a new authorization. There are 300 hogs which could be slaughtered, Wright added.

MAJ. GEO. F. LEE, INDIAN FIGHTER, EX-WARDEN, DIES

News of the death in California of Maj. George Fitzgerald Lee, veteran of five years, warden of the Cook county jail at one time, and former police magistrate of Maywood, was received yesterday by friends in Chicago. He died May 30 in San Diego, where he had lived since leaving Chicago several years ago. He was 79.

He enlisted in the army in 1885, fought in Indian campaigns and was a friend of Buffalo Bill Cody. He remained in the army until 1919 and saw service in the Spanish-American war, the Philippine insurrection, the Boxer rebellion, and World War I.

He served as warden from April, 1920, until May, 1921, when he left after a dispute with Sheriff Peters over jail administration. His body is being sent to Arlington National cemetery for burial. The Adventurers' club, of which he was a member, will arrange tomorrow for a memorial service. He had no immediate family.

BEER PRICE DISPUTE HALTS 2 BREWERIES' DISTRIBUTION HERE

Beer deliveries on 60 routes were halted yesterday when the Atlantic and Peter Fox breweries refused to sell to independent distributors who refused to adhere to the breweries' resale price to retailers.

The distributors, members of local 714 of the Keg and Bottle Beer Drivers' union [AFL], had increased the retail price under an office of price administration order issued last Dec. 18, permitting a distributors' profit up to 23 per cent. Ray Schoessling, secretary-treasurer of the local, said increasing costs necessitated the price increase and added that unless a settlement is reached, he will call out 150 employes of the two breweries who are members of the distributors' union.

F. H. Massman, general sales manager of the Peter Fox Brewing company, said the brewers interpreted the OPA order as applying only to country drivers, and not to city drivers.

5 BIG PACKERS SIGN CONTRACT WITH CIO UNION

Representatives of five packing companies, including the "Big Four" of Swift, Armour, Cudahy, and Wilson, yesterday concluded a contract with the United Packing House Workers of America [CIO] covering approximately 100,000 workers. The fifth firm involved is Morrell & Co.

The contract has been in negotiation for two years, during which time the 10 cent an hour increase sought by the union was rejected by the office of economic stabilization. The contract signed yesterday now goes to the war labor board for consideration.

It allows workers 12 minutes a day for changing clothes on company time, retroactive to Aug. 11, 1943; 50 cents a week for clothing purchase, retroactive to the same date, and the companies agree to pay for all tools and for time spent in preparing tools.

It also provides for the deduction of 2 cents an hour from each employe's pay for a fund to restify inequalities in pay scales.

GRANDDAUGHTER OF G. F. HARDING SUES EXECUTRIX

Miss Penelope Harding Thompson, 18, of Barrington, brought suit in Circuit court yesterday seeking an accounting of the estate of her grandfather, the late George F. Harding, former Republican leader, and asking removal of the executrix, Miss Jessie Katz. Harding died April 2, 1939, at the age of 70.

The suit, filed by Atty. Myer N. Rosengard, charged that Miss Katz, who was Harding's confidential secretary for 20 years, "willfully and deliberately withheld information of the true facts to keep in her possession all the assets of the estate."

The action seeks to have stocks and bonds, with an estimated value of $1,200,000, turned over to the estate from the George F. Harding collection, a nonprofit corporation formed in 1930 which operates a museum adjoining Harding's home at 4853 Lake Park av.

Harding's will provided that his daughter, Mrs. Mary Harding Thompson, was to receive an annuity of $12,000 during her lifetime. After her death, her children, Penelope and George, now 13, were each to receive $6,000 yearly as long as they live.

Miss Thompson's interest in the estate is based on this provision of the will. Atty. Rosengard said that a million dollars in claims against the estate are pending and unpaid in the Probate court. Unless the securities which allegedly are in possession of the Harding collection and Miss Katz are turned over to the estate, it will be insufficient to meet the claims, he said.

Worker Fatally Crushed Between Truck, Building

Robert Nate, 29, of 2642 Winnemac av., died yesterday in St. Anne's hospital from injuries suffered Thursday when he was crushed between a truck and a building at 4711 Division st., while unloading the truck. He was employed by John Sexton and company, 500 Orleans st.

CLEAR POLICEMAN IN SHOOTING

A coroner's jury yesterday vindicated Policeman Otis Wilson for shooting James Dillard, 18, colored, of 578 Browning av., whom he overtook in the alley behind 4318 St. Lawrence av. after the youth had raped a colored woman.

MILITARY MASS FOR MARINES SET FOR TODAY

A military mass in memory of the marine corps dead of this war will be celebrated at 11:50 a. m. today in Old St. Mary's Catholic church, 911 S. Wabash av. The mass, in which armed riflemen and a color guard will participate, will be offered by Lt. Comdr. Joseph E. O'Brien, senior chaplain of the United States naval training center at Great Lakes. Various marine corps units of the Chicago area and the Chicago detachment of the Marine Corps league will be the sponsoring organizations.

VOTE TO ACCEPT ARBITRATION IN PRINTING PLANT

A threatened strike of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistant's union at R. R. Donnelley and Sons company, printing firm at 350 E. Cermak rd., was averted last night after members of Unit No. 1 voted unanimously to support the union's position in its offer to arbitrate.

In a meeting in the Hamilton hotel, however, the union members gave power to the international board of directors to act in the controversy "if the company doesn't change its present position."

PLAN TO RELAX WMC CONTROLS; PARLEY CALLED

War manpower controls may be relaxed at state and area directors' discretion if doing so will not impair prosecution of the war, William H. Spencer, regional director of the war manpower commission, said after his return from Washington last night. Spencer summoned all state and area directors in this region to a two day conference starting tomorrow in the Stevens hotel to discuss the new policy which he said was revealed at a conference in Washington with Paul McNutt, national WMC head.

When you need to straighten up . . .
When you get up . . . Just drink up!
KRUSCHEN AND COFFEE
to feel jake . . . not a fake . . . now simply drink "Morning After" away this simple easy way!
The digestive tract needs to be cleaned out, and depressed nerves need a lift, when you wake up feeling terrible the "morning-after." If this is not done you may feel terrible for hours longer than may be necessary. Your head swims, you feel depressed, nervous and jerky. Taking commonly used depressant headache preparations may only further depress the nerves, and that's wrong. So to clean out the digestive tract, to help steady those nerves and feel good again, just try this . . .
. . . first thing in the morning when you get out of bed, take bubbling effervescent KRUSCHEN in ice cold water, and follow it a half hour later with one or two cupfuls of good strong coffee. You can get a package of effervescent Kruschen at any drug store. Caution: Use only as directed. A teaspoonful of good effervescent Kruschen mixed with a glassful of ice cold water is inexpensive to use and makes a delicious and refreshing ice cold drink. Get effervescent Kruschen today. Always have it on hand for such emergencies.

Medical Protection Is Available at United Medical Service

ACCORDING to a recent health survey millions of Americans are killed and disabled every year by "chronic diseases." Victims of these diseases are not confined strictly to older people as a large percentage are men and women under 45 years of age. Due to degenerative processes vital organs of the body begin to show the strain of advancing years in the early forties. Unless adequate care is taken at this time ailments may develop which can cause serious damage to health. The leading "chronic diseases" are: rheumatism, heart disease, high blood pressure, kidney disease, tuberculosis, diabetes, cancer, gall bladder and liver disorders, stomach ulcers, female diseases, diseases of the circulatory system, and nervous and mental ailments. Of these rheumatism is the most prevalent. Heart disease accounts for the greatest number of deaths, with 385,000 in one year. Cancer is next with 165,000. Men are more frequently killed by these diseases than women, although women suffer more disability than men. Early precautions must include a physical examination, X-rays, electrocardiogram, clinical laboratory tests and other scientific procedures. Prompt medical supervision and care can establish a definite control over further development. Those who find it difficult to obtain adequate medical care because of the many physicians now serving the armed forces, will find this health protection at United Medical Service. Founded by one of the country's foremost pioneers in making complete medical care accessible to the public, this organization has adequate knowledge and facilities for providing diagnosis and treatment in all fields of medicine. An experienced staff of physicians supported by X-rays, clinical laboratory and other scientific medical equipment help to make this possible. The fees are moderate and the same to all. The services are conveniently accessible by railroad trains, street cars, elevated and subway trains, buses and automobiles. Information upon request.

For Persons Past 40 A complete physical check-up by the physician, an X-ray of the chest showing condition of heart and lungs, and electrocardiogram of heart, blood pressure, a basal metabolism test, a full mouth X-ray of the teeth (14 films), a urological or gynecological examination, and laboratory tests of the blood, urine and other secretions. Glasses Fitted
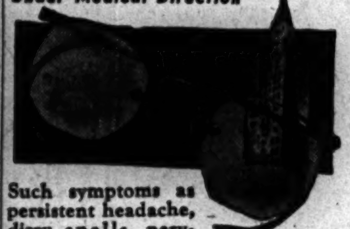
Eyes Examined
Under Medical Direction


Such symptoms as persistent headache, dizzy spells, nervousness, etc., should call for a medical examination of the eyes without delay. These symptoms can be due to disease in the eyes or to ailments in other parts of the body. In any case treatment should begin at once. When vision is impaired and glasses are needed it is especially important to have them fitted correctly. Improperly fitted glasses can cause serious damage. Glasses fitted under medical direction provide greater protection to your eyes. This protective optical service is available here. In addition you can make your selection from beautifully engraved fulvue, gold filled mountings with excellent quality lenses for near and far vision. Exceptional values are available for as low as... $8.00
A Complete Medical Examination of the Eyes is...... $4.50

Stomach Complaints
While many stomach complaints are the result of abuse and wrong eating habits, persistent cases often indicate a more serious condition. The stomach often produces the first symptoms of beginning disease, such as kidney and liver complaints, gall bladder trouble, and other serious ailments, including cancer. Therefore, never neglect a chronic stomach ailment, particularly if you are past 40 years of age. Diagnosis requires a special gastro-intestinal examination, including a physical check-up by trained physicians, blood pressure, urinalysis, a blood examination and serological tests. The fee is $4.50
A fluoroscopic examination of the stomach and small bowel following a barium meal, and an X-ray film of the abdomen when necessary, is $8.50
A fluoroscopic examination of the colon following a barium enema, including two 14"x17" X-ray films, one of barium-filled colon and one after evacuation... $8.50

A laboratory examination of the gastric contents and stool is $5.50
An X-ray examination of the gall bladder is important. The fee is $6.50

Women who have such ailments as headache, nervousness, pains in the abdomen, irregular menstruation, frequent or painful urination, need medical attention. Such conditions rarely correct themselves, especially if you are past 40 years of age, when cancer invasion is possible. A regional examination, including the use of the colposcope, Schiller's test, microscopic study of secretions and discharges, urinalysis and blood tests, is............ $4.50

Older Men In older men such symptoms as fear, nervousness, frequent or painful urination, blood in the urine, discharges, or pain and discomfort of any kind call for a thorough physical check-up. To be fully protective, the clinical examination by the physician must include microscopic examination of all secretions and discharges, blood and serological tests. Examining fee is...... $4.50

Ear, Nose, Throat
These three organs are so closely related through connecting sinuses that one is rarely affected without involving all three. That is why severe colds will cause sore throat, inflammation, and infection in tonsils, adenoids, discharge from ears and other serious conditions. Lowered body resistance may account for recurring colds or they may be the result of more serious acute or chronic ailments. Our ear, nose, and throat physicians have the medical knowledge, experience, and facilities to diagnose and successfully treat these conditions. The examination will include tests for hearing, urinalysis and blood tests. The fee is.............. $4.50

Pre-Marriage Examinations
In full compliance with the Illinois State Marriage Laws by physicians practicing in all fields of medicine. The fee is........... $3.50

Rectal Disorders
Diagnosed and Treated Without Pain or Loss of Time from Work
Rectal disorders are more dangerous than the average individual thinks possible. Medical authorities consider them a major disease problem. The most common or beginning type of rectal disorders are small blood tumors or varicose veins, called piles or hemorrhoids. Unless properly and promptly treated a simple hemorrhoid or pile can develop into a

Fistula or Rectal Abscess
When this occurs the physician's problem becomes more difficult and the patient's condition more serious. As soon as the abscess is opened by the physician most of the pain will cease. If it is delayed too long, however, pus may burrow into surrounding tissue, causing more abscesses and fistula tracts to form. Proper medical attention can prevent this constant menace to health. Examinations made here include the services of a competent and experienced physician as well as urinalysis, blood and serological tests. The examining fee is...... $4.50

Skin Disease
Only persons who have suffered from a skin disorder at some period in their lives can fully appreciate the pain and suffering involved. Many afflictions of the skin are only temporary conditions which proper medical care will quickly heal. Others, however, require the most expert medical knowledge and skill to bring under control. Therefore, if you have a skin disorder it should be accurately diagnosed and competently treated. Competent skin therapy is available here by physicians who have adequate knowledge and experience and the support of complete treatment facilities. Examination includes urinalysis, blood and serological tests. The fee is.............. $4.50

BY WILFRID SMITH

Lee Hofacre, Drake university freshman from Clinton, Ia., yesterday was one of three athletes to score double victories in the 20th Central collegiate conference track meet at the Great Lakes Naval Training center. By his excellent performance in winning the 440 yard dash and the 220 yard low hurdles under adverse conditions, he received the John P. Nicholson trophy, one of the midwest's highest intercollegiate honors.

While Hofacre was winning this award, a memorial to the late Notre Dame track coach, the Bluejacket squad scored a decisive team victory with 48 points. Purdue was second with 30 points and Marquette, Western Michigan and Notre Dame followed in this order in the list of 15 teams scoring points. Purdue was high in the college group and thus received the Knute Rockne trophy. The other team trophy, was presented to Great Lakes. The team victory was the Sailors' first in track competition.

Eddleman Scores Twice

Corp. Dwight Eddleman of Wright field, Dayton, O., former University of Illinois freshman, and Les Eisenhart, Great Lakes' veteran middle distance runner, equalled the two-individual title record of Hofacre. Eisenhart won the half mile and mile championships and was not challenged seriously in either.

Eddleman broad jumped 22 feet 9 inches to win this event and then took the high jump at 6 feet 2 inches.

Eddleman's showing was good, particularly in view of the soft take-offs drenched from Friday's storm. In the high jump he defeated Dick Kilpatrick of Purdue, the winner of the Drake relays high jump, by an inch. And Ken Wiesner of Marquette, who had bettered 6 feet 7 inches at least twice this spring, dropped out yesterday after clearing 5 feet 10 inches. Thus Eddleman repeated the victory he scored over Wiesner in the Chicago relays.

Lee Earns the Trophy

But Eddleman, notwithstanding, yielded the Nicholson trophy to the youthful Hofacre in the poll of newspaper men. Hofacre led off with a stirring quarter mile in :49.7 over the muddy track. And an hour later he came back to run the 220 yard low hurdles in :23.9, exceptional time under handicap of cold weather.

Fred Feiler, Hofacre's teammate, won the two mile easily in 9:54 and proved his right to be considered the best of middle western distance runners. Thus Drake's two entrants, Hofacre and Feiler, scored the largest number of individual titles.

Joe Kelly of Notre Dame, winner of the discus throw, was the only defending champion to repeat and his victory was at the expense of Jack Dugger of Ohio State, Western conference champion.

Kelly threw the discus 135 feet 4 inches, only 10 inches farther than Dugger. The Buckeye star won the conference competition last week with a mark of 147 feet 5 inches.

Westerner Takes Hurdles

Two other Western conference champions also were beaten yesterday. They were Kilpatrick and George Fuch of Wisconsin. Fuch, Big Ten shotput victor, could finish only fifth. The central collegiate champion was Bob Richardson of Marquette with an indifferent effort of 45 feet 3⅛ inches.

The high hurdle title went to Jack Taylor of the University of Idaho.

Going over the first barriers in the 120 yard high hurdles event at the Central Collegiate conference track meet yesterday afternoon at the Great Lakes Naval Training station. Jack Taylor of the University of Idaho won in 15.3 seconds. The sailors took first place in the meet, scoring 48 points. Purdue was second, with 30 points, and Marquette was close behind in third place, with 27.

DARBY DIEPPE DEFEATS 10 DERBY ELIGIBLES IN UPSET AT CHURCHILL

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Louisville, Ky., June 2—Darby Dieppe, a sturdy gray colt lacking the background of such famous sires as Bimelich, Fighting Fox, Chance Play, and Seabiscuit, and overlooked in the betting by a crowd of some 15,000 spectators today became the hope of the west for the 71st running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs next Saturday.

Darby Dieppe, son of Foray II.—La Croma and owned by Mrs. G. W. Lewis of Louisville, showed flying heels to one of the finest fields ever assmbled for the $10,000 added Blue Grass stakes, final big test for the celebrated $75,000 fixture next weekend. The gray speedster, with Melvin [Sunshine] Calvert in the saddle, outstripped the Murlogg farm's Fighting Step by two and a quarter lengths after coming from far back at the stretch turn. He left the rest of the starting field of 10 Derby eligibles, including E. R. Bradley's Burning Dream, the favorite, far behind.

Air Sailor Finishes Third

Lt. Comdr. T. D. Buhl's Air Sailor, winner of his last five starts, four of them before the close of the 1944 season and the fifth during the recent Keeneland meeting, came in third after holding the lead most of the mile and one-eighth under the guidance of Buddy Haas. A photo was necessary to decide between Fighting Step, an offspring of Fighting Fox and Air Sailor, whose daddy was Sweep Like.

Warren Wright's Pot o' Luck, with Leonard Dodson up, had to be content with fourth place, almost a length back of Air Sailor and a head in front of Jay Paley's Best Effort. J. K. Houssels' Bymeabond, a son of Bimelech, was sixth; Charles S. Howard's Seabiscuit progeny, Sea Swallow, winner of the Tia Juana Derby, was seventh; the Lookout stock farm's Foreign Agent came in eighth, and Burning Dream ninth, two lengths in front of Indian Rock stable's Darian.

Darby Dieppe Pays $38.20

Darby Dieppe, which opened in the morning line at 15 to 1, returned $38.20, $15.80, and $10 across the board. Fighting Step returned $15.20 and $8.40. Air Sailor paid $5.80 to show. Darby Dieppe's time was 1:53 2-5 on a good track. The Puckety farm's Skytracer took last year's Blue Grass in 1:52 3-5, but was out of the money in the 1944 Derby.

Air Sailor passed the judges' stand in front after the band got off to a good start and the game chestnut colt held the lead on the rail until they drove into the stretch turn. Competition came from from Sea Swallow and Bymeabond up to that point when Darby Dieppe stepped out in front on the inside and drew out under hand riding.

Burning Dream Has No Room

Fighting Step was taken back early and had to be eased up when in close quarters, but rallied strongly when clear and outfinished Air Sailor in the last stride. Pot o' Luck was outrun to the stretch and was blocked as he made his move, but recovered quickly when free and closed with plenty of stuff. Burning Dream was crowded badly as the pack came down the stretch.

There was so much crowding during the battle for positions at almost all stages that were the race to be run over the entire field could very well be reversed, but, nevertheless, Darby Dieppe showed courage and a liking for distance in his first long race of the season. The Lewis colt won two of 13 races as a 2 year old, but was second six times and third once.

Burning Dream, which won the one mile Derby trial last Saturday, went to the post carrying most of the crowd's backing at 9 to 5. Pot o' Luck, winner of the Ben Ali handicap at a mile and a sixteenth last Friday, was second choice at 4 to 1. Sea Swallow closed at 5 to 1 and Air Sailor at 6 to 1, while Darien was a rank outsider, 50 to 1.

Marsch Wins Two Races

Jockey F. A. Smith, who had the mount on Bymeabond, was suspended for the remainder of the meeting for failing to keep his horse straight in the stretch.

John Marsch, the Chicago contractor known in the turf world as the futurity king, owner of Occupation, Occupy, and Free for All, saw his colors flash down in front in two earlier races. Art Rol, 3 year old son of Pharamond II., won the second division of the six furlong $1,500 Winona purse by eight lengths. Then Occupy took the $2,000 co-feature, another six furlong event. Billy Thompson was aboard both of the Marsch entrants.

Hells Horses Out

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP)—All of William Helis' nominees for the Kentucky Derby next Saturday were declared out of this race tonight by Trainer William Booth.

"All our 3 year olds are coughing," explained Booth. "We hope some of them recover in time for the Preakness at Pimlico June 16."

Helis had nominted seven colts, Pericles, Pindus, Adonis, Greek Warrior, Rick's Raft, Spartan Noble, and Spartacus.

BUSHER WINS HANDICAP

Arcadia, Cal., June 2 (AP)—Louis B. Mayer's 3 year old filly, Busher, merely went thru the motions today in winning the Santa Susanna handicap at Santa Anita Park, with a purse of $25,000 added. The winner finished seven lengths ahead of her nearest contender in the seven furlong feature for 3 year old fillies.

Thirty-eight thousand saw the event. Mist finished second, followed by Glory Time, third, and First Bourne, fourth. Busher, an overwhelming favorite, paid her backers $2.30, $2.20, and $2.10. She carried 121 pounds and was ridden by Jockey Johnny Longden. The mutuel pool for the race was $311,512. Seven horses went to the post.

Long Shot Wins

Mist paid $3.60 to place, Glory Time, $2.40 to show.

A secondary feature, the San Bernardino handicap at six furlongs with a $7,500 purse, was won by Appleknocker of the Coward and Dupuy stable. Ariel Lad, the favorite, was beaten only by a stride, as the Selznick entry came on with a rush.

Appleknocker paid $21.90, $8.50, and $5.40; Ariel, $4.20 and $3.70.

Port List Wins Lincoln Fields' Joliet Stakes

Port List, 2 year old daughter of Port Au Prince which races for Hyman Friedberg of Louisville, won yesterday's 18th renewal of Lincoln Fields' Joliet stakes at Hawthorne, finishing two and one-half lengths ahead of Mrs. Monte Weil's Knight's Gift. Two lengths farther back was Mrs. Robert McGarvey's Over Night.

In the mutuels Port List was heavily backed, paying $6.40, $4.60, and $3.20.

The victory, second in three starts for the Kentucky owned star, earned $4,500 for its owner, but probably afforded Jockey Steve Brooks, native of Binkelman, Neb., an even greater thrill.

Seaman's Pal Throws Jockey

Steve was making his return to racing, having been inactive since early January in New Orleans. Once the field was away from the post yesterday, Brooks' task was comparatively simple.

The time over a muddy track was 1:02 2-5 for the five furlongs—a figure which entitled Port List to rate consideration in the richer events to come. While the winner had all the best of the start, Veteran Joe Cavens was tumbling off Seaman's Pal and Big Burly, which raced for Mrs. C. Parks and Mrs. R. Scott, suffered thru early interference.

$98.80 Daily Double

The crowd of 15,173 was in a rare wagering mood and sent $119,790 thru the machines on the feature event. The total for the day was $963,213, well under the figures for last Saturday—$997,222.

Among the early thrills was a $98.80 daily double, made up when Fetchings Bar won the first and Brown Clown accounted for the second. But added zest was provided when Major Bull, a 30 to 1 shot, broke away from the starting gate and circled the track before the start of the second race. The stewards ordered him scratched and refunded money bet on him.

A near triple dead heat marked the fourth race. Three horses finished on almost even terms, but the camera showed that J. Virden's Lucifer had won by a nose and that Xen McNair's Miss Gazer and Roy Stomer's Priscilla Prim were deadlocked for the place.

Lon Warneke to Re-Join Cubs for Rest of Season

Lon Warneke, veteran Chicago right hander, who retired after the 1943 season, will join his old club tomorrow in St. Louis, club officials announced yesterday. Warneke, 36, recently was named head of the recreation department of the Camden, Ark., naval ordnance department. He has been managing its baseball club and taking his turn on the mound.

Warneke thus will be returning to the Cubs after two interruptions in his Wrigley field career. After the close of the 1936 season he was traded to the Cardinals for First Baseman Rip Collins and Pitcher Leroy Parmelee. In July of 1942 the Cardinals sold Lon back to the Cubs. That year he won 11 and lost 11. In 1943 his record was four victories and five defeats, but he had an earned run average of 3.17.

VOISELLE FINED $500 FOR SLOW PITCH TO HOPP

St. Louis, Mo., June 2 (AP)—Manager Mel Ott of the New York Giants today announced that Bill Voiselle, his top pitcher, had been fined $500 for disobeying instructions in pitching to a batter.

In last night's game with the Cardinals, with the Giants leading 3 to 1 in the ninth, Voiselle had two strikes and no balls on Johnny Hopp, Cardinal right fielder.

Voiselle's third pitch was a change-of-pace slow ball over the plate, Hopp clouting it for a triple and scoring a runner from third. Hopp later scored to tie the count, after which the Cards went on to win, 4 to 3.

Ott said he had warned Voiselle to throw a fast pitch under such circumstances.

Tigers' Eleven Wins Fight for New York Site

New York, June 2 (AP)—The Brooklyn Tigers of the National Football league today won the right to play their home games in the huge Yankee stadium, effective in 1946.

An announcement by Commissioner Elmer Layden after a so-called two day secret meeting by club owners at the Hotel Commodore declared:

"The New York football Giants, acting for what they believe to be the best interests of the National Football league and the fans of New York City, have granted the Brooklyn Tigers the privilege of playing their home games in the Yankee stadium."

Solves Difficult Problem

The league thus solved one of its most vexing problems, a situation that baffled the owners at their spring meeting here last April.

The difficulty arose when Marine Capt. Dan Topping, owner of the Tigers, joined with the MacPhail-Webb syndicate to purchase the New York Yankee baseball team last December. Topping, thru his general manager, Tom Gallery, wanted to shift the Tigers from Ebbets field in Brooklyn to the huge stadium in the Bronx.

Mara Swings Around

Under the league territorial rules, however, Tim Mara, owner of the Giants, first had to grant permission, since the stadium is only a short distance from the Polo Grounds, site of the Giants' home games. This Mara declined to do at the meeting two months ago.

For the 1945 season the Tigers, who pulled out of Ebbets field, already have been merged with the Boston Yanks. They will resume their identity for one game only this fall, when they play the Giants at the stadium. But next year the Tigers again will be the Tigers, with the 70,000 stadium at their disposal.

SOX DROP TO 4TH PLACE; LOSE, 8-1, TO WASHINGTON

BY IRVING VAUGHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 2—The so-called knuckle ball as manipulated by an old artist named Emil Leonard lured the recently boisterous White Sox to the fringes of the second division today. The recent first placers swooned with the greatest of ease before Leonard and his local associates who skipped around the Griffith acreage in nonchalant fashion to compile an 8 to 1 score that dropped James Dykes' somewhat bewildered tourist to fourth place.

The best to be said of the Sox' daily display of baseball was that in the number of hits collected they didn't do badly with a total of 10. The Senators piled up only 11 against Orval Grove and Johnny Johnson but they had a different technique. They not only didn't permit many of them to go to waste but made more than a few of them good for extra bases; for instance, a triple and double by old Rick Ferrell driving in four runs.

3 Double Plays Halt Sox

Another factor in the Sox' inability to stir up much traffic between third and home was a little matter of three double plays, all of them started on balls that were solidly hit. Guy Curtright banged into one of these twin killings in the first inning when the Sox accomplished what proved their lone scoring feat of the afternoon. John Dickshot grounded into a double erasure with the bases filled in the third and did it again in the fifth when two were on bases and one out.

Grove was good enough to do a one hit job for the first three innings but when the storm threatened it came quickly. The Senators let go with three hits around a pass in the fourth, the three resulting runs convincing Boss Dykes he might as well make a change. He did in the next inning by bringing in Johnson and the ex-Yank, after getting nicked for one run in the fifth, rallied sufficiently to get by the next two innings. But the Senators made up for this with a four run, four hit attack in the eighth.

Moses Hits Double, Scores

The Sox run in the first inning was promoted by a triple by Wally Moses and a single by Dickshot, the first of the deadening double plays following immediately. This one run ceased to look important when Fred Vaughn opened the fourth with a double and was driven home promptly by Gilberto Torres. Later in the inning Vince Ventura walked and Ferrell came thru with his two bagger, sending in the two runs.

Three singles assessed the run off Johnson when he appeared fifth, but he didn't surrender another safe hit until Torres scratched a single thru short at the start of the eighth. Then, with one out, Ventura walked and Ferrell stepped in with his triple. After two outs, George Case doubled and Harlond Clift singled for the last pair of Senator runs.

BY EDWARD BURNS

Joe Heving, said to be the only grandpa in the majors, tho there are many players these days older than Joe, and more decrepit, was the winning pitcher in Wrigley field yesterday as the Braves whipped the Cubs, 5 to 4, in 10 innings. Grandpappy Joe, making his first appearance after his recent signing with the Braves, richly deserved the honor.

Heving went in as a replacement for enormous Johnny Hutchings in the eighth when the Cubs had the tying run home, a development of the only error of the game, the potential winning run on third, and only one out. Joe's first act as a Brave was to fan Pinch Batter Frank Secory and that potential winning run still was on third when Stan Hack grounded out.

The Cubs have no relief specialist such as Heving, a free agent from the Cleveland Indians 10 days ago. This fact was emphasized when Manager Charley Grimm, who had followed up Paul Derringer, knocked out in the third, with two starters, Ray Prim and Bob Chipman. Prim faced nine batsmen in three innings and Chipman seven in two innings.

Vandenberg Absorbs Defeat

But Ray and Bob yielded to pinch batters, neither one of whom delivered and this brought on Hi Vandenberg. Hi's work, of course, was in contrast with that of the erstwhile free agent, Heving. The Braves' leadoff man in the ninth got on but never got home.

In the 10th Vandenberg walked Joe Mack, the lead-off man. Then followed a sacrifice by Chuck Workman and an intentional pass to Tommy Holmes. Butch Nieman, who had been a "courtesy runner" in the second inning, and was eligible to return, then fanned as a pinch batter, but Phil Masi drove home the winning run with a single to left.

The stranding of a runner who had reached third with one out in the eighth wasn't Heving's only accomplishment. Don Johnson led off the home ninth with a single and advanced on Peanuts Lowrey's sacrifice. Phil Cavarretta was given an intentional pass and Mickey Livingston bounced into a double play. In the home 10th Bill Nicholson flied out and Andy Pafko and Pinch Batter Eddie Sauer bounced to Heving.

Derringer Hit Hard

There were two showers during the afternoon—one of hits and one of rain. The shower of hits fell on Derringer in the second and included homers by Holmes for three runs. He retired after three innings. The rain fell in the seventh and delayed the game 29 minutes.

The Braves and the Cubs will play a double header today. Hank

JOHNNY LAZOR'S HOME RUN HELPS RED SOX WIN, 5-1

Eighth Inning Blast Scores Two

Boston, Mass., June 2 (AP)—Johnny Lazor's eight inning homer with two on bases gave the Red Sox a 5 to 1 victory over the Detroit Tigers today. Clem Hausmann held the Tigers to one unearned run.

The Detroit score came in the fourth inning. Roy Cullenbine and Rudy York walked. Then Doc Cramer hit into what looked like a double play, but, after Hausmann threw to Eddie Lake, forcing York, Lake made a wild throw to first and Cullenbine scored on the error.

The Red Sox got their first run in the first inning when Ben Steiner singled, went to second on a passed ball and scored on Tom McBride's single to center. They scored again in the fourth when Bob Johnson walked, went to second on Lazor's infield grounder and to third on Lake's single. Johnson was trapped between third and home on Jack Tobin's grounder, but catcher Bob Garbark's single scored Lake.

In the eighth, with Boston leading, 2 to 1, Steiner singled off Arthur Houtteman and was sacrificed to second by McBride. Johnson got an intentional walk and Lazor's long drive to the right field stands brought in three runs. Score:

BROWNS BLANK A'S

Philadelphia, Pa., June 2 (AP)—The St. Louis Browns banged out a base hit barrage against three Athletic hurlers today to take their second straight shutout from the A's, 9 to 0.

Jack Kramer scored his fifth victory of the year as he limited the A's to four scattered hits. Starter Charley Gassaway took his fourth beating.

Kramer ended a 16 game hitting streak rolled up by Freshman Shortstop Bobby Wilkins, who failed to connect safely in four trips to the plate.

The Browns punched out 14 hits, Len Schulte leading the way with three. Score:

INDIANS, 4; YANKS, 0.

New York, June 2 (AP)—In a game delayed 1 hour and 29 minutes by rain in the first half of the ninth inning the Cleveland Indians shut out the New York Yankees 4 to 0 today to even their series at one game apiece.

Ed [Specs] Klieman, sophomore hurler, blanked the league leading Yanks with six hits in his first starting assignment to win his first victory of the season.

Three singles in the second inning off Ernie Bonham gave the Indians their first run. In the ninth, after play was resumed, the Indians pounced on Bonham for five singles and three runs before Emerson Roser stopped them.

BITS OF ACTION IN CUB-BRAVES GAME

Butch Nieman, runner for Carden Gillenwater, who was hit by a pitched ball, scoring in the second inning in Wrigley field yesterday on Frank Drews' hit. The ball (arrow), thrown in from left field by Peanuts Lowery, bounced off Nieman's shoulder.

Mickey Livingston, Cub catcher, is forced out at second in the second inning. Bill Nicholson hit to First Baseman Joe Mack, who tossed the ball to Shortstop Bill Weitelmann, who made the putout. The Braves won in the 10th inning, 5 to 4.

Carden Gillenwater, Braves center fielder, lies on the ground at the plate in the second inning after being hit in the face by one of Paul Derringer's pitches. Butch Nieman ran for Gillenwater and scored on two successive singles.

SAILORS SCORE 48 POINTS; WIN CENTRAL TRACK

Taylor later finished third in the longer hurdle race.

The upset of yesterday's games probably was the defeat of Grover Klemmer by Charles Beaudry of Marquette in the 100 yard race. Beaudry's time of 9 9-10 seconds was surprisingly good and he finished only inches ahead of the Great Lakes runner. Klemmer passed up the 220 yard sprint and Norman Hankins of Illinois Tech won this championship with Beaudry second.

Billy Moore, navy student at Western Michigan and one time Drake university freshman, took the pole vault championship as was expected. The national A. A. U. indoor title holder had to clear only 12 feet 6 inches. Summaries:

NEWS FROM ARMY AND NAVY POSTS

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Great Lakes

THE Great Lakes baseball team, which was defeated last week by Bunker Hill Navy and the Toledo Mudhens by scores of 7 to 1 and 5 to 2, respectively, will seek to make amends this week at the expense of the Nash-Kelvinator nine and Notre Dame. . . . The Bluejackets will meet the Kelvinators at Lansing, Mich., Tuesday and Notre Dame on Constitution field here Wednesday. . . . Chief Specialist Mike Howlett, in charge of the Great Lakes swimming instruction program, was given a medical discharge on Wednesday. . . . Chief Petty Officer Harry Hedlund, former inspector for the Illinois athletic commission, expects to be released from the service this month. . . . Hedlund saw 17 months' service in the South Pacific before being sent to the Great Lakes hospital for medical treatment. . . . He was a master at arms in the invasion of Munda and Bougainville.

Mike Howlett

Naval Shore Patrol

THE baseball representatives of the 9th Naval district shore patrol, now stationed in Tower hall, 810 N. Michigan av., will meet the Harvey-Moose nine of the Midwest league at 149th st. and Ashland av. this afternoon. . . . The SPs, who defeated Wheaton college on Memorial day, 12 to 8, also will play Illinois Tech in Wrigley field Thursday and the Oak Park Elks in Oak Park next Sunday. . . . Radio Chicago beat the South Chicago Shore Patrol in a Chicago area Service Men's Softball league game last Wednesday, 8 to 1. . . . In other league contests Special Devices of the University of Chicago navy defeated the Chicago SPs, 4 to 2; Naval Reserve armory beat Inspector of Naval Material, 22 to 6, and Illinois Tech conquered Gardiner General hospital, 6 to 2.

Chanute Field

VERN RIHA and Howard Haack, natives of Chicago, are spark plugs of the Chanute baseball team. . . . Riha, batting well over 300, is a crack shortstop who before the war played in the Cotton States league, while Haack, who also boasts a .300 plus average, is the team's regular catcher. Before joining the army he played with a Brooklyn Dodger farm nine. . . . Sgt. Al Sager saw two and a half years of overseas duty before being appointed sports editor of the camp newspaper here recently. . . . He helped publish such army magazines as Yank and the Chinese-Burma-India Roundup, not to mention his connection with such radio shows as Yanks in the Orient and the Army Hour. . . . He journeyed thru 17 countries and visited four fronts. . . . During his travels he met Alex Small and Clay Gowran, Chicago Tribune war correspondents. . . . Sgt. Sager calls Batavia, Ill., his home.

Vern Riha

Camp Ellis

CHANUTE FIELD'S baseball team will be the opposition in a game here this afternoon. . . . The Ellismen also will oppose the Le Tourneau nine at Peoria on Thursday. . . . Lt. Ralph Brown, Camp Ellis baseball officer, hopes to use Sgt. Stan Polebitski, newest addition to his mound staff, in one of the encounters. . . . Addition of Polebitski gives the Ellismen what appears to be a well balanced four man staff. . . . The others are Pvt. Nate Moreland, Sgt. Bud Herman, and Pvt. West Taylor. . . . Baseball is Herman's third varsity sport at this camp as he played full back on the football team and forward on the basketball squad.

McSPADEN AND NELSON PLAY IN BENEFIT TODAY

Baltimore, Md., June 2 (AP)—Byron Nelson and Harold [Jug] McSpaden will team up tomorrow with Carroll McMaster, Woodholme Country club pro, and Glenn Spencer of Rolling Road in an 18 hole exhibition.

Net proceeds of the match will be used to complete construction of golf facilities for wounded service men at Walter Reed and Glenn Echo army hospitals.

MONOGRAM CLUB AT CHICAGO TO HOLD BANQUET

A varsity-alumni baseball game in Greenwood field will precede the annual "C" banquet at the University of Chicago Thursday. The game will be played at 3:30 p. m. with the dinner scheduled for 6:30 p. m. in Bartlett's gymnasium.

The evening's program calls for the awarding of baseball letters, a memorial for "C" men who have died in World War II., and induction of new members into the order of the "C."

Lafayette, Ind., June 2 [Special]—Michigan's defending champions clinched the Western conference baseball title for another year as they defeated Purdue in a double header this afternoon, 9 to 2 and 4 to 2. The double triumph left the Wolverines far out in front in the conference race with eight straight victories and relegated the Boilermakers to the cellar with only two victories in 12 starts.

The first game started as a neat pitchers battle between Bob Buyase and Ray Louthen, but Michigan, aided by Boilermaker errors, broke loose with a four run cluster in the sixth inning and then pounded the ball consistently for an easy triumph.

For a time it appeared that the Boilermakers might snap the two year victory streak of the Wolverines in the second game as Purdue got out in front in the first inning with two runs and three successive hits. Bliss Bowman, Michigan's veteran left hander, started a three run rally in the third with a single. Bowman also drove in another run with a single in the fourth. Score:

Braves Beat Cubs, 4 to 3, in Tenth Inning

Wyse and Claude Passeau are slated to pitch for the Cubs, Bob Logan and Jim Tobin for the Braves.

The first run of the afternoon grew from an accident in the second inning. With one out Carden Gillenwater was hit on the right cheek with a pitched ball. Nieman ran for Gillenwater and stopped at second on Masi's single to center. Drews singled to left, scoring Nieman, Masi reaching third and Drews second on a throw to the plate. Wietelmann was given an intentional pass, loading the bases, Derringer wading out of the jam.

Cubs Take 2-1 Lead

The Cubs took a 2 to 1 lead in their end of the second inning. Livingston's gentle fly plunked between two Brave outfielders for a single. Nicholson forced Livingston and scored when Pafko tripled to the right field corner. Merullo looked at a third strike but Derringer doubled off the left field wall, scoring Pafko.

In the third, after Mack had been retired, Workman singled to center and Holmes knocked the ball into Sheffield av., well clear of the right field bleachers. Bill Ramsey lined to Merullo but Masi drove the ball over the bleachers in left center. Drews singled to left, but was forced by Wietelmann.

Cubs Rally Nipped

Johnson shortened the Boston lead to 4-3 with one out in the fifth when he knocked his first homer into the stand in left center. In the sixth the Cubs had runners on second and first with only one down, but wilted after Nicholson was hit by a pitched ball and Pafko dumped a single in short center. Merullo again looked at a third strike and Heinz Becker, batting for Prim, lined to Workman.

Chipman was the third Cub pitcher and started the seventh by striking out Hutchings. Bob walked Joost after a three and two count. As a shower started Mack popped to Johnson and Workman struck out. In the Cubs' half Hack walked and was forced on Johnson's attempted sacrifice. Lowrey and Cavarretta flied out.

The pattern of the Cubs' process in the eighth was similar to the build-up in the sixth, except that Merullo wasn't given a chance to look at a third strike for the third time in the game. With one out, Nicholson was safe when Drews fumbled his bouncer. Pafko singled to left, his third hit. Paul Gillespie batted for Merullo and singled to right, scoring Nicholson and putting Pafko on third. Bill Schuster went to first to run for Gillespie and Frank Secory went to the plate for Chipman as Heving replaced Hutchings. Heving fanned Secory and Drews threw out Hack.

GIANTS SCORE IN 7TH INNING TO BEAT CARDS, 3-2

St. Louis, June 2 (AP)—The league leading New York Giants evened things up in their series with the St. Louis Cardinals by nosing out the world champions, 3 to 2, at Spotsman's park tonight.

The red birds loaded the bases in the ninth after Napoleon Reyes fumbled Marty Marion's grounder. There was only one out but George Fallon struck out and Del Rice flied out, spoiling the Cards' chances to win by one run, as they did last night when a St. Louis rally ended in a 4 to 3 triumph. The Giants made four errors.

First Baseman Phil Weintraub of the Giants, who wrenched his knee in last night's game with St. Louis, will be out of the lineup for 10 days.

PIRATES BEAT PHILS, 7 TO 6

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 2 (AP)—Vince Di Maggio hit a pinch home run with the bases loaded today against his former teammates, the Pittsburgh Pirates, but it wasn't enough to win. The Pirates defeated the Phils, 7 to 6.

Today's victory, the 11th in the last 13 games, helped Pittsburgh to extend its winning streak.

Di Maggio's homer was his eighth of the season. It came in the sixth with the Phils trailing, 4 to 2. However, two wild pitches by Oscar Judd, relief hurler, and an error gave the Pirates three runs in their half of the inning, and the Phillies consequently suffered their sixth straight loss.

Musto, Hood Sign for Bout in Coliseum

Tony Musto, Blue Island heavyweight, who knocked out Charley Jackson of Baltimore, in the third round in the Coliseum on Friday, will meet Hubert Hood, former Chicagoland Golden Gloves champion, in a 10 round bout in the Wabash av. arena June 15 or 22, Matchmaker Jack Kearns said yesterday.

Kearns originally planned to offer a match between Elmer Ray, Hastings Fla., 191 pounder, and Lee Savold in Wrigley field June 28, but this was spoiled when Ray suffered a broken right hand while defeating Larry Lane decisively in Friday's main event in the Coliseum.

The injury also forced Ray to cancel a match scheduled in St. Paul Friday against Gunnar Barlund. Tommy O'Loughlin, Ray's manager, said his protege, who injured his hand in the second round against Lane, will be unable to fight again for two months.

Matchmaker Kearns said he lost $1,000 on the Lane-Ray show, which attracted a crowd of 3,730 and a gross gate of $11,737. Net receipts were $9,209, Kearns said in correcting an Illinois Athletic commission announcement which said the attendance was 3,930 and the net receipts amounted to $10,209.

Ray collected an estimated $2,292 and Lane was paid approximately $1,841.

TWO REDBIRDS SUSPENDED; 5 OTHERS FINED

Columbus, O., June 2 (AP)—Jim Mallory and Chuck Baron, regulars on the Columbus Red Bird team of the American Association, have jumped the club and were suspended indefinitely, President Al Banister said tonight.

Catcher Gene Crumling left the team last month and has refused to report back because of a salary difference.

Banister also said that seven players, Mallory and Baron included, were suspended and fined $25 each by Manager Charlie Root on a recent trip to Milwaukee for keeping late hours.

The two players did not report for the Kansas City game last night, Banister said.

"We are going to have a hustling, loyal club and I am going to take whatever steps are necessary to have it that way," Banister said.

Baron was acquired last winter in a trade with St. Paul. Mallory came down from the St. Louis Cardinals, the Birds' parent club.

SEAHAWKS BEAT IRISH NINE, 5-4; STUKA FANS 12

Iowa City, Ia., June 2 [Special]—Steve Stuka struck out 12 and scored the deciding run in the seventh inning on Bill Schoeberlein's double to break a 4 to 4 tie and give the Iowa Seahawks a 5 to 4 victory over Notre Dame today. Stuka, a former Boston college half back, had opened the inning with his second long double to left field.

The severe cold restricted the teams to a single game

Notre Dame scored all its runs in the fifth inning on four singles, a hit batsman, and an error. The losers collected only two other hits, by Bill Tracy and Bill Hassett in the third and fourth, respectively.

The Seahawks, who scored their fourth victory in five starts, got to Jack Stewart for eight hits. They counted three runs in the third on three safeties, an error, and a passed ball, and added another in the fourth when Catcher Mike Franchuk was hit by a pitched ball and came home on Stuka's first double. Score:

Notre Dame	000	040	000—4	6	1
Seahawks	003	100	100—5	8	2

Army Rejects Salkeld, Catcher for Pirates

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 2 (AP)—Bill Salkeld, hard hitting second string Pittsburgh Pirates catcher, was rejected for military service today and classified 4-F because of an ailing right knee.

The Home Front

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS

THE Illinois Central Service Club of Chicago now is in its 15th year as sponsor organization for all recreational, social, and educational projects of the Illinois Central system in this area. Membership in the service club is open to all employes and a staff of officers is elected each year to administer the program.

The Illinois Central summer recreation program includes softball [for both men and girls], golf, horseshoe pitching, tennis, and fly casting. In the winter, basketball, volleyball, and bowling are the most popular sports. S. J. Siedlecki, one of the vice presidents of the service club, is in charge of the recreation program.

Other features of the system's activities under the supervision of the service club include an amateur show featuring employe talent; holiday dances, with one big annual ball; educational meetings once a month; movies, and other entertainment. Officers of the service club are:

R. E. Galloway, president; W. J. Joy, executive vice president; Bea Mayer, secretary, and J. M. Dorsey, treasurer. There are seven other vice presidents in charge of various phases of the program, being Hazel Devitt, E. J. Hollahan, Dr. A. P. Lewis, P. Reihel, B. P. Smith, H. A. Wisch, and Siedlecki.

Inland Steel's Athletic Association Names Officers

Another pioneer group in the field of industrial recreation, the Inland Athletic association of Inland Steel, recently chose its officers for a year which it anticipates will see a great many former employes returning from military service to their old jobs. The Inland A. A. anticipates that many of these veterans will be more interested in athletics than ever before and plans to have a program set up which will provide just what they want. The new officers, executive committee, and chairmen of subcommittees are:

President, Russ Moore; vice president, Mike Schillo; treasurer, H. A. Fredenhagen; secretary, Eli Popovich. Executive committee, Kenneth Schneider, chairman; F. M. Gillies, George Lawton, Russ Moore, Sal Garraffa, Tom Cure, and Mike Schillo.

Activities chairmen—George Sufak, baseball; James Burke, basketball; Nick Michel, billiards; Sal Garraffa, men's bowling; Sadie Frisk, women's bowling; Tom Cure, entertainment; Kenneth Schneider, finance; Jim Sannita, golf; Gene Harle, membership; Joseph S. Kozacik, publicity; Peter Halusak, men's softball; Connie Guzis, women's softball; John Emmett, men's tennis, and Mary Mathis, women's tennis.

Lead Shared in Lincoln-Belmont Y. Industrial Softball League

Teletype Corporation and Appleton Electric, each with two victories and no defeats, are setting the pace in the Lincoln-Belmont Y. M. C. A. Industrial Softball league. Both teams feature a lot of robust batting which augurs no good for rivals all season. In Tuesday's games at Weber park the scores were Valco Manufacturing, 16, vs. Oscar F. Carlson, 5; Appleton, 25, vs. Chicago Transformer, 6; Bell & Howell, 11, vs. Minneapolis Honeywell, 5; Teletype, 22, vs. Victor Adding Machine, 8.

3 JOCKEYS HURT, 1 SERIOUSLY, IN 5 HORSE SPILL

Charles Town, W. Va., June 2 (AP)—Three jockeys were injured, one seriously, in a five horse spill today that marked the running of the eighth race at Charles Town before a crowd of 5,000. Only three horses finished.

Jockey J. Beedle, who was reported to have suffered a broken neck, was thrown in the path of the field when R. M. Gustin's Running Riot fell. Miss Mary R. Fox's Broomoria and James Hamilton's Gay Victory stumbled and fell over Running Riot, injuring Jockeys G. Franklin and S. Palumbo.

Apprentice Bobby Edens, who rode Great Play, and Jockey J. Hernandez, who was on Col. Scott, jumped clear when their horses fell and escaped with bruises.

Shangrila stables' Palgene, in front at the time of the pileup, finished a length and a half ahead of C. M. Feltner's Valdina Firo. Mr. Jimm, owned by Stanley Greene Jr., was third. Galgene paid $11, $5.60, and $4.80.

Syracuse Acquires Just, Cincinnati Reds' Catcher

Syracuse, N. Y., June 2 (AP)—The Syracuse Chiefs today announced the acquisition of Catcher Joe Just on option from the Cincinnati Reds. Just, 29 year old backstop, who spent the entire 1944 season with the Reds, is subject to 24 hour recall.

BUY COAST CATCHER

New Orleans, La., June 2 [AP]—General Manager Charley Hurth of the New Orleans Pelicans announced today the purchase of Catcher Bob McAtee from Seattle of the Pacific Coast league.

FISH CROPPING IS ENCOURAGED BY MINNESOTANS

BY BOB BECKER

The black bass season is creeping up on Illinois fishermen in the northern part of the state. We have a kind of progressive season in Illinois with the first bass fishing coming in the southern part of the commonwealth [starting May 15], and then fishermen in the central section, or so-called middle zone, start their bass fishing June 1. In the northern part of the state June 15 is the big day. In the northern states where large and small mouthed bass spawn later the open season does not get under way until later in the month.

Altho Illinois has bass in many lakes and rivers scattered over the state from Horseshoe lake in the extreme southern part to the northern lake area, it is common knowledge that there aren't as many bass in the waters as we could have if some of the best lakes were cleaned out and put into "balanced production." Both the Illinois Natural History Survey fish authorities and the department of conservation know what should be done, but as soon as a plan is suggested to take the excess [usually undersized] fish from lakes which are far off balance and cannot grow many or good sized bass, the department and legislators get so many complaints about it that nothing happens.

When we were in Minnesota a few weeks ago we asked Dr. Lloyd L. Smith, supervisor of fisheries research, and Dr. Samuel Eddy, University of Minnesota, if they had many lakes in that region that aren't producing good fishing because they are overcrowded, which means that the lakes are out of balance. Both said they could point to many examples of this situation.

Smith remarked that it was especially true of lakes with panfish and bass in them, or panfish and pike together. Fishermen go after the big fish, ignore the panfish and soon the lake is loaded with undersized bluegills, crappies and perch. This "selective fishing" by fishermen, inevitable but unfortunate, has brought about tremendous populations of stunted perch in many lakes.

CHICAGO GIANTS MEET MEMPHIS IN TWO GAMES

Chicago's American Giants swing back into Negro American league action in Comiskey park this afternoon with a double header against the Memphis Red Sox, starting at 1:30. The American Giants will start Gentry Jessup and Walter McCoy, right handers, against Verdel Mathis, top southpaw of the league, and Bob Keyes.

The Jessup-Mathis duel promises to be one of the best of the season. In last year's East-West all-star game in Comiskey park, Mathis pitched the first three innings for the winning West team and Jessup the next three. Manager-Catcher Larry Brown, home run hitting Center Fielder Neil Robinson and Second Baseman Fred Bankhead are other Memphis East-West stars.

Walter McCoy will be seeking his third pitching victory of the week for Chicago in the second game. He defeated the Kansas City Monarchs, 4 to 2, in Milwaukee last Monday night, and 2 to 0 in Comiskey park on Memorial day.

JAKE POWELL SAYS 'HE'S THRU' WITH SENATORS

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP)—Jake Powell, 35 year old outfielder, quit the Washington Senators today and told newspapermen, "I'm thru."

Powell learned before the start of today's game with the Chicago White Sox that he was being benched. He left the park in civilian clothes. Vince Ventura took his place in left field.

Powell has not been hitting well this spring and made a costly double error on a hit into his field in Friday night's game.

SWIFT VICTOR IN PLAYGROUND TRACK MEET

The Swift playground team yesterday won the annual board of education playground track meet in Douglass park by scoring 51 points in the midget, junior and intermediate divisions.

The defending champion, Mozart playground, placed second with 44 points. Budlong was third with 27 points. Other totals: O'Keefe, 23; Agassize, 18; Mason, 16; Stehman, 10; Morse, 9.

Music Maids, Bloomer Girls, to Play Tonight

The Music Maids and Bloomer Girls, rivals over a period of years, will meet tonight in Parichy Memorial stadium, Harlem av. and Harrison st. It will be the first contest between the two teams since both turned professional. Mary Skorich for the Maids and Shirley Dressander of the Bloomer Girls, teammates the early part of last season, will oppose each other on the pitching mound. Other games:

Chicks vs. Sparks, Rock-Ola stadium, 4200 N. Central av., Queens vs. Bluebirds, Bidwill stadium, 1900 E. 75th st.

50 DRIVERS TO COMPETE IN ST. JOSEPH REGATTA

South Bend, Ind., June 2 [Special]—A field of 50 drivers is expected to compete in the St. Joseph Valley Boat club's third annual regatta, to be held in the St. Joseph river on June 10. Heading the list of champion drivers from the midwest who will compete will be Harry Nicodemus, commodore of the sponsoring organization. Nicodemus won the national championships in classes B, C, and F last year on the point total basis, under National Outboard Drivers' association regulations. The association has sanctioned this year's regatta and race winners will gain points toward national titles.

Fourteen races, the largest ever to be presented by the valley club, will be held this year. Races for classes M, A, B, C, F, C-racing, and C-service motors with two heats

Kid Cocoa and Williams Sign for 15 Round Bout

New Orleans, La., June 2 (AP)—Holman Williams, Detroit, Mich., middleweight, and Louis [Kid] Cocoa will meet here June 15 in a 15 round bout, Promoter Louis Messina said today.

THE LOCKER ROOM

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

IT'S a mite early for the Locker Room to be publishing challenges, but this morning we have a defi which bears top billing. . . . It seems there is a weighty foursome out at Beverly who aim to pick on another quartet of their size for money, marbles, or chalk. . . . This south side four—Fred Voght, John Rogers, Dave Moore, and Dr. S. S. Snider—scale more than 1,000 pounds put together. They are eager to arrange a match with any similarly equipped foursome, providing the lightest member of same weighs at least 230 pounds. . . . Ky Laffoon and his father-in-law operate a farm near Bartlett, Ill., but Mr. L., who led the Illinois P. G. A. qualifiers with that fancy 136 Friday at Oak Park, is going to leave his plowshare next month to go after the national title in Dayton. . . . The manner in which Laffoon spreadeagled the field Friday was reminiscent of his younger days in these parts, when scores in the 60s were automatic for the cigar smoking Oklahoman.

Hot Quarrel Anticipated in Inter-League Competition

Scores in the first rounds of the local leagues indicate that the inter-league competition, set for Sept. 12 at Glen Oak, will be the hottest team quarrel of the season. . . . The North Shore league returns to action Wednesday at Westmoreland, while the West District goes to work again at Glen Oak. . . . The South District, which is confining its schedule to four days, will not swing again until June 21. . . . The Glenbard Golf club, located at Roosevelt road and Highway 53, is going full steam. . . . The property recently was sold to the Maryknoll Fathers, but the missionaries will not be able to take over immediately because of war time building restrictions. . . . Heinie Sick, Cog Hill pro, reports the doings of pros in the Joliet district. . . . Heinie himself is handling his golf duties over the week-ends, working other days at the United States Rubber plant in Kankakee. . . . Al Agazzi, Joliet C. C. pro, is with the army in Italy; Bob Regan, Inwood pro, is overseas with the army, and Stanley Johnson, Woodruff pro is in railroad work.

ROUND—OF—THE—WEEK
Ky Laffoon's 66, six under par, in Illinois P. G. A. qualifying round at Oak Park.
SHOT—OF—THE—WEEK
Ky Laffoon's No. 3 iron shot, two feet from pin at Oak Park's 177 yard second hole.

THERE will be a meeting tomorrow night at 6 o'clock in the Chicago room of the La Salle hotel. . . . It can prove to be one of the most important of the 1945 war time golf season, if every golfer in the district—private, daily fee, and public parks—will get behind its purpose. . . . That would be the Dime-A-Round fund, sponsored by ten local golf organizations—the C. D. G. A., the P. G. A., the Illinois P. G. A., the Chicago park district, the C. W. D. G. A., the W. G. A., W. W. G. A., the Forest Preserve courses, the Chicago Daily Fee courses, and the Illinois Women's State association. . . . In the last two years, the Dime-A-Round campaign produced more than $26,000 for the Chicago service men's centers. . . . This sum was derived from the dimes which all local golfers contributed before playing each round. . . . Within recent weeks, notably after V-E day, there has been noted a sharp reduction in contributions, even at the park district courses, which have led all others in the campaign. . . . What many golfers do not realize is that the war is only half over and that the shifting of personnel from other theaters to the Pacific will quadruple the number of visitors to these service men's centers, which have established Chicago as the war time capital of hospitality. . . . Officials who will meet in the La Salle tomorrow night hope to make plans which will step up the contributions to a far higher figure than last year's $15,000. . . . Let's all join them!

FLOSSMOOR
M. E. Smith used a No. 5 iron on the 115 yard seventh hole and scored an ace. Dr. C. E. Shannon carded an 86—79—165—23—142 to win the Esoroger trophy.

Bud Wendlandt, Golf Pro, Was P. W. Camp Supervisor

Bud Wendlandt, new assistant to Professional Johnny Revolta at Evanston, was supervisor of a Nazi prisoner of war camp in Wisconsin last winter. Previously, he was pro at Antigo, Wis., 1940-'42, and Marshfield, Wis., 1942-'44. . . . The Illinois Seniors' Golf association, a hardy band of young fellows, will pay no attention to what the weather man brings for their 1945 spring tournament at Westmoreland Tuesday. . . . The seniors are perennial scoffers of the W. M. . . . They proved it last year at Oak Park, when a day long downpour found 73 of them finishing the full 18. . . . And 16 of those were in class A, for members 70 years of age and over! . . . Willie Meike, a familiar figure on the Medinah golfing scene for more than 20 years [he was runner-up for the 1932 western junior there] is now in charge of the shop at Beverly. . . . Elizabeth Hicks, 1944 All-American women's champion and former national title holder, will arrive at Tam O'Shanter tomorrow to open a six weeks' training session against the defense of her crown when the $60,000 bond circus is held there July 26-29. . . . She is expected to make her headquarters at the club, except for the week of June 18, when she will seek the women's western open championship in Indianapolis. . . . Joe Miskovic is again in charge of the professional duties at Evergreen Golf club.

Gov. Green has requested L. D. Rutherford, C. D. G. A. president, to serve as Illinois chairman in a nation-wide program of D-day sports for disabled veterans. . . . The campaign will get under way on Wednesday, which marks the first anniversary of the American invasion of France. . . . One strong team is assured in the pro-amateur division of the Chicago Victory National tournaments opening June 27 at Calumet. . . . This combination brings together Sam Snead and Wilford Wehrle, Racine, Wis., amateur star. . . . The 45th annual Elmhurst Blowout tournament will be held June 13. . . . Brookwood, next Sunday, will provide a new type of competition—the first annual team matches between the C. D. G. A. and the Illinois Public Links association. . . . The next rehabilitation event of the Illinois P. G. A., set for June 17 at Twin Orchard, already promises to be one of the oustanding one-day tourneys of the season, thanks to a members' committee composed of Harry Wolff, chairman; Ben Leiser, co-chairman; Ed Vihon, and Mickey Karzer. . . . The W. W. G. A. will formally present two putting clocks to Vaughan General hospital at 3:30 p. m. Thursday.

State Normal Sweeps Series with Wesleyan, 5-0

Bloomington, Ill., June 2 [Special]—State Normal swept its annual baseball series with Wesleyan by beating the Titans, 5 to 0, today. Russ Benway, a sophomore from Strawn, limited Wesleyan to four singles.

Milwaukee to Meet Necaxa Eleven Today

BY OFFSIDE

If a national soccer championship is to be won by a Chicago team this season it will be won by Necaxa.

Chicago was eliminated from the National Open cup competition last Sunday when the vaunted Vikings were outrun and outscored, 6 to 3, by St. Louis in a Western semi-final game. It is to the National Amateur cup that Necaxa aspires, and this competition, too, has reached the inter-city stage. The opposition is to be provided by the Croatian Eagles of Milwaukee. Sparta stadium, 21st st. and Kostner av., is to be the scene of the battle, and the starting time is 2:30 this afternoon.

Necaxa Is Favorite

The game is a fourth round encounter and, should the Necaxas win, they will advance into the Western semi-finals of the national amateur competition. And the records indicate that into the semi-finals they will go, for they held the Eagles to a tie in an early season encounter on Milwaukee soil when they were not as strong as they are today. By any and all methods of soccer reasoning, confident Necaxa must be regarded as the favorite.

Because their lineup includes some of Chicago's better players, the Necaxa confidence appears to be justified. Francisco Torres, their fiery goal scoring center forward, and Paul Roca proved their worth in playing as Chicago All-Stars against the Hispanos. Other performers that rate with the best in the west are Manual Sanabre, the smallest but one of the trickiest outside left forwards, and Hercules Moriyon, full back, formerly with the Spartas.

Ex-Falks in Eagles' Lineup

The Eagles, since the disbanding of the Falks, come here as Wisconsin's leading contenders for national amateur honors. Steve Botic, Edward Polack, and George Panich all saw service with the Falks before the war resulted in the disbanding of the team.

National Soccer league competition will share the spotlight with the cup encounter, and of the four games involving teams in the circuit's major division, the game between the Hakoah Centers and the Chicago Sports club shapes up as the No. 1 attraction. This is due largely to the fact that Hakoah is the league leader and that it is in possession of a victory string that appears to have no ending.

HOWIE SCHULTZ TO JOIN DODGERS TUESDAY NIGHT

Cincinnati, O., June 2 (AP)—Howie Schultz will rejoin the Dodgers in the Polo Grounds for a game with the New York Giants Tuesday night, Brooklyn club officials said today.

Schultz, regular first baseman with the Dodgers last season, was optioned to St. Paul last spring so he could continue his studies at Hamline college, St. Paul, for which he had received a deferred draft classification, and also remain active in baseball as a member of the minor league team. He will be graduated from college tomorrow.

Originally Schultz had a 4-F classification but was put in the 1-A group when Washington officials cracked down on professional athletes.

Maxwell Fans 15, but Broncos Lose, 6-4, in Upset

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 2 [Special]—Central Michigan's baseball team upset Western Michigan, 6 to 4, today. Lefty Maxwell struck out 15 while losing. Score:

Central Michigan	004	100	010—6	9	5
Western	011	000	110—4	5	3

Batteries—Morgan and Tenges; Maxwell and Marks.

Reject Hausmann of Giants for Military Service

St. Louis, Mo., June 2 (AP)—George Hausmann, Giants' second baseman, was rejected for military service in his draft examination at Jefferson barracks today because of a perforated ear drum.

YANKEE BEATS SEVEN YACHTS FOR VICTORY

Yankee, owned and sailed by Ed Schnabel, won the Chicago Yacht club's second race of the season yesterday, sailed off Belmont harbor in a 35 mile northwest squall. The 39 foot R class sloop covered the 12 mile triangular course in 1 hour 50 minutes and 42 seconds.

Eight Sloops in Race

Yankee's crew consisted of Skipper Schnabel, who was also light canvas man; Robert Trettin, first mate; Schnabel's wife, Marge, main sheet; Fred Barker and Hugh Driscoll, both jib sheets and backstays.

In addition to Mrs. Schnabel, the eight sloops included an unusually large number of yachtswomen. Mrs. T. J. Morris sailed on Albert IV., Mrs. Harry Nye Jr. was aboard Gale, Mrs. Javk Vilas Jr. was on Ardelle, and Mrs. Robert Elberfeld was one of Calypso's crew.

Herman T. Van Mell, chairman of the club publicity committee, sailed Ardelle, which he has chartered for the racing season. Mel Jones, champion iceboat skipper, was skipper of Carl Fox's entry, Gossoon II.

Romany Wins Eagle Class

Romany, owned by the Lewis-Jensen-Matthael syndicate, won the Eagle [S] class race, defeating Joseph Esop's Quienna. Albatross, H. E. Stafford's cruising sloop, won in the cruising class.

Scheduled races at the Sheridan Shore Yacht club were canceled by Chairman Clive Jenkins of the race committee, when coast guard storm warnings were hoisted. Competition at the Jackson Park Yacht club also was postponed. Summaries:

CLUBS ARE TOLD THEY CAN'T SIGN MEN IN SERVICE

Major and minor leagues yesterday were warned by the advisory committee against signing ball players while they are in military service or the national defense service list. The order was signed by Leslie M. O'Connor, chairman of the council which is operating until Sen. A. B. Chandler takes over his duties as commissioner.

Such contracts or terms of acceptance with players, said the notice, will not be recognized or approved. Further, it declared, penalties will be imposed if contracts are made and incorrect dates inserted to conceal the fact that a player was in military service or on the national defense list at the time of signing a contract or accepting terms.

This rule, O'Connor pointed out, has been in effect since the war began. He added that some clubs apparently are unaware of it.

Red Cochrane Will Meet Rocky Graziano June 29

Jacksonville, Fla., June 2 (AP)—Freddie [Red] Cochrane, world welterweight boxing champion of Elizabeth, N. J., will meet Tommy [Rocky] Graziano on June 29 in Madison Square Garden in a non-title overweight bout sponsored by Mike Jacobs. Cochrane's first non-title bout after three years in the navy resulted in the second round knockout of Chicago's Pete Lello here last night.

STYMIE WINS

New York, June 2 (AP)—Alex Barth, shunted to second in four $50,000 races last year while winning $99,560, was the runner-up again today as he lost by a neck to Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Stymie in the Grey Lag handicap at Jamaica.

Four straight favorites triumphed today before Alex Barth, owned by the Millbrook stable, went down to defeat. William Ziegler's Bounding Home was third, 10 lengths behind the leaders.

Stymie, an $8.80 for $2 shot, earned a purse of $10,700 before 36,948 spectators, and his time of 1:49 4-5 just missed equaling the track record for the mile and an eighth.

Alex Barth, held at odds of 65 cents to the dollar, finished second nine times last year while winning six events in 24 starts.

Vera S. Bragg's Twenty-Six duplicated the 1925 victory of his sire, Chance Play, and the 1922 triumph of his granddaddy, Bud Lerner, by winning the Youthful stakes, the day's secondary feature.

The chestnut colt, ridden by Ted Atkinson, broke slowly but bounded thru the five furlongs in one minute flat. Misleader, from the Wheatley stable, was second and Hugh M. Fenwick's The Problem grabbed third. Twenty-Six was worth $4.20 at the win window.

The program, interrupted near its close by wind and rain, ended the 12 day session at Jamaica. The thorobreds move to Belmont Park Monday.

ROUNDERS WINS

Stanton, Del., June 2 (AP)—William Helis, New Orleans sportsman who has spent so liberally for thorobred stock in recent years, was on hand at Delaware Park today to see Rounders carry his blue and white colors to a record breaking triumph in the eighth running of the mile and one-sixteenth Brandywine handicap.

Ridden by Fred Remerscheid, Rounders galloped home in 1.44 under 115 pounds to establish a new record for this particular event. His margin at the final line was a good five lengths. The pay-off on the Helis representative was $22.02 for $2.

Boy Knight Is Second

Second honors in the feature went to Crispin Oglebay's Boy Knight, which last Wednesday had won one division of the Wilmington handicap. Boy Knight finished two lengths clear of W. P. Wepherall's Lord Calvert as the latter headed Edgehill stable's He Rolls out of third honors.

Christiana stable's Megogo was favored in a wide open betting race but lacked speed in its early part and finally wound up a sluggish fifth in the field of 11.

Fit for Today's Race

Rounders, who had served a season at the stud this spring before being returned to training, had finished third in the Excelsior handicap at Jamaica and was fit for today's race. Remerscheid reserved him just behind Ariel Flight, Alfios, and Boy Knight in the early stages, made his move on the final bend, and drew away in the home lane.

Boy Knight, making his move at the same time as Rounders, was no match for the victor and was driving to hold second safe from Lord Calvert and He Rolls.

Rounders earned about $6,675 by his victory. A crowd of about 15,000 watched the event.

SPANGLED GAME WINS

Pawtucket, R. I., June 2 (AP)—Spangled Game, 4 year old Greentree stable castoff now racing for Roy Metcalf and Bert Patalano, today scored his fourth and richest victory in four starts at Narragansett Park, winning the $10,000 Rhode Island handicap.

The son of Reigh Count came from far back in the mile and an eighth race to whip Mike Belasco's Easy Chance by a neck in 1:50 4-5.

The 7 to 10 crowd favorite, Spangled Game paid $3.40, $3, and $2.40 and earned $8,660, which boosted his season's earnings to $16,190. More than 22,000 attended.

Easy Chance paid $18.40 and $2.30 with W. A. Coleman's Toolmaker, which was two lengths back, paying $7.60.

SGT. RUFFING, 20 LBS. HEAVIER, TO LEAVE ARMY

Fort Dix, N. J., June 2 (AP)—Sgt. Charles [Red] Ruffing of the army air forces, former right handed pitcher for the New York Yankees, will get his discharge Monday or Tuesday, the Fort Dix public relations office said today. He became eligible for discharge when the war department ordered the release of men over 40.

Ruffing was 40 on May 5 and 20 pounds over his best playing weight. He said he had no immediate baseball plans. He was inducted Dec. 29, 1942.

"The first thing I plan is a vacation with my wife and child in the mountains of upstate New York," he said.

Port List, owned by Hyman Friedburg of Louisville, paid $6.40, $4.60, and $3.20 in the mutuels. [TRIBUNE Photos]

Parham and Brown Meet at Marigold

Art Brown, south side welterweight, will make his debut as a main event fighter when he meets Charley Parham, hard hitting Milwaukee boxer, in an eight round bout in Marigold Gardens tomorrow night.

Brown will be making only his ninth appearance as a professional, and of these nine bouts he has won seven. He has scored five straight triumphs, three by knockouts. He defeated James Kiggins of Indianapolis and Robert Fowler, Nashville, and then knocked out James [Smyles] Wilson, Jimmy Pierce, and Lyn Nelson.

Parham also has won five fights in a row, four by knockouts. He stopped Tommy James, Dave Riley, Sgt. Savior Canadeo, and Barry Wright, and beat Mike Bulik. Supporting matches:

Charley Wells, Gary, vs. Luther Brent [5], 160.

Bill Petersen, Indiana Harbor, vs. John Hubbard, Milwaukee [5], heavyweights.

Caesar Douglas, city Golden Gloves welterweight champion, vs. Robert Ellis [4], 145.

Nick Kachardus, west side, vs. Bill Clark [4], 130.

Eddie [Bad Man] Louie, Detroit heavyweight wrestler, will oppose Leo Kirilenko in the windup bout of a mat show in White City tomorrow night.

AUSTIN BEATS KELVYN PARK; TAKES 1ST PLACE

Austin High school's baseball team yesterday took over first place in the west section of the City league by defeating Kelvyn Park, 3 to 2, in eight innings in Columbus park. The teams previously had met in a tie game. Going into yesterday's game each team had a record of nine won and three lost.

ROBERTSON ASKS EXCESS PROFITS TAX REPEALER

Washington, June 2—(AP)—Legislation definitely ending the 95 per cent excess profits tax on Jan. 1 of the year following the end of the Japanese war was urged today by Rep. Robertson [D. Va.]. He wishes it included in the 5 billion dollar business "cash position" tax relief program soon ot come before congress.

A member of the house ways and means committee, he said he would offer an amendment to the tax bill stipulating the date.

Meanwhile, Chairman Doughton [D. N. C.] let it be known he is having legislation drawn embodying the joint congressional committee-treasury department program. Without the excess profits repealer, the bill would have little effect on the ultimate tax liability of businesses, but would increase their ready cash for reconversion by speeding payment of credits on excess profits taxes and of various post-war refunds already provided by law.

STRIKE CRIPPLES ALABAMA STEEL PLANT'S OUTPUT

Birmingham, Ala., June 2 (AP)—A crippling production stoppage developed here tonight as the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company reported 10,000 workers were made idle by a strike of some 1,100 blast furnace employes.

All the company's iron and steel making facilities are being shut down as a result, the company said.

B. F. Gage, field representative of the United Steelworkers of America [CIO], disputed the company's figure of those idle, and said he knew no reason why the closing of the blast furnaces should make it immediately necessary to halt other operations.

Gage said the walkout was "unauthorized," and asserted it resulted from the workers' demand for an incentive pay plan in their departments. Their demand has been before the war labor board "for nearly two years," he explained.

5,000 Out in Ohio

Cleveland, O., June 2 (AP)—More than 5,000 workers were idle in Ohio today as labor disputes disrupted transit, steel, and other industries.

At the B. F. Goodrich company in Akron, where tire builders returned to work yesterday after a Wednesday walkout in protest against use of factory service men to aid tire workers, all production was halted again.

Thousands of war workers in the Cincinnati metropolitan area were without transportation for the sixth consecutive day as 350 employes of the Cincinnati, Newport, and Covington Railway company and the Dixie Traction company rejected a WLB back-to-work order.

Manufacture of essential war materials was halted for the second day at the Marion Steam Shovel company as the result of a walkout by 1,250 production and maintenance employes.

44 Strikes in Progress

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP)—The United States conciliation service today reported 44 strikes in progress which it was handling up to 6 p. m. last night. An incomplete tabulation showed 18,115 workers were involved. Other strikes, some handled solely by the war labor board, were not included. None was listed in Wisconsin or Iowa. The nine shown for the midwest, unions involved, and the number of workers affected were:

ILLINOIS—Dixie Mills, East St. Louis, 250, International hod carriers [AFL]; Saginaw Malleable Iron Works, Tilton, 600, UAW [CIO].

MICHIGAN—Oliver Farm Equipment company, Battle Creek, 600, UAW [AFL]; New Haven foundry, New Haven, 125, UAW; Sibley quarry, Trenton, 125, UMWA; Fuller Mfg. company, Kalamazoo, 410, UAW [AFL]; Norge division, Borg Warner corporation, Muskegon, 1,300, UAW [AFL]; Packard Motor Car company, Detroit, 800, UAW [CIO]; Ross Operating Valve company, Detroit, 800, UAW [CIO].

INDIANA—Union City Body company, Union City, 400, UAW [CIO].

ONE FRONT WAR SHIFT HAS LIGHT EFFECT ON JOBS

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP)—The shift toward a one front war economy has added only slightly to unemployment rolls so far, war man power officials said today. Since mid-April, the number of persons who want jobs has increased 150,000 to about 950,000, not many more than at the peak of war production.

The officials emphasized that nothing has occurred to disturb their previous predictions that by early August unemployment will have climbed to approximately 2 million.

CHICAGO TOOK EARLY NOTE OF AUTO'S WORTH

First Car Race Test Held 50 Years Ago

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

The 50th anniversary of America's first automobile races—events credited with having ushered in the automobile era—will be celebrated in November by Chicago, the city which held them. They sparked the early development of the automobile and allied industries which resulted in the later creation of the vast auto and rubber enterprises in Detroit and Akron.

Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, president of the Museum of Science and Industry, yesterday told of plans to observe these milestones in American economic history. Within 50 years the automobile and related activities had created employment for more than 6½ million people, and made Americans the most traveled people on earth.

Adopt Name of "Motocycle"

Leaders in automobile and allied industries, technical societies, civic leaders, and others will take part in picturesque ceremonies extending thru Noevmber. When the races were held in November, 1895, no one had agreed on a name for the new contraption. G. H. Shaver of New York suggested motocycle and that was the name used during the races. Maj. Lohr said it was not until two years after the races that the first car was sold.

The competitions were held under the auspices of the old Chicago Times-Herald whose editor was H. H. Kohlsaat. Prizes totaling $5,000 and a gold medal were offered.

Original plans provided for a big race to be held on Nov. 2 from Chicago to Milwaukee and back, but when the date arrived few drivers were ready, so it was decided to postpone the major event until Nov. 28, which was Thanksgiving day. A "consolation" race, however, was run on the originally selected date, in which two cars took part in a run to Waukegan and back.

Duryea Brothers in Their Car

Charles E. and J. Frank Duryea, brothers, occupied a vehicle described as "the invention of the Duryea Motor Wagon company, Springfield, Mass." At the controls of the other car, a Benz, built in Germany, was Oscar Mueller, who drove for his father, H. Mueller, of Decatur, Ill. The race was started at Halsted and 55th streets.

When near Half Day, Charles E. Duryea ran his car into a ditch rather than strike a farm wagon, and the Benz, which finished, was declared the winner. Mueller covered the 92 miles from Chicago to Waukegan and back to the finish at Grant's monument at Lincoln park in an elapsed time of 9 hours 22½ minutes, or a running time of 8 hours 44 minutes.

On Oct. 27 the papers carried a list of 63 entries to take part in the major race, which was to take place over a course extending from Jackson park at the Midway plaisance to Davis st., Evanston, and back—a distance of 55 miles. Curiously, there was no entry from Detroit, tho later it was Detroit citizens who were to dominate the auto industry.

Driving Conditions Unfavorable

When Thanksgiving—the day of the big race—arrived, Chicago's streets were covered with snow, creating unfavorable driving conditions. Those listed as taking part in the history making event were: Duryea Motor Wagon company, a Duryea; the De LaVergne Refrigerating Machine company, New York, a German Benz; Morris & Salom, Philadelphia, an electric auto; H. Mueller & Co., Decatur, Ill., a Benz; R. H. Macy & Co., New York, a Roger-Benz, and the Sturges Electric Motorcycle company, Chicago, an electric.

Frank Duryea on this occasion got his revenge, for he won the race with the Muellers' Benz second. He started from Jackson park at 8:55 a. m. and finished at 7:18 p. m.

The Mueller Benz started at 10:06 a. m.—a late start—and finished at 8:53 p. m. Apparently it was rough driving for the Muellers because one of the Benz crew "fell unconscious"

Newspapers Take Big Role

Maj. Lohr said that newspaper accounts of the races and stories about the automobiles ran into far more space than had previously been written in scientific and other papers about the "horseless carriage," indicating the role played by the newspapers in promoting and developing new inventions.

The magazine Science in its Dec. 27, 1895, issue said that when the race was announced on July 11 there were known to be only three self driven road vehicles in the United States, but 75 entries were listed by Nov. 2.

Textiles Lack Reported Bar to Car Output

Scarcity of cotton and woolen textiles will be a barrier to the construction of new automobiles unless satisfactory substitutes are found, D. U. Bathrick, general sales manager of the Pontiac Motor division of General Motors corporation, said yesterday.

These materials are needed in various parts of each automobile. On the average a thousand cars require 4,736 yards of broadcloth or 3,748 yards of mohair, 3,560 yards of head lining, 2,316 yards of carpeting, 4,761 yards of cotton sheeting and 16,679 yards of burlap.

Plastics May Help

"Plastics which may be woven may prove a satisfactory substitute in the case of upholstery, but this is a minor portion of the textiles going into an automobile," he said.

The most serious shortage exists in cotton fabrics which are used extensively in tire building. Increased demands of the army, declining production caused by man power shortages, and unsatisfactory prices are blamed for the scarcity of cotton products.

The army says it is purchasing substantial quantities of these goods because it has to reëquip large forces for Asiatic warfare which is expected to involve a wide variety of climactic and battle conditions.

Man Power Dwindles

The most obvious reason for the drop in production this year is the scarity of labor. Workers have left the mills for better paying jobs in shipyards and ordnance plants, and will be reluctant to return even tho wages are higher than when they left, it was said.

Mill operators are dissatisfied with prices fixed by the office of price administration, asserting OPA has not made the manufacture of low priced goods sufficiently profitable.

WAR SPENDING IN MAY IS NEAR MONTHLY PEAK

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP)—Despite the end of hostilities in Europe, United States expenditures for the war in May were the second highest on record. The treasury's daily statement today showed the government spent $8,155,892,930 on war activities last month, not including the expenditures of government corporations. The record breaking 8 billion 246 million mark was set in March.

No real drop in war spending is expected until autumn, the treasury said.

War expenditures in the 11 months of the 1945 fiscal year were 82 billion 191 million, compared with 79 billion 471 million a year earlier.

May's war expenditures raised to 38 billion 39 million the total spent on the war in the first five months of 1945.

GRAIN FUTURES FINISH STRONG, WHEAT LEADING

Grain futures finished strong yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade after all grains except corn opened fractionally higher. Wheat led the upturn with September, December, and May deliveries reaching new seasonal highs.

Wheat closed ⅜ to 1¼ cents a bushel higher, corn unchanged to 1 cent higher, oats gained ⅜ to ⅝, and rye 1 to 1¼.

Stop-loss orders on September and December wheat, continued mill buying of the near-by delivery to meet government flour orders, and more crop damage reports added strength. July wheat broke 1⅜ cents from the high mark at one time on reported selling by southwest interests and hedging operations against expected heavy receipts over the week-end.

INDUSTRY ASKS MATERIALS NOT NEEDED IN WAR

Plants Want a Fair Chance to Convert

Government authorities were urged yesterday by the Illinois Manufacturers association's policy committee to determine as closely as possible the military requirements for the Japanese war and then to make available to industry the materials and supplies remaining so that reconversion can be expedited and extensive unemployment avoided.

Sterling Morton

Sterling Morton, chairman of the board of the I. M. A., is chairman of the committee. Copies of its statement were sent to Secretary of War Stimson, Under Secretary Patterson, Gen. George C. Marshall, Lt. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, army service forces chief; Maj. Gen. L. H. Campbell, Jr., chief of ordnance; Chairman Krug of the war production board, Chairman Thomas [D., Utah] of the senate military affairs committee, and Chairman May [D., Ky.] of the house military affairs committee.

Complicated by Lack of Plan

The I. M. A. plea followed a recent assertion by Ira Mosher, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, that resumption of civilian production was being "made more complicated by the lack of an orderly program on the part of the military services."

Industry recognizes that its paramount obligation is to supply the military needs for the war against Japan, the Illinois association said, and will produce with the same dispatch as it did for the defeat of Germany.

Overall requirements for the Japanese war will be substantially less than for the conduct of the combined European and Pacific operations, it reminded. Further, many war contracts will be canceled or curtailed and industries will be confronted with the problem of reconverting to civilian production.

"To facilitate reconversion of these industries to peace time production, and to avoid extensive unemployment and dislocation, it is essential that materials and supplies not in fact required for the Japanese war be made promptly available for civilian production, and also that every unnecessary war emergency control and regulation be removed," the committee asserted.

Asks Industry Be Advised

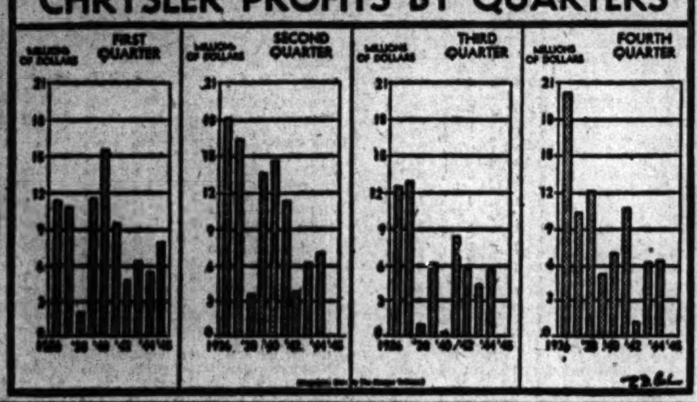
"We urge that our governmental authorities [1] estimate as accurately as possible and systematically schedule the requirements for the Japanese war and for military preparedness, [2] that in estimating the military requirements inventories of military equipment and supplies and taken into consideration, and [3] that industry be advised regarding military requirements.

Mosher had said industry believed the adjustment from a two front to a one front war should be utilized to bring about a gradual shift to normal times instead of having the nation faced with an overnight plunge from war to peace conditions after the Japs are defeated.

United Asks to Add New West Coast Round Trip

United Air Lines yesterday asked authority from the civil aeronautics board to add another round trip to the Chicago-San Francisco flight, via Omaha, Neb., and Cheyenne, Wyo., Harold Crary, vice president, said.

CHRYSLER PROFITS BY QUARTERS



Trucking Law Compromise Is to Be Offered

Truckers would be permitted to operate heavier vehicles in Illinois, but would be compelled to keep them on state paved routes, under a compromise ready to be submitted to the legislature, it was learned yesterday.

Officials of the state division of highways, spokesmen for the trucking industry, and a special legislative subcommittee have agreed to permit maximum axle weights to be increased from 16,000 to 18,000 pounds. Trucks carrying more than 16,000 pounds per axle, however, could be driven only on concrete, brick, or concrete base stretches of the state highway system.

Kept Off County Roads

The stipulation that the bigger trucks could not be driven on county or township roads was an effort to meet objections of the Illinois Agricultural association, whose officials have insisted that heavy vehicles speed deterioration of highways. In regulating weights and lengths of vehicles, Illinois has never differentiated between traffic on heavy pavement and lightly graveled rural routes.

Maximum lengths and speed limits also would be increased under the compromise program which is to be finally ratified at a meeting in Springfield Tuesday evening. Rep. Lewis [R., Marshall], house spokesman for the special trucking subcommittee, said he was ready to introduce the program as amendments to bills bearing the name of Rep. Hunter [R., Rockford]. Conflicting bills sponsored by Lewis' subcommittee then would be dropped.

Boost Length, Speed Limit

Tractor-semi-trailer and other truck combinations would be permitted to be 45 feet long and 40 foot lengths would be legal for buses and single-unit or "straight" trucks, increasing each classification by five feet. For gross weights up to 14,000 pounds speeds of 45 miles an hour would be permitted, with 40 mile speeds legalized for heavier trucks. Under the present law 35 miles an hour is the maximum speed for any truck. To be threshed out this week is the question of how much fees should be increased for the big trucks. Operators have agreed to an increase.

INDICTED FIRM CLOSES, OFFERS PLANT TO NAVY

Fort Wayne, Ind., June 2 (AP)—Earl A. Munger, president of the Durham Manufacturing corporation, today announced the company, which was indicted recently on charges of conspiring to defraud the government in the manufacture of war materials, has closed its plant and offered it to the navy "without charge."

Munger told employes "continued investigation" had disrupted work and "made efficient operation almost impossible."

"Therefore, in order that the high standard of operation may be continued, we have offered the plant and its facilities to the navy without charge so that much needed material may be produced," he said.

INDUSTRIAL PROFITS RISE

Industrial earnings in the first quarter of 1945, when the influence of the war on business was at or near its peak, continued the upward trend shown in recent years. Aggregate net income of $375,807,000 was reported by 363 large companies included in a survey by Standard & Poor's corporation. This was a gain of 7.7 per cent over the $349,053,000 earned in the first three months last year.

Federal government expenditures during the quarter for all purposes totaled $25,094,325,000, compared with $23,956,837,000 in the 1944 period. Altho increased government outlays were responsible for some of the improvement in earnings, there were other factors. Industrial efficiency in war production has been rising. The largest gain in profits percentagewise was shown by the air transport group. It resulted at least in part from a lessening impact of the war, because it reflected an increase in operations made possible by the government's return of requisitioned planes. Six air lines reported combined net income of $3,705,000, up 102.5 per cent over the first quarter of 1944.

The second largest gain, 67.5 per cent, was made by the retail trade division. Next in order were railroad equipment, dairy products, oil, metal fabricating, house furnishings, and food, with increases ranging from 16 to 22.2 per cent.

Among industries in which decreased profits were shown were gold and silver mining, aircraft manufacturing, office equipment, finance, automobile parts, and coal. Railroad and public utility earnings were not included in the comparisons. Combined net income of class 1 railroads for the first quarter, partly estimated, declined about 5.9 per cent. Profits of electrical utilities, it is indicated, decreased about 5 per cent.

The earnings trend in later months of the year will be studied with reference to the effect of the expected further reduction in war orders. In industries which will require several months for reconversion or which may be delayed in obtaining enough man power and materials, earnings are expected to suffer temporarily, despite the vast demands awaiting many lines of consumer durable goods.

There is belief among some producers that profits from normal lines will be "squeezed" until production attains high volume. The office of price administration plans to hold prices of most civilian goods at the 1942 levels, with adjustments promised for average increases in wages and material costs for the industry since 1941. Profit margins would be limited to the average spread in 1936-'39.

PRICES OF LIVE STOCK MOUNT DESPITE CURBS

Many View Subsidy as Inflationary

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON

Pressure toward inflation in the live stock industry was stronger last week than at any time since the government began its effort to control prices. The price line drawn by the office of price administration gave way most in cattle in which the biggest share of the subsidy money has been used to hold down consumer costs and to keep packers and farmers' operations out of the "red." Pressure was weakest in the lamb trade in which little of the federal money is spent.

Many farm and trade leaders have contended that the flow of federal subsidy money into the industry has been contributing to price inflation because all payments add to the over-all cost regardless of whether packers or the government make the extra investment.

Set Seasonal Peak

The general level of the market for cattle is highest for this season in the history of the stock yards, and with the recent 50 cents a hundred pounds subsidy to farmers, the level tops any on record for any season.

The least money has been spent by the government to control sheep and lamb stock. They are the only meat animals without an OPA ceiling, altho there are ceilings on lamb meat and mutton. The government invests 95 cents a hundred pounds subsidy in the lamb trade, $1.70 in hogs, and an average of $2.25 in cattle. Subsidy payments to packers began two years ago.

In the two years the general level of live stock prices has advanced 3 per cent, with steer costs up 9 per cent and hogs 1 per cent. The lamb price declined 1 per cent.

Steers Climb in 4 Years

The May steer average was 66 per cent higher than in 1941, the year this country entered the war. Hogs gained 63 per cent and lambs 50 per cent. The $16.35 steer price was highest on record for May. The $14.70 hog average was best for the month since 1920, but was below the May averages in 1917, 1918, and 1919. The lamb average, at $15.40, was below both 1944 and 1943 levels, and there are seven years on record with higher May prices.

Most kinds of steers advanced 50 cents last week, altho top kinds gained only 10 to 15 cents. Heifers rose 25 to 50 cents.

Hogs were firm at OPA ceilings thruout the week.

VETS WILL GET FIRST CHOICE IN SURPLUS SALES

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP)—Chairman Gillette of the surplus property board, announcing priority on surplus sales for veterans establishing small businesses, disclosed today the board will urge changes in the surplus disposal act.

Gillette, who has submitted his resignation, would not indicate what changes will be sought. Board officials said Gillette supports a single administrator to deal with war surplus instead of the three man board, believes that SPB should be an independent agency, and that he also objects to the fact that the board has no direct control over actual sales, which are handled by other agencies.

The new veterans' priority ruling will permit returned service men to buy surplus goods and equipment directly from the government, Gillette said.

Stocks Move Higher, Some to 8 Year Top

New York, June 2 (AP)—Investment demand, based mainly on peace time business hopes, lifted assorted rails and utilities to new eight year peaks in today's stock market altho late selling stemmed the advance. The railway group led the early rise, and when some weakness appeared power and light issues developed strength. Numerous traders trimmed accounts in the belief recent buying had been overdone.

Dealings were relatively fast from the start and transfers of 980,000 shares, compared with 700,000 a week ago, were the largest for a Saturday since Feb. 3. The Associated Press 60 stock average closed unchanged at 66.4, but was up 0.8 for the week. The utility composite rose 0.3 to a new high since 1937.

Canadian Pacific Leads.

At highest levels for the year or longer were Canadian Pacific, again the most active issue; Baltimore and Ohio, Illinois Central, Consolidated Edison, Electric Power and Light, Public Service of New Jersey, American Water Works, Engineers Public Service, and American Woolen. Also ahead were Laclede Gas, North American, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, and United States Rubber.

Losers included Goodyear, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Boeing, du Pont, Kennecott, American Can, Eastman Kodak, J. C. Penny, and Western Union "A."

BONDS RISE SLIGHTLY

New York, June 2 (AP)—The bond market rose slightly today with railroad issues recording gains of fractions to more than a point. Central of Georgia first 5s advanced 1, Denver and Rio Grande 4½s of '36 rose 1¼, Katy 4½s were up 1¼, Ogdensburg and Lake Champlain 4s rose 2⅛, and New York and Harlem 3½s were up 2. Small gains were made by Baltimore and Ohio, Milwaukee road, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Seaboard Air Line, and Northern Pacific obligations.

CHICAGO STOCKS MIXED

Prices were mixed yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange in turnover of 16,000 shares. Volume leaders included New York Central and Chicago corporation, unchanged; Middle West and Aviation corporation, up fractions, and Nash-Kelvinator, down ⅜.

ASSIGN 30 TO 35 SHIPS FOR BRIEF LATIN SERVICE

Washington, D. C., June 2—(AP)—Between 30 and 35 United States merchant ships have been assigned temporarily to Latin American routes, the war shiping administration disclosed today.

Most of the ships will make only one trip, carrying coal and other bulk cargo south, and return with ores, vegetable oils, fats, and civilian supplies.

UTILITIES FREED OF U.S. CURB ON INSTALLATIONS

Expansion, Repairs Are Permitted

Washington, D. C., June 2 [Special]—The war production board today relaxed its controls to permit utilities to proceed with long deferred plans to expand their systems and begin the large volume of maintenance and reconstruction work accumulated because of war time limitations.

The action virtually revoked all controls on the installation of facilities by electric, gas, water, and communications utilities.

Essential to Peace Service

Recalling that utilities have been operating for almost four years on a "bare bones" policy in regard to expansion, Edward Falck, director of the WPB office of war utilities, asserted immediate relaxation of curbs was essential to assure that utilities will be in a healthy condition to service industry and civilians after the war."

"Since V-E day it has become clear that the type of materials required in the installation of utility facilities are no longer in short supply for the most part," he said. "Manufacturers of specialized power equipment, such as turbines and boilers, now have sufficient open capacity as a result of military cutbacks to take care of all utilities requirements with margin to spare."

The new WPB policy will permit utilities to make any addition to plants on an unrated basis without obtaining prior authorization from Washington, except for construction of new buildings whose cost in materials would exceed $25,000.

Expect Doubled Volume

Falck estimated that the removal of construction controls would involve expenditures by utilities in the coming year of twice the volume in either of the last two years when they were limited to only the most essential new facilities or repair of obsolescent items.

He placed the outlay by utilities in 1946 at 1 billion 630 million dollars, compared with 815 million in 1943 and 787 million in 1944. Because of the long time required for the manufacture of most utility facilities, the increase in expenditures during the remainder of this year was not expected to exceed 40 million dollars.

The WPB also revoked a general limitation order which had restricted manufacture and distribution of 26 industrial equipment items. Among these were fractional horse power electric motors and generators; paper shredders; portable conveyors; ceramic machinery and equipment; concrete products machinery; fans, blowers and exhausters; lifting magnets, and wire working machinery.

Two Ways to Solve Your Product Marking Problem

Right now you're up to your ears in war production. But you probably are still thinking about a new product to be made when peace comes. You're also probably thinking about marketing that product . . . how to trademark it, package it or how to get your story across at the point of sale, among other things.

That's where Dennison comes in. Whatever your marking problem, remember there's more than a century of specialized experience at your beck and call here in Framingham. So when the time comes, put your problems up to says The Wall Street Journal

Building men have made a promising start toward putting billions of dollars of postwar construction on a firm foundation of longer-lasting, easier-working, stronger concrete.

The secret of this new concrete, The Wall Street Journal explained in a recent survey, lies in the admixture of certain chemicals with the cement.

The story told how the chemicals, chiefly derived from wood waste, can be used to increase the resistance of concrete to frost and salt action . . . make it water-repellent . . . make it more homogeneous . . . speed or retard its curing.

In relatively minor use before the war, thousands of cubic yards of the new concrete have since been used in highways, buildings, bridges and dams.

Promise for expansion after the war is great, as treated concrete will go into more and more of these and other postwar construction projects.

Typically, this story was featured as news in The Wall Street Journal. For it is the practice of The Journal to bring you not only spot news but authoritative, up-to-the-minute information on gradually developing and equally important subjects that concern forward-looking business men.

Feature stories such as this, together with news of the day, a special weekly Washington column and other articles, combine to make The Wall Street Journal the complete business daily . . . in fact, a new kind of newspaper for those who, like itself, look ahead.

For an alert, progressive company, interested in acquiring a product in the state of models, proven operating principles, and patents, and able to apply to it the design energy warranted by substantial sales potential.

Composed of precision-machined metal parts, this product has application to machine tools, Diesel engine drives, electric motor drives, and wherever variable speed power application is required. Hydraulic, with all the characteristics of smoothness and flexibility which that implies.

We would like to show to the president of such a progressive company a factual, time-saving presentation of this product. His personal inquiry on company letterhead will bring prompt response, for his prompt decision.

114 STOCKS RATED "BUY"

Who Is STANDARD & POOR'S

Ever since 1860, this organization has assembled, analysed, interpreted and published financial and investment information.

This vital material is used by virtually all large banks, security dealers, and increasing thousands of corporate and individual investors.

Since we cover continually thousands of widely held securities, we undertake a vast amount of fact-finding, research, statistical compilation and analysis.

We maintain groups of highly trained experts, each member being carefully chosen for background and knowledge of the industry to which he is assigned. We employ field investigators from coast to coast.

Corporate executives are interviewed regularly.

We secure important information of a type that never appears in newspapers or corporate statements.

Our own conclusions concerning every significant company are checked constantly with the men in closest touch with the problems we are investigating. In short . . .

Standard & Poor's is The Largest Statistical and Investment Advisory Organization in the World—Established 1860.

You can have this company's confidential list of 114 stocks rated BUY as a part of the special offer below.

We have literally put thousands of securities through the analytical sieve, discarding all but those which we consider outstandingly attractive. Of these 114 stocks: 17 are selling under 20—60 between 20 and 50—37 above 50.

This Is Your Opportunity

We will send you this confidential "buy" list of 114 common stocks with a 3-months' trial subscription to THE OUTLOOK, a Service for Investors. It keeps you informed of important investment trends and developments and enables you to invest with added safety. It brings you definite advice . . .

Which stocks to buy, and when
Which stocks to hold
Which stocks to sell, and when Reinvestment advice.

This Special Offer Brings You

in addition to THE OUTLOOK:

1. Standard & Poor's confidential Buy list of 114 common stocks.
2. A copy of S & P's Stock Guide which gives you valuable information and definite market opinions on well over 3,200 stocks—the most important issues listed on exchanges throughout the country and sold over the counter.
3. A Security Record for your stocks and other security holdings so that you can have at all times a complete and comprehensive picture of your holdings.

Also . . .

How To Invest Successfully

Bonus with this offer. A brochure that lays down in clear, non-technical language, the cardinal principles of sound investing.

Important for use with our confidential Buy List.

Invaluable for the beginner—Important for the informed investor.

Why Prompt Action Should Enable You to Profit in the Second Phase of the Bull Market Which Appears Ahead

There are tremendous forces in existence which will spur this country into peacetime prosperity.

Anticipated buying power and demand of the American people will be translated into terms of corporation earnings which, in turn, are reflected in higher stock prices. Wise investors will appreciate this and lay the foundation now for future profits from common stocks.

The Most Important Period in 100 Years—Ahead!

We have ahead of us in this country probably the most important period in 100 years . . . a "Good Times" era.

This period will witness a great industrial boom that will sweep us on to a higher standard of living than we have yet experienced. World trade will revive. New products will attain mass production. Venture capital will come out of hiding.

Washington will again encourage business. Labor will become more conservative as its responsibilities grow. Prosperity will be built on a sound monetary system.

All of this makes for a strong stock market. Indeed, we may witness buying and selling of securities on a scale that has not been approached since the days of pyramided margin accounts.

RIVER FOREST MANOR

The selection of your future neighborhood is the foundation for everything the word home stands for. The neighborhood develops the character of your children. Your homesite should have an established character that will give a high standard of community life for your children as they are growing up. River Forest Manor offers you a life time of high values and the right type of neighborhood life. This opinion has been concurred in by the large number of individuals who have purchased homesites since the first of the year when this sub-division was first offered to the general public. Our office also offers facilities to help you plan and build your future home. You are cordially invited to visit with us at any time.

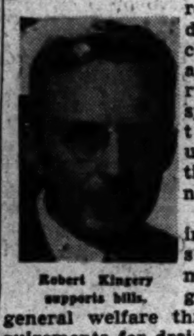
COUNTY ZONING SOUGHT AS BAR TO RURAL SLUM

Illinois Senate Considers Two Measures

BY AL CHASE
[Real Estate Editor]



Robert Kingery supports bills.

Zoning legislation which would grant county boards authority to regulate the subdividing of unincorporated areas and prevent rural slums from spreading into the country is under consideration in the Illinois legislature.

Improvements in construction standards and measures to safeguard health and general welfare thru adequate requirements for drainage, safe wells, septic tanks, and road surfacing are proposed in two senate bills which soon will come to a vote after receiving unanimous committee approval.

Du Page County Is Pioneer

With the exception of Du Page county, a pioneer in careful zoning of unincorporated areas, the few Chicagoland counties which are zoned have laws which affect only the laying out of subdivisions. No provision is made to compel the subdivider to install water or drainage systems, surface the roads, or comply with any building codes in the erection of homes. If his streets are wide enough and laid out properly he can sell his lots without any health safeguards and the buyer may build nearly any kind of house he wishes if he obtains a county building permit.

The proposed new laws would change all of this. Water supply and sewage disposal provisions would be required of the subdivider under rules of the state department of health. Streets would be surfaced and drained to comply with regulations of the county superintendent of highways.

Fight New Thistle Patches

Construction of homes would be in accordance with whatever building code was adopted by the county for areas outside of incorporated communities. Provision also would be made for necessary public space for schools, parks, or playgrounds.

Apprehension has been expressed that unregulated subdivisions again will mushroom over the farm and truck gardening portions of Cook county, leaving an inevitable trail of tax delinquent lots and thistle patches like those still in evidence in and near Chicago suburbs as a result of the realty boom of the early 1920s.

To prevent a repetition of this, various organizations and individuals sponsored the proposed legislation. Among them are C. A. Hughes, county farm adviser and active in coöperative extension work in agriculture and home economics for the state; the Illinois Agricultural association, the truck gardeners' association, and other groups.

Supported by Plan Group

"Measures of this kind have received the enthusiastic support of the Chicago Regional Planning association," said Robert Kingery, general manager. "Good health of the rural resident is at stake, and reliable subdividers always are willing to provide these essential improvements. They see that the rural slum is a blight to the country area and damaging to their business."

"This proposed zoning legislation for counties should do a wonderful job in protecting the countryside around Chicago," said LeRoy J. Keneval, vice president of Frederick H. Bartlett & Co., one of Chicago's largest subdivision firms.

SELL HARPER AV. UNITS

The southwest corner of Harper av. and 54th pl., 100 by 150 feet, improved with two buildings containing 21 flats, was sold for $61,500 by the Prairie State bank, trustee, to Jerome M. and Lester W. Spector, thru Peter Tutules, Inc.

Sold for $315,000

This apartment building at 5490 South Shore dr., adjoining the Shoreland hotel (right), was sold for $315,000 and will be remodeled into small units.

Realty Miscellany

Joseph E. Merrion of Chicago, president of the National Association of Home Builders, announced the appointment of a low cost housing committee, headed by Arvid Petersen of Detroit, to study all factors involved in the volume production of low cost housing by private enterprise. Roy Davis of Chicago will head a subcommittee on lower cost materials. Other subcommittees will study architectural design, land planning, building codes, lower cost assembly, labor costs, and new materials.

Martin H. Braun, Cary E. De Butts, and Felix Nelson have opened new adjoining offices at 1035 South blvd., Oak Park, each operating individually in his branch of home building. Braun, architect, will continue in home planning. De Butts, realtor, will manage the Braun projects in addition to his own real estate business. Nelson, general contractor active in war housing, will join with Braun in construction on individual homes for veterans.

Real estate sales problems will be discussed at the monthly business meeting of the Chicago Real Estate board after a dinner at 6 p. m. Wednesday. Floyd G. Dana, new president, said Harold A. Moore, vice president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, will speak on real estate price trends, and Arthur S. Kirk, president of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, will talk on "Sales Ideas that Click."

Homer Hoyt, formerly director of research for the Chicago plan commission who is completing a study of metropolitan New York City economic trends for the regional plan association of that city, announced that he is with a new planning organization, Churchill-Fulmer Associates, 56 W. 45th st., New York. Others in the concern are Henry S. Churchill, O. Kline Fulmer, and Raymond A. Bowers.

Joseph A. Thorsen is the successor and sole owner of the real estate business of Thorsen & Fouch, Inc., La Grange, he said yesterday. The corporation has been dissolved and Thorsen will operate the business under his own name. Squire Fouch, vice president of the corporation and former president of the La Grange Real Estate board, has moved to New Boston, N. H.

Mills & Sons announced the opening of an office at 607 Davis st., Evanston. William F. McHugh, assistant vice president, is in charge.

Elgin Broker Sells Four Farms with 755 Acres

Sales of four farms with a total of 755 acres for $142,262 were reported yesterday by William H. Abelmann, Elgin real estate broker. The 120 acre Loretto A. McCormick farm, at Plato Center, was sold to Albert Lang for $29,400. Harry A. Thompson of Chicago bought the 215 acre Peter Bensen farm, 1½ miles north of Bartlett, for $157.50 per acre, or $33,862. The 210 acre Henry A. Dreffein farm on Higgins rd., near route 25, just east of Dundee, was purchased by John A. Polivka of La Grange for $41,000. Donald S. Buck of Wilmette bought for $38,000 the 210 acre Walter E. Healy farm on Higgins rd., east of Dundee near Beverly lake.

20 BIG FLATS TO BE REBUILT INTO 120 UNITS

Julius Taxay yesterday bought for $315,000 the 10 story apartment building at the northwest corner of South Shore dr. and 54th st. He will rebuild the 20 suites of 10 and 11 rooms into 120 small units of 2, 2½, and 3½ rooms at a reported cost of $250,000 from plans by Paul Frederick Olsen, architect, as fast as leases permit. Financing will be thru Dovenmuehle, Inc. Work will be started on four apartments in October and completion of the entire project is expected during 1946.

The building was erected at a reported cost of more than 1 million dollars in 1919 by the Jackson Shore Building corporation. The Metropolitan Life Insurance company acquired the property in 1939.

It was sold by Metropolitan, thru Howard Hilton, president of Great Lakes Mortgage corporation, for $100,000 cash and a $215,000 mortgage. Title was taken by the 5490 Building corporation, of which Taxay is president. Justin Turner was broker, with C. Robert Lazerus, president of the Mortgage corporation, associated.

Taxay, who recently bought control of the nine story apartment building at 3400 Lake Shore dr., at the northwest corner of Roscoe st., gradually is remodeling its 11 suites of 10 and 12 rooms into 33 units of three and five rooms from plans by Olsen, at a reported cost of $50,000.

PLAN 25 HOMES TO BE BUILT ON EVANSTON SITES

Grace V. Meagher, representing a syndicate headed by Glen C. Crawford, has purchased 370 feet at the southeast corner of Main st. and Dewey av., opposite Boltwood Park in Evanston.

Crawford is having plans drawn for a group of 25 gas heated town houses, each including six rooms, one and one-half baths, and recreation room. Construction is scheduled to start early this summer with occupancy in the fall.

David L. Cella, of Lange, Weise & Cella, was the broker. This is the third large tract Crawford and his associates have purchased in Evanston in the last four months.

Ashland and 63d Corner Purchased for $151,000

The northeast corner of 63d st. and Ashland av., improved with a two story store and office building, was sold by the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, for $151,000 thru Peter Tutules, Inc. Title was taken by the Trust Company of Chicago. The Metropolitan Life Insurance company, thru the Great Lakes Mortgage corporation, made a loan of $90,000 at 4 per cent.

Sell Stony Island Hotel and Stores for $115,000

The three story building, containing the Euclid hotel and six stores at 6735-45 Stony Island av., was sold by the Euclid Building corporation yesterday to an undisclosed buyer for $115,000 thru Peter Tutules, Inc. Title was taken by the Lake Shore National bank. Murray Wolbach was broker for the buyer.

Continental Can Buys Big Vacant Tract Near Plant

The Continental Can company recently bought the two blocks area bounded by 75th, 76th, Loomis, and Throop sts., containing 7½ acres, from Hattie H. Madaline and Earl G. Magerstadt. It adjoins Continental's McDonald plant.

LAKE ST. GARAGE SOLD

The two story fireproof garage at 219 W. Lake st., under lease to the R. G. Lydy Parking company, was sold by Edward C. Porter to the Henry Witbeck estate for $40,000 thru Dibblee & Manierre.

6230 KENMORE FLAT BUILDING IS REFINANCED

The 17 story apartment building at 6230 Kenmore av., which stood uncompleted for several years and was financed thru the RFC Mortgage company in 1941 with a 10 year 4½ per cent $525,000 loan, has been refinanced with a $440,000 20 year 3¾ per cent loan thru Salk, Ward & Walk. Herbert N. Lustig of Ross, Browne & Fleming, property agent, said the refinancing will effect a substantial saving to stockholders because annual payments were reduced $19,000. The building contains 134 apartments of 3½, 4, and 5 rooms. Walter Senne of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin & Ellis was attorney in the refinancing negotiations.

GETS 2 MILLION NEW PALMOLIVE BUILDING LOAN

The 919 corporation, owner of the 37 story Palmolive building, 919 N. Michigan av., yesterday negotiated a 2 million dollar 20 year loan on the property with the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company, represented by Arthur J. Hayslett, Chicago mortgage loan agent.

The loan will be used to pay $1,725,000 remaining on a former 3 million dollar mortgage and supply additional working capital, said Walter Ross of Ross, Browne & Fleming, president of the 919 corporation. Leo J. Carlin of Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautman, Levinson & Morse was attorney.

Building on Halsted St. Leased by Chain Store

Goodfriend's Department Stores, a women's ready to wear chain, operating principally in the east, has leased for 10 years beginning July 1 the two story building at 6400 S. Halsted st., formerly occupied by Richman Brothers. The chain has one Chicago store, which is in the loop. Harry M. Engleistein & Co. represented the owner, the Kaplan estate, and Irving Callner of Milton Callner & Co. was broker for the lessee.

TWA Leases Office Space at Wabash and Monroe

Transcontinental & Western Air recently leased first floor corner space and most of the second floor in the Champlain building at the northeast corner of S. Wabash av. and E. Monroe st. It will occupy the present quarter of the Regal Shoe company and George Weinhoeber, Inc., florist, probably about Sept. 1. The first floor space will be remodeled for a ticket office.

News of the Architects

Samuel G. Neiler, operating as Neiler, Rich & Co., consulting electrical and mechanical engineers, yesterday announced the appointment of Arthur M. Bladen, chief engineer, as partner. The firm will be known as Neiler, Rich & Bladen and occupy the same offices at 431 S. Dearborn st. it has occupied for more than 50 years. The firm was formed in 1894 as Pierce, Richardson & Neiler. In 1906 the name was changed to Neiler, Rich & Co.

Ralph C. Harris has moved his architectural and engineering office to larger quarters in the Monadnock building, 53 W. Jackson blvd.

Elmer Gyllick has moved his office from the Marquette building to 120½ S. Grove av., Elgin, his home city.

Speed Urged for Post-War Building Plans

Advance planning of post-war construction projects must be speeded if the building industry is to provide its full share of employment during the first year of peace, Russell G. Creviston, chairman of the post-war committee of the Producers' council, said yesterday.

Creviston, who is director of public relations for the Crane company, said reports indicated that the volume of construction which actually had reached the planning stage was well below the 15 billion dollar total which he said should be ready by the time unrestricted civilian construction again is permitted.

Not All Delay Unavoidable.

"Some of the planning has been unavoidably postponed because the individuals and organizations responsible for it are devoting their full efforts to the war program," he said. "Much of the needed post-war building, however, could be advanced to the blueprint stage at this time without interrupting war production and without depriving war industry of essential technical services.

"The latest available information indicates that the planning of both public and private construction is lagging, altho private projects are reported to be making somewhat better progress than those to be built by the federal, state, and local governments.

Industrial Projects Lag.

"Highway construction is well in the lead, so far as planning is concerned, while industrial projects are decidedly behind schedule."

Creviston said a recent survey among manufacturers of building materials and equipment indicated that mass production for nearly all types of construction products would be restored within six months after restrictions are removed. Production of most materials and many types of equipment was expected to reach or pass 1939 levels in two to four months.

BIG SOUTH SHORE APARTMENT UNIT SOLD FOR $240,000

The three story Tower apartment building, occupying a block of frontage on 67th st., between Constance and Cregier avs., overlooking Jackson Park, was sold yesterday for $240,000. Liberty National bank, trustee, was seller, represented by J. A. Malooly & Co. The buyer was Jens P. Nielsen, trustee, represented by Swanson & House. The building contains 77 small apartments. The new owner negotiated a 15 year first mortgage for $150,000 thru Sharon Mortgage company.

Brothers Buy Apartment Building on Belmont Av.

The 13 story apartment building at 426 Belmont av., containing 97 small suites, was sold yesterday by the 426 Belmont corporation to Maj. Sol S. Hoffman for $272,050. Hoffman conveyed title to the Metropolitan Trust company, trustee for himself and his brother Lt. Col. Samuel J. Hoffman. Maurice L. Davis was attorney for the buyers.

THE MAN MAKES THE OFFICE, NOT THE OFFICE THE MAN

By WALTER TROHAN

Washington, D. C.

FOR THE 14TH TIME in the history of the United States the nation is without a Vice President. A few weeks ago Harry S. Truman became the seventh Vice President to succeed to the nation's highest office thru the death of a President. At seven other times in history the office has been vacant thru the death of Vice Presidents.

The absence of a Vice President has passed virtually unnoticed in the weeks President Truman has been taking control of the helm of state. Sen. Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) slipped into the presiding seat of the senate by virtue of his election as president pro tempore of that body as Mr. Truman went to the White House to take the oath of office, and the senate has been doing business as usual.

The office of Vice President would appear to be the vermiform appendix of the body politic, because for the most part the government can function as easily with or without a Vice President.

It is a curious thing that the office of Vice (Continued on page four)

MONTANA . . . A HOUSE DIVIDED

● This is the second of a series of articles on regional America written by Alex Small, whose instructive and discerning articles on India and on American periodicals have appeared recently in this section. Having served nearly 20 years as a Tribune correspondent in Europe, he is capable of viewing the American scene with a detachment impossible to stay-at-homes. His opinions and impressions, however, do not necessarily coincide with those of The Tribune.

By ALEX SMALL

MONTANA is a good illustration of the fact that our states were created according to political considerations or maybe to surveyors' fancies and do not follow natural geography or economic lines.

The continental divide, the watershed which has the Mississippi-Missouri basin to the east and the water systems of the Pacific coast to the west, cuts Montana into two unequal parts quite dissimilar in physical aspects, in economy, and to some extent in the character of the people.

The eastern and larger (about two-thirds of the state) part may be considered as an annex of the Dakotas, somewhat wilder and even more sparsely inhabited, and, like the Dakotas, given to farming and stock raising. Western Montana has been and still is primarily a mining community, full of abandoned ghost towns (one at every turn of the road, I was told with some exaggeration). Its population has shifted about following the chances of exhausted lodes and the movements of the capricious metal market. In the last decade there have been signs that it is acquiring stability by turning from mining and lumbering to agriculture, and the expectation is that the tendency will become still more marked with the development of irrigation projects.

On those projects you will also find a division which conforms to the continental divide. In eastern Montana interest is in the MVA (Missouri valley authority), as in the Dakotas, the region being in the Missouri basin. In western Montana interest is in the even more grandiose scheme already begun by harnessing the Columbia river at Grand Coulee in Washington, and expected to be extended thru northern Idaho and into Montana.

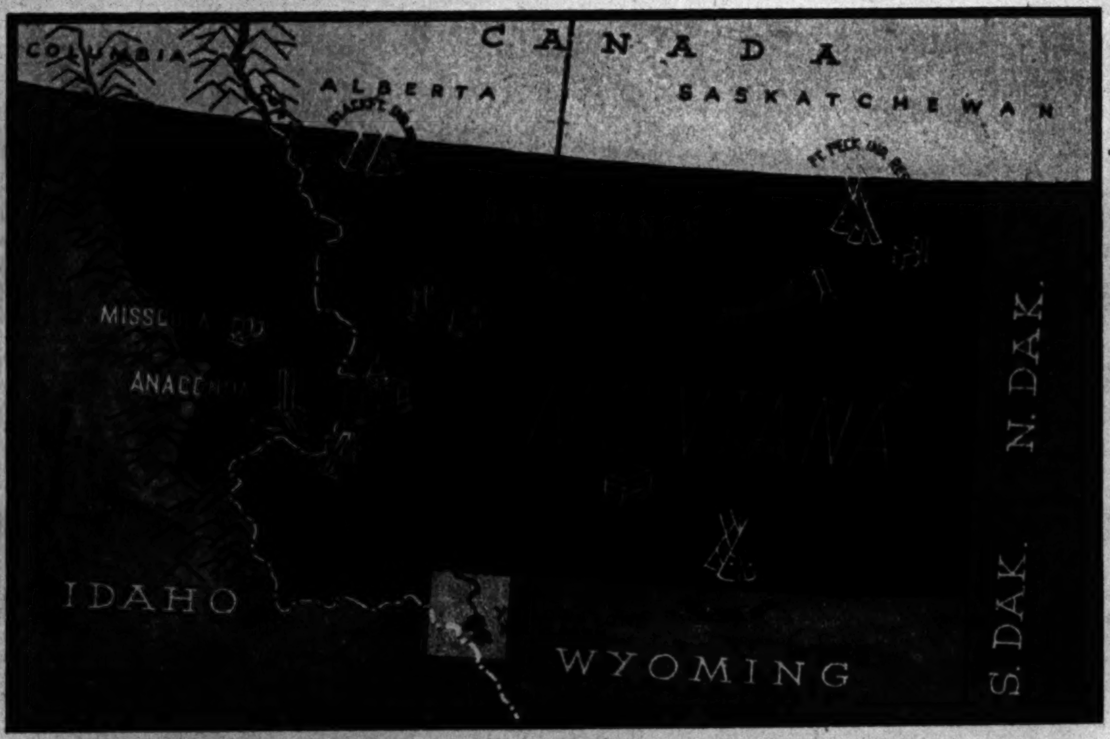
Near the border of North Dakota, on the upper course of the Missouri, is the dam and reservoir of Fort Peck, a construction which I had described to me as ill conceived and practically useless. It was a WPA undertaking of depression days, is said to be the largest earthen dam in the world, and cost $125,000,000. It has turned the Missouri river for over 100 miles west of Fort Peck into a lake, with offshoots on both sides somewhat like a diagram of the spinal column and adjacent nerves. This is the usual topographical aspect of these big dam-reservoirs.

This construction was to control the upper Missouri and prevent it from flooding the Dakotas. It was also to irrigate the barren land in its vicinity; incidentally only was it to supply power and facilities for navigation. Its critics claim it fulfills none of these purposes.

It is unnecessary for flood control, they say, because the big thaw of Montana does not come till June, and the floods of the Missouri are always earlier. Montanans as a whole feel wounded in their local patriotism at the accusation made in the Dakotas that disaster comes along the Missouri from Montana. Navigation is out of the question on a lake which is frozen six months of the year, on whose shores there are no goods to transport, nor any points to transport them from and to. Any power generated at Fort Peck has to be transmitted long distances with all the trouble and expense involved.

As for irrigation, which ought to be the primary purpose of almost any dam-reservoir project, the critics claim that there's nothing to irrigate within hundreds of miles of Fort Peck. It's land which is simply no good, with or without water.

The conclusion is that the planners of Fort Peck were too eager to put men to work and use government funds and reflected too little on what they were doing.



Map of the state of Montana, showing the locations of the principal cities and other features, such as the Fort Peck dam and reservoir and the continental divide.

The dam, it is claimed, is on the wrong river. It should be somewhere along the Yellowstone, which flows thru most of southern Montana and joins the Missouri near the North Dakota border. Floods on the Yellowstone are worse than on the upper Missouri; there is good land in the valley which could be made still better by irrigation; fair sized communities like Billings and Miles City could make use of any power developed.

The foregoing may not be the whole story of Fort Peck; its planners might have something to say in rebuttal. It is, however, a good case to keep in mind; it shows that every one of these dam-reservoir projects is far from winning unanimous approval.

In western Montana the visitor from the east will probably be startled at hearing the towns and villages, even one as big as Butte, referred to as "camps." That's a relic of an earlier day, but one not too far past. Many a man in middle life has anecdotes to tell of the days when western Montana was really wild. Today it still has a certain provisional air about it, a sense of life not being too firmly fixed to its soil. It's the kind of atmosphere which hangs around mining communities anywhere.

Butte, the largest city of this region and of all Montana, is justly famed; it is "different." Some people have called it ugly, but I fail to see that it is any more so than any mining town. The hillside is scarred with pitheads and slag heaps, but the city itself has the aspect of normal America. A first glance will show you that there is little ostentatious wealth in Butte; practically all the houses indicate moderate or even modest incomes.

On the horizon is a rim of snowy peaks. The air is rarefied and bracing. Some newcomers get nosebleeds (the top of the hill is 6,000 feet above sea level) and any one who walks fast will suddenly be gripped with a feeling of faintness till his system has become adjusted to the altitude.

The absence of showy dwellings indicates one condition of Butte—absentee ownership. All wealth in the city comes out of that hill down whose side the city sprawls; it is all somehow related to the Anaconda Copper company; in fact, the common local saying is, "Anaconda Copper is Butte, and even all Montana"—the second point a slight exaggeration. The richest officials of the company and the drawers of biggest dividends do not live in Butte and are taking money out of the community.

The general air of liveliness, the simple cordiality which every one exhibits, create a first impression that Butte is a town on the upgrade, but a second look may well give you doubts. You will notice that one of the main hotels is standing completely empty. Along even the busiest streets cobwebby or broken panes show that parts, or all, of business blocks are without tenants. There's no evidence of any building activity within the last decade. Of the many American cities I have visited, Butte is the single one which today has no housing problem.

That is the result of its unbalanced economy, of being a one-industry town. Old timers told me that they have known it to swell and contract like an accordion, following the fluctuations of the copper market. Big demand and high prices for copper and its subsidiary metals, Butte expands; low demand and low prices, it shrinks. A population as high as 80,000 has been known. Today some of my informants guessed the figure as low as 33,000 (the last federal census gives 37,000). It has lost by the draft, of course, but its workers have also been attracted to other war industry centers, mostly on the Pacific coast.

In any calculable future, no zooming destiny is foreseen for Butte. There seems little reason to believe that there will be a greater demand for its metals than there is at present. Constant improvements in the processes of extracting ore from the ground and preparing it for the market keep reducing the number of workers needed. Butte is made up entirely of miners, and those who live by doing them services.

Likewise, Butte seems in no danger of joining the ranks of Montana's ghost towns. There is still enough ore in the ground underneath its houses for decades to come.

The most important man in Butte, maybe in the whole state, is Dan Kelly, chief of Anaconda Copper in Montana, the general in command of field operations, as it were. With his mat of silver hair, he looks about 60, and he has had a legendary Horatio Alger career. With success he has acquired no arrogance, but talks in the same simple friendly manner as all other people in Butte.

Somehow I doubt that Anaconda Copper is quite the high minded, fair dealing corporation he, quite naturally, represents it to be, but his story was convincing. He told me, for instance, how by an inevitable process Anaconda Copper came to have a monopoly of the mineral deposits in the Butte region. The starting point was a provision of our federal mineralogical legislation, called the "law of the apex," which allows the discoverer of a mineral deposit to claim for his own any vein which has its apex, or emerging point, in his own land, no matter how far the vein may extend, nor under whose land.

It's easy, without any technical knowledge, to see what a fertile field this provision opens for lawsuits. Butte, Kelly told me, was plagued with them. The last great one was in the 1920s, when the Clark interests fought Anaconda on "law of the apex" grounds and lost. By that time, the bonanza period of mining having passed, it having become a complicated process requiring efficiency and costly machinery, it was evident to even the most litigious that the squabbles would have to cease. No one was profiting but the technical experts and the catchpolls. Some one had to have a monopoly; Anaconda got it.

As it operates today, Anaconda is a highly efficient enterprise. It has to be; it deals in metals (copper being merely one of many) which have a highly capricious market. The company must be ready to profit by a good market and buttressed to weather disastrous slumps. It has sharp competition, notably from Utah Copper, which is able thru natural advantages to get its ore out of the ground much more cheaply than Anaconda.

New methods, constantly being improved, permit utilization of a far greater portion of the ore than formerly. Hence today only about 20 per cent of the company's production is copper. The rest is other metals found in association with it: gold, silver, zinc, manganese, cadmium, indium, vanadium. These are mostly "strategic" metals and constitute the major part of Anaconda's contribution to war industry.

The substitution of lighter metals for copper has given it a far less important role in this war than in the last one. For the month of March, 1945, Anaconda mined only 17,000,000 pounds of copper, in contrast with the 25,500,000 pounds of March, 1944. Kelly said that he had pleaded with draft boards to let him have more workers, and that with them he could greatly increase present output, but the government appears to be satisfied with things as they are.

As the shafts are driven ever deeper into Butte hill, ore has not fallen off in quality—rather the contrary. Getting it out, however, has become ever more expensive. Among other necessities has been a ventilating and cooling system in the 3,000-odd miles of workings. Kelly claims this system is so good that experts who were building the Holland tunnel (under the Hudson from Manhattan to New Jersey) came to Butte to study it.

Copper mining is no longer the man-killing job it once was, but Kelly had to admit that it still has its rugged moments. Worst is when men are cutting a lateral gallery from some point underground toward a perpendicular shaft already sunk. Till that shaft is reached, the ventilating system cannot be put into operation. WHAT a heritage for Rita Hayworth's baby! Everybody knows, of course, that little Rebecca's mother is one of the most successful and most popular of all our feminine stars, and that her father, Orson Welles, is a remarkable young man (too remarkable sometimes!) in many fields—writing, acting, producing. But Rebecca's heritage is a matter of generations famous in the theater.

That baby's great-grandfather on the distaff side is the great Antonio Cansino, one of the famous dancers of all time. The story of his life and of the 16 children he begot, and of his grandchildren, is one of the fascinating sagas of the theater. What a book it would make! What a movie!

Nearly 70 years ago a 12-year-old boy was left an orphan in a little Spanish village. His father had been a well-to-do land owner; but there were crooked lawyers in Spain even then, as everywhere else, and the boy found himself done out of his inheritance and left penniless to face the world. That boy was Antonio Cansino.

Antonio Cansino, grandfather of Rita Hayworth.

Antonio had his share of Castillian pride, and he couldn't stay in a place where he had suffered such a blow. One thing he couldn't face — pity. He set out for Seville, and there he found himself a job as helper to a blacksmith. From morning till night he worked at the forge, but there were slack moments when the blacksmith stopped to gossip with his customers and his friends; and the boy entered readily into the repartee. Little Antonio liked to dance and to play the guitar and was often called upon by the blacksmith to do both for the entertainment of his callers. Famous matadors, artists, and grandees all had horses to be shod.

When night came Antonio struck out for the water front cafes, and there he danced again—for pennies thrown to him by sailors and their girls. At that time the famous Imperia and her rival, La Companara, were having their heyday, and there was a popular male dancer, Fernando Feliz. Young Antonio sneaked into the wings to watch their performances and in time made their acquaintance. He had an ingratiating manner, and before long he was having lessons from all three of them. How could the great Imperia resist a lad who went to her dressing room, bowed like a cavalier, and said, "Senora, I, too, am an artist, and I come to offer my homage."

So at 15 Antonio said good-by to his forge. A theater manager had seen him dance and had recognized a rising star. Within a year Antonio Cansino was famous thruout Spain. He had a house of his own, servants, and a carriage with two horses—and he didn't have to bother about their shoes. He had for his friends the most famous bullfighters, musicians, and artists of Castille and Aragon. Dukes and infantas bowed to him when their carriages passed. At 17 he married. At 18 he was a father.

At that time Spanish dancing was barely known outside Spain. Paris and London knew only the stilted Italian ballet. But a London producer happened to be visiting that country and watched Antonio Cansino at a performance in Madrid. He offered a contract for a month's engagement in London at a figure that couldn't be turned down. The month was extended to a year, and by that time Antonio was reaping a fortune. Paris followed, and then tours of Europe and South America.

As the Cansino fortune grew, the family was growing, too. At the age of 35 Antonio had no fewer than 10 children. He was rich, and his wife and children wanted him at home. To the chagrin of theatrical managers, he announced his retirement from the stage.

All of the Cansino children were taught to dance almost as soon as they could walk; and altho Antonio had left the stage, he continued to dance. Frequently the great Sarasate, the sensational violinist, came to the Casa Cansino to play the wild Flamenco airs while Antonio and the children danced. And there were repeated command performances before the Spanish court. Young dancers begged Cansino for instruction, so he opened a school in Madrid. When Diaghilev took the Ballet Russe to the Spanish capital several of the stars took lessons from Cansino, among them Leonide Massine. Diaghilev also offered contracts to some of the Cansino children, but they said no, thank you. They were planning to organize a company of their own! They did better than that. They organized three eventually, and all enjoyed great success. They toured Europe, Africa, North and South America, Australia. Edouardo, Rita Hayworth's father, took Latin America by storm. Antonio II. was a sensation in Europe and Australia. Jose, Angel, Paco, Elissa, and the others all had their share of triumphs. In two generations more than two million dollars poured into the family coffers.

When Rita was 16 she came to California with her parents, the Edouardo Cansinos. The movie bug got her, but good. She danced and played bit parts in dozens of pictures, and then came her big chance, in "Blood and Sand," opposite Tyrone Power. You know the rest of that story. Her father and mother have been retired from the stage for some years, and Rita's father is now working at Douglas because he has two sons at the front.

Rita and her daughter, Rebecca Welles.

A BABY with a HERITAGE

Antonio II., Rita's youngest uncle, left the stage to do ballroom exhibition dancing. He opened the swank new casino at Nice, in France, and later the Sert room in New York's palatial Waldorf-Astoria. Now he's in Hollywood, where he has opened elegant studios for ballroom dancing on La Brea near Wilshire. There he imparts the intricacies of rhumba, tango—and, yes, swing—to Los Angeles society and Hollywood film stars. A few blocks north is another Cansino school, where Jose Cansino teaches the classic and Flamenco dancing of old Spain —when he feels like it.

And now the first Antonio, the patriarch of them all, is here. He lost house and fortune during the Spanish revolution. Pedestrians on La Brea often see him on pleasant afternoons as he goes to pay his daily visit to the school of Jose or the ballroom studios of Antonio II. He's past 80 now, and he had a siege in the hospital recently. But, just to prove that he's still Antonio Cansino, he performed a flashing fandango the day he came out of the hospital. The only English he knows is "Thank you very much."

And do you know what he's looking forward to? You guessed it—it's the day when little Rebecca is big enough to take her first dancing lesson from her great-granddaddy.

Did I say that baby has a heritage?

And did I say there's a movie in the histoire Cansino? All right, I'll leave it to you—and to the first smart producer that gets the same idea.

Good Substitutes for Meat

Parsley dumplings in a lima bean and corn chowder make a hearty and enjoyable dinner entree.

By MARY MEADE

MOST OF US are getting pretty well adjusted to eating meatlessly, but there's the eternal problem of what protein food to substitute for that long-absent beef, veal, lamb, or pork. Two good answers to the problem are lima bean and corn chowder, and egg rollups. Both dishes are rich in protein, satisfy the appetite, and appeal to the eye.

Don't jump on me because you see salt pork or bacon listed with the other ingredients in that chowder recipe! The chowder may be made with half the amount of salt pork or bacon or with none at all. It's better with than without, so I'd like to leave it there, but if you can't get either meat, brown the onion and celery in a fourth cup of meat drippings or salad oil. A bouillon cube or two or a meat extract might contribute some meat flavor to the chowder made without bacon or salt pork, but that again is not necessary.

LIMA BEAN AND CORN CHOWDER
(Serves six)

- 1 cup diced salt pork or bacon
- ½ cup sliced onions
- ½ cup diced celery
- 3 cups cooked lima beans
- 1⅔ cups whole-kernel corn (12 oz. can)
- 1 quart milk, scalded
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
- 2 tablespoons flour

Fry cubed salt pork or diced bacon until lightly browned, add onion and celery, and cook until soft but not brown. Add beans, corn, scalded milk, and seasonings. Simmer five minutes. Blend flour with a little cold water to make a smooth paste and stir into chowder. Cover and simmer chowder 10 minutes before serving.

Parsley dumplings are good with the chowder. Make any favorite dumpling recipe and add a tablespoon or more of minced fresh parsley. Drop dumpling batter from a spoon into the simmering chowder, cover closely, and cook for 12 to 15 minutes without removing the cover.

EGG ROLLUPS
(Serves four)

- 1 can undiluted cream of mushroom soup
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 4 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
- Plain pastry (with 2 cups flour)
- 1 egg yolk
- 3 tablespoons milk

Heat soup over simmering water. Do not dilute. Add seasonings and eggs and heat thoroly, stirring to blend. Place in refrigerator to chill while making pastry. Roll pastry thin and cut into four-inch squares. There should be eight squares. Place about 2 tablespoons of well chilled egg and mushroom mixture in center of each square. Bring two opposite ends of pastry together across top of mixture, press edges firmly, and flute as for pie crust. Place rollups on a cookie sheet. Brush pastry with yolk and milk blended together. Bake in a 425 degree oven about 20 minutes, or until pastry is nicely browned. Serve with fresh or canned mushroom sauce or with tomato sauce.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE
ASPARAGUS SUPREME
(Serves four)

- 1½ cups medium white sauce
- ½ cup sharp cheese
- ½ pound dried beef
- 1 pound asparagus, cooked
- 4 slices toast

Add cheese to white sauce, cook and blend over low heat. Shred and scald dried beef. Saute ¼ cup beef in small amount of fat about five minutes, or until curled. Add remainder of shredded beef to cream sauce. Drain asparagus and place on toast slices. Pour creamed beef over and top with frizzled beef.—JESSIE P. JENKS, 205 W. Lawrence av., Springfield, Ill.

Send your favorite recipe to Recipe Contest, Chicago Tribune.

When there's not a scrap of meat to be had, try egg rollups with mushroom sauce.

Vice Presidents—Men Nobody Knows

President of the United States has been the subject of hardly any investigation by students of government. Men who have made a lifelong study of the functioning of our federal government have remarkably little to say when called upon to describe the powers and duties of the Vice President.

Woodrow Wilson in his "Congressional Government," after stating that the office is "one of anomalous insignificance and curious uncertainty," had to admit that "the chief embarrassment in discussing this office is, in explaining how little there is to be said about it, one has evidently said all there is to say."

Nevertheless the office of Vice President presents opportunities, and these have been capitalized by some Vice Presidents. There are also pitfalls for the unwary.

For the most part candidates for Vice President have been so far in the background that they almost had to wear identification badges, and when they took office they were still out of focus, like the bewildered Throttlebottom of the musical extravaganza "Of Thee I Sing," and were frequently introduced by a mangled name.

Yet the occupants of the presiding chair of the senate have been the centers of furious controversies. Henry Wallace is still a storm center, and during the 1944 campaign Harry S. Truman excited almost as much debate as President Roosevelt himself.

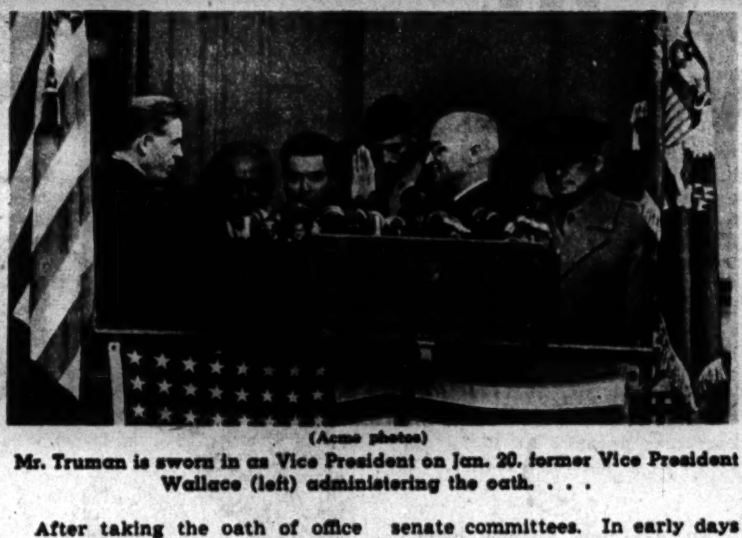
In view of the interest which these men have attracted, it is fitting that a resume of the office be made available to the nation. A study of the office and the men who occupied it is replete with little known but highly interesting, curious facts.



(Acme photos)
Mr. Truman is sworn in as Vice President on Jan. 20, former Vice President Wallace (left) administering the oath. . . .

After taking the oath of office the first traditional duty of the Vice President is to make a short inaugural address to the body whose president he is—the United States senate. This position is his by the Constitution, which forbids the senate from making its own selection.

Thus at all times the Vice President, in dealing with the senate, must be a model of tact and forbearance—or should be. He is deeply honored, highly gratified, and greatly privileged to be able to preside over such an august and justly famed body. He begs the senate to be generous and forgiving in their attitude toward him, realizing full well their wisdom will prevent any of his errors from prejudicing the course of sound government.

If he has not been a member of the senate, as was Truman, he begs the senate to be charitable about his lack of knowledge of procedure and rules.

This policy of extravagant praise of the senate in Vice Presidential inaugurals was begun by John Adams, the first Vice President. For the most part they have been brief. The inaugural address of Andrew Johnson, second Vice President of Abraham Lincoln, however, created a scandal. It seems the candidate had a cold and took one too many, so that his address, according to Hatch and Shoup in their "History of the Vice Presidency of the United States," was a "confused, egotistical, demagogical, drunken harangue."

More recently Charles Gates Dawes angered the senate with his address in 1925, in which he sharply criticized "defective methods in the conduct of business" by the senate.

As president of the senate the Vice President actually has little power. Traditional deference to the senate arises from this rather than from personal modesty of the office holders. The Vice President is in the senate but is not a member of it; hence he never engages in debate. As presiding officer he may, of course, make rulings, but any of these can be appealed. He does not appoint senate committees. In early days he did so.

John C. Calhoun used this power to bring his powerful personality to bear on the government. But this power was lost and the tradition is now for the senate to elect a president pro tempore, who proceeds to do the actual work of choosing committee members.

As a moderator of debate, the Vice President has only the most rudimentary powers. He does maintain order and decorum. In this he is helped and advised by officers of the senate. To forget the right of senators to unlimited debate would seem to suppose a most unsophisticated Vice President. Yet Thomas Marshall of 5 cent cigar fame admitted that he would have been caught by this trap had he not been warned never to call a senator to order for not speaking to the subject.

. . . Less than three months later he takes the oath of President. The young woman in the picture is his daughter Margaret.

Among the duties of the Vice President is the swearing in of new members. Even this task must proceed to established ritual. In taking it lightly, Dawes incurred fresh senate resentment on top of that which came to him thru largely fruitless efforts to change senate rules. Senators are sworn in in groups of four where there are any number of new members. Dawes, who had 22 to swear in, found the procedure too slow.

"Bring them all up," he ordered after disposing of two groups of four. "This is too slow. Bring them on together."

Members of the senate were shocked, particularly when he made a motion with his arms as tho he were shooing chickens out of a barn yard.

Under the Constitution the powers of the Vice President are defined in only one respect: He may, altho not necessarily, vote in case of a tie. This right has not been exercised very often. A few Vice Presidents never had occasion to vote in the senate. Curiously enough, none of those who succeeded to the Presidency ever cast a vote from the presiding chair of the senate except Chester A. Arthur and Truman. John Adams voted 29 times, more than any other man who has held the office.

Down to 1929 Hatch and Shoup report the table of Vice Presidential votes as follows: Adams, 29; Jefferson, 3; Burr, 3; Clinton, 11; Gerry, 8; Tompkins, 5; Calhoun, 28; Van Buren, 4; R. M. Johnson, 14; Dallas, 19; Fillmore, 5; Breckinridge, 10; Hamlin, 7; Colfax, 13; Wilson, 1; Wheeler, 5; Arthur, 3; Morton, 4; Stevenson, 2; Hobart, 1; Sherman, 4; Marshall, 10, and Dawes, 2.

Some of Adams' votes were of decisive importance in establishing the course of government, as it was his vote which gave the President the right to remove heads of executive departments. When Coolidge nominated Charles B. Warren as attorney general, the senate divided evenly on the motion in what is regarded as a cleverly calculated scheme to repay Dawes for his criticism.

Dawes could have saved the situation by his vote, but at this critical vote he was enjoying an afternoon nap. Even a wild ride in a taxi did not bring him to the capitol in time to vote.

The Vice President can do nothing in breaking a deadlock on treaties when a two-thirds vote is required. The Constitution limits his voting to ties.

In view of all this, the Vice President can never exercise open influence in the senate. He must be a pleasant natured gentleman. The dignity of the senate is easily wounded, resenting the slightest dictation from the outside. The Vice President, however, can have considerable influence behind the scenes if he is personally respected and possesses ability. The office does hold out this challenge to an able man.

Because the senate has a president pro tempore, the Vice President does not have to preside over the senate. If he desires he can remain away indefinitely. The man may be missed, but not in his capacity as Vice President except in the event of a tie vote.

Just as he may make much or little of his senate duties, the Vice President may seize or ignore the opportunity his office affords for shining as a ceremonial figure. He is a prize dinner guest and hostesses vie for him. What is more important, he can represent the President at such functionings as opening an exposition, dedicating a monument, or entertaining distinguished visitors. Socially he takes precedence over everybody but the President, as those familiar with the Dolly Gann-Alice Roosevelt feud know. Mrs. Gann, as sister of Vice President Curtis, won her battle for precedence.

The Vice President is not an officer of the executive branch of the government. The only duties which are clearly his by custom are those of a ceremonial nature. Some Vice Presidents have been invited to attend cabinet meetings, but none of these exercised potent influence. Wallace was appointed to an executive position, but the results were more unfortunate than otherwise. It cannot be said, however, that the office of Vice President was occasionally used for executive work; rather the man in the job was called upon for such assignments when his relations with his chief were intimate and harmonious.

The great importance of the Vice Presidency lies in the possibility that he might succeed to the Presidency. So far in history, Presidents have been removed from office only by death. On these occasions, the Vice President has taken the oath of office immediately on notification of the death of the President. In fact, extreme and perhaps undue haste has marked the procedure of assuming the highest office of the land. The body politic abhors a vacuum and no time, it would seem, must elapse between the cries: "The President is dead" and "Long live the President."

The swearing in of Coolidge by his father, a notary public, makes it clear that any one may swear in a Vice President as President of the United States. Hence, no matter where he may be, the Vice President can, and custom dictates that he should, assume the higher office within a few hours.

Mr. Truman raised his right hand and was sworn by Chief Justice Stone in the cabinet room of the White House executive offices 2 hours and 34 minutes after President Roosevelt died of a cerebral hemorrhage at Warm Springs, Ga., on the afternoon of April 12. The Vice President was summoned hastily to the White House imme-

Men far from home appreciate toiletries which carry tang and fragrance.

DON'T FORGET FINE TOILETRIES FOR THE FIGHTING MAN OVERSEAS

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY
(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

NO LONGER do women have a corner on the toiletries market! The astronomical figures in dollars' worth of men's toiletries now being used by our men in service are completely bewildering. According to the Toilet Goods association, the amount of men's shaving requisites being sold in the post exchanges abroad and at home and in the ships' stores for the navy boys runs into the hundred millions. A trade magazine tells us that last year $20,000,000 worth of soapless shave creams were sold to men in and out of uniform, and $37,500,000 of shave soap.

Since so many of our men are in service and therefore are exposed to all kinds of weather, after-shave lotion has taken a jump in use. It serves a double purpose—soothes the newly shaven face and acts as a protection to the skin.

Third on the list of men's toiletries is talcum. But men, whether they be civilians or service men, want the kind that is especially packaged for them, darkened to blend with masculine complexions. It gives a soft feel to their skins, a finish which they like. Hair dressing comes next, which is understandable when one thinks of the unruliness of hair that is not given proper care.

"Soap, soap, and more soap!" is the cry from men—and it's the toilet type, sweet-scented, hard-milled, super-fatted, that lasts a long time and lathers quickly in all kinds of water.

Men know what they like and are no longer shy about telling their preferences. Men's shops are putting in special men's toiletries departments to serve their male customers. And these customers are not limiting their demands to shaving requisites. They want all kinds of bath preparations, special skin creams, hand lotions, and colorless lipstick for chapped lips.

Finer and better grooming is a natural outcome when a large percentage of our men are in uniform. GI or general, sailor or admiral, the men know that cleanliness and good grooming are important morale boosters. After the filth and horror of war a man has a new appreciation for the nicer things in life. At the end of a long and hard march a warm bath with fragrant soap and a shave with scented cream and lotion are among the first desires of a soldier.

So when you are making up a box to be sent to that favorite man overseas, remember the things which are on the top of the request lists of service men. Pack a tube of shave cream or a mug of shave soap, tuck in a cake of fragrant soap and a jar of deodorant, and you'll be sure of giving the service man many moments of pleasant escape from his daily war life.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

Ames, Ia.

AMES IS ATTRACTIVE at any season, but never so much so as in spring, when the campus of this institution, concerned in large part with the earth's business, abounds with evidence of earth's bounty and beauty.

There's a sweet sanity about the place in spring and early summer that's composed of many things—the flowering trees and shrubs, the colts in the pastures, the leggy calves, the ewe lambs, the swans on Lake La Verne, the thousands of dandelions in Central quad, the home ec. girls wheeling the pink-cheeked "practice babies" along the paths. There's nourishment for the soul as well as the mind here.

Iowa State, co-educational from the beginning, opened in 1869 as a "state agricultural college and model farm," and almost three decades later became what it is now, the Iowa State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts. Motto: "Science with Practice."

As early as 1872 it offered women instruction in domestic economy and three years later opened the nation's first collegiate experimental kitchen. The very first class of ag. students were given veterinary instruction and the first separate state school in this field was opened here in 1879.

Iowa State students—and normally there are more boys than girls on the campus—don't merely learn by the book in their study of agriculture, engineering, veterinary science, industrial science, and home economics. True to the college motto, learning is combined with practice, and on the 3,000 acre campus the state has provided ample and fine facilities for the practice. The agricultural division, for example, in addition to its classrooms, labs, and offices, has its efficient and attractive farms—dairy, poultry, agronomy, animal husbandry; the veterinary division has its clinic and a research institute farm; the home economics division has its nursery school and five home management houses where each home ec. girl at one time in her course lives and takes active part in the operation of a model house, even to caring for an infant. A baby, a ward of the state, is ensconced in each of the five houses every year. These infants, ranging in age from a few months to a year, probably are the best tended, best loved babies in the country!

Today, of course, girls predominate at Ames, most of them in the home economics division. There is a V-12 unit housed in Friley hall, but the seamen are necessarily busy beavers of whom the visitor does not see much until after 5 p. m., when they have the use of the union or are free to wander to Dormitory circle or the sorority houses to see their girls.

The union, incidentally, is the scene twice a week of two interesting gatherings that are somehow typical of the pleasantness of learning at Ames. On Thursday afternoon the oak room is filled to bursting for "books and cokes," a one hour session where students sit comfortably and interestedly while a book is reviewed and discussed. This is a most popular extracurricular activity sponsored by Sketch, the literary publication. On Friday the same room is filled for a "coffee forum," when faculty and students talk about everything under the sun.

THE STORY OF MONTANA—A HOUSE DIVIDED

men just have to bear it, and hew away in temperatures which may go up to 150 degrees Fahrenheit.

Anaconda once had the reputation, perhaps unjustified, of grinding the faces of its workers, but Kelly claims there is no labor trouble now. The men are all unionized; he and they bargain collectively. The only troubles in recent years have been among the men themselves, union fighting union.

The company also is doing its bit toward the conservation of resources. It keeps up constant prospecting for new deposits of ore, and now follows a ton-for-ton program; that is, what is mined out must be no more than equal, ton for ton, to what has been newly discovered.

After hearing so much enlightened good sense it was a slight shock to discover unconcealed resentment at the part which Anaconda plays in the life of Montana. Here's an instance: Two local newspaper writers were with me at one of the mammoth bars of Butte when I asked them what they knew or thought of Anaconda Copper. "Don't ask us; we can't tell you," gasped one of them as he gagged on a liquid which a euphemistic bartender had named rye whisky. "I'm wearing my little copper collar; so's my friend here, too. In this town, if you like your job, you don't talk against Anaconda."

Then there's the play side to Butte. It is what is called a "wide open" town. It is full of booze and gambling, and has a "line"—a prostitutes' row. The more solid citizens deplore the amount of time and energy which goes into these diversions, and are sensitive about Butte's reputation as a cavern of sin. They want visitors to see "the real Butte, which is its bank deposits, its pretty little houses, its steady family men, its schools, churches, and rotary club."

This "moral element" has enough influence to keep the state legislature from repealing the state law against public gambling. It's a bit of a grim joke in a city where there's a dive on practically every street corner. The police and the judiciary have to close their eyes, of course, to this blatant defiance of the law. None of them would risk his job, or his seat on the bench, in a program of enforcement contrary to majority sentiment.

If you enter any one of the many saloons on the main streets of Butte, you will likely be astonished at its huge size. The bar will be about five times the length of the ordinary one you see in Chicago. In part of the enormous room a sort of country fair is going on. Some people are standing about with drinks in their hands, others are just standing. The great majority of the customers are busy with their gambling.

Said to be the largest earthen dam in the world, the Fort Peck construction project on the upper course of the Missouri river cost $125,000,000. Here is a view of the dam and dike section of the costly installation during the course of its construction in July, 1938. (Acme photo)

The most popular game appears to be Chinese lottery, or race horse keno. Under glass are displayed high winning cards, as sucker bait. The highest premium I noticed was $240. Some of the places seat their customers at counters on swivel chairs, as in a coffee shop. One caters especially to women, and I was told that it was packed every night.

Also popular is a card game I have seen nowhere east of the Rockies, called panguingui. It uses multiple packs of cards and there appears to be no limit to the number of possible players. It was introduced to Butte, I was told, by the male auxiliaries of its gaudy ladies one time when the bluenoses started a cleanup campaign and swept those gentlemen off the streets. To kill the time when they were not about their usual occupation, they developed the game of panguingui.

All the play I saw was at modest stakes. By an unwritten law in this illegal situation, the diversions which melt a bankroll fast, like roulette and dice, are forbidden inside the city limits of Butte. If you are ambitious to be cleaned in a hurry, you will have to travel about two miles eastward to the suburb of Meaderville, where you will find all the crap tables and spinning wheels you could desire.

Brawling, as you may imagine, is pretty common among a lot of hard men who get plenty to drink. No one put on an exhibition for my benefit, but I was told that in the past there have been some real terrors. The community gives this amusement its indulgence also, as necessary in a mining camp. In the unwritten code of the brawl, it is bad form to kick an adversary until he is down.

Those who do not deplore so much dissipation are rather proud of it, and sure that it makes them freer spirits than the citizens who live east of Butte. "We like to have our vices in the open," one of them told me, "we don't like to sweep under the bed." If one is to judge by the cordial, unaffected manners of all residents of Butte, there may be something in this defiance of inhibitions considered respectable in the far larger part of the nation.

One of the accusations against Anaconda Copper is its acquiescence in, even encouragement of, all this deplorable amusement. It's a matter, say these critics, of keeping the helots distracted, sodden with liquor, and broke with gambling. That may be so. I was told that any miner who can be an exception to the general rule, stay sober and get a stake for himself, throws up his job and is lost to Anaconda. Yet the labor unions, which supposedly have the best interests of the proletariat at heart, do no agitating for the closing of the palaces of play and of dalliance.

Any story about Butte would be incomplete without mention of its best known citizen (with the possible exception of Dan Kelly). His name is Teddy Traparish, and he is in the entertainment business—booze, food, and gambling. He came into the world about 50 years ago at Dubrovnik, and has now been around Butte for 40 years. There's a story, about which he himself is noncommittal, that he has made and lost four fortunes.

If you visit Butte, some one is sure to take you out to Meaderville to Teddy's Rocky Mountain cafe. It's become an object of civic pride. Here even the sedate citizens of Butte drive out with families to eat in the booths beside the spacious dance floor.

Carpers will tell you that the excellent food is practically given away by Teddy as so much preparation in geniality to get the unwary into the back room. There are the crap tables and roulette wheels forbidden by unwritten law inside Butte City, and here the real plungers play for high stakes.

The steak which Teddy served me there was one of those things for lyric emotion. Never have I tasted such a succulent morsel of meat in steak and chop houses in any place in the world. To go with it Teddy offered a special treat which showed he has not completely forgotten the tastes of his far distant Balkan homeland—a bottle of fizzy red wine.

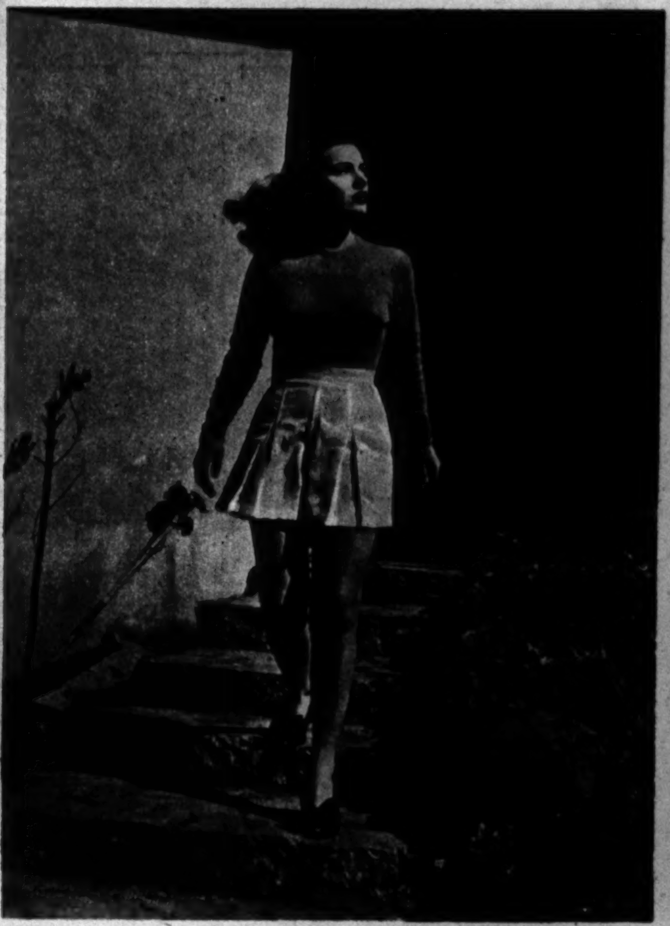
ELLA RAINES AT HOME

Here is the intimate home life of Ella Raines, Universal star of "Suspect" and other popular films, as told in pictures. The photographs were taken at Miss Raines' home in Coldwater canyon by Louis Wolf, Hollywood photographer for The Tribune. In the seven room home, which she has owned for six months, the star dwells with her mother and her sister-in-law, Melle Trout, while her husband, Maj. Kenneth Trout, serves overseas with the army air forces.



Wearing a two-piece lounge suit, Miss Raines takes things easy in her living room. The cocker spaniel is Major, who is promoted every time her husband wins a promotion.

AMERICAN HEROES OF WORLD WAR II.

This is another of the series on outstanding American heroes of the present war. Subjects for the series are chosen from among heroes who have been decorated for valor. Illustrations are by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Vasnak.

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

HE WAS only 18 years old, and he never had been in action before, but Sgt. John Charles Squires of Louisville, Ky., was of the timber that makes true heroes.

The 30th infantry, of which he was a member, is a regiment with a proud record. It fought in the first World war, and it went to war this time from its home station at the Presidio in San Francisco with the determination to add to its laurels. This it has done time and again. Its ranks are full of heroes.

It was at grips with the Germans in the spring of 1944 in the allied advance upon Rome. On April 23 elements of the regiment were assigned to clear the enemy out of a pass north of Padiglione. Then it was that Sergeant Squires went into action for the first time. He volunteered to go to an advanced unit to see how it was making out. After obtaining the information he sought he rounded up a group of stragglers and led them forward as a squad. He made a series of forays beyond the American outposts and captured 13 enemy machine guns and 21 Germans.

When the Nazis counter-attacked the following night Squires used both a captured machine gun and some grenades, with which he slew three Germans and wounded a number of others.

About a month later the young sergeant was killed in action on the Anzio beachhead without knowing that his gallantry on his first day of battle would win him the medal of honor (congressional medal). The posthumous award of this decoration was announced in Washington on Oct. 1, 1944.

It's still a big part of the war picture

GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATER Presents Danny Kaye in "WONDER MAN"

1 Meek, scholarly Edwin Dingle (Danny Kaye) has been cloistered so long in libraries he has become a grownup "quiz kid," but he knows little of life. He naively woos Ellen Shanley (Virginia Mayo), a charming librarian.

2 He has a twin brother (also Danny Kaye) who is known in the night clubs as Buzzy Bellew. A song-and-dance man, Buzzy repeatedly is proposing to his dancing partner, Midge Mallon (Vera-Ellen), but always neglecting to show up at the church.

3 Idolized at the swank Pelican Club, Buzzy and Midge translate Balinese melodies into jive. But all is not serene. Buzzy knows a showgirl was murdered by one of the club's gangster customers, Ten Grand Jackson. Fearing Buzzy will talk, Ten Grand lays his plans.

4 At right, Chimp (Allen Jenkins), a hired gunman, appears with a tommy gun concealed in a flower box. Chimp does his work efficiently and Buzzy's body is carted to Brooklyn and dumped into the river.

5 Meanwhile studious Edwin visits a delicatessen. As he considers what to buy he hears mystic music. A voice commands him to go to Prospect park. There he meets the shade of his brother, who reveals the murder and orders Edwin to impersonate him until unfinished business is cleaned up.

6 Edwin is skeptical about ghosts until prankish Buzzy demonstrates his supernatural powers by having him insult a policeman (Edward Gargan). Edwin barely escapes jail for this.

7 Confused but willing, Edwin visits the district attorney's office to give evidence against Ten Grand Jackson. But Buzzy's spirit fails to show up as promised, and Edwin cannot "remember" anything about the showgirl's murder.

8 Buzzy's contrite spirit, nevertheless, is at the Pelican Club by show time and, entering Edwin's body, gives a grand performance. So good is he that Ten Grand believes he is actually Buzzy and that Buzzy escaped death. He sets another gang on Edwin's trail.

9 Edwin, guided by Buzzy's ghost, throws the gunmen off his trail and hides backstage at the Metropolitan Opera house. Disguised in the costume of one of the stars, he appears on the stage and sings the murder evidence to the district attorney, who is in the audience.

10 With complications thus cleared away, Buzzy's spirit departs and Edwin happily returns to his scholarly pursuits and Ellen. (THE END)

SHIRLEY TEMPLE

PAST 17 and engaged to a soldier, Shirley Temple, the darling child of the films, no longer is a little girl. You've seen her not long ago in an almost grownup part in "Since You Went Away," and she has an important role in a more recent picture, "I'll Be Seeing You." Shirley's fiance is Sgt. John George Agar, 24, of the army air forces. The marriage is going to wait two or three years.

Remembered as that cute little youngster back in the '30s, Shirley has had one of the most successful careers ever experienced by a star. She was born in Santa Monica, Cal., April 23, 1928, and at the age of 3 enrolled in a Los Angeles school for special training. After her third lesson she was given a test of baby burlesques of famous motion pictures. For a year she appeared in these parts, and thereafter was given roles in feature-length films. She was really "discovered" when she appeared in "Baby Take a Bow."

Among her starring roles were those of "The Little Colonel," "Curly Top," "The Littlest Rebel," "Captain January," "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," and numerous others. Eventually she withdrew from the films to concentrate on an education, but after an absence of some months she returned, grown into a poised young miss.

ORANGE SPONGE CAKE

6 egg yolks	1 cup sugar
5 tbsp. orange juice	1⅓ cups sifted cake flour
1 tsp. grated orange rind	1½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt	6 egg whites
½ cup sugar

Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored with electric mixer turned to high speed. Add orange juice gradually. Then orange rind and salt. Blend in 1 cup sugar slowly. With the electric mixer set to low speed, add dry ingredients. Beat egg whites stiff, but not dry. Add ½ cup sugar, as for meringue and fold into first mixture. Pour into ungreased tube pan. Place in preheated oven and bake at 350° for 1 hour.

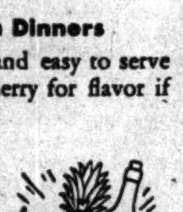
Notes on Baked Fish Dinners

Fresh pineapple is attractive and easy to serve in lengthwise wedges. Add sherry for flavor if you use it as a first course.



Left-over fish makes a delicious casserole when flaked and combined with cream sauce, cheese, rice and brown crumbs.

Save coarse broccoli stems. Cut them into thin slices, parboil and serve creamed at another meal.

When making baking powder biscuits, knead the dough 10 or 12 strokes for fine texture. Pat into long roll and slice. Saves time—you won't need a cutter.

BAKED STUFFED FISH

Select a fish for baking. A four-and-one-half pound fish will serve 6 to 8 when stuffed and baked. Clean fish and wipe with a damp cloth. If desired, the fish can be boned by cutting out the spinal bones from the inside. Fill with bread stuffing—sew or lace the fish with skewers and place on a trivet or baking rack in a shallow pan. Grease the outer surface of the fish. Bake in 325° oven ⅓ hour to the pound. Serves 6 to 8.

CELERY BREAD STUFFING

3 cups dry whole wheat bread	1 tsp. salt
1 cup chopped celery	¼ tsp. pepper
3 tbsp. melted fat	½ cup water

THE JORDAN ROLLS ON IN TWO TYPICAL DISKS

Louis Jordan . . . ambition finally realized.

CHICAGOANS had a chance recently to hear the playing of Louis Jordan and his Tympany Five—and they got a very pleasant earful. Louis was fulfilling a much-cherished ambition when he played that date at the Chicago theater. Four years ago he headed a small and hot combination at the Capitol Lounge, just across the alley from the theater. All the time he was there he was dreaming of the day when he'd see his name on the marquee of the Chicago. That day came.

It wasn't as if the Capitol date was his first good job. Louis had been playing baritone and alto and doing vocals for a good many years. Born in 1908 in Brinkley, Ark., he started musical studies early, and continued them thru his years at college in Little Rock. Ruby Williams was playing in Hot Springs, Ark., about that time, and he worked with her for a while. About 15 years ago he joined Charlie Gaines in the east, shifted to several other bands, and finally to Chick Webb. He organized his own unit in 1939.

DECCA has recently issued two platters of Jordans, and all four sides are marked especially by the Jordan style of singing. His humorous way of handling a lyric is his trademark, and he uses it extensively in these numbers. "CALDONIA" seems almost tailor made for Jordan—altho Woody Herman, of course, is completely out in front in the orchestral version. Louis gives the crazy lyrics just the right touch of comedy, and the sax and trumpet work that provides most of the interludes is in line with his singing. The B side is "Somebody Done Changed the Lock on My Door" and is a slow, humorous blues with a good piano effect. The other recent Jordan effort is "You Can't Get That No More," a commentary on the scarcity of a lot of things the rationing boards never thought of handling, while "Mop Mop" leans more to the instrumental, with sax, trumpet, and clarinet giving it lift if not exactly class.

Jimmy Lunceford gives DECCA two nice sides in "I'm Gonna See My Baby" and "That Someone Must Be You."

A Few Plaints from Mothers and Dads

By SHEILA JOHN DALY
(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune)

EVEN THO a fellow reads bedtime stories to his little sister, remembers his father's birthday every time it rolls around, and makes himself tall, dark, and handy whenever his mother has the urge to rearrange the furniture, sometimes he gets a little on the family's nerves.

He may be one of the smoothest characters around school, known for his sharp slacks and reindeer sweaters or for his solid line of chatter, but his family knows him when those same slacks and sweaters are inartistically draped over his bedroom furniture or when that line of chatter is turned to a heated argument with his older sister or to a lengthy harangue with his father on why he should have the car for his Friday night date.

So, to set these same fellows straight, here are a few thoughts from those who know—the mothers and fathers of high school fellows—on how to get an A in conduct and move up to the head of the house. So look to these complaints and then look to your laurels—you may be rusting on them!

"Even tho the hooks in my son's closet may not be of quite such a sturdy construction as the floor of his bedroom, I still think they're capable of supporting his numerous jackets, sweaters, and suits. I'm tired of tripping over them when I go in to borrow his razor!"

"It seems that no matter how much I tell my son about the value of money, how often I arrange a budget with him, or how liberal I am with his allowance, he still doesn't seem to appreciate the importance of money. He's always coming to me near the end of the week for more spending money, and if I don't supply it he borrows from his friends. I do wish he'd begin to spend less and to appreciate its value."

"My complaints are split between my 17-year-old son and his younger sister. He roughhouses with her far too much, and she is not at all an unwilling victim. I'm not worried too much about its effect on them—I'm only wondering how long the furniture will hold up."

"My son gets so engrossed in his record collection that it's hard on the furniture. He goes into his bedroom, stacks records on his machine, props his feet on the foot of his bed, and then goes into ecstasies. It's not that I'm not glad that he enjoys good music, but even the hardest of woods can't hold up under his hobnail boots for long."

"Perhaps I'm wrong in objecting, but I think my son goes out with too many girls. I realize he's too young to get serious about one girl in particular, but he hasn't had two dates with the same girl in the last three months. I want him to have fun with more than one girl, but I don't want him to get too frivolous."

"I'm afraid that manners went out when station wagon coats and Harry James came in, but I still wish my son had a little consideration for me, his mother, and for the girls he goes out with. He seems to forget just how much a 'thank you' can mean, and he has no qualms about asking for a date just half an hour before the movie begins. I'm afraid that if I were a girl I wouldn't accept a date with my own son!"

"It may be that I'm just old fashioned, but I still like to have my boy come home before the milkman and the morning dew. I know that sometimes youngsters are having so much fun they forget all about the time, but I'm going to have to tie an alarm clock around his neck to remind him if he doesn't start coming home earlier."

"Sometimes I wonder when my son studies. It seems to me he's having fun on a 25-hour-a-day schedule now."

There they are—just a few of the small (and a couple of large) things that parents have to say about their young sons. Check yourself against the list, add up the score, and see how you rate. But don't get discouraged—even Van Johnson doesn't hang up his shirt and tie every night!

Marvin Moss, seated, and Paul Jankauer.

TOPS AMONG TEENS

THE IMPRESSIVE blue and red letterhead on the business stationery reads: "MOSS-JANKAUER—SPECIALISTS IN HIGH SCHOOL ADVERTISING." The idea began one day last fall. Paul Jankauer, 18-year-old senior, was editor of the school paper at Von Steuben High school in Chicago. His friend, Marvin Moss, 17, was in charge of advertising. Ads for high school papers being difficult to solicit, the fast talking, fast thinking team turned high school advertising into big business.

Personal business letters were sent out to 35 high school newspaper editors asking for information about school enrollment, subscription and circulation figures, and ad rates for each paper, and offering to secure and place ads for a 25 per cent commission. Twenty-five papers promptly wrote back for contracts.

Before vacations the boys placed ads for department stores, theaters, and cafeterias seeking teen-age employes; at prom time they placed ads for florists, cab companies, and tailor shops where tuxedos might be rented. They offered services to theaters, taking high school surveys on current movies and swing bands and arranging interviews on Saturday morning with such celebrities as Fletcher Henderson and the King Cole Trio.

Moss-Jankauer have made themselves authorities, with polls and opinions available on any teen-age subject—experts on what is on or off the beam. With Moss-Jankauer high school advertising is big business now.

FIRE BOMB

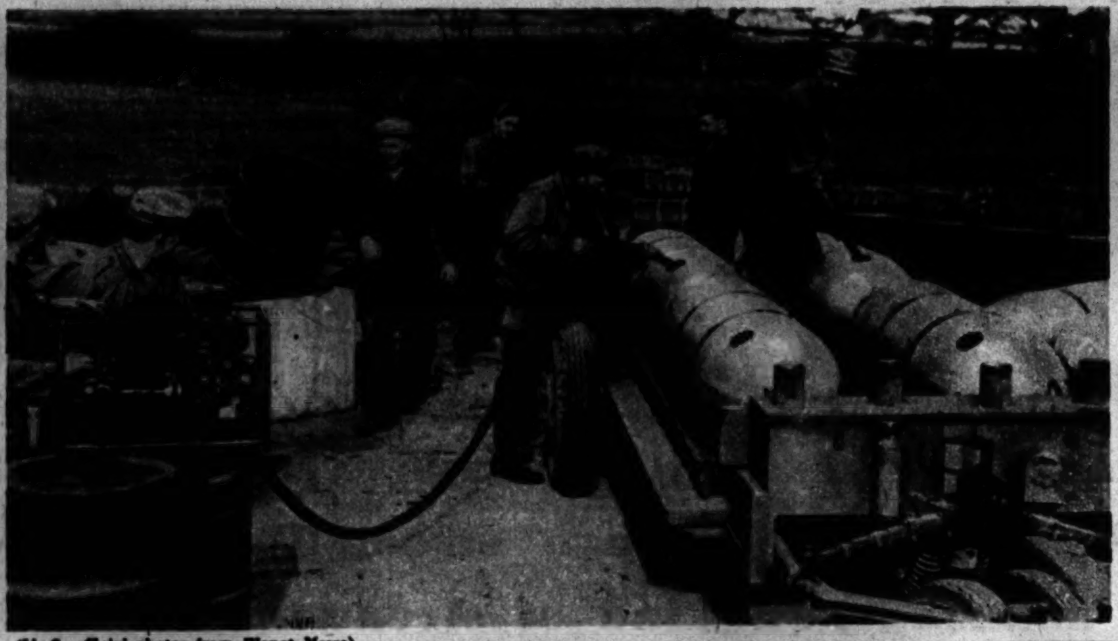
FIRES that raged in Bordeaux and other French ports that were defended by German garrisons in the final phase of the European war were started in numerous instances, it now is disclosed, by a new type of allied aerial incendiary bomb.

This bomb, examples of which are shown in the accompanying illustrations, weighs 650 pounds. It contains a highly inflammable gelatinous substance which burns fiercely at 1,400 degrees Fahrenheit. The flaming substance trickles into cracks and crevices and is difficult to extinguish.

According to information provided by the office of the chief of ordnance of the United States war department, the bombs actually are made from jettisonable fuel tanks and are suspended under the wings of planes and dropped when over a target.

The gelatinous material is made from 100 octane gas to which is added a chemical that makes it solidify. This prolongs its burning time. In the nose of the bomb is screwed a standard white phosphorus hand grenade to explode when the bomb hits the ground. Upon hitting the target the thin walls of the bomb burst open and the contents are spilled over a wide area. The explosion of the grenade causes flaming particles of phosphorus to be thrown to a considerable distance, igniting the jellied gasoline. The phosphorus itself, being incendiary, helps to start fires.

One of the accompanying pictures shows what apparently is the act of filling some of the bombs with the gelatinous substance.



(U. S. official photos from Planet News)

VICE PRESIDENTS

diately after the death of the President to take over control of the nation.

The Constitution provides that the powers and duties of the office of President "shall devolve upon the Vice President," in case of removal from office of the President, his resignation, or his inability to discharge his powers and duties.

Johnson was in danger of impeachment. Washington and Wilson were said to have thought of resigning. But the issue of succession under such circumstances has never come up. An open question, however, is what shall the Vice President do in the event of the "inability" of the President? Suppose the President should undergo a long and serious illness. Is he then disabled? And who shall pronounce that he is?

Garfield and Wilson became seriously ill, but their Vice Presidents did not take over any part of the executive powers. They made no decisions and signed no papers. It is still an open question as to the precise duties of the Vice President in case of "inability" of the President.

R. K. Gooch in his "Manual of Government in the United States" says: "The intention of the Constitution would seem to be that the Vice President should, while remaining Vice President, serve as acting President. The several Vice Presidents, beginning with Tyler, who were serving when Presidents died, however, have assumed the office of President." Hatch and Shoup recall "the Whig senate attempted to give Tyler the title of acting President only, but this was soon forgotten." This extremely interesting bit of American history is completely related in "The Usages of the American Constitution," by the Oxford scholar, Herbert W. Harwill.

Seven Vice Presidents have died in office; their seats in the presiding chair of the senate being filled by the president pro tempore of that time. These were George Clinton, Elbridge Gerry, William R. King, Henry Wilson, Thomas A. Hendricks, Garret A. Hobart, and James S. Sherman. One Vice President, John C. Calhoun, resigned to become a United States senator.

The opportunities afforded by the Vice Presidency do not come—they are there to be seized. Above all, there are the duties of the Vice President in the senate. Here there is a vast difference between the office and the man. The office has little to do and can do little; the man can choose to do little, but he can do much. The Vice President's influence on legislation is a question of his personality and abilities and the respect he commands. The best and most recent example of the man doing much was John N. Garner.

Much attention has been given to the fact that Coolidge and later Curtis, Garner, and Wallace attended cabinet meetings of their Presidents. It does not seem that this practice has become a custom. In any event, the cabinet as such seems to be on the way to become a much less important institution in the American government.

Dawes gave good reasons against the practice, saying: "The precedent might prove injurious to the country. With it fixed, some future President might face the embarrassing alternative of inviting one whom he regarded as unsuitable into his private conference, or affronting him in the public eye by denying him what had been generally considered his right."

It might prove embarrassing, in fact, for a Vice President, who succeeds to the Presidency, if he sat in his predecessor's cabinet. Coolidge fell under some suspicion of knowledge of the Teapot Dome affair. Had he not been in Harding's cabinet such suspicion could not have come his way.

In this connection it should be remembered that every post-war period is productive of "revelations," and whether these represent sins of omission or commission, the blame generally attaches to the chief executive, either personally or because of his appointment of the misjudged or renegade person under attack.

The wise Vice President guards against involving himself, even on the most fleeting basis, in ructions of this nature. He holds himself aloof and the reason is:

The Vice President is not a part of the administration in power.

Neither is he "in" the senate. He exists, like Mohammed's coffin, hanging between heaven and earth, apart from both branches of government.

Herein lies his opportunity: To a very large extent he can pursue an independent course, so that, should he succeed to the higher office, he does so in his own right and is free to carry out his own policies.

The pitfalls of the office are many. The greatest of these is to let the ridicule which has always attached to the office spill over and stain the man in office. Benjamin Franklin suggested the style of address of the Vice President be "his superfluous excellency." Ever since the jokes have flowed on and on.

There are many pitfalls in the senate, some of which have already been mentioned. When Dawes criticized the rules of the senate in public speeches and claimed he had popular support, the late Democratic Sen. Pat Harrison of Mississippi addressed Dawes in the senate as follows:

"Mr. President, do not forget in your enthusiasm that a Vice President is liable to get attention no matter where he goes."

Harrison then went on to flay Dawes by telling a fable about a mule, "an unruly, unmanageable, intractable mule," who went to the city. But, this "poor deluded, misguided specimen of a mule mistook the laughter as the plaudits of the crowd," Harrison concluded.

Dawes is generally conceded to be the best recent example of how not to get along in the senate.

There are those philosophers, and with justification, who contend that the times dictate the conduct of a man in office.

Certainly no one objected to the quiet, gentle humor of Thomas Riley Marshall, who poked fun at himself and his office, such as the time he sent a wedding gift to Wilson and the latter's second wife, inscribed "from the President's only Vice." This was when the country was at peace and there were no war clouds.

No reasonable person expects the Vice President to become an anchorite and forgo a citizen's duty to concern himself with the problems of the time.

"Our Savior himself," writes Boyle, "did not choose an anchorite's or a monastic life, but a social and affable way of conversing with mortals."

While it may seem sophistry to cite the above, it gives a key to the manner in which any officer of our government should conduct himself.

Boiling down the study of the office of Vice President, the following facts stand out:

1. The office is the second highest gift which can be bestowed by the American people.

2. It has great inherent and potential dignity, sadly dissipated over the years.

3. The office is not in good contemporary repute, because the incumbents are the victims of the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, whether justified or unjustified.

4. The man makes the office; not the office the man.

A Vice President has time (four years) and the opportunity. He is no different than a precinct committeeman; each is the master of his fate and the captain of his soul.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS By BOB BECKER

IT SOMETIMES is difficult to convince dog owners that too much "humanizing" of the family pet often does it more harm than good.

A few weeks ago a woman told us about the trouble she was having with her terrier. She was most worried about an illness which she thought her dog had and which veterinarians said the terrier did not have. But her immediate problem was that the dog wouldn't eat unless she was around to hand feed it! Here is a perfect example of how not to raise a dog of any breed. It's also a perfect example of coddling and indulgence, a routine that invariably plagues the owner before the pet gets very old.

Contrasting breeds get together. The Great Dane is Ch. Senta Hexengold. The little champion cairn terrier is named Pimpernel of Mercia. Both are owned by Mrs. G. W. Hyslop.

We devote much time to our dogs. We play with them. We take them walking irrespective of weather. We give them affection and the best care and food that we know how to provide for them. Many a night we get down on the floor to play with them.

That's part of the fun of owning dogs. And in return they give us affection, devotion, and companionship that has to be seen to be understood.

Obviously we value beyond words this relationship with our dogs. But also important is the relationship between owner and dog so far as obedience is concerned. Does the dog climb into chairs and sleep on a bed even tho ordered not to do so? Will the house pet lie down when told to, or does it behave pretty much as it pleases? Will the dog go to a kennel and keep quiet when left alone? Does the owner have to coax it to eat and possibly feed it by hand? If the pet doesn't obey a command cheerfully and quickly, lie down when told, eat its food as a sensible dog should, and behave in the house like a good member of the family circle, the odds are 10 to 1 that the owner is shaping a dog problem for himself which will take a bit of doing before the pet is put on the right track.

A dog usually is spoiled by too much coddling, plus lack of obedience training. The disobedient pet fundamentally doesn't respect an owner's command. Its wishes have been "consulted" nearly all of the time, so when a showdown comes it gets sullen and resentful. The dog taught obedience behaves in a far different way. Taught to respect the authority vested in the owner, to look up to the owner as a fair, affectionate companion, the dog does what it's told to do.

At dinner time our Labrador would rather lie down next to our chair. However, she is shown where to stay on a rug outside of the dining room, and she stays there.

She and our Sealyham (which died a few months ago) used to stay outside in a kennel for hours without barking. Our dogs are taught early to keep quiet in the kennel. However, they have the right to bark if a dog runs past the kennel or some one goes into the garage near-by. That's all right. But senseless, noisy barking is out.

The big point in bringing up a dog is to combine good care, affection, companionship, attention, and patience not with indulgence but with simple obedience. If the owner establishes that sort of a combination he has a well behaved, devoted, obedient pet. The alternative is a pet that gets too much coddling and attention and which may go into a tantrum when it can't have its own way.

A long time ago we decided we'd rather pay $25 for a pup and spend $75 on obedience training instead of paying $100 for a handsome prospect and spend no money on obedience. Today we are even more convinced that this procedure makes sense. It's the privilege of any owner to raise his dog as he pleases. But we'll take the ones brought up with affection plus obedience training and let the other fellow worry along with the ones that won't mind.

Discovery by Noted Veterinarian
STOPS DOG-ITCH

For years, veterinarians were baffled by a common skin disease that caused untold agony to dogs and cats. Starting as a burning itch, it soon develops dandruff-like scales and brownish edged sores with a mouldy odor in ears, on paws, under-body, back or around tail. Treatments for mange, fleas, allergy or faulty diet result only in costly care or actual loss. Now, noted veterinarian, Dr. A. C. Merrick, has positively identified this disease as a fungus infection comparable to "Athlete's Foot." He has named it "Fungitch" and has also developed SULFADENE, a treatment proved amazingly effective in thousands of clinical cases. Applied externally, Dr. Merrick's SULFADENE stops the itch in a few minutes—scales and sores vanish in a few days. Buy today where you get pet foods or remedies—or send $1.00 for generous treatment; money back if it fails to give complete satisfaction. Address Brookfield Laboratories, Dept. Uncle Sam's voice is changing!

He used to listen more than he sang.
Listen to music imported from across the seas.
Listen to voices older and stronger than his own. And that was good . . .
because Uncle Sam was young, then. He was studying, practicing—yes, imitating.

But now, Uncle Sam has come of age!
He sings out in a voice as strong and sure as any in the world. He still loves the classics of the old world, but now he's making his own classics, too!

In his own fabulous land, out of his own proud history,
among his own people,
Uncle Sam finds inspiration for a million songs.

He sings . . . and Decca records the song.

You hear Uncle Sam when you hear:
"Swinging on a Star" by that minstrel of millions,
Bing Crosby . . . or selections from the Broadway hit show, "Song of Norway" . . .

When funnyman Jimmy Durante commits musical mutiny with his nonsensical "Inka Dinka Doo" . . .

When Ethel Smith and Carmen Miranda swing
the catchy, rollicking "Tico-Tico" . . .

Yes, it's Uncle Sam in authentic American opera
when the original cast sings Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess."

They're all on Decca Records because we're determined to record the kind of music America likes. And that means:
you'll understand every word of every song . . .
you'll hear dance-able rhythm
from beginning to end of every dance tune . . . you'll get a lot of listening pleasure
from every Decca record!

Everything is up early... since our doctor advised Phillips'

THE family standby—because it's an ideal laxative-antacid.

Mothers rely on Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Recommended for children ... it's equally dependable for grown-ups. Phillips' quickly, scientifically relieves gas, heartburn, upset stomach caused by excess stomach acidity. So, whenever you overindulge take Phillips' at bedtime. You'll wake up brighter because overnight Phillips' works this doubly effective way:

1. As an acid stomach alkalizer, Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is one of the fastest, most effective known to science.

2. As a laxative, gentle Phillips' can be taken any time without thought of embarrassing urgency... Caution: Use only as directed.

To be sure, always ask for milk of magnesia by the name Phillips'! For economy buy the big 50¢ bottle which contains 3 times as much as the 25¢ size. Phillips' is also available in convenient tablet form costing only 25¢ a box, less than a penny a tablet.

I'll tell anybody how to taste and know when Beer is Properly Aged

by RICHARD SEIBOLD
Meister Brau Brewmaster

A Beer Made with 2-Stage Ageing for Extra Delicacy of Flavor

Many people would like to know how to detect the difference in beer. My way is to look for a beer that is delicate, has grain and hop flavor, and that's smooth.

It takes rich malt to ripen the brew and digest the grain sugars, and blend the grain flavors to smoothness.

And that delicate grain and hop flavor over which people exclaim, is the direct result of Meister Brau brewing methods. We use only the most fragrant hops known, those grown on imported roots. We specially process these hops through the brew just long enough for them to yield their top delicate flavor.

And here's another secret of flavor. I never let the brew go flat, because then we would lose the precious flavor and aroma that the tiny bubbles of sparkling wholesome carbonation enclose. I also insist that our beer is aged to the proper degree.

Time has proved the worth of our old-time, slow, painstaking methods. Compare Meister Brau with others and see if you don't agree with the thousands who say we know how to brew the beer they like best.

Enormous balloon sleeves are distinctive accents for this dramatic hostess gown of black taffeta. Silver sequins, embroidered on the flared cuffs, the huge pocket, and the side strap of the bodice, are the only contrast.

A youthful sports coat designed by Lucien Lelong and called "Illusion" is especially interesting because of the unusually placed pockets and the striped cotton cuffs. The blouse worn with the coat is of the same striped cotton as the cuffs.

TOO MUCH CAT

THE Teenie Weenies have a number of friends among the chickens, dogs, and cats that live near the big houses along the lane not far from the Teenie Weenie village. There is one young cat, tho, that is not very welcome around the little people's village. Ginger is his name, and he is not really a bad cat, but he is sometimes careless and a little rough. He is rather playful, and it isn't very pleasant for the Teenie Weenies to have a cat pounce at them, especially when the cat is so very big and the people so little. However, the Teenie Weenies managed to keep out of Ginger's way, and in that way they were able to get along without much trouble. But one day the cat did something which made the good natured Teenie Weenies very angry.

Fishing had been good in the creek for several days and the Teenie Weenie men had caught a number of minnows. Now, fresh minnows are very tasty when stuffed and baked, or when slices are dipped in powdered beechnuts and fried in nut oil, but minnows can't be dried and salted for future use so well as the larger fish. The little men had been fishing for bigger fish, but they had had no luck. They were very discouraged and had almost decided to quit fishing, when they hooked a really big fish.

The Cowboy, the Chinaman, the Dunce, and Gogo caught the fish, and it was a long and terrible battle. The fish was fully three inches long, and the little men hung onto the line for over an hour before they were able to drag it near the shore. The men were nearly tired out with their efforts of holding the fish, but they were delighted to catch such a whale, for it would keep the Teenie Weenies supplied with preserved fish for many days.

The Dunce tugged at the fish's fin while Gogo and the Cowboy pulled with all their strength. With a last mighty effort they dragged the fish up into shallow water, just as Ginger leaped out of the tall grass. Now, cats are very fond of fresh fish and Ginger lost no time in grabbing this one. He whisked the line out of the Teenie Weenies' hands and disappeared with fish, hook, and line.

The Teenie Weenies were very angry, for they had worked mighty hard to catch the fish, and that night they held an indignation meeting in the Teenie Weenie town hall. The old felt hat which the little folks used for a town hall fairly rang with strong speeches against Ginger, and the little people appointed a Teenie Weenie committee to ask Jack, their dog friend, to chase the cat away from the Teenie Weenie village.

WASTEPAPER FIGHTS FOR VICTORY

FABULOUS FABLES No 1

Once upon a time...

in ancient Rome, there lived a Poor Jerk named ANDROCLES who was a slave. His master was a So-and-So and a No-Good, and gave Andy the Business from Rosy Dawn to Dewy Eve, in addition to lifting his Red Points and his Shoe Coupons. In fact, the only thing he left Andy was his Listerine Tooth Paste, which was a big break for Andy as you shall see.

Finally, desperate, Androcles ran away to a cave, taking his Listerine Tooth Paste with him, of course, to keep his teeth in condition to fight wild beasts. In these battles Androcles was quite a Sport, and usually spotted the animal the first two Bites. This he could easily do, my little ones, for his teeth were not only gleaming white, but very hard and sound.

One day, as he sat in his cave, along came a Lion, and Andy beheld a White Flag in one paw and a painful Thorn in the other.

"Is there a Chiropodist in the House?" moaned the Lion.

Big-hearted Androcles stepped up. "I'll remove that thorn so that when the fight starts we'll be even."

"Fight? Who are you kiddin'?" snorted the King of Beasts. "You and me is Pals, Andy."

Years passed and in the vast Roman Arena slaves were being tossed to the Hungry Beasts. And who do you suppose was right there in the Front Row—the next to be Tossed? You're right, Kiddies! It was Androcles!

But did he die? NO! Was he saved by a reprieve? NO! By the Marines? NO! Then how, my little ones? He was saved by a smile . . . HIS smile!

For, just as the head Lion was about to spring, he recognized his old Boy Scout.

"Andy!" he exclaimed, "Well, whaddaya know! I'd know that smile of yours in a MILLION!"

And why not . . . it was a Listerine-Tooth-Paste smile.

So, instead of giving his Molars a workout on Andy's ribs, the Lion clasped him in a warm embrace, while ten thousand Romans cried, "Thumbs Up! Set him free! Set him free!" Whereupon the management agreed, and, arm-in-arm, Androcles and the Lion walked out of the Arena forever, and headed for Joe's Lunch and Grill.

MORAL: Do the Right Thing by your Smile and it'll do Right by You.

Listerine Tooth Paste specially created to get after many of the "PIN-POINT" cracks in enamel.

YOU CAN SEE THE DIFFERENCE!

Tests show it... Millions know it!

No matter what leading tooth powder you are using now . . . Pepsodent Tooth Powder with Irium will make your teeth brighter!

Pepsodent makes this unqualified promise to you, without fear of contradiction . . . because test after test proves: Pepsodent Powder with Irium makes teeth far brighter.

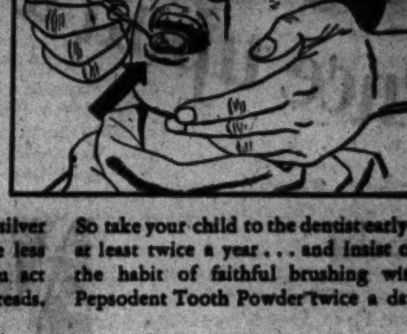
Tests by impartial laboratories . . . tests with photoelectric devices . . . tests by identical twins . . . by dental clinics, by dentists themselves . . . produced overwhelming evidence for this one unshakable fact:

Pepsodent Powder produces a lustre on teeth twice as bright as the average of all other leading brands . . . brighter than any of them—bar none!

Change to Pepsodent Powder—the only powder containing Irium, the exclusive cleansing ingredient. Use it twice a day . . . and see it make your teeth brighter!

You can see the difference in one week!

Never neglect cavities in children's teeth!



Little cavities, like little boys themselves, grow bigger before you know it! Protect your child's teeth by insisting on careful brushing twice a day. And take him to the dentist early and regularly so possible trouble can be detected before it gets a real start. Small fillings . . . even in baby teeth . . . may make a big difference in looks, in health all through life.

Your dentist will choose the proper type of filling for each individual case . . . synthetic porcelain or plastic, gold or silver amalgam. But the filling will take less time, be less conspicuous if you act early. Don't delay until decay spreads.

So take your child to the dentist early—at least twice a year . . . and insist on the habit of faithful brushing with Pepsodent Tooth Powder twice a day.

LEGION DECIDES TO JOIN BONDS FOR JOE CLUB

Post Opens Booth in Loop Store

Fighters, who after the last war changed their headgear for American Legion caps, have thrown those hats into the mighty 7th war loan drive by opening a Dad to GI Joe center and conducting a rally in the hat bar of Goldblatt Brothers department store in the loop.

Sponsored by the Millinery post of the 1st district, Legionnaires promoted the sale of more than $50,000 in bonds in 15 minutes. Dads making purchases in the names of their sons became members of the Dad to GI Joe club, a national movement adopted by the treasury department for the mighty 7th campaign.

Feels Bit More Jaunty

Tilting his Legion cap at a prouder angle, John W. Bottomley, 7700 N. Marshfield av., took his place in line to join the Dad to GI Joe club. He bought bonds for sons, Pvt. John A., with the anti-aircraft artillery in Saipan, and Sgt. Thomas, with the 3d army in Germany.

Both in service two years, they are upholding the tradition set in the last war when every male Bottomley of military age was in uniform. Their dad saw action with the 81st division at St. Die, St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne.

Maurice Goldblatt added his name to the enrolment by ordering a bond for his son, Pvt. Noel Goldblatt, with the infantry in Germany. A graduate of Culver Military academy in Indiana, Noel has been in the European theater since last January. His unit of the 3d army recently was commended for its part in the German drive.

Facsimile Now En Route

Norman L. Kahn, radioman 1st class, will receive a V-mail facsimile of the Dad to GI Joe bond purchased by his father, Lester Kahn, 5815 Winthrop av. In the Atlantic theater 10 months, Norman joined the navy two years ago.

War working mothers of GI Joes at Stewart-Warner corporation, 1828 Diversey pkwy., have added Dad to GI Joe salesmanship to their regular duties. Remembering her three fighting sergeants, Mrs. Mary De Cantillon, 3243 N. Wayne av., has helped to further the sales at the plant, where the war loan quota has been subscribed 200 per cent. A fourth of this pledged amount was for Dad to GI Joe bonds.

Among the hundreds of bonds pledged were applications secured by Mrs. De Cantillon and Mrs. Martha De Lano from Fred Warner, 4617 N. Ashland av., for a bond for his son, Pvt. Charles Solomon, at the Dollard [Tex.] army air base, and from Fred Schmid, 3032 Clyborne av., for his son, Corp. Charles Schmid, serving in the China-Burma-India theater.

Four Sons in Service

From the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kelly, 1757 Albion av., four son have gone to war. Accepting the Dad to GI Joe chairmanship for the Clark-Devon-Sheridan community, Kelly was joined in his campaign for bond sales by his son, Marine Pvt. Harold, home on leave after 26 months in the South Pacific. Harold was on hand when his dad sold a bond to the parents of neighbor and former playmate, Russel Anderson, aviation machinist's mate. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Anderson, 1706 Arthur av., Russel was on board the Liscombe Bay aircraft carrier when it was sunk off Macon Island.

In making their purchase the Andersons were following a custom established when Russel joined the navy in September, 1942. They have remembered to buy bonds for him on his birthday, Christmas, Easter, and whenever they want to do something "particularly nice" for their son.

At the Kelly home, bonds bear the names of Lt. Joseph, who is with the 1st army in Germany; Lt. Robert of the amphibious forces in Germany, and Marine Staff Sgt. George [Bill], who returned after serving 17 months in the Pacific. He is at San Diego, Cal., awaiting reassignment to the Pacific.

OCD Sells Itself

Strong factor in all war loan drives have been the members of OCD division 6. This contingent has met consistently and surpassed assigned quotas. Launched on the present drives, dads of the division became so enthusiastic about the Dad to GI Joe campaign they sold themselves.

Last week these proud parents of sons in service met in division headquarters, 2045 Lincoln Park West, and by making purchases joined the Dad to GI Joe club.

PRELATE TO GIVE BARAT DEGREES IN LAKE FOREST

Archbishop Stritch will confer degrees on graduates of Barat College of the Sacred Heart, Lake Forest, at 4 p. m. Tuesday in the college chapel. At 8:30 a. m. the same day the student little choir will sing a mass written for the graduation by Dr. John Becker, Barat director of creative music.

At 3:30 p. m. today in the Grotto of Our Lady on the campus seniors will take part in the daisy chain ceremony, giving the flower chain to members of the junior class and singing the school song as students for the last time.

The senior class will and the junior prophecy for the graduates will be read at the junior-senior dinner tomorrow night. The sophomore class then will serenade the seniors.

Millinery Legion Post Opens Dad to GI Bond Center in Loop

The Millinery post of the 1st district American Legion opened a Dad to GI Joe center and staged a bond rally recently in the hat bar of Goldblatt Brothers loop store. Within 15 minutes more than $50,000 in bonds were sold. Promoting and making purchases were (left to right): Hans Herrmann, 501 Briar pl.; Samuel E. Young, 847 Agatite; Samuel Baer, 3270 Lake Shore dr.; David Mandelbaum, 6335 Winthrop av.; Anthony A. Altier, 1st district commander, 2543 N. Drake av.; E. A. Bentley, 18 S. Michigan av.; Lester A. Kahn, 5815 Winthrop av.; John Bottomley, 7700 N. Marshfield av.; Lawrence Greenwald, 1422 Thorndale av.; Charles Hansen, 5401 Melrose st., and Harry Heller, 5049 Sheridan rd.

Never too busy to do something more for their sons, war working mothers of service men take time to further Dad to GI Joe sales at the Stewart-Warner plant at 1828 Diversey pkwy. Mrs. Mary De Cantillon, 3243 Wayne av. (left), and Mrs. Martha De Lano, 6158 N. Artesian av., take applications for Dad to GI Joe bonds from Fred P. Werner, 4617 N. Ashland av., and Bejamin Schmid, 3032 Clybourn av. Plant quota has been oversubscribed 200 per cent. Of this approximately one-fourth of the sales were made by Dads of GI Joes.

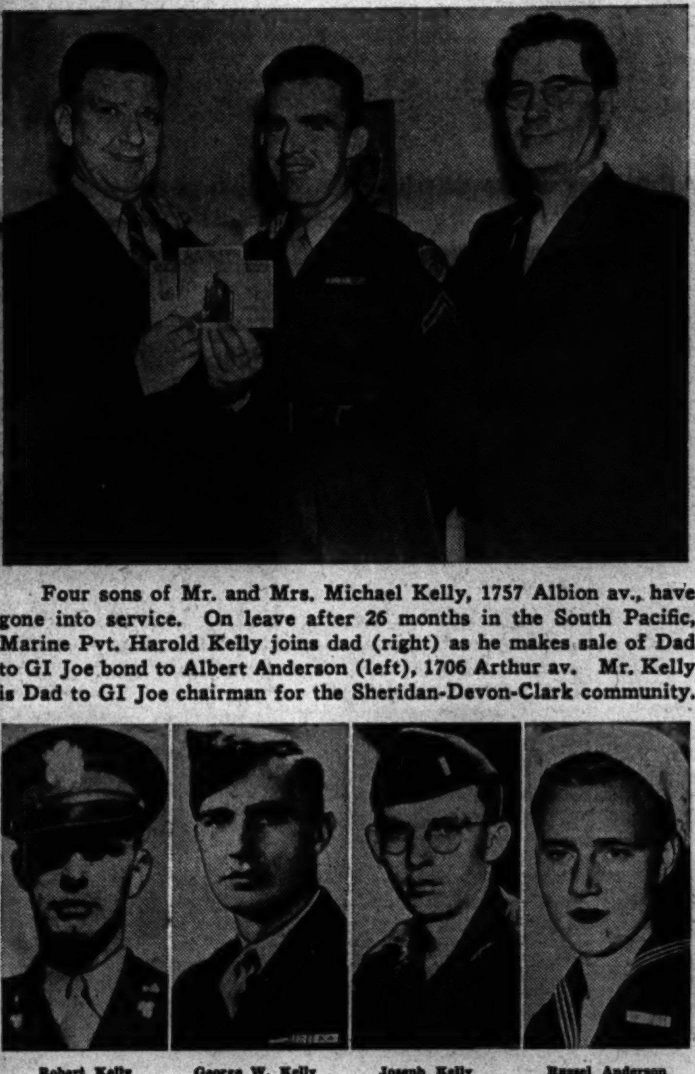
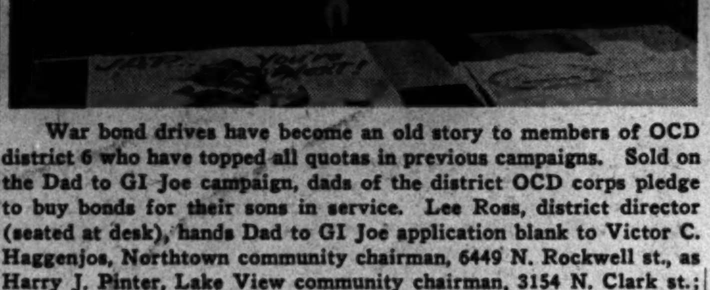
"This is for my son," says Maurice Goldblatt, store president, as he receives bond and displays picture of Pvt. Noel Goldblatt, who is with the infantry in Germany. Alice Rotunno, store employee and member of the Woman's Volunteer corps handled the sale. In semi-circle behind Mrs. Goldblatt are Ben Wieder, commander of Millinery post; Charles H. Trotcky, and Comdr. Altier.



Four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kelly, 1757 Albion av., have gone into service. On leave after 26 months in the South Pacific, Marine Pvt. Harold Kelly joins dad (right) as he makes sale of Dad to GI Joe bond to Albert Anderson (left), 1706 Arthur av. Mr. Kelly is Dad to GI Joe chairman for the Sheridan-Devon-Clark community.

John Bottomley — T. R. Bottomley — Norman I. Kahn



War bond drives have become an old story to members of OCD district 6 who have topped all quotas in previous campaigns. Sold on the Dad to GI Joe campaign, dads of the district OCD corps pledge to buy bonds for their sons in service. Lee Ross, district director (seated at desk), hands Dad to GI Joe application blank to Victor C. Haggenjos, Northtown community chairman, 6449 N. Rockwell st., as Harry J. Pinter, Lake View community chairman, 3154 N. Clark st.; Edward W. Parlee, Clark-Devon community chairman, 6975 Sheridan rd., and W. R. Davis, division war bond chairman, 7438 N. Hermitage av., look on.

ANNUAL ALUMNI DAY TO BE HELD AT N.U. SATURDAY

Plans Include Class Dinners, Parade

More than 25,000 Northwestern university alumni from the Chicago area are expected to attend the annual Alumni day Saturday on the Evanston campus. Festivities will begin with registration at 11 a. m. in University hall and will include a parade, luncheon, tea, and class dinners in the evening.

Carrying 37 United Nations flags, members of Anchor and Eagle, campus veterans' organization, will lead a procession of seniors and alumni from University hall up Sheridan rd. to Patten gymnasium. The parade will form at 12:45 p. m.

Elect Officers at Luncheon

The group will attend a luncheon in the gymnasium where alumni honors will be awarded, the senior class will be received into the alumni association, and officers for the association will be elected.

Carl Johnson, association president, will present the alumni medal, highest honor bestowed by the association. Fifteen merit awards and seven service awards also will be given. Prizes will be given various alumni, including one for an alumnus from the oldest class represented. Oliver Nichols, Skokie, arrangements chairman, will preside.

Hold Tea and Open House

The group will attend a tea and open house from 3:30 to 6 p. m. in the student lounge of Scott hall. Members of the class of 1915 will be guests at a tea from 4 to 6 p. m. in the home of Owen L. Coon, 1201 Sheridan rd., Evanston.

Class dinners will include one for the class of 1895 at 6 p. m. in the home of Lucy E. Stewart, 2110 Orrington av., Evanston; class of 1900, at 6 p. m. in the home of Mrs. A. W. Moseley, 2039 Orrington av., and class of 1925 at 7:30 p. m. in the Northwestern Golf club.

Chairmen of subcommittees include: Mrs. John Trussel, Lake Forest; Richmond Corbett, Lake Bluff, and W. Marshall Galloway, Doris Corbett, Kenneth Reeling, Joseph Rose, Thomas Airth, Mrs. Robert Suhr, Walter Paulison, and Dr. Robert Johnson, all of Evanston.

Appoint Winnetkan Head of Fresh Air Hospital

Arthur M. Barrett, Winnetka, has been appointed president of the Chicago Fresh Air hospital, 2450 Howard st. The institution is the only nontax supported hospital for tuberculosis in the Chicago area.

Junior Group to Entertain Evanston Woman's Club

Members of the Woman's club of Evanston will be guests of the junior auxiliary at a dessert bridge at 1 p. m. June 12. Mrs. R. H. Samuels, program chairman, and Mrs. John Buist Sadler, president, will have charge of arrangements.

Bethany Church to Mark Centennial of Sect in U. S.

The centennial of Swedish Methodism in the United States will be observed at the Bethany church, Winnemac and Ashland avs., with two services today. At 4 p. m. the Rev. C. G. Wallenius will preach and the Rev. Axel Pearson will preside at the 7:30 p. m. service. Both will speak of the history of the church in America beginning with its organization in May, 1845, aboard the Bethelship in New York harbor.

CHEMISTS PLAN TO HONOR HEAD OF N. U.'S STAFF

The 1945 honorary scroll award of the American Institute of Chemists will be given Dr. Ward V. Evans, chairman of the chemistry department at Northwestern university. The presentation will take place at the fall meeting of the institute.

Evans will receive the honor for his outstanding achievements in the field of chemistry as a teacher and industrial consultant and for his civic spirit. He is the author of laboratory manuals on general chemistry, and numerous scientific articles.

A national authority on explosives, Evans will retire from the university on Sept. 1, 1945, after serving on the faculty since 1916. During World War I. he served as a high explosives expert and tester for the United States bureau of mines. He also has served for the last two years as faculty committeeman on athletics at the university.

WORKS BY FIVE N. SHORE ARTISTS TO GO ON EXHIBIT

Art Institute Show to Open Thursday

The works of five Evanston and one Winnetka artist have been chosen by the jury for the 49th annual exhibition by artists of Chicago and vicinity which opens Thursday at the Art institute.

Children of their neighbors were chosen as models for entries by John Wallace Purcell, 1120 Judson av., and Evie Fort, 932 Hinman av., both of Evanston. A portrait head, cast in stone, of Robert Robson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Robson, 2500 Prospect av., Evanston, is one of Sculptor Purcell's exhibits. The other is a terra cotta head of a girl with pigtails.

Use Children as Models

Purcell is especially fond of child subjects. He studied at the Art institute where he won the Ryerson traveling scholarship. After further work in Europe he returned to the institute as a teacher. He presently is instructing the children's class in small sculptures at the Evanston Art center and market. His works have been exhibited in galleries in Europe and the United States.

The young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Atwood, 809 Washington st., Evanston, is shown in an oil portrait by Mrs. Fort. Dressed in Victorian costume, the youngster is serving tea for a dolls' party. This is the second time Mrs. Fort has been chosen to exhibit in the all-Chicago show. She was the first American to win a first prize in the English academy in Rome, Italy.

Oils, Water Colors for Show

An oil, a water color, and a lithograph by Michael Ursulescu, 1418 Main st., Evanston, will be hung in the show. Of national repute, Ursulescu belongs to the faculties of the Art institue, Katherine Lord's studio in Evanston, and the North Shore Art league.

A veteran of five Chicago and vicinity shows, Betty Hall, 318 Hamilton st., Evanston, will be represented with a water color of Chamelee Plaza in Guatemala. Her works also have been shown for five years at the International Water Color show. Works by Mrs. Elizabeth Englehard of Winnetka will be shown in the water color class. Several of her pictures belong to the permanent collection of the Milwaukee [Wis.] Art institute.

Has Solo Showing

Last year she was given a solo showing at the Evanston Art Center and Market. Both she and Betty Hall are graduates of the institute and studied at Saugatuck summer school in Michigan.

Lucille Roebuck Keeler, 425 Lee st., Evanston, will have "The River," a landscape in oil in the show. She also has two paintings in the current all-Illinois show at the Drake hotel. Miss Keeler is exhibits chairman of the Evanston Art Center and Market.

Sixteen prizes will be awarded during the show which will end Aug. 17.

Agassiz PTA

A style show sponsored by Flower Technical High school under direction of Miss Mary C. Gilles, principal, will be the program of Agassiz PTA at 1:30 p. m. June 13.

Bell av., American Legion award for outstanding ability, and Charles S. Rollings Jr., 1033 Loyola av., senior activities plaque.

Miss Bette Jeffries will sing Gounod's "Ave Maria" and Franck's "Panis Angelicus." The ceremony will close with an act of consecration to the sacred heart recited by the senior class and benediction of the most blessed sacrament.

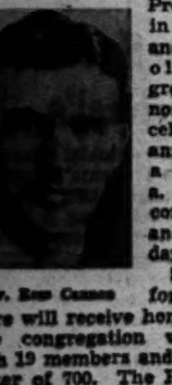
Piano Recital

Virginia L. Johnson, organist and choir director of Trinity Episcopal church, Highland Park, will present her piano pupils in a recital at 3:15 p. m. today in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

CHURCH TO OPEN 70TH JUBILEE IN WILMETTE

Service and Concert to Be Held Today

The First Congregational church of Wilmette, first independent Protestant body in the village and one of the oldest such groups on the north shore, will celebrate its 70th anniversary with a service at 11 a. m. today, a concert tonight, and a dinner Friday.



Rev. Ross Cannon

Seven members for 50 years or more will receive honor certificates. The congregation was organized with 19 members and has a present roster of 700. The Rev. Ross Cannon is pastor.

Dr. Bowers to Be Guest

Guest minister at this morning's communion service will be Dr. Roy Edwin Bowers, Lakewood, O., who was pastor of the Wilmette church from 1908 to 1918. Also present will be the Rev. Vere V. Loper, pastor from 1929 to 1931, now minister of a Berkeley [Cal.] church, who will stop in Wilmette on his way to a meeting in New York of the committee for war victims and services of Congregational churches.

Messages will be read from the Rev. Edwin B. Dean, pastor from 1893 to 1899; the Rev. John S. Hindley, 1931 to 1942, and Mrs. Mary S. Lloyd, whose husband, the late Rev. Stephen A. Lloyd, was pastor from 1919 to 1928.

Choir to Give Concert

At 8 p. m. today the choir will sing its outstanding choral and solo numbers under direction of David Nyvall Jr., who is completing his first year as musical director.

A banquet at 6:30 p. m. Friday in the church parlors will mark the exact date in 1875 when the Wilmette body was received into the Chicago Congregational association. Officials of the Chicago Congregational union will be guests.

Honor certificates will be awarded J. Melville Brown, oldest member in point of service, who joined in 1885 and on whose property the first church stood; Miss Minnie Hughes, who joined in 1889; Mrs. C. L. Hosken, Mrs. Lorin Bower, and Mrs. Frank Watson, all in 1893; Miss Agnes Watson, 1890, and Mrs. J. S. Doig, 1898.

An anniversary booklet, designed by George Moyer, will be presented to each member with 25 years or more of service.

Will Discuss Remodeling

Developments in a five year plan to prepare for the 75th anniversary in 1950 will be announced at the dinner, the Rev. Mr. Cannon said. A proposal to remodel the church by adding a new chapel, church parlor, minister's study, and administrative offices will be discussed. A committee of 25 members already has been named to raise and administer a fund of $75,000 for this plan.

A graduate of Chicago Theological Seminary, the Rev. Mr. Cannon came to Wilmette in October, 1943, after a five year pastorate in River Edge, N. J. Previously he had been pastor of the Sandwich [Ill.] Congregational church. He is a member of the Wilmette Community Fund board and the library board.

Held Services in School

June 3, 1875, was the date when 14 residents of Wilmette met in the home of Andrew T. Sherman to organize the church. Before that time Protestants in the village had attended a community church on the site of the present Methodist church.

For several years services were held in Byron Stolp school. In 1883 a frame church was built on 11th st. opposite the present brick structure at Wilmette av., Lake and 11th sts. Land for the present building was given by Mrs. Mary E. Gates in 1895, and part of the church was occupied in 1904. It was completed and dedicated on Jan. 1, 1910.

The first Boy Scout troop west of the Alleghany mountains was organized under sponsorship of the church, officials said. The church has an active service men's committee to maintain contact with members in service, welcome them after discharge, and aid the work of service centers.

Armstrong PTA to Hear Talk on School Problems

Miss Mildred Minogue, principal, will discuss "School Problems" before Armstrong PTA at 8 p. m. Wednesday in Indian Boundary park fieldhouse. A program of Latin American music and dances will be given by Salvatore Mendoza, Emma Saravia, and Dorothy Jones.

HONOR ORGANIST OF ST. LUKE'S IN EVANSTON TODAY

Dr. Herbert E. Hyde of Winnetka, who began his musical career as a choir boy at the age of 7, will celebrate his 25th anniversary as organist and choirmaster of St. Luke's church, Evanston, at the 11 a. m. service today.

The adult choir of 50 voices will sing an anthem, "God Is Our Refuge and Strength," written by Dr. Hyde for the occasion and recently published by Gray & Co., New York. It is a setting of a text from the 83d Psalm. Two other anthems and a prelude by Dr. Hyde are on the program. Dr. Frederick L. Barry, pastor, will speak.

On Staff at Wright

Dr. Hyde teaches harmony, theory, and counterpoint in Wright Junior college and is conductor of the Chicago Association of Commerce Glee club.

The Church of the Ascension, 1133 N. La Salle st., saw the beginning of the organist's career. He attracted much attention because of his skill as a pianist, and at the age of 13 became organist of St. John's mission in Chicago.

When 16 the young musician became organist in the Church of the Ascension, and at 18 accepted an appointment to a similar post in St. Peter's church, Belmont av. and Broadway, where he remained until coming to his present post.

Studies in Paris, London

Dr. Hyde has written songs, piano compositions, cantatas, operettas, madrigals, and secular choral compositions, as well as anthems and organ selections. He received theoretical training at Northwestern university and has studied organ in Paris and London.

Dr. Hyde was superintendent of the Chicago Civic Music association for many years and has been organist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra and conductor of the Chicago Musical Arts society. He twice was elected dean of the Illinois chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

Pat O'Brien on Air

Pat O'Brien, June Duprez, and Tom Conway will be heard in "Having Wonderful Crime" on Harold Lloyd's Comedy Theater over WMAQ-NBC at 9:30 p. m. tonight.

END YEAR TODAY AT ANSHE EMET JUNIOR SCHOOLS

Closing day exercises will be held at the junior schols of Anshe Emet synagog, Pine Grove av. at Grace st., at 10 a. m. today. Myer N. Rosengard, Men's club president, will present the I. Harrison Tumpeer scholarship awards to the highest ranking students in the confirmation class, high school, and Hebrew school graduation classes.

Camp scholarships and attendance awards will be made by Mrs. Harry A. Goldman, vice president of the Sisterhood, and Albert Elazer, Anshe Emet director of education.

Meyer T. Lazar, school board chairman will preside, and the Junior High schol choir will present a cantata "What is Torah?" Guests will view an exhibit of school work in the Community hall.

Members of Congregation B'nai Zion will hold their anual Silver Plate charities campaign dinner at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Covenant club, 10 N. Dearborn st. Aaron Ascher and Cantor A. A. Blackman will give the program. Edward Epsteen and Myron Weinstein are committee chairmen. Samuel Wolberg is president of the congregation.

The Men's club of North Shore Congregation Israel, Glencoe, will hold a golf tournament and election of officers Wednesday at Northmoor Country club. Richard J. Klemperer is arrangements chairman.

Closing exercises at North Shore Congregation Shaare Tikvah schools, 3314 Bryn Mawr av., will be held at 11 a. m. today. Rabbi David Graubart and Joseph Liebenson, principal, will confer the honors. Daniel D. Glasser, school committee chairman, will speak.

Newly elected officers of Shaare Tikvah Sisterhood are: Clara Smoller, president; Judith Gold, Helen Applebaum, Rose Halap, and Sylvia Goldstein, vice presidents; Ruth Layden, Dorothy Ableman, and Lillian Gordon, secretaries, and Gertrude Wein, treasurer.

WE HAVE A TALE WHICH REACHES; SO DOES GUEST!

Or How to Exist Without Aid of Red Points

BY GENEVIEVE FLAVIN

With lavish gesture ye host of the middle and late 19th century gave his dinner guests the bird. He feasted them, according to the historic menus currently on exhibit at the Chicago Historical society, Clark st. at North av., on such dishes as pea fowls, widgeons, and side dishes of small birds served with champagne sauce.

In 1856 the lord mayor of London gave a simple eight instead of the regulation nine course dinner. He made up in variety, however, by offering his diners stewed eels, braised, boiled or baked turkey, gosling, woodcocks, pea fowl, guinea hen, partridge, pheasant, widgeon, and hare.

What, No Steak?

Nor did he neglect the dessert selections. Guests were plied with Sir Watkin and cabinet puddings, five ices with ginger cream, and gingerwater. No mention was made of bicarbonate of soda.

Overshadowing the lord mayor's gastronomic teasers was the extravagant feast given by John S. Drake at the old Grand Pacific hotel Nov. 13, 1880. Known as his 25th annual game dinner, it became the talk of gourmets all over the world. The variety of game served is scarcely believable in this day. The menu listed one of the most complete collections of American game dishes ever to appear at one time on one—only one—bill of fare. There were 13 varieties of forest birds, 14 marsh birds, 27 water fowl, 18 kinds of animals, and, O yes, the more plebeian foods.

Owner of the exhibit, O. Andreas Garson of Oak Park, has collected numerous rare items whose romantic association with the world's political and social life has made them collector's gems. Only 100 menus are shown in the exhibition which will continue thru June 30.

10 Miles—10 Courses!

Another of the Garson menus from the same year was used on the first diner of the Chicago and North Western railroad. Lack of speed on the train was compensated by excellence of meals. The menu features antelope with jelly on the 10 course dinner. Price listed is 75 cents.

Significant instances in history are linked with many of the collection items. One tells that President Fillmore was guest of honor at a banquet dedicating the first thru railway service from Boston to Canada and the far west in 1851.

Several autographed menus are on exhibit. They include an inscription by Dan Beard, great Boy Scout leader, on a bill of fare at a dinner feting Mark Twain, given by the Illustrators' club.

Many Famous Names

Of more recent interest is the menu from the banquet tendered President Wilson during his stay in Manchester, England, while en route to America from Paris after World War I. This was presented to his aide, Adm. Grayson. Famous signatures also appear on menus honoring Gen. Grant, Gen. Sherman, President Theodore Roosevelt, Gen. Pershing, Cardinal Mercier, and the scientist, Louis Pasteur.

Also included in the collection are menus from the royal banquet in 1860 celebrating the visit to Chicago of the prince of Wales, later Edward VII.

He was the first heir to the British throne to visit Chicago. Also exhibited is the menu from the party in November, 1924, tendered his grandson, the prince of Wales now duke of Windsor.

SOLDIER HELPS DELIVER BABY IN ROAR OF BATTLE

Turns Aid Station Into a Delivery Room

To the roaring of shells bursting near-by, Corp. Gregory W. Konold, 1308 Maple av., Evanston, one day last month assisted at the birth of a German baby.

Corp. Konold

Assigned as interpreter for German prisoners brought to the allied medical aid station at Magdburg, Germany, Corp. Konold's duties were interrupted when a woman rushed in asking aid for a friend.

Bring Patient In

The patient was brought to the station, where Konold had arranged for an army doctor to make the delivery. Then he stood by and assisted at the birth, along with a sergeant from southern Illinois.

The baby was named Maria. Of her, Corp. Konold wrote his wife, Margaret, "I wish Maria, conceived in war and born in battle with the thunder of guns as a lullaby, might symbolize a new Germany dedicated to peace."

Routine Day at Station

It had been a routine day at the station until the prospect of the birth, Konold said. Every soldier in the place wanted to participate, and the mother's room became a gallery. He said that the patient did not seem at all concerned at having so many male nurses.

Corp. Konold mastered his German while a student at De Paul university school of music and art and at the Cologne conservatory in Germany, where he studied when he was 15. Before his entrance into service he was organist of St. Mary's Catholic church, Evanston, for 10 years and was director of choruses at Mundelein and Rosary colleges.

The corporal has been overseas two years. He has a son, Peter, 16 months of age. His mother, Helen Konold, resides at 1110 Grove st., Evanston.

Girl Reserves

A registration party for prospective Girl Reserve members will be held at 4 p. m. June 12 in the Evanston Y. W. C. A., 1520 Sherman av.

Women at War

Jueletta K. Hare, seaman 2d class, recently spent a leave from her post at special communications headquarters in Washington, D.C., with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Al H. Hare, 1443 Farwell av. She also visited Mrs. J. W. Staples of the Edgewater Beach apartments and toured Glenview naval air station as a guest of Comdr. Willard Staples, brother-in-law of Mrs. Staples. Miss Hare was graduated from North Shore School for Girls, Wilmette, and entered the navy 18 months ago.

Jueletta Hare

Ensign Virginia Elaine Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Jacobs, 1215 Waveland av., has completed the indoctrination course at Great Lakes Naval hospital. She studied nursing at St. Xavier college.

On the basis of competitive examinations at Jacksonville [Fla.] naval air station, Gunhild Violet Hedlund recently was promoted to seaman first class. The daughter of Mrs. Ellen Hedlund, 3126 Sheffield av., she works in the assembly and repair department. Seaman Hedlund enlisted in March, 1944.

Stanley A. Woolman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Woolman, 920 George st., is en route home from the Italian theater, where he served as pilot of a Mustang with the 15th air force. He recently was promoted to first lieutenant and awarded the air medal with two clusters. Lt. Woolman completed 30 combat missions over enemy territory. He is a graduate of Lake View High school, and attended the University of Illinois until his enlistment in June, 1942.

Lt. Woolman

Capt. Theodore R. Stevens, brother of William G. Stevens, 609 Stratford pl., has been awarded the bronze star medal for heroism under fire at Mebenach, Luxemburg, last Jan. 9. Capt. Stevens is a surgeon with a 3d army field artillery battalion. He is a graduate of Senn High school and the University of Illinois college of medicine.

Capt. Stevens

The silver star for gallantry in action at St. Lo, France, July 30, 1944, has been awarded Pvt. Fred J. Bentel, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Bentel, 1307 Sunnyside av.

The air medal and distinguished flying cross have been awarded Lt. Harry H. Parker Jr., 4859 N. Talman av. He is a pilot with the India-Burma-China air transport command.

John P. Tres, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Tres, 2357 Chase av., recently was graduated from the merchant marine academy, Kings Point, N. Y. Before receiving his appointment, he served three months on merchant ships carrying supplies to allied battle fronts.

John Tres

Staff Sgt. Peter N. Kohles Jr., 2942 N. Damen av., has returned to the United States and is at Ashburn general hospital, McKinney, Tex. He served in Belgium, France, and Germany, and has three battle stars.

Staff Sgt. William D. Finnegan, son of James F. Finnegan, 926 Montrose av., has been promoted to technical sergeant with the 15th air force in Italy. He also received a third cluster to the air medal.

Ensign Rodney E. Praetor, 2531 Jackson st., Evanston, is on leave in the United States from his squadron based on a carrier in the Pacific. He flew 24 combat missions during the Luzon and Okinawa campaigns. Entering the navy while a student at the University of Wisconsin, he was commissioned in May, 1944.

Ensign Praetor

Lt. Frederick C. Bishop of the 8th air force in England, was a member of the fighter group which aided the liberation of 15,000 allied prisoners in Germany. The Nazi held fighters were on the march under enemy guard when overtaken by the 358th fighter group. Lt. Bishop, whose wife lives in Wilmette, is a graduate of Proviso High school and attended Cornell college, Mt. Vernon, Ia.

Sgt. Harrison R. Fisher, 6709 Glenwood av., was awarded the Purple Heart recently for wounds received in a mission over Germany, last Feb. 27. Member of the 15th air force in Italy, he also holds the air medal. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Fisher, Glencoe.

William Ebert, technician 5th grade, 2522 Southport av., has returned from the China-Burma-India theater and is at the Miami [Fla.] redistribution center.

CABALENES TRIO FIGHTS ON LAND, SEA AND IN AIR

Overseas 33 months and a veteran of Africa, Sicily, and Italy, Sgt. George Peter Cabalenes is a ground crew member of the 321st Mitchel bomber group which was given a war department citation on V-E day for an attack on shipping in Toulon harbor following the invasion of southern France.

Sgt. Cabalenes has been in the army more than three years. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Cabalenes, 427 St. James pl.

Corporal Wounded in January

Information about the sergeant was brought to THE TRIBUNE by his brother, Corp. Peter, who demurred at telling his own story. He has been in the European theater 16 months, spending the last four in hospitals after being wounded in a mine explosion last Jan. 15.

After a 30 day furlough Corp. Cabalenes expects to enter Mayo General hospital, Galesburg, Ill., for a spinal operation. He has been in service two years and has been stationed in England, Normandy, and Germany with the army engineers.

Wanted to See Wife First

"I'm just thankful to be at home," said the corporal. "The first things I wanted to do when I arrived in Chicago were to see my wife and drink a few beers." He said his greatest difficulty was in adjusting to the lesser tension of life away from war. In civil life Corp. Cabalenes was employed by the Chicago Surface lines.

A third brother, John, is on an aircraft carrier in the Pacific. He has been in service three years and went overseas last December. They have one sister, Mrs. George Hummel, 919 Oakdale av.

CAPTAIN'S BARS AND STAR GIVEN TO PETER STONE

CAPTAIN'S BARS AND D. F. C. WON BY NORTH SIDER

Photographer Also One to Receive Award

A distinguished flying cross and a promotion to captain have been awarded Paul B. Plesko, whose wife and 6 months old son live at 6257 Greenview av. The 22 year old captain has flown 35 missions from a 15th air force base in Italy. Two brothers, Jacob and Ralph, also are in the air forces.

Capt. Paul Plesko

Sgt. Edward George

Photographing the coast of Luzon from a Super Fortress bomber before MacArthur's invasion of the island won a D. F. C. for Sgt. Edward George, 1639 Belmont av. He was one of two aerial photographers who shot pictures as their unescorted bomber circled Lingayen gulf for almost an hour. The 3,200 mile mission was flown from a China base. Sgt. George was a photo engraver in civil life.

Flies 450 Hours in Asia

Among other north siders who have received distinguished flying crosses is 1st Lt. William W. Lehman, son of Mrs. Edith Lehman, 1260 Bryn Mawr av., who was given the award with one oak leaf cluster in ceremonies at Rosecrans field, St. Joseph, Mo. Lt. Lehman recently returned from 14 months in the China-Burma-India theater where he completed more than 450 hours of operational flight over Assam-China routes. He attended Lake View High school.

Master Sgt. Bernard G. Malmquist, 2457 Wilson av., won a D. F. C. for his work as aerial radio operator on more than 50 operational flights in unarmed transport planes over Upper Assam, Burma, and southwest China. He also received the air medal for 26 additional flights over the same area. Sgt. Malmquist entered the army in May, 1939, and now is stationed at Hamilton field, Cal., where the awards were presented.

Helps Sink Jap Transport

A D. F. C. was awarded Naval Ensign William H. Cannady, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Canady, 1118 Loyola av., for helping to sink a Japanese transport off the French Indo-China coast last Jan. 12. Diving his plane thru heavy anti-aircraft fire, Ensign Canady scored a torpedo hit on the ship, and was praised by the commander of his task force for "skill and courage" in the attack. Canady was graduated from Sullivan High school.

Pvt. Theodore E. Cornell, 6543 Greenview av., received the award for completing 300 hours of operational flight as aerial radio operator in transport aircraft over India-China routes.

Senior to Wed

MARJORIE ROBINEAU

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Robineau, 340 Lake Shore dr., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Marjorie, to Pvt. Arnold H. Yellin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Yellin, 1711 Juneway terr. Miss Robineau is in the graduating class at the University of Illinois, where her fiancé studied journalism until his enlistment. He is stationed in the Panama Canal zone.

TEACHERS KEEP PACE WITH AIR MINDED PUPILS

Realizing the future importance of aviation and its hold on young imaginations, National College of Education has introduced a background course in aeronautics to give its elementary education students a general knowledge of the field and the ability to answer questions posed by their small pupils.

The class, science in an air age, was taught as an experiment last summer by Dr. K. Richard Johnson and aroused so much interest that it was repeated in the spring quarter. It will be taught during a three week session in August and again next fall.

Help to Fly Plane

As a climax to the course, students this spring applied their knowledge during flight lessons at Pal-Waukee airport, Wheeling, when an instructor took each student up and allowed her to pilot a plane with dual controls. They watched the complete assembling of a C-54 transport plane at Douglas Aircraft Corp., Park Ridge, and inspected hangars, traffic control communications center, and the control tower and weather bureau at Municipal airport.

Principles of aerodynamics are taught thru use of a Comet trainer plane model with workable controls, which is constructed in the laboratory.

North Siders Finish Course

Instruments used by the weather bureau are studied in the first half of the course, when basic principles of meterology and effect of weather changes on air navigation are stressed.

North siders who completed the study this spring are Louise Aird, Louise Hanchett, Betty Meyer, Nancy Norton, and Jean Swartwout, all of Evanston; Alice Bender, 4620 N. Winchester av.; Nina D'Ancona, Highland Park; Lillian Elden, Waukegan, and Betty Kimball, Libertyville.

Will Wed Friday

HELEN EVERETT

Miss Helen Everett, who for four years has made her home with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Simmons, 1606 Hinman av., Evanston, will be married to Nicholas C. Wetzel Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Wetzel, Waukegan, at 10 a. m. Friday in St. Mary's church, Evanston. Miss Everett is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Everett, Brighton, Mass. Mr. Wetzel will be graduated this month from the Northwestern university school of medicine with a commission of lieutenant junior grade in the navy. He will serve his interneship in San Diego, Cal., where the couple will live.

North Side Presbyterian Choir Will Sing Tonight

The choir of Buena Memorial Presbyterian church, Montrose av. and Broadway, will sing "Stabat Mater" by Dvorak at 7:30 p. m. today, under direction of Hermanus Baer of Northwestern university music school. Soloists will be Maude Nosler, soprano; Esther Muenstermann, contralto; Baer and David Glissmann, bass, and Kenneth Henriksen, tenor.

SIGNS 13 OTHERS TO HEX JINX OF 13TH BLOOD GIFT

And Now His Donations Number 18

Earl Mester, 2151 Ridge av., Evanston, denied service with the fighting forces because he was crippled by infantile paralysis when 8 months old, belongs to an army of blood donors whose members appear regularly at the Red Cross center, 5 N. Wabash av. He even has done a bit of recruiting. Tho he gave his 18th pint of blood recently, it was his 13th donation which started him looking for volunteers.

"I'm sort of superstitious," said Mester, "so when time for my 13th visit came I decided to put a hex on any jinx there might be and get 13 other donors to go with me." He arrived on schedule with an army of new recruits. As far as Mester can learn, all have repeated their calls at the blood bank since then.

Other High Donors

David A. Manley leads the north side contingent with 19 donations. Close contenders are Chester Kuttner, 3750 Lake Shore dr.; Max Brook, 4826 N. California av., and Blanche Mitchell, 1260 N. State st., each credited with 18 visits.

Those donating for the 17th time are: Tillie Humanski, 2346 Altgeld st.; Anthony Ensink, Hotel Chicagoan; Mary Johnson, 1702 N. Wells st.; Jeanne Roberts, 5301 N. Ashland av.; George Desser, 6545 N. Richmond st.; Daisy Sullivan, 7627 Greenview av.; Richard L. Schroeder, 1906 Barry av.; John Quinn, 721 Belmont av.; John Visser, 1920 Berwyn av.; Mrs. Margaret Watson of Waukegan, and William McLaughlin, 4820 N. Paulina st.

Frank Antoss, 2733 Crystal st., is a 16 time donor, as are Marion Brownlee, 3424 Belle Plaine av.; Norman Rattere, 3657 N. Janssen st.; Frank C. Marshall, 527 Roscoe st.; Dora Dionisotis, 4213 Richmond st.; Harvey A. Gill, 3449 Belle Plaine av.; John Jung, 6136 N. Wolcott av.; Simon Strauss, 1422 Rascher av.; Clifton Walker, 2752 Asbury av., Evanston; Cedric Williams, Wilmette; Lee Dunbar, Wilmette; Leonard Nattenheimer, 1357 Estes av.; William Schroeder, 650 Webster av., and Mrs. Elsie Becker, 4218 N. Damen av.

List 14, 15 Time Visitors

Fourteen and 15 time visitors to the blood bank are: Elimar Lubben, 2022 Montrose av.; Mrs. Elsie A. Rausch, 1342 Walton st.; Marcella Bartlein, 7064 Sheridan rd.; Gustave Guston, 7736 N. Ashland av.; Herbert Prochnow, 720 Central st., Evanston; William H. Graham, Lincolnwood; Maurice J. Swan, 2240 Wesley av.; Helen Pruitt, 517 Oakdale av.; Glenn Reilly, 1049 Rush st.; Louis O'Donnel, 1819 N. Clark st.; Samuel Block, 645 Buckingham pl.; Alexander Clancy, 670 Irving Park rd., and Frank Mortimer, 1723 Crilly ct.

The blood bank reports an urgent need for more donors to supply immediate aid to men fighting in the Pacific theater. New and regular recruits are asked to make appointments.

Present Shostakovich Work on W-G-N Tuesday

Dmitri Shostakovich's First Symphony will be presented by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, on Symphony Hall over W-G-N, WGNB at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday evening. Other selections include Delius' "Song of Summer" and Dukas' "The Sorcerer's Apprentice."

OUR TOWN

HELEN WENRICH, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wenrich, 6439 N. Bell av., has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa at DePauw university in Greencastle, Ind. A senior, Miss Wenrich, is president of Alpha Omicron Pi, president of Home Economics club, president of Alpha Lambda Delta honor society, and a member of Mortar Board.

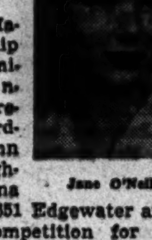
A silver carving set was given Gustav R. Johnson, 1106 Elmwood av., Evanston, when he retired recently after 20 years as janitor of the First Methodist church, Evanston. The Men's club of the church presented the gift with a letter of appreciation from the board of directors. Because he was needed, Johnson worked several years beyond retirement age.

HARRY J. HEBNER, 6978 Sheridan rd., assistant superintendent of the Illinois department of registration and education in Chicago, has been admitted to the bar at Springfield, Ill. He attended Notre Dame university and was graduated from John Marshall Law school. Hebner was a member of the United States Olympic swimming team in 1908, 1912, 1920, and 1924 and was captain of the 1920 team.

Other north siders who received licenses to practice law included: Ruth E. Henderson, 4350 N. Ashland av., graduate of Evanston Township High school and former student at the University of Illinois, and Arnold L. Liebling, 1709 Juneway terr.

JANE O'NEILL, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. O'Neill, 1137 North Shore av., was editor in chief of the freshman edition of Fagots, student newspaper at St. Mary of the Woods college, St. Mary of the Woods, Ind. Miss O'Neill was graduated from Marywood school, Evanston.



Jane O'Neill

A $250 McMahan scholarship to DePauw university, Greencastle, Ind., recently was awarded Priscilla Ann Griswold, daughter of Mrs. Ina W. Griswold, 1651 Edgewater av., in the annual competition for high school seniors at the university. Miss Griswold is a Senn High school student.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, June 4

This is the month when crab grass infests some lawns and every effort should be made to get rid of it or control it. It can be done by raking with a steel toothed rake and mowing to cut off the heads. It is best to rake the infested areas over several times now, destroying the clipping later. Small areas can be cleared by digging by hand.

During dry weather make the cuts of grass no shorter than 1¼ inches, for if cut too short or low it will dry out. If there are bare spots in the lawn chip up the spots or cover with rich soil and sow with a mixture of two-thirds perennial rye and one-third Kentucky blue grass. This will quickly cover the bare spots.

Make another application of plant food to the lawn, but no more until September.

Tuesday, June 5

In areas where the Mexican bean beetle is prevalent spray or dust the plants with magnesium arsenate as soon as the plants have made some growth. It may be necessary to repeat the applications four or more times at intervals of 10 days.

Rotenone dust is effective and may be applied thru a cheesecloth, but have the dust reach the under side of the leaves. Arsenate should not be used after the pods are half grown, for it is highly poisonous to humans. This applies to all crops.

This is rose month and regular spraying with a recommended preparation should be adopted. A mulch with peat moss on the rose bed prevents too rapid evaporation and is said to hinder the spread of mildew and black spot.

Wednesday, June 6

Trim or prune privet hedges again this month, altho it is necessary to do so several times to insure a close and shapely hedge. The most effective barrier that can be obtained from hedges is when they grow thickly from the base and are kept in good form.

Growing plants need plant food and unless the hedge has been given an application it should be done now. Apply the food along both sides and carefully work into the soil, watering afterward.

Thursday, June 7

Mulch the ground among rhododendrons, azaleas, and kalmia or mountain laurel with leaf mold. Peat moss may be obtained in bales and may be more abundant than leaf mold. Grass clippings also may be found useful for the same purpose. Tender water lilies still can be planted. Sow some of the double portulaca in the sunny rock garden or along the narrow strip between the cement driveway and the house or wherever a small area can be utilized.

It is a hot weather plant. Morning glories can be grown from seeds sown now. The heavenly blue and hybrid varieties are beautiful.

Friday, June 8

If it is desired to dig tulip bulbs, wait until the leaves have turned yellow signifying that the bulbs have ripened or entered their resting period. Keep in a dry, airy place until fall, then replant.

Tuberous begonias can be planted in a shady place. The highly colored, fancy leaved caladiums also can occupy a shady place or be used in a north window box. House plants should be occupying an outdoor, shady place. Plunge the pots to the rim. They must be watered every day. Some plant food applied at least once a month is desirable.

Saturday, June 9

Softwood cuttings of many kinds of plants may be made now which enable the gardener to increase his supply of desirable plants. Herbaceous perennials like the delphinium, phlox, chrysanthemum, Sweet William, creeping phlox, iberis, arabis, may be made after flowering.

Cuttings of shrubs also may be made any time before the wood has started ripening. This will be up to about mid-July.

Use a sharp knife to insure a smooth surface. Plunge in cold water immediately after cutting. Insert in sand or sandy soil in a flat and shade for a few days. Most softwood cuttings take from three to four weeks to root. Pot when the roots are half an inch or more long into a sandy loam with some leaf mold; later use a fairly rich soil.

FINAL CITIZENS HOUR IS SLATED FOR SATURDAY

(Radio programs page 8)

The final broadcast of the Citizens of Tomorrow program's sixth season will be recorded next Wednesday in W-G-N's main audience studio for broadcast at 10 a. m. next Saturday. More than 100 high school students will attend. A feature of the program will be the "Parade of Ambitions" in which students who have been named during the season to the program's roll of honor tell of their hopes for the future.

Joe Konitzki, a senior at Elgin High school, will sing "I Got Plenty of Nothin'" from Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess." Philip Maxwell will be the conductor.

All the honor roll students will be guests of the Chicago Association of Commerce at a luncheon Wednesday. Later they will tour Tribune Tower and be guests of THE TRIBUNE at a dinner at the Sherman hotel.

GRIEG MEDLEY TO BE AIRED ON THEATER OF AIR

In memory of Edward Grieg's birthday which falls on June 15, the Chicago Theater of the Air will include a medley of Grieg's more familiar work next Saturday. The program will be broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB and the coast-to-coast Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. "Solveg's Song" will be sung by Marion Claire and the chorus. The opening number of the medley, "Excerpt from String Quartet" will be played by the orchestra and the entire ensemble will be represented in the final number, "Triumphal March from 'Sigurd Jorsalfar.'"

Henry Weber will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus.

ARTIST DISPLAYS PAINTINGEXHIBIT IN ART INSTITUTE

One of a few Evanston artists to open a one man show in the Art institute, Mrs. Robert V. Jones, 1324 Forest av., has hung 12 paintings in an exhibit which will remain open thru July 7.

Several Evanston landscapes are in the group, including scenes at Greenwood st. and Lee st. beaches. A portrait of Mrs. Jones' son, David, a grammar school pupil, is in the display.

Mrs. Jones' paintings have appeared in nine shows at the institute in the last 10 years. She also has exhibited in galleries in New York, Washington, D. C., and Philadelphia, Pa.

Hour of Charm Hails June Brides Tonight

June brides will be given a musical salute by Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra and chorus on the Hour of Charm over WMAQ-NBC at 9 o'clock tonight. Chorus and orchestra will open with Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." Youmans' "Thru the Years" and Adams' "The Bells of St. Mary's" also will be sung. The chair is to conclude with "The Church in the Wildwood," a hymn.

ON SHORT WAVES

LONDON

The North American service of the BBC from London includes the following programs today. The frequencies [in megacycles] employed after 4:15 p. m. are: 11.93, 9.58, 9.82, 6.11, 7.26, 9.51. 4:45 p. m.—News. 6:30 p. m.—Radio Newsreel. 8:15 p. m.—Sunday Service. 11:30 p. m.—News reports.

Tariff Barriers Topic on Review Stand Today

"Should Tariff Barriers Be Lowered?" is the topic for the Northwestern Reviewing Stand over W-G-N-Mutual at 10:30 a. m. today. Allan B. Kline, Robert Gaylord, and Prof. Hahne will participate.

ROGER 5, SUGAR 5, THAT'S GI TALK FOR RADIO'S FINE

BY LARRY WOLTERS

A few weeks ago a terse note from a marine sergeant of the 5th division on Iwo Jima reached the Armed Forces Radio service in Hollywood. It said: "We received your Roger five Sugar five. Your programs are enjoyed by all hands. We connected the transmitter of our gun sections with the receiver of the set in order that we might hear your broadcasts during lulls in firing."

Col. Thomas Lewis

Col. Thomas H. A. Lewis, chief of the A. F. R. S., visiting Chicago last week, explained that, reduced to ordinary language, the sergeant's short wave talk—Roger for clearness, Sugar for signal strength—meant that A. F. R. S. short wave reception from San Francisco was perfect.

Jet Propulsion for Troops

Similar messages are received from hundreds of A. F. R. S. installations all around the world from Okinawa to the occupied portions of Germany and the steaming atolls of the Central Pacific, because it brings our fighting forces overseas the best shows from home [minus commercials] and specially produced shows for overseas and news. Our 22 short wave transmitters at home beam nearly 4,300 hours of programs monthly to the troops abroad. These short wave programs are either picked up direct on short wave receivers or they are rebroadcast at many points overseas by long wave transmitters. Col. Lewis calls short wave the jet propulsion machine for news from home.

And each week transcription units averaging 126 separate radio programs, a total of 51 hours of entertainment from home, are flown to the A. F. R. S. outlets the world around by the air transport command and the naval air transport service.

They Go to Ships, Too

All A. F. R. S. transcriptions are stamped on flexible and unbreakable discs, resistant to heat and cold. Approximately 38,500 are flown to stations each month. And some 33,000 each week are distributed to ships for playing on loud speaker systems.

The special programs include such overseas favorites as Command Performance, which recently featured an all-star adaptation of the Chicago Tribune comic, Dick Tracy; G. I. Jive, with Jill, the service men's favorite feminine entertainer; Mail Call, Your Home Town, Hymns from Home, Jubilee, Show Time, and At Ease.

Col. Lewis calls this radio system our second technique for achieving "Victory Thru Air Power." He ranks radio news and entertainment from home next to letters from home as morale builders.

A "Sarong" Network, Too

Col. Lewis told how various "regional" A. F. R. S. networks have been developed in the Pacific regions. In the Solomons and New Caledonia the "Mosquito" network of A. F. R. S. stations functions. In the Southwest Pacific the "Jungle Network" stretches from Milne bay on New Guinea to Manila. A "Sarong" network is in process of formation.

On these and other groups of stations many soldier and sailor stars have been developed. And they have created many programs of their own. In New Caledonia they even broadcast their own "world series."

New stations are being developed for the American occupation forces in Germany.

Why are these far flung American radio stations operating? Because they maintain the welfare of our fighting forces, they combat the lies of the enemy, and they bring troops touches of home which will ease their transition back into civilian life.

With Wayne King

[Associated Press Wirephoto]

Dolores Gray will sing with Wayne King's orchestra on the new show to be introduced over WMAQ-NBC at 6 p. m. today.

Joseph Fuchs to Play with NBC Orchestra

Joseph Fuchs, violinist, will join the NBC Symphony orchestra, as soloist on the Symphony of the Air over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. He will play Lopatnikoff's Concerto for Violin and Orchestra. Frank Black also will direct the orchestra in Mendelssohn's "Athalie" overture and Liszt's "Les Preludes."

CHURCH BEGUN IN 1875 OPENS JUBILEE WEEK

Dinner Tuesday Will Mark 70th Year

Bethlehem Lutheran church, 58th and Wells sts., will commemorate the 70th anniversary of its founding at two events this week. A parish dinner will be served by the Dorcas society Tuesday night, date of the founding of the church in 1875. The Rev. H. E. Sandstedt, pastor, will say the grace.

At anniversary services next Sunday morning the Rev. O. V. Anderson, pastor of Grace church, La Grange, will address the congregation. Reading of the church history will be heard at a 4 o'clock concert by the senior choir and chapel senior and junior choirs which will sing Swedish folk songs and hymns. Refreshments will be served in the church parlors.

Calls Neighbors Together

Realizing the spiritual needs of Swedish settlers in the neighborhood of 56th and La Salle sts., John Frosberg, a lay preacher, called a meeting of neighbors on June 5, 1875, to organize and build a church. The committee arranged for services to be held temporarily in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hemstrom, 5115 Wentworth av., which is still part of the parish.

The original church building of frame construction was completed in 1876 at 56th and La Salle sts. Shortly afterwards, John Frosberg was ordained and appointed pastor by the Augustana Synod. In 1886 the church was moved to its present site, 58th and Wells sts., where it was enlarged and decorated.

Church Built in 1914

During 1914 this building was razed and construction begun on the present red brick church which has been in use since 1915. Seating capacity with balcony and choir loft is more than 600. A simple altar and pulpit complete the interior arrangement.

The present congregation numbers 600 communicants and 200 children who attend Sunday school. In 1944 a mission chapel was started in a former gas station at 94th st. and Western av. and an associate pastor, the Rev. Elmer T. Peters, appointed. Future plans include a new church building program at 94th st. and Oakley av. where property is owned by the congregation.

Church Has Chapel, Parish

The present parish building group consists of a parsonage and church. A basement chapel in the church provides meeting space for the Sunday school, Bethlehem Star circle, Men's Brotherhood, Luther league, and Dorcas society.

The Rev. Mr. Sandstedt has been Bethlehem's pastor since 1920. He has four children, one of whom, Lt. Julius, is serving with the navy in Florida as an instructor.

Among the church leaders planning the anniversary celebrations are: Elmer Holmgreen and J. J. Thoren, superintendents of the Sunday school; G. F. Lindquist, Elmer Johnson, Everett Hubenet, and Mrs. Pauline Peters, all of Beverly chapel; E. R. Jacobsen, Carl Dahlquist, Emil Peterson, Mrs. N. A. Nelson, and Grace Larson.

90 Members in Service

An honor roll testifies that 90 men and women members of the congregation have entered military services. Two have been killed and one is missing in action.

Altho originally composed entirely of Swedish members, the church now has a variety of nationalities and all services are in English. In addition to the regular Sunday school and morning worship a midweek service is held on Thursday evenings.

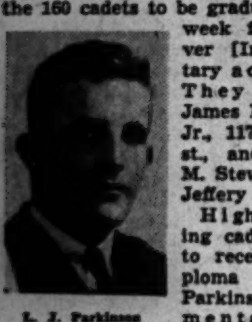
The male chorus of the South Chicago plant of Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation will present its second annual concert Thursday and Friday nights in the auditorium of Hirsch High school, 7740 Ingleside av. The chorus of 60 voices, composed entirely of war workers, will be under direction of Harry S. Walsh, conductor of "The Northerners."

CULVER TO GRADUATE 2 SOUTH SIDERS; ONE RANKS 1ST IN CLASS

Two south side boys will be among the 160 cadets to be graduated this week from Culver [Ind.] Military academy. They are L. James Parkinson Jr., 1172 E. 63d st., and Robert M. Stewart, 6751 Jeffery av.

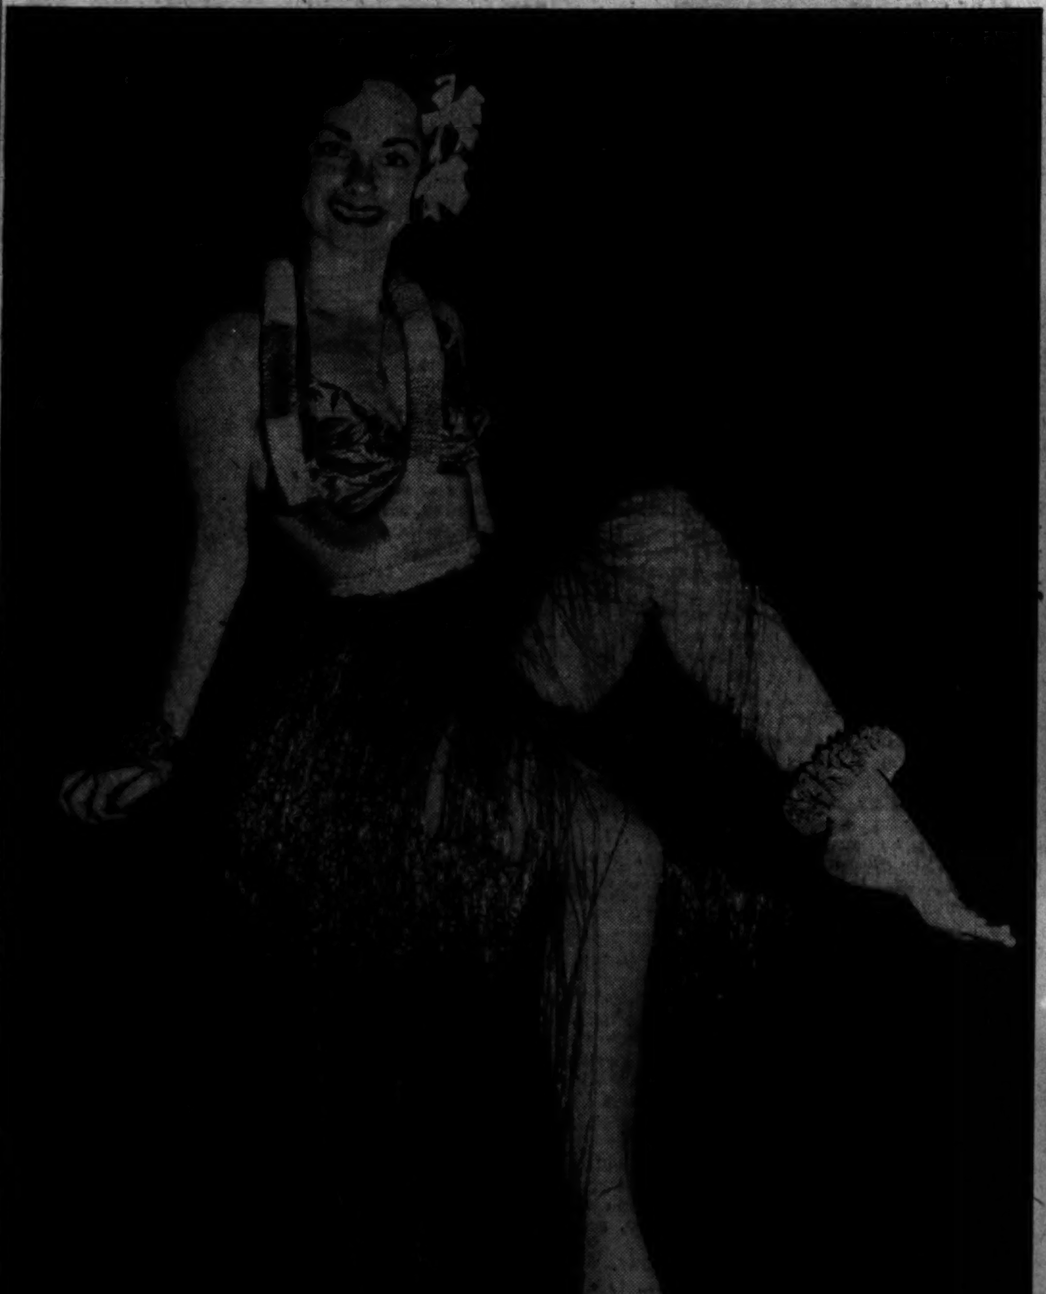


L. J. Parkinson

Highest ranking cadet officer to receive a diploma will be Parkinson, regimental commander of the cadet corps. In addition, he was captain of the picked infantry exhibition unit, the Culver Rifles Honor guard. He was a member of the varsity football, boxing, and track teams. In addition to his outstanding academic record he is president of his class, and a member of the Cadet club, Honor council, and Hi-Y.

A member of the Black Horse troop, Stewart held the cadet rank of lieutenant and received his cavalry instruction in the senior unit of the R. O. T. C. He is a veteran polo player, having been a member of the varsity team for four years.

Seniors Spice Variety Show with Original Dances and Repartee



Attractive Anita Hecht, 2230 E. 68th st., Aitchpe queen, and queen of the recent R. O. T. C. military ball, is one of the main attractions at the annual "Senior Varieties" to be presented by the senior class at Hyde Park High school, 6220 Stony Island av., at 2:15 p. m. and 8 p. m. Friday. The show, in two acts, depicts a party of night club entertainers entertaining patrons B. C. (before curfew), and themselves A. C. (after curfew).

A strictly original "Song of the Islands" will be interpreted by Miss Hecht, Aline Auld, 6205 Kenwood av., and Ethel Abramnos, 6544 Ellis av. In the show they will appear as professional dancers, who like others in the cast, take a busman's holiday after curfew has sounded. They have worked out the dance routines themselves.

Girls in the junior class, who help form a chorus line and do a series of jitterbug dances (left to right) are Mary Macpherson, 5844 Stony Island av.; Jean Tash, 1623 E. 68th st.; Margie Carey, 6532 Greenwood av.; Pat Gardiner, 5520 South Shore dr.; Rosemarie Edgar, 6810 Paxton av.; Cynthia Collins, 1112 E. 64th st.; Barbara Dodd, 5133 Cornell av., and Pat Lawson, 1332 E. 56th st.

OPERETTA CLUB AT SOUTH SHORE TO GIVE MARTHA

Will Hold 3 Shows This Week

South Shore High school Operetta club will present the musical production, "Martha," at 2:15 p. m. Wednesday and Thursday, and again at 8 p. m. Thursday in the school auditorium, 7627 Constance av.

This will be the second annual production presented by the club, headed by Robert Sansone, instructor in the music department, since it was founded in February, 1944. This year's operetta was selected by the club's officers: Irene Belous, president; Lillian Siegal, vice president; Marion Reese, secretary, and Norman Kaplan, treasurer.

The plot concerns two 17th century girls of the nobility seeking adventure who disguise themselves and take jobs as servants.

Leading roles will be played by Allen Weiner, 7652 Essex av.; Morton Haberman, 7327 Chappel av.; Norman Kaplan, 8016 Phillips av.; Irene Belous, 7942 Chappel av., and Marion Reese, 8018 Bennett av.

The chorus will be directed by Miss Mildred Repke, director of mixed choruses, who also coached leading vocalists. Miss Amy Mackie, English teacher, is dramatic coach. The orchestra will be directed by Sansone. The scenery was made by the club's art committee under his direction.

Lt. Col. H. D. Wilson Wins Legion of Merit in Italy

The Legion of Merit recently was awarded Lt. Col. Harrison D. Wilson, whose wife resides at 7020 Jeffery av., for "exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services on the 5th army front in Italy."

One of the many comedy acts will be given by the Reflectors, as zany a group as ever trod the boards. Aided by outlandish costumes, appropriate gestures, and weird lighting effects, they profess to interpret the latest in phonograph records. Left to right are Bob Allweiss, Stuart Klipp, Ted Yeager, and Kjck Korem.

SCHOOL OF PTA TO HONOR NEW STATE LEADER

A reception for Mrs. Frank A. Damm, newly elected state president of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, has been planned for the afternoon session of the annual all day school of instruction of the South East PTA council, which will open Wednesday at 9 a. m. at Bryn Mawr school, 7355 Jeffery av.

Mrs. Damm will officiate at the installation of the following new council officers: Mrs. Cecil M. Dawson, 4410 Ellis av., reëlected president; Mrs. Max D. Engelhart, 5454 Greenwood av., vice president and program chairman; Mrs. H. E. Balback, 8430 Crandon av., and Mrs. L. C. Gesbeck, 7433 Dorchester av., secretaries; Mrs. W. J. Seligman, 6834 East End av., treasurer; Mrs. Charles Keyes, 1515 E. 66th pl., historian. Faculty consultant will be Clyde M. Cummins, principal of Sexton school.

Luncheon will be served at St. John's Methodist church, 74th st. and Jeffery av. During the day, study course and gold leaf membership certificates will be awarded. Round table instruction, led by council chairmen, will be given in every phase of PTA work.

St. Thomas the Apostle Guild to Hold Luncheon

St. Thomas the Apostle guild will hold its 28th annual luncheon Tuesday at the Hotel Windermere East. The Rev. C. J. Lavery will talk on "Catholic Women in the Present Day." Mrs. E. E. Waful is president of the guild.

LEGION FINDS GI BOND PLAN RIGHT DOWN ITS ALLEY

Milliners Buy $50,000 in 15 Minutes

When the American Legion gives a Dad to GI Joe war bond rally, you can be sure they have a good reasong for doing so, as was the case with the rally given recently by Millinery post to open the Dad to GI Joe war bond center in the hat bar of Goldblatt brothers loop store.

The Dad to GI Joe war bond campaign, a part of the Mighty 7th, was first suggested by THE TRIBUNE, and is now being promoted nation wide by the treasury department.

Many Promote Rally

Among those helping to promote the rally, as well as doing his share of the purchasing, was R. M. Felsenthal, 5107 Blackstone av. Felsenthal turned the Dad to GI Joe idea into a Dad to GI Jane when he purchased a bond for his daughter, Elois, yeoman 3d class in the WAVES. She is serving as a secretary at Terre Haute, Ind. Mr. Felsenthal's son recently was discharged from service.

G. H. Cordell, 7029 Chappel av., proudly stepped up to purchase a bond for Pvt. Jerry, serving in the air forces at Chatham field, Savannah, Ga. Cordell and his son have a common interest in planes, for this Legion vet flew during the last war with such well known men as Gen. Doolittle, and Eddie Stinson, of Stinson aircraft fame. Cordell states he was buying bonds for Jerry long before, and will buy them long after the campaign is over.

Gets Bond in Person

One service man son on hand to receive his bond personally was Flight Officer Robert Idelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Idelson, 1362 E. 52d st. Idelson is a bombardier-navigator. He recently finished radar training and has been in service two years. He expects to be sent overseas shortly.

His dad is service officer of the Millinery post, and stated that "the whole millinery industry is backing the Dad to GI Joe bond drive because its motives—to help service men and to aid in winning the war—are essentially the same as the post's."

He Has a Double Reason

Charles Trotcky, 7643 Essex av., has a double reason for purchasing bonds: Sgt. Howard Trotcky, stationed with the 108th hospital unit of Loyola university in Germany, and Stanley A. Trotcky, seaman 1st class who has been at sea the last six months. Pvt. Robert K. Banks, son of Joseph Banks, 7718 Essex av., serving in the infantry of the 15th army in France, is another service man whose dad remembered him with a bond, and not for the first time, either.

Men in the post termed the rally a huge success, for, according to Idelson, approximately $50,000 worth of bonds was purchased during its first 15 minutes.

ROBERT HUMPHREY, JACK MAMOT HOLD REUNION IN FRANCE

Corp. Robert Humphrey, 8431 Maryland av., and Pvt. Jack Mamot, 7508 Essex av., south side buddies in pre-war days, met recently in France, relatives here have learned.

William J. Terrill, son of Mrs. R. W. Pratt, 6104 Woodlawn av., recently was promoted to major. Maj. Terrill, whose wife resides at Fort Dodge, Ia., is a liaison officer at the army ground and service forces redistribution station, Camp Butner, N. C. Prior to joining the army he was manager of a retail furniture store.

Lt. Edwin H. Armstrong, whose wife and parents live at 3064 Cheltenham pl., has been awarded the distinguished flying cross for "extraordinary achievement during a raid on a heavily defended Nazi town." Lt. Armstrong, copilot of a Marauder, took over the controls after flak had killed the engineer-gunner and seriously wounded the pilot and radio-gunner. Tho the plane was badly damaged he guided it back to its base in Belgium.

Edwin Armstrong

Promotion of Federico Grabiel, formerly of 1414 E. 59th st., to first lieutenant recently was announced by the Panama coast artillery command. Lt. Grabriel is an instructor for foreign students at the coast artillery command training center. He has been in Panama since last March.

Lt. James M. Whalen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Whalen, 7806 Euclid av., has returned home after completing 30 missions with the 8th air force. A graduate of De La Salle High school, he attended St. Mary's college, Winona, Minn. He wears the distinguished flying cross, Purple Heart, and the air medal with four clusters.

The Purple Heart recently was awarded Corp. Leonard R. Mulcahey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Mulcahey, 10456 Avenue H, for wounds received on a bombardment mission in the European theater. A ball turret gunner on a Flying Fortress, he completed two combat missions.

Leonard Mulcahey

Recently home on leave was Eric R. Moberg, boatswain's mate 1st class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Verner Moberg, 7439 St. Lawrence st. During his 23 months in combat, he participated in campaigns on Africa, Tunisia, Sicily, Salerno, Anzio, and Normandy. He served aboard an LST and was awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received at Salerno. His brother, Sgt. Richard Moberg, is with a bomb disposal squad in Belgium.

Lt. Charles Balogh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gabor Balogh, 505 E. 89th pl., veteran pilot, recently returned from overseas, has been assigned to Turner field twin engine pilot school, Albany, Ga. Lt. Balogh, who wears the distinguished flying cross

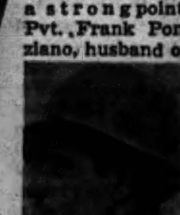
Lockhart, superintendent, will present the senior medal to the student with the highest scholastic average, who will be announced at the ceremony. Donald Olsen, senior president, will present an oil painting, the class gift.

GUNNERS SET UP A 'FORT', HOLD ON TO IT FOUR DAYS

Feats of South Siders Win Bronze Stars

Benjamin Schwarz



Frank Ponziano

As a member of a 14 man machine gun section which battled its way into an assigned position and converted a barn into a strong point, Pvt. Frank Ponziano, husband of Mrs. Viola Ponziano, 7446 Dante av., and son of Mrs. Mary Ponziano, 7248 University av., has been awarded the bronze star.

Pvt. Ponziano and his comrades resisted for four days and nights the enemy's attempts to drive them from their position. On the fourth night the barn was set ablaze and the section was forced to withdraw under heavy fire. Tho exhausted from lack of food and sleep, the soldiers again set up their guns and repelled further enemy thrusts until the next day when a combat patrol was able to fight its way to them.

Halts Dangerous Blaze

The bronze star was presented Sgt. Benjamin J. Schwarz, 7639 Indiana av., for putting out a fire while he was exposed to exploding ammunition. A shell struck a light armored car setting it ablaze near Stolberg, Germany. If left to burn the vehicle would reveal the location of his unit to the enemy and set off many rounds of ammunition. Already 30, 50, and 37 mm. ammunition had begun to explode. Sgt. Schwarz, disregarding his own safety proceeding to put out the fire with extinguishers, dirt, and water supplied by a bucket brigade.

Sgt. Rudolph Herz, brother of Kathe Herz Shloss, 1419 E. 67th pl., was decorated for gallantry in action as a member of a three man patrol seeking an observation post site. When challenged by the enemy Herz responded in German, confusing the Nazis long enough for Herz to issue instructions to his comrades.

Saves Lives of Comrades

He then fired on the Germans, forcing them to flee. His citation noted that his actions, in addition to saving his comrades lives, prevented a friendly patrol several hundred yards in the rear from advancing into the same trap.

Crawling on his stomach for 200 yards under intense enemy machine gun fire, Pvt. Raymond F. Cieslewicz, 9319 Saginaw av., saved a comrade who had been shot while only 50 yards from a strong German position. After administering first aid, he rolled the casualty on a litter, and, still crawling, retraced the difficult 200 yards, pulling the man to safety. For this "outstanding work in saving a man's life" he was given his award.

Lt. Kenneth H. Clapper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clapper, 9549 Calumet av., was given the bronze star for heroic achievement in action in France. When a truck filled with high explosives burst into flame from an enemy shell hit he raced in to evacute the wounded occupants. In the midst of exploding ammunition he dragged them to a near-by house where he rendered emergency medical treatment.

His Suspicions Pay Off

In war appearances don't count for too much. So Corp. John E. Pavlik and a companion on guard duty halted the jeep and its three American dressed officers. The trio talked like any Yanks but inside the jeep Pavlik found quantities of American currency in large denominations. He turned the men in.

For his shrewd action Pavlik, who lives at 325 42d st., has received the bronze star. His captives, he learned, wer spies loosed by the Nazis in large numbers at the time of the Bastogne break-thru.

Chicago Boys' Club

Joseph Duncan, 5555 S. Everett av., will be a guest at the banquet Wednesday night celebrating the 45th anniversary of the Chicago Boys' club. Duncan has been a member of the board 40 years.

More Dads Join GI Joe Bond Club

At the Dad to GI Joe bond rally held recently by the Millinery American Legion post in the hat bar of Goldblatt Brothers loop store, south siders who helped promote the rally as well as did their share of bond buying (first row, left to right) were: Louis A. Rothnagel, 7130 Cyril av.; G. H. Cordell, 7029 Chappel av.; R. M. Felsenthal, 5107 Blackstone av.; Charles H. Trotcky, 7643 Essex av.; J. M. Idelson, 1362 E. 52d st., and his son, Flight Officer Robert Idelson, home on furlough. In the second row are: Max Slack, 6819 Clyde av.; Charles Farley, 1226 W. 73d st.; Robert Freedlander, 2215 E. 70th st.; Joseph Banks, 7718 Essex av., and Max Greenberg, 5305 Ellis av. Below are some of the sons and daughters in service benefiting from the rally. (Story on page 1)

Persons desiring auditions should contact Miss Emma Rund of 2200 E. 71st st., program chairman, at Dorchester 8039.

SGT. CARL BOCK, 3 YEARS ACROSS, VISITS PARENTS

Sgt. Carl Bock

Sgt. Carl Bock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bock, 6911 Michigan av., is home on furlough after more than three years overseas. He has been serving with the 12th air force in Italy.

Sgt. Bock entered service in March, 1942, and trained as a radio operator and mechanic at Scott field. In addition to his good conduct medal he wears three battle stars for the campaigns of Africa, Tunisia, and Sicily. A graduate of Calumet High school, he will leave for California to be reassigned later this month.

U. OF C. TO TEACH JAP LANGUAGE BY HOME STUDY

A correspondence course in the Japanese language for college credit will be offered by the University of Chicago, it has been announced by Clem O. Thompson, assistant director of the university's home study department.

A large syllabus, containing detailed directions for mastering Japanese script has been completed, and rental sets of phonograph records are being prepared. The course is expected to be of interest to military men expecting to be shipped from the ETO to the Pacific, and to persons interested in trade and cultural relations with the east, Thompson said.

DANCER WARMS HEARTS OF GIs IN FROZEN ICELAND

Teresa Rudolph

"A dancer with a yen to travel," is the way Teresa Rudolph, 1560 E. 61st st., describes herself. Home for a rest after completing a nine month tour with the Walton & O'Rourke USO unit she already is making plans for her next jaunt.

A ballet dancer with the Chicago Civic and Metropolitan opera companies, as well as in various hotels and night clubs, both here and in other countries, Miss Rudolph refused several lucrative offers in order to join the U. S. O. in October, 1942, and declares that she has never regretted it.

Visits Lonely Spots

"Dancing your way around the world," she said, "you're bound to see the larger capitals and cities, but in a U. S. O. unit you are sent to outposts and camps in out of the way places where on routine tours you would never go. When we arrived at the Galapagos Islands we were informed that less than 50 white women had set foot there, and one of those 50 was Eleanor Roosevelt. Those islands, by the way, are where Darwin went to study his theory of evolution."

On her first overseas tour, she started out in Bermuda and from there traveled by boat to St. John, N. F. "That was during the submarine menace," she recalled, "and it was a rather frightening trip. We were preceded by a minesweeper all the way, and there were frequent alerts during which we had to go on deck in life jackets."

The last tour took the blonde, green eyed danseuse to Labrador, Greenland, Iceland, Scotland, England, France, and as far as the Rhine in Germany. On her return she was in Paris for V-day. "People were hilarious," she said, "amplifiers played the national anthems of the allied nations, and people paraded and danced in the streets night and day."

And Now Iceland!

One of her most memorable performances of the last tour, she recalled, was before an audience of seven men in a lonely outpost in Iceland. "When our plane landed and we announced we'd come to entertain them," she said, "those kids nearly went wild. Entertainment was scarce up there for the weather was too unpredictable for frequent U. S. O. trips. Only planes could reach the spot, and if you were grounded it would throw the unit's whole itinerary off schedule."

"There," she continued, "it wasn't the show that counted so much, but the personal association with some one from the outside world. They were an enthusiastic audience of seven to a delighted troop of six and confessed they were hoping for bad weather so we'd be grounded."

Another memorable performance, Miss Rudolph said, was given near Cologne. The theater was almost wrecked by bombs, but the stage was more or less intact. "We were entertaining Negro troops," she said, "and those boys were so appreciative, we'll never forget it. They sent us flowers, served us southern fried chicken and gave us oranges, a treat we hadn't had in months."

Learns More Each Trip

Miss Rudolph was an experienced trouper when she joined the U. S. O., but notwithstanding she has learned much of the theater—and audiences—since 1942. Many times, particularly when touring islands, their plane would land; the unit would give their show; climb aboard, and go on to the next islands . . . giving four or five shows every day. "Look," she grinned, pulling a 27-bill short snorter from her purse, "I'm very proud of this."

After a month or so at home she expects to start out again, and keep doing so as long as there is an U. S. O. "Just seeing those fellows and how much they appreciate a little thing like our shows," she concluded, "makes you feel ashamed of yourself if you miss even one performance."

PUPIL FROM 2D DISTRICT WINS IN ART CONTEST

Also Name Finalists in Scrapbook Contest

The 2d district of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs was awarded first prize in the recent Illinois School Children's Art contest. The winning picture was submitted by Charles [Buddy] Dinges, 8th grade pupil at Bradwell school, 7710 Burnham av.

In the district contest in the Museum of Science and Industry 150 pictures by children in the 2d district were exhibited. Other pupils whose pictures were selected for the state contest and their schools were: Ruggles school, Robert Godie; Park Manor, Wayne Stewart; Van Vissingen, Jean De Adam; St. Bride's, Elsie Kukl. Honorable mention was given Ann Martin of St. Philip Neri.

Winners in the 2d district press and publicity scrapbook contest recently held at the home of Mrs. C. W. Swatzel, 8041 Wabash av., district chairman, were:

First place: Mrs. C. H. Richardson, publicity chairman of the Arche club; Mrs. H. W. Lanyon, Woodlawn Mothers Round Table; Mrs. H. L. Norby, Ken-Rose club; Mrs. J. K. Piety, Woodlawn Study club. Second place: Mrs. Edmund Anderson, Windsor Park Woman's club; Mrs. R. R. Dickson, Woodlawn Woman's club. Third place: Mrs. Arthur Olson, South Bryn Mawr Wednesday club.

Hyde Park Travel Club

In the 2d district poetry contest recently held to select the entry for the I. F. W. C. state contest, both first and second places were awarded members of the Hyde Park Travel club. First place was given Mrs. George Van Derhoef, Hotel Windermere West, for her poem, "Shadow." Second prize was awarded Miss Mina Waggoner, 5748 Blackstone av., for her composition, "How the War Came." As only one entry is accepted from each district, Mrs. Van Derhoef's poem will be sent to the state contest to compete with those of other districts.

Windsor Park Women

Mrs. Irving B. Campbell, 8210 East End av., president of the Windsor Park Woman's club, has appointed the following delegates to the 2d district: Mrs. Irving B. Campbell and Mrs. John E. Baillie delegates to the 2d district.

DIVINITY SCHOOL TO INSTALL NEW LEADER TUESDAY

Culminating its centennial program, the Meadville Theological school will install the Rev. Wallace W. Robbins as its seventh president at commencement exercises at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in First Unitarian church, 57th st. and Woodlawn av.

Rev. W. W. Robbins

The Rev. Mr. Robbins, who, with his wife and two children, resides at 5700 Woodlawn av., is a graduate of the school, and formerly had a ministry in St. Paul, Minn. He was a member of Gov. Harold Stassen's panel of war time labor mediators and the St. Paul housing committee. He will deliver the commencement address.

Founded in 1844

Meadville Theological school was founded in Meadville, Pa., in 1844, for the training of Unitarian ministers. In 1926 it was moved to its present location at 5701 Woodlawn av., and in 1928 it was united with the Universalist seminary, Ryder Divinity school, and soon after with Lombard college, Galesburg.

In 1943 the school participated in the formation of the Federated Theological faculty of the University of Chicago. Meadville's degrees are held by religious leaders thruout the world.

Hold Baccalaureate Tomorrow

The centennial program will include a baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. John Haynes Holmes of the Community church of New York City at 5 p. m. tomorrow in First Unitarian church. Addresses at other services will be made by the Rev. Ralph W. Baily, First Unitarian church of Milwaukee; Dr. Frederick L. Weis, First Church of Christ, Lancaster, Mass., and Dean E. C. Colwell, vice president of the University of Chicago.

Denison B. Hull, president of the board of trustees at the school, will preside at the installation.

Woodlawn Canteen

The play, "Another Language" given at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow and Tuesday at the Goodman theater will benefit the Woodlawn Teen-Age canteen, 1532 E. 64th st.

CITY'S SUMMER SCHOOL CLASSES TO OPEN JUNE 25

Tell Buildings to Be Used and Fees

Summer school courses have been announced for city grade and high schools and for junior colleges in all districts from June 25 to Aug. 17.

They have been recommended by the school board for three types of student: those who wish to complete their studies in less than regular time, those who failed a subject and wish to retain their regular place by repeating the course, and those who because of illness have been retarded one or more semesters.

Will Cover Full Semester

Summer classes for the grade schools will be open only to pupils in grades 5th to 8th. Tuition fee will be $10 and one semester's work will be completed in the eight weeks. Classes will be held from 8 a. m. to 1 p. m. daily, with registration on the first class day.

Students in elementary schools will be notified which one of the six summer school centers they will be permitted to attend. These schools will conduct classes on the south side: Beale, 6043 Sangamon st.; Burke, 5356 South Park way; Douglas, 3200 Calumet av.; Koziminski, 936 E. 54th st.; Sheridan, 9035 Escanaba av., and Van Vlissingen, 137 W. 108th pl.

Will Open Six High Schools

High school courses will be offered at six south side schools: Du Sable, 4934 Wabash av.; Englewood, 6201 Stewart av.; Hirsch, 7740 Ingleside; Lindblom, 6130 S. Wolcott av.; Morgan Park, 1744 Pryor av., and Tilden, 4747 Union av. Students soon will be notified at which school they should register on June 25. Tuition fees will be $12 for the first major, $8 for the second major, and $6 for each minor. Each subject offered gives regular semester subject credit.

MUNDELEIN SENIOR NAMED BALTIMORE HOSPITAL'S INTERN

Miss Helen Walz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Walz, 2559 E. 72d st., will be among those graduating from Mundelein college at 10 a. m. tomorrow in the college theater, 6363 Sheridan rd. Miss Walz, home economics major, has been awarded an internship to a Baltimore hospital.

Helen Walz

Among other south siders who will receive diplomas from Archbishop Stritch is Barbara Ann Frich, 7141 Yates av., who will receive a bachelor of music degree magna cum laude. Bachelor of arts degrees will go to Rita Guinane, 8324 Merrill av.; Jane Dougherty, 7239 Cornell av.; Mary Catherine Burns, 4558 Ellis av., and Rita Anderson, 7238 Bennett av. Betty Brodsky, 5527 Everett av., a nutrition major, will receive a bachelor of science degree.

HARRYANNE KOONTZ RECEIVES BROADWAY CHANCE IN 'CAROUSEL'

Harryanne Koontz, 18 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Koontz, 7311 Oglesby av., has been given a singing part in the Rogers-Hammerstein musical "Carousel" now playing in New York. Miss Koontz, who made her debut in Kimball hall a year ago, is a graduate of South Shore High school. This is her first try at the legitimate stage. She is expecting to take a screen test in New York within the next two weeks.

FORGET CURFEW? NOT HYDE PARK SENIORS' SHOW

'Varieties' to Outdo Real Thing on Friday

Students at Hyde Park High school, 6220 Stony Island av., may remember the recent night club curfew. If they don't, they will be reminded of it Friday at 2:15 and 8 p. m. when the senior class presents its annual "Senior Varieties" in Loomis hall.

This year's program, planned before the curfew was lifted, tends to present a layman's picture of what night club entertainers and help did after the crowd went home. "Sort of a busman's holiday," grinned Dick Korem, student director, "tho in real life they probably all went home, glad for the extra sleep."

Dances and Torch Songs

In two acts, the show opens in a night spot before the curfew has sounded. With Sidney Mayer as M. C., comedian, and amateur magician, it will introduce a tap routine by Marie Jenkins and Betty Rotman, torch songs by Ruth Kaplan, and Ronna Lee Friedman, and a comedy number by Dave Phillips, Ernest Kline, Jack Dannenberg, Sam Latkin, Berne Engle, Bob Cole, and Erwin Cohn.

Three of the school's loveliest, Aline Auld, Anita Hecht, and Ethel Abramnos, will sing in appropriate garb the "Song of the Islands." The first act will close with numbers by Nancy Wolf, tap dancer, and the Wild West quartet composed of George Alexander, Tony Pronos, Gus, and Tony Goritz. Dick Michaelson is orchestra leader, and accompanists will be Betty Dotson, Cerna Block, and Barbara Michaelson.

Stage Own Party

In the second act—curfew having rung—the entertainers and a few colleagues from other nighteries stage their own private party. Working on the theory that entertainers do nothing but entertain, the show proceeds with a lot of hilarity and fanciful high jinks.

As for instance, when the waiters [Dick Henderson, Marvin Lieb, Jim Young, and Carl Peppers in disguise] are called for service and appear dancing and singing every bit as well as the professionals.

And when Peppers grabs Shirley Carter, a jitterbug from her long tailed shirt and short plaited skirt to her heavy wool sox and saddle shoes and, with the help of Betty Dotson at the piano, brings the Boogie-Woogie to life.

Juniors in Chorus Line

The hat check gal, Pat Malloy, shyly adds her bit with a rendition of "Night and Day," completely fading out from stage fright before she finishes. There is a chorus line of 11 pretty juniors, and comedy is provided by the M. C., the boys chorus dressed as girls, by Dick Korem and Bob Allweiss, and a zany group called the Reflectors.

The Reflectors' specialty will be the interpreting of various popular phonograph records. With the aid of phosphorus paint, outlandish costumes, and weird lighting effects, it is believed—by them at least—that they will be the hit of the show.

FORMER SOUTH SIDER WILL BE GRADUATED FROM WEST POINT

Among those who will be graduated Tuesday from the military academy at West Point will be Lt. William Gilbert, brother of Mrs. Henry Harris, 2209 E. 84th st. Lt. Gilbert, 23, was selected to attend West Point while in the army. Upon his graduation he will enter the air forces. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gilbert, formerly of the 84th st. address, now live in Los Angeles, Cal. Prior to entering service, Lt. Gilbert attended State Teacher's college, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Four south side sailors were among 1,000 survivors recently returned from Okinawa, where their ship was sunk by enemy action. Smiling their gratitude (from left) are Walter Buszkiewicz, machinist's mate 3d class, 7304 St. Lawrence av.; Lyle Baer, ship's fitter 3d class, 6349 Ellis av.; Robert Cruse, fireman 1st clas, 6118 Maplewood av., and John H. Mize, radarman 3d class, 14 157th st., who is the father of four sons. [Navy Photo]

Monday, June 4

This is the month when crab grass infests some lawns and every effort should be made to get rid of it or control it. It can be done by raking with a steel toothed rake and mowing to cut off the heads. It is best to rake the infested areas over several times now, destroying the clipping later. Small areas can be cleared by digging by hand.

Make another application of plant food to the lawn, but no more until September.

Tuesday, June 5

In areas where the Mexican bean beetle is prevalent spray or dust the plants with magnesium arsenate as soon as the plants have made some growth. It may be necessary to repeat the applications four or more times at intervals of 10 days.

Rotenone dust is effective and may be applied thru a cheesecloth, but have the dust reach the under side of the leaves. Arsenate should not be used after the pods are half grown, for it is highly poisonous to humans. This applies to all crops.

Wednesday, June 6

Trim or prune privet hedges again this month, altho it is necessary to do so several times to insure a close and shapely hedge. The most effective barrier that can be obtained from hedges is when they grow thickly from the base and are kept in good form.

Growing plants need plant food and unless the hedge has been given an application it should be done now. Apply the food along both sides and carefully work into the soil, watering afterward.

Thursday, June 7

Mulch the ground among rhododendrons, azaleas, and kalmia or mountain laurel with leaf mold. Peat moss may be obtained in bales and may be more abundant than leaf mold. Grass clippings also may be found useful for the same purpose. Tender water lilies still can be planted. Sow some of the double portulaca in the sunny rock garden or along the narrow strip between the cement driveway and the house or wherever a small area can be utilized.

It is a hot weather plant. Morning glories can be grown from seeds sown now. The heavenly blue and hybrid varieties are beautiful.

Friday, June 8

If it is desired to dig tulip bulbs, wait until the leaves have turned yellow signifying that the bulbs have ripened or entered their resting period. Keep in a dry, airy place until fall, then replant.

Tuberous begonias can be planted in a shady place. The highly colored, fancy leaved caladiums also can occupy a shady place or be used in a north window box. House plants should be occupying an outdoor, shady place. Plunge the pots to the rim. They must be watered every day. Some plant food applied at least once a month is desirable.

Saturday, June 9

Softwood cuttings of many kinds of plants may be made now which enable the gardener to increase his supply of desirable plants. Herbaceous perennials like the delphinium, phlox, chrysanthemum, Sweet William, creeping phlox, iberis, arabis, may be made after flowering.

Use a sharp knife to insure a smooth surface. Plunge in cold water immediately after cutting. Insert in sand or sandy soil in a flat and shade for a few days. Most softwood cuttings take from three to four weeks to root. Pot when the roots are half an inch or more long into a sandy loam with some leaf mold; later use a fairly rich soil.

ARMY BROTHERS STAGE REUNION AT BURMA BASE

For the first time in three years, Capt. Ben Solomon recently was reunited with his brother, Master Sgt. Charles Solomon, at the latter's base in Burma.

Ben Solomon

Charles Solomon

Capt. Solomon has been overseas 13 months with the 1st air Commando group headed by Col. Phillip Corcoran, on whose adventures the comic strip, "Terry and the Pirates," is based. He now is stationed in India as a dentist, and also serves as a chaplain for his group. A graduate of the Loyola university dental school, he had offices at 3152 Roosevelt rd., formerly. His wife and two children, Heddie and Freddie, live at 5460 Cornell av.

Sgt. Solomon, a veteran of 10 years' army service, has been overseas two and a half years. His wife and two children, one of whom he has never seen, now live in Roseville, Mich. Sgt. Solomon attended Harrison High school and the Illinois Institute of Technology. A third brother, Hy Solomon, formerly of 4923 Winthrop av., is in France.

Y. M. C. A. IN HYDE PARK WILL MARK GOLDEN JUBILEE

Hyde Park Y. M. C. A., 1400 E. 53d st., will observe its 50th anniversary with a dinner Wednesday evening for board members, committeemen, and members who have been identified with the unit for the last half century.

The first meetings were held informally in homes. On Oct. 21, 1895, a reception was held in the first association headquarters—two rooms in a private residence—at what is now 53d st. and Kenwood av.

Build Quarters in 1906

Later these quarters were outgrown and the group moved to the old South Park club house at what was then 57th st. and Rosalie ct., now Harper av. In 1906 the first permanent building was dedicated at 53d st. and Dorchester av., and since that time two additions have been built.

James F. Oates Jr., new president of the Chicago association, will speak at the dinner, it has been announced by Earl L. Thompson, 1642 E. 56th st., chairman of the Hyde Park board. C. C. Robbins, 50th anniversary committee chairman, has appointed Willis Van Pelt, 4829 Dorchester av., toastmaster.

Women to Serve

B. Fred Wise will sing, accompanied by Philip Manuel. Members of the Women's committee, of which Mrs. Fred W. Patterson, 7557 Cregier av., is chairman, will assist in serving the dinner.

The board has designated the week of Oct. 21, for public observance of the anniversary. This week corresponds to the period 50 years ago when the first association headquarters were opened.

MIDSHIPMAN GLENNON TO BE GRADUATED AT ANNAPOLIS THIS WEEK

Midshipman Allan N. Glennon, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Glennon, 8343 Ingleside av., will be among those graduating from the United States Naval academy, Annapolis, Md., Wednesday.

Allan N. Glennon

Glennon was appointed by Sen. Brooks [R.] after taking the competitive entrance examinations and receiving the highest mark of the 200 competing. A graduate of Hirsch High school, he was attending Illinois Institute of Technology at the time of his appointment.

He has chosen submarine service, for which he will receive further training after his graduation.

SEAT OFFICERS OF PARK MANOR PTA WEDNESDAY

The Park Manor PTA will meet at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday in the school auditorium, 7049 Rhodes av. After a business meeting a program will be given by school children. Mothers of kindergarten children will be hostesses. The following officers will be installed: Mrs. R. A. Giffrey, 7009 Vernon av., president; Mrs. Winn Gregg, 7345 Eberhardt av., and Miss Mabel Oosterbeek, school representative, vice presidents; Mrs. H. G. Odman, 7318 Vernon av., and Mrs. V. P. Banville, 7053 Eberhardt av., secretaries, and Mrs. S. A. Alexander, 7201 Indiana av., treasurer.

CAMPION'S TOP CADETS RECEIVE TRIBUNE MEDALS

Top honors for military merit at Campion Jesuit High school, Prairie du Chien, Wis., have been awarded two south area youths, Maj. Edward J. McCarthy, Whiting, Ind., and Capt. John P. Ryan, 1807 E. 72d st.

Both students received medals presented by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

They were awarded by the Rev. Thomas J. Stemper, president of Campion, on the recommendation of Capt. Joseph Elliott, professor of military science and tactics.

ILLNESS BRINGS GOOD FORTUNE IF ONE IS PATIENT

Former Invalid Captures Painting Prizes

Mrs. Garnett White, 1911 E. 78th st., has proven to her own satisfaction the truth of that ancient maxim, "It's an ill wind that blows no good."

Prize winner in the recent 2d district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs art exhibit, she developed her hitherto unsuspected talent while recovering from a serious illness.

Mother Urges Start

Twenty years ago, before the proponents of occupational therapy had presented their arguments to a dubious world, the invalid's mother, consciously or unconsciously realizing the benefits of such a craft, urged her daughter to try her hand at art. The daughter still remembers her mother urging:

"Garnett, you're much too young to start feeling sorry for yourself! You've got to turn your mind elsewhere."

Mrs. White started on china painting, and took to it like a duck to water. Friends visiting her would bring, instead of the customary gifts of candy, flowers, or books, plain white pieces of china either from their own pantries, or purchased specially for her. These she decorated with what her teachers called a distinct feeling for design, and to this day her china cupboard contains many of these pieces kept as mementos of friends who gave them to her.

Also Works in Oil

A widow, living alone, Mrs. White keeps busy not only on dishes, bowls, lamps, and other decorative pieces, but also works more seriously in oils. She has several examples of her craft casually placed around her apartment . . . a screen here, an attractive pottery lamp there, or a decorative tray tucked in some corner.

That she has a sense of humor is proved by her cartoons on the swinging door leading from the dining room to the kitchen. Friends looking down the hall are curious about the black and white drawing of a pert maid being kissed by a dignified butler carrying a tray of cocktails.

Paints Dinnerware Sets

"Keeps me from getting lonesome," she chuckled.

One of her prize collections is a complete dinnerware set. She has painted several and given them away. Each is in a different pattern and—of course—the only one like it in existence. Her friends insist that this, plus the fact that it is all handwork, places a value on it far higher than anything that could be purchased. Until the war she worked only on the finest Belleek Irish china.

Mrs. White is versatile as well as talented and can turn her art to practical purposes when the need arises. She needed new kitchen shades badly but was unable to buy new ones. As an alternative she purchased white oilcloth and decorated it with gay clusters of luscious fruit.

Her kitchen is her studio, and it was there she turned out one of her prize winning paintings . . . that of a decorative bowl of calla lillies. The other painting, also receiving an award, was a landscape she did while in Tennessee.

Plans Fall Wedding

HELEN WINTER

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Winter, 5328 Ellis av., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Helen Regina, to Marvin J. Zimit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Zimit of Cleveland Heights. Both young people are graduates of the University of Chicago. The wedding date has been set for Nov. 10.

SMALLER TUBE HEATING UNITS GAIN POPULARITY

BY LOUISE BARGELT

Post-war home heating trends are developing and many of the war time innovations are providing builders and home owners with more attractive products. At the same time there is a substantial saving in critical metals.

One such case is the elimination of large tube radiators in favor of the compact small tube units. There has been a pronounced trend toward the slender radiators for some years, but manufacturers continued to make both styles. Recently a simplification program has been worked out by the boiler and radiator industry in coöperation with the WPB and manufacturers will cease to make the larger radiators.

Save Much Space

The small radiators on which the industry will concentrate will take only about 40 per cent as much space as the larger units, yet they have the same heating efficiency. Some 11,500 tons of cast iron will be saved annually. They can easily be recessed under windows and in this way floor space will be conserved, and cold floors and wide temperature differences between floor and ceiling will be prevented.

A new development which undoubtedly will affect the design of heating equipment is the smokeless coal furnace, one model of which has been under development at the University of Illinois for seven years. In cities where the smoke problem has become an ever increasing one this smokeless furnace will have its greatest appeal.

More Automatic Control

Another trend is toward the modernization of existing heating equipment and the more extensive use of automatic controls. Many of the hand fired and hand controled furnaces can be equipped readily with automatic electric controls that will provide more uniform heating, less attendance, smaller fuel consumption, and greatly improved safety of operation.

Another trend is the mechanization of existing gravity operated plants, both warm air and hot water. In the case of many gravity warm air furnaces the use of a fan or blower has greatly improved the performance. In the case of hot water heating systems one of the decided trends is toward the use of a motor driven circulating pump to force the hot water thru small pipes into relatively small radiators. In this system also the circulation is positive and under control.

ON SHORT WAVES

LONDON

The North American service of the BBC from London includes the following programs today. The frequencies [in megacycles] employed after 4:15 p. m. are: 11.93, 9:58, 9.82, 6.11, 7.26, 9.51. 4:45 p. m.—News. 6:30 p. m.—Radio Newsreel. 8:15 p. m.—Sunday Service. 11:30 p. m.—News reports.

ROGER 5, SUGAR 5, THAT'S GI TALK FOR RADIO'S FINE

BY LARRY WOLTERS

A few weeks ago a terse note from a marine sergeant of the 5th division on Iwo Jima reached the Armed Forces Radio service in Hollywood. It said: "We received your Roger five Sugar five. Your programs are enjoyed by all hands. We connected the transmitter of our gun sections with the receiver of the set in order that we might hear your broadcasts during lulls in firing."

Col. Thomas Lewis

Col. Thomas H. A. Lewis, chief of the A. F. R. S., visiting Chicago last week, explained that, reduced to ordinary language, the sergeant's short wave talk—Roger for clearness, Sugar for signal strength—meant that A. F R. S. short wave reception from San Francisco was perfect.

Jet Propulsion for Troops

Similar messages are received from hundreds of A. F. R. S. installations all around the world from Okinawa to the occupied portions of Germany and the steaming atolls of the Central Pacific, because it brings our fighting forces overseas the best shows from home [minus commercials] and specially produced shows for overseas and news. Our 22 short wave transmitters at home beam nearly 4,300 hours of programs monthly to the troops abroad. These short wave programs are either picked up direct on short wave receivers or they are rebroadcast at many points overseas by long wave transmitters. Col. Lewis calls short wave the jet propulsion machine for news from home.

And each week transcription units averaging 126 separate radio programs, a total of 51 hours of entertainment from home, are flown to the A. F. R. S. outlets the world around by the air transport command and the naval air transport service.

They Go to Ships, Too

All A. F. R S. transcriptions are stamped on flexible and unbreakable discs, resistant to heat and cold. Approximately 38,500 are flown to stations each month. And some 33,000 each week are distributed to ships for playing on loud speaker systems.

The special programs include such overseas favorites as Command Performance, which recently featured an all-star adaptation of the Chicago Tribune comic, Dick Tracy; G. I. Jive, with Jill, the service men's favorite feminine entertainer; Mail Call, Your Home Town, Hymns from Home, Jubilee, Show Time, and At Ease.

Col. Lewis calls this radio system our second technique for achieving "Victory Thru Air Power." He ranks radio news and entertainment from home next to letters from home as morale builders.

A "Sarong" Network, Too

Col. Lewis told how various "regional" A. F. R. S. networks have been developed in the Pacific regions. In the Solomons and New Caledonia the "Mosquito" network of A. F. R. S. stations functions. In the Southwest Pacific the "Jungle Network" stretches from Milne bay on New Guinea to Manila. A "Sarong" network is in process of formation.

On these and other groups of stations many soldier and sailor stars have been developed. And they have created many programs of their own. In New Caledonia they even broadcast their own "world series."

New stations are being developed for the American occupation forces in Germany.

Why are these far flung American radio stations operating? Because they maintain the welfare of our fighting forces, they combat the lies of the enemy, and they bring troops touches of home which will ease their transition back into civilian life.

With Wayne King

Dolores Gray will sing with Wayne King's orchestra on the new show to be introduced over WMAQ-NBC at 6 p. m. today.

GRIEG MEDLEY TO BE AIRED ON THEATER OF AIR

In memory of Edward Grieg's birthday which falls on June 15, the Chicago Theater of the Air will include a medley of Grieg's more familiar work next Saturday. The program will be broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB and the coast-to-coast Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. "Solveg's Song" will be sung by Marion Claire and the chorus. The opening number of the medley, "Excerpt from String Quartet" will be played by the orchestra and the entire ensemble will be represented in the final number, "Triumphal March from 'Sigurd Jorsalfar.'"

Henry Weber will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus.

Present Shostakovich Work on W-G-N Tuesday

Dmitri Shostakovich's First Symphony will be presented by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, on Symphony Hall over W-G-N, WGNB at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday evening. Other selections include Delius' "Song of Summer" and Dukas' "The Sorcerer's Apprentice."

CLUB TO MARK 45TH YEAR OF YOUTH ACTIVITY

Off-the-Street Has 1,000 Members

BY AGNES LYNCH

In a ramshackle wooden building at Racine and Van Buren sts. John McMurray opened the Off-the-Street club in 1900. The small wooden porch sagged a bit on its foundations and on windy days the window panes rattled loosely in their frames. But the door always was unlatched and there always was a friendly welcome inside for boys who drifted in from the streets.

Neighborhood residents were at first inclined to be suspicious of the club, the first of its kind in Chicago. But McMurray, a former Pennsylvania school teacher, knew how to win the confidence of parents as well as of boys and girls. In a short time the club's membership had reached 200 and a constructive recreational program was under way for youngsters of the congested near west side.

Membership Grows to 1,000

The Off-the-Street club has grown steadily and now has a membership of more than a thousand. On June 12 it will observe its 45th anniversary by presenting "Youth on Parade" at Kimball hall.

During the last four and a half decades the club has claimed countless youths from the world of the streets. Thru its educational and recreational activities it has given boys and girls a wider vision of life, with horizons stretching far beyond the narrow streets and crowded dwellings of the district.

Incorporated in 1916, the club occupied a variety of buildings until the present structure at 2413 Jackson blvd. was made available to it in 1938.

Holds Post Until Death

McMurray remained director of the club for 28 years, retiring shortly before his death. The late Frank Thomas, considered the dean of the advertising profession in Chicago, was its first president.

Thru his efforts members of the advertising fraternity became interested in the club and have sponsored it thru the decades. For many years proceeds of the annual Christmas party of the Chicago Federated Advertising club have gone to the Off-the-Street club.

Nonsectarian, the club welcomes boys and girls of every creed. Open daily during the school year from 3:30 to 9 p. m., it offers a varied program designed to appeal to a multitude of youthful interests. Dramatics, art, music, photography, crafts, and manual training are among the projects included in its schedule of activities.

Longer Summer Schedule

With the beginning of vacation the club will be open each day at 9 a. m. Two days a week will be set aside for outdoor activities. Every Tuesday the youngsters will bring carfare and lunch and will spend the day in the forest preserves. On Thursdays they will be taken to Chicago park beaches to spend the day in the sun and air, swimming and picnicking under the supervision of club leaders.

Director of the club is Auguste Mathieu, affectionately called Colonel by the boys and girls under his jurisdiction. Known in his own right as an artist and writer, he was a volunteer worker at the club for a year and a half before he was appointed full time director 15 years ago.

Pick Executive Chairman

President of the club is Maurice Rothschild, chairman of Albert Pick & Co., who has served in his present capacity since 1926.

More than 100 young people and adults will participate in the anniversary program on June 12. Prominent among the entertainers will be the Victory Talent group, organized shortly after the beginning of the war. Its members have won wide recognition for participation in war bond rallies, performances at service men's centers, and assistance in Red Cross drives.

The concluding number on the program, "Mothers Thru the Years," will be presented by the Victory Mothers' club, a service organization assisting in many phases of the Off-the-Street club program.

List Officers for Mothers

Officers are Mrs. August Malewski, 2338 Jackson blvd., president; Mrs. Grant Hand, 2424 Jackson blvd., vice president; Mrs. Joseph Reuss, 2338 Jackson blvd., secretary; Mrs. George Millonas, 2414 Adams st., treasurer; Mrs. Matilda Zick, 2338 Jackson blvd., sergeant at arms; and Mrs. Mae Gabel, 2410 Jackson blvd., sunshine chairman.

Three generations of one family are represented among the officers. Mrs. Zick, great-grandmother; Mrs. Malewski, grandmother; and Mrs. Reuss, mother, are vitally interested in the club program because a representative of the fourth generation, Barbara Jo Reuss, 5, is one of the youngest Off-the-Street members.

Other Groups in Show

Mrs. George K. Moon, 2911 N. Mason av., is sponsor and organizer of the Victory Mothers' club.

Also participating in the anniversary celebration will be a number of other youth groups which will contribute acts to the program. Among the 100 members of the cast will be representatives from American Boys' Commonwealth and Deborah Boys' clubs, Aiken institute, Hull House, Lincoln Park and South Side Boys' clubs, Lawndale Boys' club, Crane High school, and McKinley High school.

The production will be given under direction of Mrs. Beatrice Schumake and Mrs. Bernadene Roberts, staff members of the Off-the-Street club.

Off-the-Street Club Will Celebrate 45th Birthday with Revue

"Sugar 'n spice, 'n everything nice, that's what little girls are made of," sing four diminutive dancers who will participate in the 45th anniversary program of the Off-the-Street club on June 12 at Kimball hall. Youngest performers in a cast of 100 they are (left to right): Barbara Silvestri, 6; Barbara Jo Reuss, 4; Diane Silvestri, 4, and Nancy Kosena, 5.

Performers will pay tribute to mothers who have given sons to their country. Mrs. Emelie Wall Huber, 2412 Jackson blvd., is the mother of James, a naval machinist's mate, lost when his ship, the Cyclops, disappeared during World War I. When the Gold Star mothers went to France in 1932, Mrs. Huber was selected to place the bouquet on the tomb of the unknown soldier in Paris. Another son, William, is serving in the present war as chief petty officer aboard the La Salle.

Satirizing the modern glamor girl, the Off-the-Street "Pinups" offer a comedy number. Participating in the skit are (left to right): Jane Malewski, 14; Clara Millonas, 12, and Dolores Florian, 12. The girls' mothers made the costumes. "But we gave them a few ideas," said Jane.

"Mothers Thru the Years," presented by the Victory Mothers' club, will be the concluding number on the June 12 program. Mrs. Martha Reuss (seated) represents the Madonna. Symbolizing the youth of tomorrow are Janice Moon, standing, in surplice and black tie, as well as Carol Roberts, kneeling (left), and Janice Moon. Standing (left to right) are Mrs. Clara Millonas and Mrs. Matilda Malewski, mother of service men; Mrs. Jane Hand, representing the modern mother; Mrs. Mae Gabel, symbolizing womanhood; Mrs. Matilda Zick, the Civil war mother; Mrs. Sarah Miller, the Colonial mother, and Mrs. Sylvia Neurock, Mrs. Anne Koenigsberg, Mrs. Elizabeth Allen, and Mrs. Harriet Plano, Pilgrim mothers.

In white satin costumes accented with red braid, the Military Tap dancers go thru their routine. The performers (left to right) are Rosemary Fosco, 14; Carmella Storino, 16; Phyllis Balata, 15; Helen Korsek, 12, and Mickey Scalise, 16. A wide variety of age groups will be represented on the program, members of the cast ranging in age from 4 to 70.

GARFIELD PARK BUSINESS MEN TO HOLD OUTING

Give Event June 13 at Itasca Golf Club

Members of Garfield Park Business Men's association will hold their 25th annual outing and dinner June 13 at Itasca Country club. Activities will include golf at 1:30 p. m., and a baseball game at 4:30 p. m. Walter H. Buescher is general chairman.

The baseball game will pit two sections of Garfield Park against each other in friendly rivalry. Herbert Dunning will be captain of the team whose members have businesses north of Madison st.

Name Opponents for Game

Charles Gellar will be captain of the team whose players will come from south of Madison st. Gellar is also serving as game chairman, assisted by Mrs. Bernard Baer.

The outing will conclude with a dinner served at 7 p. m. to the accompaniment of orchestral music.

E. J. Morris is ticket chairman and A. L. Feldman is in charge of golfing arrangements. Keith Rigby, prize chairman, is assisted by E. J. Brunner, Charles X. Clancy, and J. M. Krinsley.

Others Help with Plans

Other business men's association members assisting with arrangements include Ald. Gillespie [29th], Edward Connors, J. D. Madigan, Edward Dunne, John Butler, Archie Marschak, Charles Roberts, Moses Fisher, W. J. Doherty, Barney Fornero, Bernard Baer, Duval Goldsmith, Sam Levin, James Lynch, Norman Davis, Thomas J. Connery, James McGrath, Saul Hurtig, and A. F. Figatner.

Release Sgt. Percy Ward from Nazi Prison Camp

Sgt. Percy Ward, who was captured while serving with Gen. Patton's 3d army in the European theater, has been released from a German prison camp, his wife, Mrs. Connie Ward, Maywood, was informed recently. When he returns to the United States he will see his daughter, Rosemary, for the first time. She was born last Jan. 2. Sgt. Ward is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ward, Maywood.

American Women at War

Promotion to first lieutenant in the army nurse corps has been announced in England for Helen C. Fossadal, 528 N. Leclaire av. She is head nurse in a medical ward in the 228th station hospital.

WAC Pvt. Barbara R. Miller, Lombard, has been transferred from Fort Des Moines, Ia., to Fort Sam Houston, Tex., where she is assigned to Brooke General hospital.

At Fort Knox, Ky., WAC Pvt. Evelyn D. Ryszko, 3045 W. 21st pl., has been given the meritorious service award for outstanding achievements during the last three months.

The soldier's medal has been awarded to Lt. Christine C. Dahl, 3026 S. California av., a member of the army nurse corps. While on leave from her post in Italy, she saw a Liberator bomber crash into an olive grove. All members of the crew were thrown from the plane except the nose turret gunner, who was pinned beneath the plane's radio unit. Lt. Dahl crawled thru a small hole in the fuselage to administer first aid to the gunner until he was freed three and one-half hours later.

Ensign Rosemary Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Hayes, 4719 Gladys av., has completed her indoctrination course at Great Lakes Naval hospital. A graduate of Providence High school, she received nurse's training at St. Anne's hospital.

WAC Pvt. Kathleen M. Kevlin, 3605 Lexington st., is with the air technical service command at Wright field, Dayton, O.

Pvt. Aphrodik Basuris and Pvt. Bessie Basuris, 5138 Huron st., recently were assigned to William Beaumont General hospital, El Paso, Tex., for technical training.

Rotary Club

Having recently been inducted into the Rotary club of Maywood, Percy J. Ford henceworth will be called "P. J." by fellow members; Irving Kanarek becomes "Irv," and Herbert H. Koch will be known as "Herb."

WAYNE SERVED FOR 70 YEARS BY A GLOS J. P.

Miss Hattie in Job 20 Years, Dad for 50

BY ONEY FRED SWEET

"H. G. Glos, J. P." appears on the swinging sign in front of a two story, white house of 1893 architecture that stands back from the tree lined street that is Wayne's main thorofare. Those having cause to call on the official find that the H. is for Hattie. Miss Glos was among the first women justices of the peace to serve in Illinois.

Hattie G. Glos

She inherited her liking for the job of J. P. Her father, Adam M. Glos, held the office for 50 years. At his death, his daughter succeeded him. Since 1925, Miss Glos has been elected to the office five times.

Held Court and Ran Store

Adam Glos held court in connection with his general store in Wayne. He came to the community from Boston with his family as a baby in 1836. The family of Mrs. Glos came from New York state. Courtship of the couple was carried on in a canoe on the near-by Fox river. They were married by a justice of the peace and, when both were past 90, celebrated their 65th wedding day.

It is in the atmosphere of the old fashioned home that Miss Glos prefers to preside over cases brought before her. Occasionally couples act on her suggestion to go across the street and have their marriage ceremony performed in the Little Home Church by the Wayside, of which Miss Glos is fond.

Stands on Statutes

Recently a young couple came to her with a license issued at Geneva in Kane county. She glanced at the document and informed the pair that the transaction was outside her Wayne township jurisdiction. The impatient sweethearts argued that she go across the country line with them and say the necessary words, but Miss Glos is an ardent student of her heavy volume of "Illinois Revised Statutes."

An experience that puzzled Miss Glos most in all her 20 years as a J. P. occurred in an assault and battery case. Parents of the boy defendant were sent for, but instead of arriving in tears they appeared in a most happy mood. Eagerly they asked to pay the costs. It was discovered that the man and woman had been separated for years and that their son's dilemma had brought them together again.

Active in Local Affairs

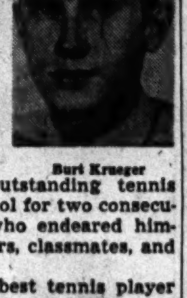
Miss Glos is past president of the Wayne Woman's club, and has been Republican precinct committeewoman for 16 years. She is a member of the Du Page County Health council and of the Du Page County Board of Realtors. She was once a teacher in the Elmhurst grade schools.

Not only has Miss Glos followed her pioneer father's footsteps as a J. P., but she has continued with his hobby of collecting Indian arrowheads. Hundreds of the interesting relics picked up along the Fox river have been classified and placed in glass cases.

Strangers in Wayne township may be unaware that the J. P. is a woman until she answers the doorbell and puts them at ease. Usually, they say that after hunting around they couldn't find the city hall. Wayne residents know that Miss Glos, who was born in the community, wouldn't trade it for any other in the world. They reëlected her to office in April.

Honor Memory of Tennis Star with Trophy

The Burt T. Krueger memorial tennis trophy recently was presented to Riverside-Brookfield High school as a tribute and remembrance to a former student who gave his life for his country Jan. 10, 1945.



Burt Krueger

The trophy is considered an appropriate memorial to Burt, who distinguished himself as an outstanding tennis player at the school for two consecutive years, and who endeared himself to his teachers, classmates, and townspeople.

Each year the best tennis player of the season will be eligible for the honor of having his name engraved on the trophy. In addition to his tennis prowess, however, the student must have displayed good sportsmanship, sincere effort, and coöperation, which were exemplified in Burt's character. The name of Robert L. Novak has been engraved on the trophy for 1945.

Burt T. Krueger was 19, when, as a member of Co. C, 56th AIB, 12th armored division, he made the supreme sacrifice in France.

Launch Drive to Raise Funds for Youth Center

Three thousand dollars is needed to finance the building of a new youth center in the basement of old Field school, Elmhurst. A student committee headed by Alan Heimert has begun a drive to raise the funds.

WELCOME VETS OF WAR II. TO ARMORY EVENT

Legionnaires Greet Guests Thursday

All World War II. veterans "back from the wars" are invited to be guests of the Past Commanders' club of the American Legion Thursday night at a gathering in their honor at the Madison St. armory, 2653 Madison st. Cosponsor of the event is the 1st battalion, 2d regiment, of the Illinois reserve militia.

Col. Davidson

Altho the big armory holds more than 5,000, it is believed that all the space will be needed with an estimated 60,000 men in Cook county already privileged to wear the discharge service pin of World War II. The pin of their uniform will admit them to the assembly.

Officials Attend Conference

The idea of the program was developed at a conference among officials of the Legion, the Illinois Reserve militia, and the Past Commanders' club, honorary organization of veterans who have served the Legion in executive capacities.

Among those attending the conference were Jack Cusack, Cook county commander of the American Legion; William G. Burns, vice commander; Col. Lawrence J. Davidson, commanding the 2d reserve militia regiment; Lt. Col. Edward Clamage, second in command, and Walter J. Kelly, president of the Past Commanders' club.

Gen. Guthner to Attend

An impressive part of the program will be the presentation by Brig. Gen. W. E. Guthner, in charge of security and intelligence, 6th service command, of military awards to next of kin of those men of World War II. who are missing or have been killed in action, or are still in prison camps.

The program will start at 7:30 o'clock, with a concert by the 2d regiment band and the raising of the colors.

Specialized warfare tactics and drill demonstration, showing special units of the 1st battalion going into action, followed by close and extended order drill and emergency tactics will take place at 8 p. m., with a judo exhibition at 8:30 o'clock.

Will Present Awards

Gen. Guthner will present awards while the 1st battalion, veterans of World War II. and officers of the Past Commanders' club are formed in close order on the parade floor at 8:45 p. m.

Review of the battalion, Col. Davidson commanding, followed by retirement of the colors and selections by the regimental band will be held at 9:15 p. m. and an assembly, reception, and party in honor of World War II. veterans in the assembly hall and company club rooms of the first battalion will conclude the evening at 9:45 o'clock.

HEAR ORGANIST TONIGHT IN GLEN ELLYN CHURCH

Dr. Edward Eigenschenk, internationally known organist, will give a concert at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the First Congregational church of Glen Ellyn. Dr. Eigenschenk's concert appearances have taken him to all parts of the United States and leading music centers of Europe.

The church choir and quartet will assist in the program. Members of the board of trustees who are sponsoring the concert are Earl W. Drawbaugh, C. C. Choyce, George J. Ball, John C. Sharp, J. W. Rogers, James Cherm, Fred M. Sunde, J. S. Bacon, and Mrs. S. V. Boehmer.

The Rev. Jess H. Norenberg is minister.

Suburban Infant Welfare Group to Close Season

Four of the graduates—Miss Casey, Miss Spatuzza, Miss Carney, and Miss Tuomey—have been elected to Kappa Gamma Pi, national Catholic honor society for college women.

Miss Casey is vice president of the student activities council and Miss Spatuzza is senior representative on the council. Miss Carney, a journalism major, is co-editor in chief of the Skyscraper, campus newspaper. Miss Tuomey is president of the class.

FOUR WHEATON HIGH GRADUATES TO BE SPEAKERS

Of the 110 seniors at Wheaton High school who wrote speeches in competition for a place on the commencement program in Monroe hall Wednesday night, four will be given the honor of expressing their views from the platform.

The four student speakers and their themes are John Durant, personality; Pat Munson, music; Charles Montgomery, English as a basis of learning, and Marion Tullar, girls in the scientific course.

Dr. John Gordon, pastor of the Second Congregational church of Rockford, Ill., with "The Possibilities of Youth" as the topic, will give the commencement address.

The school orchestra will play the processional, and there will be musical selections by the orchestra and glee club. Dr. Warren R. Clark of the Gary Memorial church will give the invocation. The Rev. Basil E. Grimes of the Warrenville Community Baptist church will pronounce the benediction.

Diplomas will be awarded by Henry Jackson Burt, president of the school board.

Phi Beta Kappa has recognized Arne Strassenburg and Rosemary Rick as the outstanding students of the class. Strassenburg has been president of the student conference and is winner of the Bausch and Lomb science award.

This year's Wecomi [annual] has been dedicated to Herbert Hodges, track coach.

The Wheaton Ministerial association will be in charge of baccalaureate services tonight at Gary Memorial church.

St. Mel Pupils Will Present Musical Show

"Hi Neighbor," a musical, will be presented by the Meladeers at 8:21 p. m. Thursday and Friday in St. Mel auditorium, 4319 Washington blvd. The Melandeers, whose membership is drawn from St. Mel's Junior guild and Junior Holy Name society, are a group of high school students.

Sketches in the musical will include the crew of an LST boat singing navy songs, a Louisiana hay ride, and a wedding of the dolls with a toy shop as background. Stage settings were designed and built by members of the Meladeers.

Members of the cast include Patricia McDougall, Patricia Byrnes, Therese Shannon, Margie Fisherkeller, Margie Dolan, Betty Atkins, Mary Moorefield, Rosemary Floss, Patricia Fogarty, and Mary Ellen Reilly.

CULVER SENIORS INCLUDE THREE WEST SIDE BOYS

Conclude Graduation on Tuesday

Three west side residents are among 160 students who will be graduated this week from Culver Military academy, Culver, Ind. The school's annual five day commencement exercises began last Friday and will continue thru Tuesday, concluding with the traditional "iron gate" ceremony.

The cadets from this area who will be graduated are William H.

Lake, Riverside, and Frederic B. Hasbrook and Rodney S. Kroehler, Hinsdale.

Cadet Lake was captain and commander of an infantry company. For outstanding academic achievements he has received membership in Cum Laude, national honorary scholastic society.

In addition to maintaining a high scholastic record, Cadet Hasbrook was active in extracurricular affairs. He was a member of the varsity cross-country team and captain in the Culver artillery senior R. O. T. C. unit.

Cadet Kroehler was a lieutenant in the artillery. He also was captain of the varsity skeet team and a member of the varsity swimming team.

WEST SUBURBAN HOSPITALS ASK FOR NURSES' AIDS

The Elmhurst, Oak Park, and West Suburban hospitals are urgently in need of eight more day time nurses' aids, it is announced by the American Red Cross.

Hospitals, doctors, and nurses have joined with the Red Cross in a plea to all women in good health, 18 to 50, with a high school education to apply now for day time service. Accelerated training classes will be held in June and July with a special appeal to teachers and college students who can give valuable summer service.

It is explained that applications may be placed from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., Monday thru Friday, at 529 S. Wabash av., or at the Oak Park branch office, 128 S. Marion st.

1960 INCREASE TO 16,000 SEEN FOR LA GRANGE

Prediction that the population of La Grange will be 16,000 by 1960, an increase of 5,500 over 1940, was made by Robert Kingery, director of the Chicago Regional Planning association at a recent meeting of the La Grange Chamber of Commerce.

Estimates are based on reports from public utilities and business groups.

La Grange Park may expect a population of 7,000 15 years hence, it is indicated, and Western Springs should have a growth from 4,856 in 1940 to 7,200 by 1960. Brookfield, with a population of 10,817 in 1940 will expand to 15,000 by 1960, according to prediction.

SOCIAL AGENCY WILL DEDICATE CHAPEL TODAY

Co-Founder of Group to Perform Ceremony

Mrs. Maud B. Booth, co-founder of the Volunteers of America in 1896 and a prison worker and author, will dedicate the new Ballington Booth Memorial chapel at 3 p. m. today in Volunteers Chicago headquarters, 2841 Washington blvd.

Mrs. Maud Booth

The dedication of the chapel marks the culmination of extensive remodeling on the building. The first Volunteers of America headquarters in Chicago was in an old theater at Throop and Madison sts. In 1911 the First Congregational church building, Ann st. and Washington blvd., was purchased. Present headquarters, known as the Ballington Booth Community center, have been occupied since 1926.

The chapel will be used for non-denominational Sunday school classes, religious services, and youth activities.

Sponsors Recreational Projects

The Volunteers of America is one of Chicago's oldest social agencies. Designed to assist both children and adults, it sponsors recreational projects for youth in crowded areas, maintains summer camps for mothers and children, and engages in prison and parole work.

Mrs. Booth who, with her husband, Ballington Booth, founded the Volunteers in New York, is known as the little mother of the AEF for her work during World War I. when she was a member of Gen. Pershing's staff

PROVISO ANNUAL TO BE DELAYED PAST TERM END

Provi, annual of Proviso High school, will not be ready for distribution by the close of the term, according to a bulletin issued by R. A. Bullington, faculty chairman of the annual committee.

Every effort has been made by student and faculty staffs to get materials into the hands of printers and engravers at the earliest possible dates, but government priorities have delayed the printing and binding of the book until no absolute date is set for final delivery.

Du Page Health Group Income Need Stressed

A sharp increase in the income of the Family Service association of Du Page county in 1946 over that of the current year is imperative, according to Dr. Timothy Lehmann, Elmhurst, president of the association. Dr. Lehmann said the increase was of the utmost importance to continue the agency work and meet the new needs of an ever growing county.

CITY'S SUMMER CLASSES TO BE OPENED JUNE 25

School Sites and Fees Are Announced

Summer courses on elementary, high school, and junior college levels will begin June 25 in many west side educational centers. Sponsored by the board of education, classes will extend over an eight week period ending Aug. 17.

Because of the intensive work, pupils will be able to complete a semester's work during the summer weeks. Courses are designed not only for students who need to make up or repeat work, but also for those who wish to obtain an extra semester's promotion.

Students looking forward to professional careers also may speed their preliminary preparation period by taking advantage of the courses.

Summer classes on the grade school level will be held at Delano school, 3937 Wilcox st., and Lawson, 1256 S. Homan av.

Four west side high schools are offering summer work: Austin, 231 N. Pine av.; Crane Technical, 2245 W. Jackson blvd.; Farragut, 2345 Christiana av., and Flower Technical, 3545 Fulton blvd.

All schools are co-educational with the exception of Flower, where courses are open only to girls.

College courses will be offered at Herzl Junior college, 3711 Douglas blvd.

The following fees will be charged: Grade school, $10 for term; high school, $12 for first major, $8 for second major, and $6 for each minor; junior college, $5 each credit hour plus regular laboratory fees.

Monday, June 4

This is the month when crab grass infests some lawns and every effort should be made to get rid of it or control it. It can be done by raking with a steel toothed rake and mowing to cut off the heads. It is best to rake the infested areas over several times now, destroying the clipping later. Small areas can be cleared by digging by hand.

During dry weather make the cuts of grass no shorter than 1½ inches, for if cut too short or low it will dry out. If there are bare spots in the lawn chip up the spots or cover with rich soil and sow with a mixture of two-thirds perennial rye and one-third Kentucky blue grass. This will quickly cover the bare spots.

Make another application of plant food to the lawn, but no more until September.

Tuesday, June 5

In areas where the Mexican bean beetle is prevalent spray or dust the plants with magnesium arsenate as soon as the plants have made some growth. It may be necessary to repeat the applications four or more times at intervals of 10 days.

Rotenone dust is effective and may be applied thru a cheesecloth, but have the dust reach the under side of the leaves. Arsenate should not be used after the pods are half grown, for it is highly poisonous to humans. This applies to all crops.

This is rose month and regular spraying with a recommended preparation should be adopted. A mulch with peat moss on the rose bed prevents too rapid evaporation and is said to hinder the spread of mildew and black spot.

Wednesday, June 6

Trim or prune privet hedges again this month, altho it is necessary to do so several times to insure a close and shapely hedge. The most effective barrier that can be obtained from hedges is when they grow thickly from the base and are kept in good form.

Growing plants need plant food and unless the hedge has been given an application it should be done now. Apply the food along both sides and carefully work into the soil, watering afterward.

Thursday, June 7

Mulch the ground among rhododendrons, azaleas, and kalmia or mountain laurel with leaf mold. Peat moss may be obtained in bales and may be more abundant than leaf mold. Grass clippings also may be found useful for the same purpose. Tender water lilies still can be planted. Sow some of the double portulaca in the sunny rock garden or along the narrow strip between the cement driveway and the house or wherever a small area can be utilized.

It is a hot weather plant. Morning glories can be grown from seeds sown now. The heavenly blue and hybrid varieties are beautiful.

Friday, June 8

If it is desired to dig tulip bulbs, wait until the leaves have turned yellow signifying that the bulbs have ripened or entered their resting period. Keep in a dry, airy place until fall, then replant.

Tuberous begonias can be planted in a shady place. The highly colored, fancy leaved caladiums also can occupy a shady place or be used in a north window box. House plants should be occupying an outdoor, shady place. Plunge the pots to the rim. They must be watered every day. Some plant food applied at least once a month is desirable.

Saturday, June 9

Softwood cuttings of many kinds of plants may be made now which enable the gardener to increase his supply of desirable plants. Herbaceous perennials like the delphinium, phlox, chrysanthemum, Sweet William, creeping phlox, iberis, arabis, may be made after flowering.

Cuttings of shrubs also may be made any time before the wood has started ripening. This will be up to about mid-July.

Use a sharp knife to insure a smooth surface. Plunge in cold water immediately after cutting. Insert in sand or sandy soil in a flat and shade for a few days. Most softwood cuttings take from three to four weeks to root. Pot when the roots are half an inch or more long into a sandy loam with some leaf mold; later use a fairly rich soil.

SMALLER TUBE HEATING UNITS GAIN POPULARITY

BY LOUISE BARGELT

Post-war home heating trends are developing and many of the war time innovations are providing builders and home owners with more attractive products. At the same time there is a substantial saving in critical metals.

One such case is the elimination of large tube radiators in favor of the compact small tube units. There has been a pronounced trend toward the slender radiators for some years, but manufacturers continued to make both styles. Recently a simplification program has been worked out by the boiler and radiator industry in coöperation with the WPB and manufacturers will cease to make the larger radiators.

Save Much Space

The small radiators on which the industry will concentrate will take only about 40 per cent as much space as the larger units, yet they have the same heating efficiency. Some 11,500 tons of cast iron will be saved annually. They can easily be recessed under windows and in this way floor space will be conserved, and cold floors and wide temperature differences between floor and ceiling will be prevented.

A new development which undoubtedly will affect the design of heating equipment is the smokeless coal furnace, one model of which has been under development at the University of Illinois for seven years. In cities where the smoke problem has become an ever increasing one this smokeless furnace will have its greatest appeal.

More Automatic Control

Another trend is toward the modernization of existing heating equipment and the more extensive use of automatic controls. Many of the hand fired and hand controled furnaces can be equipped readily with automatic electric controls that will provide more uniform heating, less attendance, smaller fuel consumption, and greatly improved safety of operation.

Another trend is the mechanization of existing gravity operated plants, both warm air and hot water. In the case of many gravity warm air furnaces the use of a fan or blower has greatly improved the performance. In the case of hot water heating systems one of the decided trends is toward the use of a motor driven circulating pump to force the hot water thru small pipes into relatively small radiators. In this system also the circulation is positive and under control.

WEST SUBURBAN HIGH GRADS PLAN 25TH REUNION

Members of the Oak Park-River Forest High school class of '20 are making plans for a 25th anniversary celebration to be held June 15. Of the 204 graduates of 25 years ago, it is thought that at least 80 of them still reside in the Chicago area.

Edith Jackson Phelps, 735 Thatcher av., Oak Park, said her membership committee would be glad to hear from old grads whose addresses may not be known by her group.

Harold J. Nutting is general chairman of the reunion committee.

Clyde Woman's Group to Hold Annual Picnic

Clyde Woman's club, Cicero, will conclude the club year with its annual picnic June 19 at McCormick woods. Mrs. Harry Mongrieg and Mrs. Thomas Black are co-chairmen. Mrs. Rae L. McCosh is the new president of the group.

Alumni Group Marks Diamond Year

Officers of the West Aurora High School Alumni association plan to observe the 75th anniversary of the organization. They are (left to right): Malcolm L. Jones, first vice president; Mrs. R. J. McMahon, treasurer; Oliver C. Anderson, president; Mrs. Walter A. Buell, secretary, and Walter E. Deuchler, second vice president.

W. AURORA HIGH GRADUATION TO MARK 75TH YEAR

Give Diplomas to 196 on Thursday

West Aurora High school will graduate a class of 196 Thursday night, and, since the first class was graduated from the school in 1870, the West Aurora Alumni association will celebrate the 75th anniversary Friday night.

In charge of arrangements are Oliver C. Anderson, president; Malcolm L. Jones, first vice president; Walter E. Deuchler, second vice president; Mrs. Walter A. Buell, secretary, and Mrs. R. J. McMahon, treasurer.

Author to Be Speaker

Friday night at an alumni dinner at the Wesley Methodist church, Charles Pierce Burton, author of the Bob's Hill stories for children, whose school days in Aurora began in 1874, will reminisce. The dance that follows will be for all students and former graduates.

The class of 1870 included four girls and one boy, none of whom is living. Emma Stolp, one of the quintet, became the wife of the late United States Sen. A. J. Hopkins.

Alumnus of '76 the Oldest

The oldest school alumnus now residing in Aurora is Mrs. T. Otto Fisk, who, as Ida Andrus, was graduated in 1876. Also living in Aurora are William L. Slaker, 1877; Ira C. Copley, 1881; and Lee Mighell, 1888.

The school was established in 1868 on the third floor of a stone building with the late Frank H. Hall as superintendent. In those days, Indians had a habit of peeking in the windows and scaring the pupils.

Dr. Hall later conducted a normal and industrial school west of Aurora that became nationally famous. He was the inventor of the Hall-Braille typewriter.

First Building Burned

The first building was destroyed by fire in 1884, during a meeting of the alumni association. The building that replaced it also was destroyed by fire in 1906. Soon afterward, the present large and modern school building was erected.

Today the city has two public high schools, two parochial high schools, a military academy, a college, and a large number of public and parochial grade schools.

MIDSHIPMAN WILCOX TO GET COMMISSION AT NAVAL ACADEMY

Midshipman Burr C. Wilcox Jr., whose parents live in La Grange, will be graduated Wednesday from the United States Naval academy, Annapolis, Md., as ensign.

Burr Wilcox

During his senior year he was the author of "Shades of Bancroft," a monthly article on activities in the men's residence hall, which he contributed to The Log, literary magazine.

Before receiving his appointment to Annapolis, Wilcox attended Lehigh university, Bethlehem, Pa., where he completed his freshman year.

Bryant PTA Will Hear Principal, President Talk

Bryant PTA will hold an afternoon meeting June 12 in the school auditorium, 1355 S. Kedvale av. Speakers will include Miss Mercedes Howe, principal of Bryant, and Mrs. Isadore Feinglass, PTA president. Miss Alice Bock will present a library program.

MAYWOOD CIVIC GROUP OUTLINES POST-WAR AIMS

With the creation of housing authority and elimination of substandard houses as one of the more important post-war items on its agenda, the Greater Maywood association has issued the comment that "no busy, well fed, well housed individual ever started a revolution."

Other subjects under consideration include development of an adequate playground and recreation system, redesigning of the street lighting system, installation of street signs, provision of adequate parking regulations in business district, replacement of many miles of defective sidewalk, and trimming and removal of trees in village parkways.

Louis E. Nelson is president of the association.

FAMILY MEMORIAL ESTATES

Beautifully Landscaped . . . Now Available in Choice Locations at

MOUNT EMBLEM

"ILLINOIS' MOST BEAUTIFUL CEMETERY"

"Without the Gates of the City"

AMONG the uniquely appealing features of Mount Emblem are the Family Memorial Estates. The trees and shrubs planted on these estates blend artistically with the natural beauty of the cemetery.

YOU may choose a thickly shrubbed, secluded location on the shore of the lake, or along the drives. Consultation with our landscape architect will effect a memorial of dignity, natural simplicity and charm.

THESE Family Memorial Estates are available at surprisingly moderate cost.

MOUNT EMBLEM is the site of the Old Dutch Mill, built in 1850. This mill is a rare tribute to the ingenuity, perseverance, and craftsmanship of a past age. The grist mill machinery is in place, just as it was many years ago when grinding grain. It is an interesting exhibit.

Enjoy the quiet loveliness of an evening at Mount Emblem during the week. An hour spent in the solace of shadows cast by the setting sun will be long remembered.

Each evening Sacred and Concert music is broadcast across the cemetery from the Old Dutch Mill, which serves as a Chime Tower. The gates are open until dusk.

CIVILIANS MEET ARMY THRU ITS LIAISON OFFICER

He Has Answer to Many Types of Questions

As liaison officer between the army and west side civilians, Capt. Frank Dolven has one all-inclusive assignment: to bring the army closer to the people it serves. In carrying out this assignment he visits churches, schools, war plants, and the homes of service men. He maintains an office at 14th st. and Albany av. to which citizens may bring their problems and queries and he coöperates with the police department, civic organizations, and a variety of military programs.

Capt. Dolven

Capt. Dolven is one of 11 area commanders doing work of this type in the 6th service command. Metropolitan Chicago is divided into two sections, and he is in charge of the entire section south of the dividing lines, which extends east on Belmont av. from the county line to Harlem av., south to Jackson blvd., east to Pulaski rd., south to Roosevelt rd., and east to the lake.

Another Office in Aurora

Capt. E. R. Sherwood, whose office is in Aurora, heads another west section. All area commanders are under the direction of Capt. Ross Stockman.

The 11 area commanders present more than 300 army medals each month to relatives of men killed in action, missing, or taken prisoner, and in the same period apprehend or investigate 400 AWOL soldiers and handle thousands of personal civilian problems. They also supervise auxiliary military police serving as war plant guards, show war films to workers, and assist in army-navy E award ceremonies and bond rallies.

Citizens Group Aids

A committee of citizens assists each area commander. Among members of the committee appointed by Capt. Dolven are Arthur G. Goyer, 1110 W. 35th st., bank cashier; John M. Haffner, 5100 S. Ashland av., community newspaper editor; State Sen. McDermott [4th], 5445 S. Ashland av.; William J. Warfield, 706 E. 50th pl., and H. J. Beggins, 4100 S. Kedzie av., auxiliary military police chief.

Capt. Dolven, in civilian life a professional golfer, fought in France during World War I. and returned to military service in 1942. Like other area commanders, he is in the corps of military police.

One Man Club

Louis Antonicic Sr., is the original Dad to GI Joe at the Electro-Motive plant. In the Mighty 7th war loan drive he has bought a $100 bond for each of his three sons in the service and for his son, Joe, who is a fellow employe at the big diesel works at La Grange.

The three GI Joe sons are Sgt. Walter, 33, in the army mail service on Long Island, N. Y.; John, 29, a machinist with the Seabees in Hawaii, and Sgt. Louis Jr., 28, with the army at Camp Gordon, Ga.

Mr. Antonicic believed in buying bonds for his sons when the bonds first became available and has purchased $100 bonds for his four sons in all seven of the bond drives. He buys a $25 bond each pay day. All his boys have been regular buyers, too.

RUDOLF SERKIN PHILHARMONIC SOLOIST TODAY

Rudolf Serkin will be soloist in a presentation of Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 1 in C major by the New York Philharmonic orchestra over WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. today. The orchestra, under direction of Eugene Ormandy, will round out the program with Handel's Concerto for Orchestra in D major and Haydn's Symphony No. 88 in G. Dr. Philip R. White of the department of animal and plant pathology of Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research will speak during intermission.

MOTHER USED TO TAKE HER EXERCISE SHOPPING FOR THE FAMILY

First there was a long, tiresome and generally uncomfortable trip to the stores. Followed by equally arduous tramps from one place to another. The shopping got done, all right. But it certainly took up most of Mother's so-called spare time.

now MOTHER SHOPS IN OAK PARK and HAS TIME LEFT OVER TO PLAY

A short trip has replaced the long ride. And the compact, convenient Oak Park shopping district has reduced shopping time to a pleasant minimum. For instance, this family wardrobe of summer play clothes was acquired in one brief Oak Park jaunt during an "Open House" shopping night. Doesn't Mother look fetching in her new play suit? And, best of all, she has the time to relax in it now that Oak Park has solved her shopping problems!

ON SHORT WAVES

LONDON

The North American service of the BBC from London includes the following programs today. The frequencies [in megacycles] employed after 4:15 p. m. are: 11.93, 9.58, 9.82, 6.11, 7.26, 9.51. 4:45 p. m.—News. 6:30 p. m.—Radio Newsreel. 8:15 p. m.—Sunday Service. 11:30 p. m.—News reports.

FINAL CITIZENS HOUR IS SLATED FOR SATURDAY

The final broadcast of the Citizens of Tomorrow program's sixth season will be recorded next Wednesday in W-G-N's main audience studio for broadcast at 10 a. m. next Saturday. More than 100 high school students will attend. A feature of the program will be the "Parade of Ambitions" in which students who have been named during the season to the program's roll of honor tell of their hopes for the future.

Joe Konitzki, a senior at Elgin High school, will sing "I Got Plenty of Nothin'" from Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess." Philip Maxwell will be the conductor.

All the honor roll students will be guests of the Chicago Association of Commerce at a luncheon Wednesday. Later they will tour Tribune Tower and be guests of THE TRIBUNE at a dinner at the Sherman hotel.

Jeanette McDonald

Jeanette MacDonald and Freddy Martin will be Tommy Dorsey's guests on WMAQ-NBC at 3:30 p. m. today.

ROGER 5, SUGAR 5, THAT'S GI TALK FOR RADIO'S FINE

BY LARRY WOLTERS

A few weeks ago a terse note from a marine sergeant of the 5th division on Iwo Jima reached the Armed Forces Radio service in Hollywood. It said: "We received your Roger five Sugar five. Your programs are enjoyed by all hands. We connected the transmitter of our gun sections with the receiver of the set in order that we might hear your broadcasts during lulls in firing."

Col. Thomas Lewis

Col. Thomas H. A. Lewis, chief of the A. F. R. S., visiting Chicago last week, explained that, reduced to ordinary language, the sergeant's short wave talk—Roger for clearness, Sugar for signal strength—meant that A. F. R. S. short wave reception from San Francisco was perfect.

Jet Propulsion for Troops

Similar messages are received from hundreds of A. F. R. S. installations all around the world from Okinawa to the occupied portions of Germany and the steaming atolls of the Central Pacific, because it brings our fighting forces overseas the best shows from home [minus commercials] and specially produced shows for overseas and news. Our 22 short wave transmitters at home beam nearly 4,300 hours of programs monthly to the troops abroad. These short wave programs are either picked up direct on short wave receivers or they are rebroadcast at many points overseas by long wave transmitters. Col. Lewis calls short wave the jet propulsion machine for news from home.

And each week transcription units averaging 126 separate radio programs, a total of 51 hours of entertainment from home, are flown to the A. F. R. S. outlets the world around by the air transport command and the naval air transport service.

They Go to Ships, Too

All A. F. R. S. transcriptions are stamped on flexible and unbreakable discs, resistant to heat and cold. Approximately 38,500 are flown to stations each month. And some 33,000 each week are distributed to ships for playing on loud speaker systems.

The special programs include such overseas favorites as Command Performance, which recently featured an all-star adaptation of the Chicago Tribune comic, Dick Tracy; G. I. Jive, with Jill, the service men's favorite feminine entertainer; Mail Call, Your Home Town, Hymns from Home, Jubilee, Show Time, and At Ease.

Col. Lewis calls this radio system our second technique for achieving "Victory Thru Air Power." He ranks radio news and entertainment from home next to letters from home as morale builders.

A "Sarong" Network, Too

Col. Lewis told how various "regional" A. F. R. S. networks have been developed in the Pacific regions. In the Solomons and New Caledonia the "Mosquito" network of A. F. R. S. stations functions. In the Southwest Pacific the "Jungle Network" stretches from Milne bay on New Guinea to Manila. A "Sarong" network is in process of formation.

On these and other groups of stations many soldier and sailor stars have been developed. And they have created many programs of their own. In New Caledonia they even broadcast their own "world series."

Why are these far flung American radio stations operating? Because they maintain the welfare of our fighting forces, they combat the lies of the enemy, and they bring troops touches of home which will ease their transition back into civilian life.

Dolores Gray will sing with Wayne King's orchestra on the new show to be introduced over WMAQ-NBC at 6 p. m. today.

GRIEG MEDLEY TO BE AIRED ON THEATER OF AIR

In memory of Edward Grieg's birthday which falls on June 15, the Chicago Theater of the Air will include a medley of Grieg's more familiar work next Saturday. The program will be broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB and the coast-to-coast Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. "Solveg's Song" will be sung by Marion Claire and the chorus. The opening number of the medley, "Excerpt from String Quartet" will be played by the orchestra and the entire ensemble will be represented in the final number, "Triumphal March from 'Sigurd Jorsalfar.'"

Henry Weber will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus.

N. W. SIDE HIGHS RAISE SIGHTS IN 7TH WAR LOAN

Steinmetz Hustles to Sell $1,000,000

Redoubled effort is the pledge of northwest side high schools in the mighty 7th war loan drive, with several schools setting their goals 25 per cent higher than in previous drives.

Shifting into high gear as they strive for a yearly bond sale of $4,000,000, Steinmetz students will hold a big rally in the school auditorium at 3 p. m. today with Ted Weems and the entire show from the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel appearing. Parents and business friends who have helped the students in the drive are invited. Various organizations of the school and the Helmer J. Behrenz American Legion post, and the Gen. George Bell Legion post are coöperating in the rally.

Dance for Bond Buyers

Kelvyn Life, newspaper of Kelvyn Park High school, is sponsoring a dance in the girls gym at the school Friday at 3:15 p. m. A war bond pays the student's admission. Ice cream will be served at a war stamp booth to purchasers of two 10 cent war stamps or one 25 cent stamp. Students selling bonds will receive a button, depicting the flag raising scene on Iwo Jima.

Pep sessions were held at Schurz Thursday and Friday to give impetus to the drive to reach $108,000 for the purchase of a Helldiver scout bomber."

"If we get more," Norman Brunfeldt, student drive chairman declared optimistically, "we'll get a tank or ambulance."

Family Team Scores

At Roosevelt High school, students are displaying the same dogged persistence in backing the 7th which made their previous drives successes. Without any special publicity stunts or prizes they have already sold more than $120,000 worth.

Top salesman is Bernice Tobor, 2712 Logan blvd., a senior, who sold $9,000 and will lay odds she sells $10,000 more before the end of June. She has sold $70,000 during her high school career.

A brother and sister team, Dolores Galler, a junior, and Edmund, a sophmore, 3853 Leland av., have sold $30,000 in bonds. Other high sales are: Myron Leibovitz, a junior, 1855 N. Whipple st., $1,000, and Diana Bluestone, 4455 N. Whipple st., a sophmore, $3,100.

"Anchor Man" Aids Tuley

Tuley High school scheduled three bond rallies recently with Gene Oxley, a coast guardsman, as speaker. Oxley, frequently called "the anchor man" because he swam ashore carrying an anchor on D-day, recently was awarded the medal of valor for his action in Normandy. He was accompanied to Tuley by a 17 piece coast guard band composed of men who saw action in Europe.

A navy Hellcat fighter costing $88,500 is Tuley's goal in the 7th. Alice Pajak, Dorothy Dobrynska, Lorraine Churchill, Constance Wyman, and Maryjane Palmer are students assisting Donald Miller, war coördinator, making sure the goal is reached.

Taft Seeks 100 Per Centers

The goal of Taft High school is a 100 per cent school in which each student sells at least one bond. Sales are reported averaging between $6,000 and $7,000 daily. Special entertainment is offered all divisions reaching the 100 per cent goal plus individual awards for each given student selling of $250 in bonds. The Taft Student council, under sponsorship of Robert Miller and headed by Robert Black, is offering a box of candy to the business manager and student council representatives of the three rooms selling the greatest dollar volume of bonds.

Joan Bard, Bernard Miller, Edna Frank, Harvey Share, and Shulamith Turetzky are the leading student salesmen at Von Steuben High school, where a goal of $100,000 has been set. A special outdoor assembly with music by the band, orchestra, and symphonic choir and pep talks spurred sales last week.

PAUL V. CARELLI, WIFE SAY VOWS AGAIN ON THEIR 50TH WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. Carelli, 2954 N. Keating av., recently renewed their wedding vows at high mass at St. Bartholomew church in celebration of their 50th anniversary.

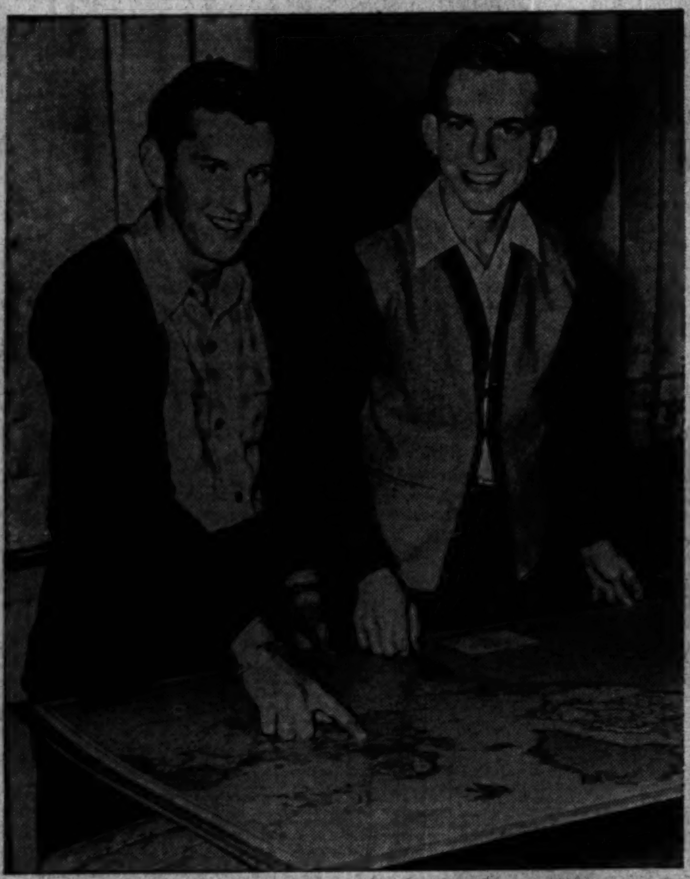
Paul Carelli

Mrs. Carelli

After the mass there was a family gathering which included two of the couple's sons, George and Paul, and four daughters, Rose, Mrs. Lena Malatia, Mrs. Esther Buffo, and Mrs. Anne Rita Aiello, and 13 grandchildren. Another son, Pvt. James Carelli, is with the 3d army in Europe.

Both Carellis were born in Potenza, Italy, and came to this country when they were 12. Carelli, now retired, worked at Marshall Field & Co.

War Vets to Get Diplomas



Two veterans who have seen action overseas and who will be graduated June 21 from Schurz High school are Robert M. Tambeaux (left), 2271 N. Monitor av., and Edward Wroblawski, 3604 Diversey av. Sgt. Tambeaux, twice wounded, returned in February to complete his high school education after two and a half years with paratroops and four months of action in North Africa, Sicily, France, and Italy. Wroblawski was a radioman in the army air corps and was four months in the European theater as a corporal before receiving his medical discharge last October. (Story on page 2)

Three 1895 graduates who will attend the 58th annual reunion of the Schurz-Jefferson Alumni association Friday night at Schurz High school, 3601 Milwaukee av., are E. D. Bishop, 3705 N. Tripp av.; George K. Volz of Arlington Heights, and Mrs. Samuel Mahaffey, 3849 N. Kedvale av. Carmen Crown, 4105 Long av., youngest senior of 600 in the June class, listens to the pranks they played in school in the '90s. [TRIBUNE Photos by Julius Gantter]

Schurz seniors gather around the piano practicing school songs which they will sing Friday night when they attend their first reunion of alumni. Virginia Hollingseed and Al Meschewski, chosen typical Schurzite boy and girl, sit at the piano. Class officers (from left) are Dorothy Shoberg, vice president; Charles Janke, president; Clayton Kvavli, treasurer, and Ruth Rohde, secretary.

PUTTING PIGGY BANK PENNIES IN BONDS IS URGED

Impetus has been given the 7th war loan drive by an Albany Park library exhibit titled, "Empty your piggy bank—buy an extra bond."

The exhibit includes 50 piggy banks from the collection of Miss Pearl Morson, chairman of the women's division of the Albany-North Park war finance committee. The piggy banks are mainly of United States and Mexican origin and range from 1½ to 8 inches in height. Most of the Mexican pigs are made of unbaked clay and individually painted by their makers. One in the collection resembles an Aztec mask.

Also on exhibit are a German officer's uniform, boots, sabers, and foreign money which Corp. Arthur Berliner sent his mother, Mrs. Henry Berliner, 3525 Leland av. A graduate of Roosevelt High school in 1940, Berliner entered the army signal corps three years ago and has been overseas since October.

Books on the building of peace display include such titles as "How New Will the Better World Be?" by Carl L. Becker, "Foreign Policy Begins at Home" by James P. Warburg, and "The Coming Struggle for Peace" by Andre Visson.

DON'T DOODLE, SAGE ADVICE OF MR. YORK

Typewriter Is Safer, Says Expert

BY EDNA CARROLL

It's a safe bet very few rubber checks have been passed on Leon York, 2641 Walton st. He's a handwriting analyst who believes, like Thomas Carlyle, that "in every man's writing the character of the writer must be recorded," and acts accordingly.

Furthermore, those scribblings on the telephone book may be doodlings to you, but to him they are character sketches. Straight line doodles portray the retiring type—on the studious side. If you doodle scrolls, trees, and cute little "numbers," you're regular. [If you sell 'em you're professional and can't play.] If you draw curves, you're the kind who lets George do it, and if you mix them up — you are a problem, aren't you?

Here's How It's Done

A professorial looking man with a deep interest in psychology, York says he isn't sure how he became interested in handwriting study 35 years ago, but suddenly he discovered himself surrounded by books on graphology and curious friends willing to serve as guinea pigs. Since that time he's developed his own techniques, now adopted by other graphologists thruout the country.

There are two types of handwriting experts, York says, those in the disputed handwriting field, detecting the authenticity of signatures and writing, and those who can discover from a glance at your scrawl whether you help old ladies across the street or beat the landlord out of his rent. York is in the latter fraternity.

About three million handwriting specimens have passed thru his hands since he turned his hobby to a profession 15 years ago—a cross-section of humanity ranging from royalty to criminals including a certain paper hanger of odorous repute.

He Had Reason to Worry

The signature of Princess Elizabeth he labeled as that of a madcap, emotional and affectionate. The late paper hanger, Adolf, whose signature looks like its owner had tarried overlong in the beer garden, was a worrier, a pessimist with bulldog tenacity and "a certain lack of regard for others," York deduced. The analysis of der Fuehrer's scrawl was made from a copy obtained in 1939.

York has been called in on several sensational crimes, like the Lindbergh case and Chicago's lipstick murder several years ago, to give a clew to the type of person authorities were looking for.

York squints one's writing from seven angles. The first is general appearance. A neat hand means a simple, approachable fellow, with a lot of common sense. If one is given to curls or shading, he probably is a show-off, York said.

Better Use Typewriter

A forward slant indicates aggressiveness. If it all but falls on its face, one probably has jitters in the large economy size. Vertical writing indicates caution, and the backward slant, repressed feelings.

The size of the writing is as big as one's ego, he says. A blow-off

WELLS ARTISTS TO SHOW WORK AT OPEN AIR FAIR

Students Paint Meat Line Scenes

The outdoor fair of the Wells High school art department will be held from 10 a. m. to 2:30 p. m. Tuesday and Wednesday at Milwaukee av. and Division st. Paintings will sell from $1 to $5.

To achieve reality students painted in department stores, beauty shops, restaurants, churches, drug stores, meat market lines, in the streets, and in movie houses.

This year students are striving to make the fair a success, Henry Weaver, department chairman, said. Several advanced art classes have been created where "a great deal of dormant talent has been reawakened," he added.

To relieve difficulties involved in exhibiting outdoors, special easels were constructed to keep the art from blowing away. The school band will play at noon each day.

Among students who will exhibit are Lucille Short, Jacqueline Short, Anastasia Armatys, Lorraine Kalinowski, Anna Jensen, Alma Wachnowsky, Alice Tarchedo, Virginia Czarnick, Virginia Kluza, Rosalie Durka, Lorraine Slowik, Mildred Daniels, Georgianna Pateros, Norbert Grabowski, Stan York, Paul Aliotta, Lita Katzmarek, Mildred Hoblit, Leonard Kibitlewski, Rose Felice, Alice Lagona, Dolores Klimaszewski, Dolores Herring, Dorothy Kuszynski, Frank Zak, Florence Kolinowski, Elaine Young, Patricia Catlett, Alice Figlerowicz, Helen Munari, and Betty Harvey.

Wells art instructors are Alma Morgan, Louise Yochim, and Velma Miller.

Mothers Club

The Mothers club of St. Henry's school will hold its spring luncheon Tuesday at the Town and Tennis clubs. Mrs. B. F. Healy will be installed as the new president.

REV. HEIMSOTH TAKES N. W. SIDE LUTHERAN POST

The Rev. Norman W. Heimsoth, formerly of Woodworth, recently was installed as pastor of the First Bethlehem Evangelical Lutheran church, 1645 Le Moyne st. He succeeds the Rev. Clemens Theis, who joined the faculty of Lutheran institute.

Born in 1906 in Missouri, the Rev. Mr. Heimsoth attended Lutheran parochial schools and was graduated from Concordia seminary in St. Louis.

His first pastorate was in Arriba, Colo., where he also ministered to congregations in near-by Bovina, Genoa, and Hugo. After seven years in Colorado, he moved to Woodford, Ill.

The Rev. Mr. Heimsoth is particularly interested in missions and working with young people.

TELL ST. MARY'S BUILDING PLANS IN DES PLAINES

$100,000 Expansion to Start in Fall

Building of a three story convent and six additoinal classrooms for St. Mary's Catholic church of Des Plaines has been announced. Construction, estimated at $100,000, will be started early in the fall, the Rev. John Linden, pastor, said.

The convent and classrooms will be erected on the vacant parish property at the southeast corner of Prairie and Center sts. Plans of the convent provide for a private chapel for the exclusive use of the 14 Sisters of St. Francis, Mary Immaculate, who constitute the teaching staff. In addition, there will be 16 individual bedrooms, a conference room, a music room, private laundry, and office quarters.

Buildings Will Form U

The addition to the school will be annexed to the present six room school building at its northeast corner and will continue north to Prairie st. The proposed convent fronting on Prairie st. will be separated from the school by a utility court and service entrance. The new program when completed with the church and old school will form a U.

The present school building accommodates only 350 pupils, 150 less than the enrolment of today. In recent years classes also have been held in the church and in other town buildings.

St. Mary's parish dates from the earliest days of Des Plaines. The first Catholic parish in the area was organized in 1872 and was served from Niles Center. Jurisdiction of the mission was transferred to St. Mary's Training school in 1888 when the latter was established.

Becomes Parish in 1907

In 1907 St. Mary's was established formally as a parish. Father Linden, present pastor, became the first to serve it. The original church building was converted into a residence for the pastor and his assistants in 1939. The present church building at Prairie and Pearson sts. was purchased in 1937 and was formerly a bowling alley.

The proposed building plans have been approved by Father Linden and John N. Ralston, building committee chairman. Other committee members are Anthony J. Dittmer, vice chairman; Arthur King, treasurer; Raymond J. Livington, secretary, and Harold H. Elser and James F. Weldon, publicity.

Alumni of North Park College to Hold Banquet

The alumni banquet of North Park college will be held at 6:30 p. m. Saturday at the Sovereign hotel, 6200 N. Kenmore av. The program theme will be "Lanes for Living." Lt. Robert Johnson of the Glenview naval training base will speak. Miss Janette Taylor and Miss Eva Coleman, North Park college students, will sing. Members of the June class will be guests.

SCHURZ ALUMNI WILL HOLD 58TH REUNION FRIDAY

Expect 1,000 of 30,000 on Rolls to Attend

More than 1,000 of 30,000 graduates of Schurz High school will attend the school's 58th annual reunion Friday night. The occasion also will mark the 60th anniversary of the first class to graduate from Jefferson High school, and the 35th year of the present school at 3601 Milwaukee av., to which the students of Jefferson High school transferred.

Three thousand of the Schurz-Jefferson alumni are in the service. More than 100 have been killed in action. Alumni totals will be boosted by 600 June 21, when the '45 class holds graduation exercises.

Principal event of the reunion meeting will be the presentation of orchids by Ralph Hirschberg, alumni president, to the oldest and youngest graduates attending the affair. Youngest June graduate is 16 year old Carmen Crown, 4105 Long av. Mrs. Ellen Hazelton Nichol, Grosse Point, Mich., who was the only one graduated from Jefferson High school's first class in 1885, is the oldest.

Will Honor Fighters

A tribute to the men and women in service and to those on the gold star honor roll will be paid by the Rev. George Aigner of the National Lutheran council of Lutheran churches. Music for dancing in the girls' gym will be provided by the orchestra of Chuck Kraemer, graduate now attending Northwestern university. Square dancing will be held in the boys' gym, with Lawrence [Bud] Bol, director of Kelvyn Park, calling the numbers.

When the state legislature authorized township high schools in 1872, Jefferson opened classes in the town hall, Milwaukee av. and Irving Park rd., present site of the Northwest National bank. J. B. Farnsworth, organizer, was principal. Altho recollections of early days are hazy, it appears that classes lapsed for a while since records reveal no graduate until 1885.

Use Room of Stables

The first school building was erected at the site of the present Mayfair elementary school, 4626 N. Knox av., in 1883. Expanding enrollment made it necessary a few years later to rent a church across the street to build a room on to the shed originally used for stabling students' horses, and to use the janitor's quarter's in the school basement for physics and chemistry laboratories.

In September, 1910, the school was moved to the present building. With the new location came the present name, Carl Schurz High school. The name was adopted in honor of a German scholar who became one of America's leading patriots. The traditions of the old and new schools are kept alive thru the joint alumni association, which held its first reunion 58 years ago.

Today enrollment numbers more than 4,500 students, four of whom are War II. veterans with overseas records. Four wings have been added to the original building which, including grounds, covers four acres.

Had First School Orchestra

Mention of Schurz High brings a number of achievements to minds of northwest side residents. It organized one of the first high school orchestras in the city public schools. James Mason, founder and director, also organized the first soccer team in the city high schools.

Art students are proud of the library murals and portraits which they painted under guidance of the late Gustav Brand, an artist who contributed much to the 1893 Columbian Exposition.

For the last several years the school has been awarded the best lawn certificate in the Save the Lawn Campaign sponsored by the park district.

District 23 Council to Hold PTA School Wednesday

Foreman High school PTA will be host to high school council, district 23, school of instruction Wednesday at 9:30 a. m. in the school auditorium. The meeting will open with a salute to the flag by the Foreman R. O. T. C. color detail. Mrs. William L. Tompkins, president, will give the welcome address.

Doodles Expert

Your doodles are character sketches for Leon York, handwriting analyst, 2641 Walton st. About three million scribbled specimens have passed thru his hands for analysis of character.

TELEPHONE—DO NOT WRITE—TO AVOID TROUBLE

Doodles Betray Soul, Says York

uses a lot of space. A modest man tries to keep his ego pint sized by writing small. Space between the letters is indicative of freedom of purse strings.

The amount of pressure on the pen, he says, shows varying degrees of tact. If the landlord smiles and lets you owe another month's rent, you undoubtedly write a smooth hand. If not, your handwriting is muddy.

Also Has Acid Tongue

You also can guess how your landlord writes from his reactions. If he lets you stay, he dips a fat, round pen, indicating you can—and have—twisted him around your finger. If he says, "go and never darken my building again," he shoves a sharp pen.

One displays his general mood by direction lines of his writing. Up, he is an optimist; down, a pessimist, and straight across—ha! He cheats!

Aside from the fun agle to this handwriting analysis, there is also a practical side, York says. Frequently firms in Chicago and thruout the nation submit writing specimens to him of job applicants for analysis, and upon his analysis depends their hiring.

Telephone, Don't Write!

Writing analysis, he has discovered, can be a good way to lose friends and alienate people. Not long ago a Chicago firm decided to let its employes see themselves as others see them from their handwriting. After York sent in the analysis, back came one plea:

"It fits the stubborn old dragon to a T, but there's a man power shortage and we need her. Please dress it up a bit."

Once an indignant mother-in-law submitted specimens of handwriting of her daughter and son-in-law whom she suspected of being unsuited. York found what he considers the necessary amount of affinity for a happy marriage in the two specimens, then took a look at the mother-in-law's scribbling.

Cupid's Chief Assistant

"It showed she was a domineering old busybody and I told her so."

She took it philosophically and, so far as he knows, the couple has lived happily ever after.

If you, too, want to be Cupid's little helper or find out what makes people tick, York suggests you get a copy of "Applied Graphology," by A. J. Smith, and read it like you should read your Bible.

25 N. W. SIDERS TO FINISH WORK AT MUNDELEIN

Voted Into Honor Group

Four of the northwest side seniors, Miss Foster, Miss King, Miss Smith, and Miss Shmigelsky were elected to membership in Kappa Gamma Pi, national Catholic honor society for college women, on the basis of character, leadership, scholarship, and service.

Miss Foster, an economics major, is secretary of the class. Miss King is a journalism major and co-editor in chief of the "The Skyscraper, campus newspaper. Miss Smith, class representative on the student activities council, is majoring in sociology. For two years stage set designer and technician for all Mundelein productions, Miss Shmigelsky has been awarded a scholarship to continue her stage work at Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C.

RUDOLPH C. LANGES MARK 50TH WEDDING BY RENEWING VOWS

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph C. Lange, 4509 N. Keating av., recently celebrated their golden wedding with a dinner for the family at the Edgewater Beach hotel, followed by a repetition of the wedding vows. Later a reception was held at the home of their youngest daughter, Mrs. Lester R. Casper, 1340 Early av.

Rudolph Lange

Mrs. Lange

In the second ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Lange wore the golden flower sprays worn by Mrs. Lange's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schreiber, when they celebrated their 50th wedding in 1911. The couple's two daughters and their husbands, Mr. and Mrs. Gasper, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Westfall, and a granddaughter, Miss Lorraine V. Westfall, took part in the ceremony. They also have another granddaughter, Laurel Carolyn Gasper, 9 months old.

Among the guests were members of New Chicago Atlas lodge, I. O. O. F., and Germania encampment, of which Lange is chief patriarch, and Sophia Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F., of which Mrs. Lange is vice grand.

Dance Revue

Cunningham, diocesan superintendent of school in Chicago, will give the address. The Very Reverend S. J. Fiolek, rector of Weber High school, will speak at the mass at 8:30 o'clock that morning.

Jewish Institute

The Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas blvd., will start its series of summer roof garden dances tonight.

MAINE'S SENIOR EVENTS TONIGHT AND THURSDAY

30 in Class Receive Honor Awards

Recognition for outstanding achievement was given 30 seniors at a special honors assembly recently at Maine Township High school. Tonight graduates will hear the baccalaureate sermon in the auditorium by the Rev. Dr. Armin G. Weng, president of the Illinois synod of the United Lutheran church.

Dr. Armin G. Weng

Dr. Clark Kuebler

Commencement exercises will be held at 7:30 p. m. Thursday on the campus, with Dr. Clark G. Kuebler, president of Ripon [Wis.] college, as speaker.

Six Get Good Will Awards

Goodwill awards were presented by Frank L. Holmes, superintendent, to six Maine seniors chosen by the combined vote of faculty and students for having done the most to create good will at Maine and in the community. They are Hope Hallberg, Shirley Koester, Kay Sanders, Arthur Anderson, Bill Barkell, and Norman Olson. The best girl citizen award had previously been given Barbara Behlke by the Park Ridge chapter of the D. A. R.

Arthur Anderson and Joanna Pfaff were named valedictorian and salutatorian respectively. The next eight highest ranking students were Barbara Behlke, Helen Sweezey, Kay Sanders, John Burgeson, Robert Shaw, Betty Lindberg, Margaret Bergman, and Elaine Marozick. Anderson, Shaw, Miss Behlke, and Miss Pfaff, were given citations by the Chicago chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

List Scholarship Winners

Scholarship winners were Arthur Anderson, a $400 tuition to Northwestern university; Halen Jenkins and Harriet White, full tuition scholarships to Knox college, Galesburg, Ill.; Phyllis Shaw, a book scholarship from the Pan Hellenic association in Park Ridge, and Barbara Behlke, a $600 scholarship to Goucher college, Baltimore, Md.

Officers of the graduating class of 360 are Dick Funk, president; Arthur Anderson, vice president; Rita Stateler, secretary, and Alice Larson, treasurer.

COPPER DESERTS BEAT TO PATROL POTATO GARDEN

Sergeant Substitutes Hoe for Night Stick

After more than 34 years on the police force, Sgt. Charles Lodding, 60, 1908 N. Newcastle av., has retired to tend his vegetable garden and rest.

Lodding, who terminated his career as a fire insurance broker to join the force in 1911, was stationed in the loop 14 years. Later he was at the state's attorney's office, at Lawndale, Marquette, and for the last nine years at Des Plaines. He counts his years at the 1st district station, then located at Market and Madison sts., as the most interesting.

Some Crooks Have Brains

"We dealt with educated crooks there—the clever ones that required brains to catch," he said.

Cited for excellent police work on six occasions, Lodding favored cases where it took a little brainwork. One of the citations was the result of his work on the Shepherd-McClintock investigation in 1924. Another citation was for his work in the Stokes' case when W. E. D. Stokes, millionaire, was charged with attempting to defame his wife, Mrs. Helen Ellwood Stokes.

Lodding has two generations of Chicagoans behind him, starting with his grandfather, Fred Lodding, who came here from Germany, was an alderman in the old 7th ward, and was one of the first superintendents of the stock yards.

Every One a Sergeant

Sergeancies run in the Lodding family. His two sons and daughter are sergeants. Harold is a paratrooper in Europe, Charles is stationed at Puget Sound, and June is in the WACs in Texas. Lodding has priority rights to the title, however, having been a sergeant since 1933.

His first assignment on his retirement, he says, is to take his wife, Lillian, to their summer home in McHenry county to regain her health while he hoes the potatoes.

HOLD CANDLE LIGHT SERVICE OF CHURCH GIRLS GROUP TODAY

The girls clubs of Our Saviour's English Lutheran church, Berteau and Laramie avs., will hold their 12th annual candle light service at 7:30 p. m. today. The organization is composed of clubs formed by the girls of each year's confirmation class.

Phyllis Danford

Officers in charge of the service are Miss Phyllis Danford, president; Miss Margaret Kuebel, vice president; Miss Gloria Guendgen, secretary, and Miss Virginia Hirschberg, treasurer.

Mrs. Alfred O. Storvick, wife of the pastor of St. Timothy Lutheran church, 2100 N. Kildare av., and member of the Chicagoland Lutheran student directing committee, will speak on "Candles of the Lord." Miss Ruth Kruchel will be soloist, accompanied by Miss Carol Soderberg, pianist.

Monday, June 4

This is the month when crab grass infests some lawns and every effort should be made to get rid of it or control it. It can be done by raking with a steel toothed rake and mowing to cut off the heads. It is best to rake the infested areas over several times now, destroying the clipping later. Small areas can be cleared by digging by hand.

Tuesday, June 5

In areas where the Mexican bean beetle is prevalent spray or dust the plants with magnesium arsenate as soon as the plants have made some growth. It may be necessary to repeat the applications four or more times at intervals of 10 days.

Rotenone dust is effective and may be applied thru a cheesecloth, but have the dust reach the under side of the leaves. Arsenate should not be used after the pods are half grown, for it is highly poisonous to humans. This applies to all crops.

Wednesday, June 6

Trim or prune privet hedges again this month, altho it is necessary to do so several times to insure a close and shapely hedge. The most effective barrier that can be obtained from hedges is when they grow thickly from the base and are kept in good form.

Thursday, June 7

Mulch the ground among rhododendrons, azaleas, and kalmia or mountain laurel with leaf mold. Peat moss may be obtained in bales and may be more abundant than leaf mold. Grass clippings also may be found useful for the same purpose. Tender water lilies still can be planted. Sow some of the double portulaca in the sunny rock garden or along the narrow strip between the cement driveway and the house or wherever a small area can be utilized.

Friday, June 8

If it is desired to dig tulip bulbs, wait until the leaves have turned yellow signifying that the bulbs have ripened or entered their resting period. Keep in a dry, airy place until fall, then replant.

Tuberous begonias can be planted in a shady place. The highly colored, fancy leaved caladiums also can occupy a shady place or be used in a north window box. House plants should be occupying an outdoor, shady place. Plunge the pots to the rim. They must be watered every day. Some plant food applied at least once a month is desirable.

Saturday, June 9

Softwood cuttings of many kinds of plants may be made now which enable the gardener to increase his supply of desirable plants. Herbaceous perennials like the delphinium, phlox, chrysanthemum, Sweet William, creeping phlox, iberis, arabis, may be made after flowering.

Norwood Park Women to Hold Luncheon Party

The annual spring luncheon of the Norwood Park Woman's club Tuesday noon at the Edgewater Beach hotel will close its club season.

Miss Olive O'Neill will present a miniature operetta, "The Fire Fly," by Friml, accompanied by Alexander Marney, pianist; David Bohme, violinist, and Richard Biede, cellist.

Mrs. E. W. Droege, president, will present officers and chairmen who will work with her next year. They are Mrs. E. J. Heckel, vice president; Mrs. C. H. Ewing and Mrs. C. J. Brady, secretaries; Mrs. Francis Atkinson, treasurer, and the following chairmen: Mrs. R. W. Maser, calendar and press; Mrs. H. H. Linn, education; Mrs. C. L. Klusman, fine arts; Mrs. G. M. Tomlinson, garden; Mrs. F. W. Wilson, membership; Mrs. J. J. Nemec, program, and Mrs. D. H. McLean, public welfare.

Irving Park Catholic Club

Irving Park Catholic Young Woman's club will hold its annual meeting and banquet Tuesday night in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. John McDermott, who will succeed Mrs. Harold McGrath as president, will appoint committee chairmen for next season. Activities for the summer will be discussed.

Hermosa Woman's Club

Guests at the final luncheon of the season for Hermosa Woman's club Friday at the Tally-Ho Tearoom, Park Ridge, will be Mrs. Milton H. G. Meyer, 7th district president, and Mrs. W. H. Jenkins, 7th district education and library service chairman. The program will include numbers by Mrs. Lucy Hartman Delano, contralto soprano.

Irving Park Club

Mrs. George A. Harriman will be hostess to departmental chairman of the Irving Park Woman's club at a luncheon Wednesday at her home, 2528 N. Lawndale av. Tentative plans will be made for next fall.

ROOSEVELT HIGH WILL GIVE MUSIC FESTIVAL FRIDAY

Vocal and instrumental organizations of Roosevelt High school will present a music festival in the auditorium at 8 p. m. Friday.

A varied program has been scheduled ranging from the latest arrangements of "Stardust" and "Holiday for Strings," to be sung by the girls chorus to a special arrangement of Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C sharp minor, a piano solo by Mark Mendelsohn, 4906 N. Rockwell-st.

Other soloists will be Phillis Wilson, 4424 N. Springfield av., singing "The Lost Chord"; Doris Berglund, 3720 Giddings st., Franz Lehar's "Merry Widow Waltz," and Corrine Scher, 4226 Kimball av., "Allah's Holiday."

"This Is America" will be sung by Elaine Brosilow, 4666 N. Spaulding av. Marilyn Susman, 2200 N. Avers av., will sing "The Lord's Prayer."

The orchestra and symphonic choir will present "Ode to America," with Antonio Spiro, 4427 Keystone av.; Morris Kaplan, 3226 Wilson av.; Arnold Glass, 3512 Shakespeare av., and Marilyn Levinson, 3125 Wilson av., as soloists. A violin duet will be played by Elaine Gurevitz, 4822 N. Lawndale av., and Max Wexler, 4631 N. Drake av.

CULVER SENIORS INCLUDE THREE N. W. SIDE BOYS

Three northwest area boys are among the 160 students of Culver Military academy, Culver, Ind., who will be graduated this week. The ceremonies began last Friday and will be concluded Tuesday.

Dr. Franklyn Bliss Snyder, president of Northwestern university, will speak at baccalaureate services today.

Name Graduates

The graduates are Ford Van Hagen, Barrington; Thomas Gibson, Elmwood Park, and Robert W. Murphy, Park Ridge.

Van Hagen, captain of the Black Horse troop, is a member of the honor council, varsity swimming and wrestling teams, and Hi-Y organization.

Honor Guard Member

Gibson is a sergeant in the infantry and member of the honor guard. For two years he was manager of the varsity basketball team.

R. W. Murphy, regimental lieutenant, was a member of the staff of Vedette, cadet newspaper, and the varsity track team.

N. W. Side High Students to Sing at Cordon Club

Edith Lang, soprano, and Lewis Mahlmann, baritone, Steinmetz High school pupils, and Lesly Roninson, soprano, Taft High school, are among top ranking vocalists in the recent class voice contest who will participate June 15 in a program at the Cordon club, 410 S. Michigan av.

10 ON N. W. SIDE FINISH NATIONAL COLLEGE WORK

Ten northwest side girls were among the graduates of the National College of Education in Evanston at commencement exercises recently. Archibald MacLeish, assistant secretary of state, was speaker. The graduates are: Gladys Frederick, Park Ridge; Joan Foutch, Des Plaines; Clara Anderes, Barrington; Gladys Everatt, 6414 Northwest hwy.; Roxanne Hansen, 6820 N. Oakley av.; Eunice Kukeé, 2647 Crystal st.; Florence Rudman, 5142 N. Drake av.; Jean Stauffer, 5133 N. Christiana av.; Grace Stewart, 5323 Bernard st., and Signe Norling, 1705 N. Natoma av.

★ With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS ★

Pvt. Stephen Madalinski, whose wife, Rose, lives at 2734 Cortez st., has returned home after being discharged from the army. He has been awarded the Purple Heart.

Pvt. Madalinski

Pvt. Lawrence Gustaitis, 1644 Erie st., believes he never will get out of the medics. In a medical battalion, he patched the wounded on Okinawa without a chance to fight back for so long that he asked for a transfer to an infantry unit. In his division's attack Gustaitis' company fought to the top of a ridge with heavy casualties. When the outfit's medic was killed, Gustaitis again was called on to aid the wounded. He has rescued eight men under fire.

Sgt. Edward Janka had his baptism under fire early on his first mission over Germany. Leaving the target he was pounced upon by a pack of Nazi fighters, who air conditioned his plane with 30 bullet holes, shot off the prop from the No. 2 engine, and cut the catwalk in half. Nevertheless, he returned to his base. Husband of Mrs. Mary P. Janka, 2132 N. Oakley av., he entered the service in December, 1943, and went overseas in July, 1944. He is now convalescing from an illness in Miami.

After completing 35 missions over Germany during his nine months of overseas service, Staff Sgt. Walter Witzke, gunner on a Flying Fortress, came home for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold Witzke, 4613 Patterson av.

Walter Witzke

Wounded in the left leg in Germany, Sgt. Steve J. Kolacki, son of Mrs. Clara Kolacki, 1425 N. Wood st., is at a convalescent center in England. In the army since February, 1943, he has been awarded the Purple Heart.

Promotion to captain of Harry D. Melcher, assistant state procurement officer at state selective service headquarters in Springfield, has been reported. Capt. Melcher and his family, who live temporarily in Springfield, formerly resided at 5644 Berenice av.

In Italy, Raymond E. Luther, husband of Mrs. Charlotte M. Luther, 5521 Byron st., has been promoted to corporal. Overseas since April, 1944, he has one campaign star on his European-African-Middle East service ribbon. He is a former employe of the Guardian Life Insurance company.

Corp. Luther

Wounded while trying to rescue a comrade, Pvt. Frank P. Martino, 454 N. Peoria st., is recovering at a convalescent center in England. Formerly employed by Montgomery Ward & Co., he has been awarded the Purple Heart.

Sidney Bleaden, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bleaden, 3214 Leland av., recently was promoted to first lieutenant at the Abilene [Tex.] army air field, where he is an assistant technical inspector.

GRIEG MEDLEY TO BE AIRED ON THEATER OF AIR

In memory of Edward Grieg's birthday which falls on June 15, the Chicago Theater of the Air will include a medley of Grieg's more familiar work next Saturday. The program will be broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB and the coast-to-coast Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. "Solveg's Song" will be sung by Marion Claire and the chorus. The opening number of the medley, "Excerpt from String Quartet" will be played by the orchestra and the entire ensemble will be represented in the final number, "Triumphal March from 'Sigurd Jorsalfar.'"

Henry Weber will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus.

Among the number to be included will be Overture to the "Marriage of Figaro" by the orchestra; "Gypsy Song" from "Countess Maritza," by Miss Claire and chorus; "Oh Susanna!" by the chorus; Rachmaninoff's "Vocalise" by the orchestra; "Neapolitan Love Song" from "Princess Pat" by Angelo Raffaelli; "O, Promise Me" from "Robin Hood," by Miss Claire and chorus; "Artists Life Waltz," by the orchestra, and "On Wings of Song," by Mr. Raffaelli. An added feature of the evening will be a violin solo by Robert Quick. The selection will be Saint-Saens' "Prelude du Deluge."

Jeanette McDonald

Jeanette MacDonald and Freddy Martin will be Tommy Dorsey's guests on WMAQ-NBC at 3:30 p. m. today.

ROGER 5, SUGAR 5, THAT'S GI TALK FOR RADIO'S FINE

'Jet Propelled' Shows Suit Troops

BY LARRY WOLTERS

A few weeks ago a terse note from a marine sergeant of the 5th division on Iwo Jima reached the Armed Forces Radio service in Hollywood. It said: "We received your Roger five Sugar five. Your programs are enjoyed by all hands. We connected the transmitter of our gun sections with the receiver of the set in order that we might hear your broadcasts during lulls in firing."

Col. Thomas Lewis

Col. Thomas H. A. Lewis, chief of the A. F. R. S., visiting Chicago last week, explained that, reduced to ordinary language, the sergeant's short wave talk—Roger for clearness, Sugar for signal strength—meant that A. F. R. S. short wave reception from San Francisco was perfect.

Jet Propulsion for Troops

Similar messages are received from hundreds of A. F. R. S. installations all around the world from Okinawa to the occupied portions of Germany and the steaming atolls of the Central Pacific, because it brings our fighting forces overseas the best shows from home [minus commercials] and specially produced shows for overseas and news. Our 22 short wave transmitters at home beam nearly 4,300 hours of programs monthly to the troops abroad. These short wave programs are either picked up direct on short wave receivers or they are rebroadcast at many points overseas by long wave transmitters. Col. Lewis calls short wave the jet propulsion machine for news from home.

And each week transcription units averaging 126 separate radio programs, a total of 51 hours of entertainment from home, are flown to the A. F. R. S. outlets the world around by the air transport command and the naval air transport service.

They Go to Ships, Too

All A. F. R. S. transcriptions are stamped on flexible and unbreakable discs, resistant to heat and cold. Approximately 38,500 are flown to stations each month. And some 33,000 each week are distributed to ships for playing on loud speaker systems.

The special programs include such overseas favorites as Command Performance, which recently featured an all-star adaptation of the Chicago Tribune comic, Dick Tracy; G. I. Jive, with Jill, the service men's favorite feminine entertainer; Mail Call, Your Home Town, Hymns from Home, Jubilee, Show Time, and At Ease.

Col. Lewis calls this radio system our second technique for achieving "Victory Thru Air Power." He ranks radio news and entertainment from home next to letters from home as morale builders.

A "Sarong" Network, Too

Col. Lewis told how various "regional" A. F. R. S. networks have been developed in the Pacific regions. In the Solomons and New Caledonia the "Mosquito" network of A. F. R. S. stations functions. In the Southwest Pacific the "Jungle Network" stretches from Milne bay on New Guinea to Manila. A "Sarong" network is in process of formation.

On these and other groups of stations many soldier and sailor stars have been developed. And they have created many programs of their own. In New Caledonia they even broadcast their own "world series."

New stations are being developed for the American occupation forces in Germany.

Why are these far flung American radio stations operating? Because they maintain the welfare of our fighting forces, they combat the lies of the enemy, and they bring troops touches of home which will ease their transition back into civilian life.

With Wayne King

[Associated Press Wirephoto]

Dolores Gray will sing with Wayne King's orchestra on the new show to be introduced over WMAQ-NBC at 6 p. m. today.

Pat O'Brien on Air

Pat O'Brien, June Duprez, and Tom Conway will be heard in "Having Wonderful Crime" on Harold Lloyd's Comedy Theater over WMAQ-NBC at 9:30 p. m. tonight.

Harriet O'Rourke on W-G-N Show Tonight

Harriet O'Rourke, soprano, and John Baker, baritone, accompanied by Frederick Dvonch's orchestra, will sing on Steel Horizons over W-G-N-Mutual at 8 o'clock tonight. Miss O'Rourke will offer Oakland's "I'll Take Romance;" Baker will solo with Friml's "Song of the Vagabonds." Orchestral selections include Youmans' "Great Day" and Porter's "I've Got You Under My Skin."

The Truth is That Our Real Task is Just Beginning!
The big C-54 transport planes you can help to build here are even more necessary in the Pacific conflict. Companion planes to the largest bombers, these C-54's carry everything to our fighting men—jeeps, ammunition, supplies of every sort. And as long as men are being shot, and wounded, these C-54's will be needed in increasing numbers to move casualties to hospitals.

Then the C-54 Becomes the Commercial Airliner After the War
The skills Douglas employes acquire fit them for a future in aviation—and in working with the new light metals such as magnesium and the aluminum alloys. When you work at Douglas, you have the best job that any loyal American could have today. Come out—at once!

CHURCH BEGUN IN 1875 OPENS JUBILEE WEEK

Dinner Tuesday Will Mark 70th Year

Bethlehem Lutheran church, 58th and Wells sts., will commemorate the 70th anniversary of its founding at two events this week. A parish dinner will be served by the Dorcas society Tuesday night, date of the founding of the church in 1875. The Rev. H. E. Sandstedt, pastor, will say the grace.

At anniversary services next Sunday morning the Rev. O. V. Anderson, pastor of Grace church, La Grange, will address the congregation. Reading of the church history will be heard at a 4 o'clock concert by the senior choir and chapel senior and junior choirs which will sing Swedish folk songs and hymns. Refreshments will be served in the church parlors.

Calls Neighbors Together

Realizing the spiritual needs of Swedish settlers in the neighborhood of 56th and La Salle sts., John Frosberg, a lay preacher, called a meeting of neighbors on June 5, 1875, to organize and build a church. The committee arranged for services to be held temporarily in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hemstrom, 5115 Wentworth av., which is still part of the parish.

The original church building of frame construction was completed in 1876 at 56th and La Salle sts. Shortly afterwards, John Frosberg was ordained and appointed pastor by the Augustana Synod. In 1886 the church was moved to its present site, 58th and Wells sts., where it was enlarged and decorated.

Church Built in 1914

During 1914 this building was razed and construction begun on the present red brick church which has been in use since 1915. Seating capacity with balcony and choir loft is more than 600. A simple altar and pulpit complete the interior arrangement.

The present congregation numbers 600 communicants and 200 children who attend Sunday school. In 1944 a mission chapel was started in a former gas station at 94th st. and Western av. and an associate pastor, the Rev. Elmer T. Peters, appointed. Future plans include a new church building program at 94th st. and Oakley av. where property is owned by the congregation.

Church Has Chapel, Parish

The present parish building group consists of a parsonage and church. A basement chapel in the church provides meeting space for the Sunday school, Bethlehem Star circle, Men's Brotherhood, Luther league, and Dorcas society.

The Rev. Mr. Sandstedt has been Bethlehem's pastor since 1920. He has four children, one of whom, Lt. Julius, is serving with the navy in Florida as an instructor.

Among the church leaders planning the anniversary celebrations are: Elmer Holmgreen and J. J. Thoren, superintendents of the Sunday school; G. F. Lindquist, Elmer Johnson, Everett Hubenet, and Mrs. Pauline Peters, all of Beverly chapel; E. R. Jacobsen, Carl Dahlquist, Emil Peterson, Mrs. N. A. Nelson, and Grace Larson.

90 Members in Service

An honor roll testifies that 90 men and women members of the congregation have entered military services. Two have been killed and one is missing in action.

Altho originally composed entirely of Swedish members, the church now has a variety of nationalities and all services are in English. In addition to the regular Sunday school and morning worship a midweek service is held on Thursday evenings.

THORNTON HIGH TO GRADUATE 183 SENIORS FRIDAY

Thornton Township High school, Calumet City, will graduate 183 seniors Friday night in the school auditorium. A. W. Wahlgren, school district president, will award the diplomas, and Samuel Grathwell will deliver the graduation address. A. V. Lockhart, superintendent, will present the senior medal to the student with the highest scholastic average, who will be announced at the ceremony. Donald Olsen, senior president, will present an oil painting, the class gift. The girl chorus and the orchestra will present musical selections.

Buda Workers Back Boys in Service by Joining Dads to GI Joe Club

The sons of J. Stanley Dempesy (left) and Mrs. Bertha Smith soon will receive V-mail reports on the purchase of war bonds in their names in connection with the nation-wide Dad to GI Joe bond campaign. The bonds are being purchased thru John W. Thomas (center), head of bond sales for the Buda company, Harvey. Dempesy, president of the company, is the father of George H. Dempesy, technician 4th grade now in Germany, whose picture is on his desk. Another son was killed in Sicily two years ago. The service records of Mrs. Smith's five sons and one daughter, whose pictures are below, total nearly a half century. Mrs. Smith is employed in the Buda assembly plant in Blue Island.

Albert Witt, Harvey, radial drill press operator at the Buda plant, earned membership in the Dad to GI Joe club thru purchase of a war bond made out to his son, John, 18 (inset), seaman 1st class who was on Okinawa. Another son, Charles, received an honorable discharge last September after nine months overseas.

WAR PLANT MOM FINDS BONDS ARE HER BEST TOOLS

She Buys for Six to Head GI Joe Club

Stealing the spotlight from 300 service fathers, a plump, gray haired woman, mother of six of America's fighters, has become first lady of the Dad to GI Joe club at the Buda company plants in Harvey, Blue Island, and Chicago.

Altho she would look more at home in a kitchen, enveloped in a white apron and rolling out ginger cookies than clad in her trim blue slacks and turning out war tools, Mrs. Bertha Smith of MacArthur did not feel that she had done her share toward victory, even after five sons and one daughter had enlisted for military service. Nineteen months ago, therefore, she went to work in the Buda assembly plant in Blue Island, and since then she has worked from 4 p. m. to midnight six days, sometimes seven, each week.

Father Also War Worker

Mr. Smith is also a war worker. Three of their sons were in army service long before Pearl Harbor. Warrant Officer John Smith enlisted 18 years ago, and has refused an honorable discharge. He now is stationed in Fort Worth, Tex., after two years in Italy in the engineer corps. Staff Sgt. Isaac Smith, an infantry instructor in Michigan, has been in the army 14 years, and 1st Lt. Howard Smith, now in an army hospital in Louisville, Ky., has been in service 10 years.

Two sons were wounded overseas, Howard in Belgium in January and Pvt. Roy Smith in the Pacific in March. Roy is now under treatment in San Diego, Cal.

Staff Sgt. Everett Smith is with the army engineers in Europe, and Corp. Martha Smith is with the Spars in New York City.

"Buy Bonds—Win War"

"The safe return of all my family is what I want most in the world," Mrs. Smith says. "I'm using the two best methods I know—sticking to my war job and buying bonds—to make that dream come true."

In charge of bond sales at the Buda plants are John W. Thomas, paymaster, and Ben Spelde, president of CIO local 1091. Thru the pay roll plan and the coöperation of the union, every bond drive conducted among employes has gone over the top.

One hundred per cent duplication of the Fathers and Sons club membership rolls for the Dad to GI Joe list is the goal of the present drive. The Fathers and Sons club was organized at the start of the war for Buda employes who have sons in military service, and membership now totals 300. Also numbered among Buda employes are 20 members of service men.

President Joins Club

Among the first to earn membership in the GI Joe club thru bond purchases was J. Stanley Dempesy of Flossmoor, president of the Buda company and father of two service men, one of whom died overseas.

Dempesy's elder son, Maj. Robert C. Dempesy, was killed in July, 1943, while serving as a fighter pilot in Sicily. George H. Dempesy, technician 4th grade, has been in service 27 months, and went overseas in January. He is now with an anti-aircraft unit in Germany.

Sons on Miliary Leave

Many of the sons for whom bonds are being purchased in the Buda campaign are themselves on military leave from the plant. William F. Aschbrenner was a junior electrician for Buda until 18 months ago; now he's an aviation cadet at Sherman, Tex., and his father, William O. Aschbrenner, Harvey, office manager, is buying bonds for him.

Donald Hoper, technician 4th grade, 1138 E. 45th st., left his job at the plant to join an artillery unit. Two weeks after he went overseas last December he was taken prisoner; recently he was liberated from a German camp. His father, L. D. Hooper, is an assistant secretary for the company.

Has Two Sons in Service

Walter Wilson, Harvey, maintenance foreman, has two sons in service. Pvt. Donald Wilson is with an infantry regiment in Italy, and Robert Wilson, aviation machinist's mate 3d class, is in Norfolk, Va. Both sons are former Buda employes.

Another of the plant's service men is Pvt. Theodore Olson, who has been with the air forces in the Aleutians two years. His father, Cambol Olson, is a machine operator.

Sons for whom bonds are purchased will receive V-mail notices of these contributions to their welfare. The Dad to GI Joe bond plan, which originated in a Tribune editorial suggestion, has been adopted by the treasury department as a nation-wide project.

Ship Sinks, but Not Spirits

One Man Club

Louis Antoninic Sr. has helped boost the mighty 7th war loan drive by buying a $100 bond for each of his sons in the service.

HAS OWN CLUB

Louis Antonicic Sr., is the original Dad to GI Joe at the Electro-Motive plant. In the Mighty 7th war loan drive he has bought a $100 bond for each of his three sons in the service and for his son, Joe, who is a fellow employe at the big diesel works at La Grange.

The three GI Joe sons are Sgt. Walter, 33, in the army mail service on Long Island, N. Y.; John, 29, a machinist with the Seabees in Hawaii, and Sgt. Louis Jr., 28, with the army at Camp Gordon, Ga.

Buys During Each Drive

Mr. Antonicic believed in buying bonds for his sons when the bonds first became available and has purchased $100 bonds for his four sons in all seven of the bond drives. He buys a $25 bond each pay day. All his boys have been regular buyers, too.

Born in Austria, in 1882, Antonicic came to America in 1905. He has been with Electro-Motive nine years. The Antonicics reside at 5434 S. Natchez st.

Calls It "A Fine Country"

"I think this is a fine country and I think I have four fine sons," said Mr. Antonicic. "What could be finer than investing in both at the same time?"

Walter Antonicic was a postal clerk in Chicago for six years before joining the army. John was a sheet metal worker at Electro-Motive. Louis, who has been in the army three and a half years, previously was employed by the Chicago Title & Trust Co.

Chinese Christian Pastor to Speak in River Forest

GRIM SOUVENIR OF WAR TURNED INTO CHILD'S TOY

Zero's Crash Aids to Make Fire Engine

John Waugh is back from the war, back to his home in Blue Island and his old job with an insurance company. Where he has been and what he has done in the last 16 months, however, will not be forgotten by his son, Pat, who has a souvenir of his father's navy service which makes him the envy of every other youngster in the neighborhood.

John Waugh

"Bring me home a fire engine, Daddy," was the message 4 year old Pat sent Quartermaster Waugh last year. Aboard an attack transport in the Pacific, the young father was far from any toy shop, and so he began to collect materials for constructing a truck.

Uses Beetlewood Tree

For the truck body, he hacked a piece from a Guadalcanal bettlewood tree already mutilated by a Zero which crashed. He found shatterproof glass for the windshield in the wreckage of another Japanese plane in New Guinea.

Returned to the United States for treatment after he was injured in the explosion of an ammunition ship near the Solomons, Waugh went on leave from the naval hospital in Seattle, Wash., and obtained aluminum alloy from a damaged Super Fortress in an aircraft plant near-by. That solved the problem of wheels for the truck.

Later he discovered that tubing used in blood transfusions was just the right size for the fire hose—and his round-the-world search for construction materials was ended.

Makes Truck in Hospital

From all these grim souvenirs of war, he found time in the convalescent hospital in Sun Valley, Idaho, to create the toy his son had requested. Recently he was released from the hospital a medical discharge in his pocket and new red fire truck under his arm.

Pat's pride in his father's craftsmanship is shared by a brother, John Jr., 6, and his two sisters, Maureen, 2, and Rita, 7. With their parents the four children live at 12853 Greenwood av., Blue Island.

Sgt. A. K. Schlink Reports to West Coast Hospital

Sgt. Albert K. Schlink, 6159 Morgan st., recently reported to the convalescent hospital, Fort Wright, Spokane, Wash., after 28 months in the European theater. He was a mechanic in the 12th air force.

Teaches Swimming

The Will county Red Cross chapter will sponsor a water safety program at Nowell and Chaney pools, Joliet. Swimming instructions and life saving instructions will be given.

Two schools of instruction, sponsored by the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, will be held this week for members on the southwest side. South Central council, district 1, will hold its school at the Englewood Baptist church, 413 Englewood av., today.

Seat District 25 Leaders

Mrs. Frank A. Damm, state president, will install the following officers; Mrs. Albert Roessler, 5618 Sangamon st., president; Mrs. George Baillie, 6815 Calumet av., vice president; Mrs. Keith Harris, 6640 Stewart av., and Mrs. Benjamin Duster, 3839 Prairie av., secretaries; Mrs. E. C. Godwin, 7029 Lowe av., historian, and Mrs. James L. Phelps, 8310 St. Lawrence av., treasurer.

Southwest council, district 25, will hold its school Tuesday at Calvary Methodist church, 7750 Morgan st. Invocation will be offered by the Rev. I. M. Johnson, followed by a resume of the year's work by Mrs. Walter Norden, council president. Study course certificates, cards of recognition, and membership awards will be given.

Install Officers

Officers to be installed by Mrs. Roy A. Hermansen are: Mrs. Walter Norden, president; Mrs. C. B. Haster, vice president; Mrs. J. R. Bedier, secretary, and Mrs. E. J. Hamel, treasurer. Members are asked to bring cookies for patients at Gardiner General hospital. Mrs. L. R. Mullen, civilian service chairman, is in charge of the cookie drive.

Officers will be installed by Cook PTA in the school, 8150 Bishop st., at 7:30 p. m. Friday. Entertainment will be provided by members in a playlet, "Have You Had Your Operation?" Mrs. Bernice Clarke will lead community singing.

CENTRAL WEST PLANS

Round table discussions for PTA officers and chairmen will be included Wednesday in the annual school of instruction sponsored by the Central West council, district 25. Mrs. Charles Schneider, 722 W. 66th pl., will preside at the meeting in Thoburn Methodist church, 1708 W. 64th st.

The meeting will be the last of the year. Officers will be installed by Mrs. E. B. Sisson, state treasurer. The program will include a playlet and music by the Eberhart Mothers' chorus.

Calumet—Officers of Calumet High school PTA will be installed Thursday at the annual spring luncheon. Mrs. W. C. Kumpfer, 1347 Garfield blvd., past president, will conduct the ceremony. Music will be provided by Mrs. Wilbur Wahls, 9831 Winchester av., vocal soloist, and the Hamilton Park radio rhythm band, conducted by Mrs. Bess Ledford.

Midlothian—Mrs. C. Emil Woodstrup is the new president of the Midlothian schools PTA. Other officers are Mrs. Bruce Windhust and Mrs. Edward Pettijohn, vice presidents; Mrs. Louis Buchanan, secretary, and Carlton W. Smith, treasurer.

Peck—Mrs. Sydney Rosenberg will be hostess to members of the Peck PTA Tuesday in her home, 6057 Komensky av. New officers who will be installed June 20 are Miss Marie Martin, principal, honorary president; Mrs. W. H. Porm, president; Mrs. L. E. Petersen and Miss Catherine Burke, vice presidents; Mrs. J. R. Stair and Mrs. Steven Leshyn, secretaries, and Mrs. Sydney Rosenberg, treasurer.

Gage Park—A variety show in which students will participate will be presented at 7:30 p. m. Friday by Gage Park High school PTA in the school auditorium, 56th and Rockwell sts.

LT. JOSEPH M. BOYLE COMES HOME AFTER 16 MONTHS IN PACIFIC

Disregarding the army tradition set by his three brothers, Joseph M. Boyle chose to spend his service career on the seas. Now a lieutenant junior grade and gunnery officer on an LST, he has found enough adventure in navy life to hold his own in any post-war bull sessions with the soldier trio.

Lt. J. M. Boyle

On leave after 16 months of action in the Pacific, Lt. Boyle is visiting his wife at 8045 Vernon av. He participated in the invasions of the Marshalls, Hollandia, New Guinea, Saipan, Guam, Peleliu, and Luzon.

All three of his brothers are in the European theater. Staff Sgt. George P. Boyle has been overseas one and a half years, and Technical Sgt. James W. Boyle, a bronze star winner, has been a flight chief with a fighter group in England for two years. The third brother, Capt. Edward T. Boyle, formerly an assistant at the St. Andrew Catholic church, 3546 N. Paulina st., is chaplain with an infantry division in Germany.

Mother's Club

The Mothers club of St. Thomas the Apostle school, 5467 Woodlawn av., will hold a party at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the school cafeteria. Mrs. M. E. Boyle and Mrs. Joseph Condo are chairmen.

CITY'S SUMMER SCHOOL CLASSES TO OPEN JUNE 25

Announce Buildings to Be Used and Fees

Summer school courses have been announced for city grade and high schools and for junior colleges in all districts from June 25 to Aug. 17.

They have been recommended by the school board for three types of student: those who wish to complete their studies in less than regular time, those who failed a subject and wish to retain their regular place by repeating the course, and those who because of illness have been retarded one or more semesters.

Will Cover Full Semester

Summer classes for the grade schools will be open only to pupils in grades 5th to 8th. Tuition fee will be $10 and one semester's work will be completed in the eight weeks. Classes will be held from 8 a. m. to 1 p. m. daily, with registration on the first class day.

Students in elementary schools will be notified which one of the six summer school centers they will be permitted to attend. These schools will conduct classes on the south side: Beale, 6043 Sangamon st.; Burke, 5356 South Park way; Douglas, 3200 Calumet av.; Koziminski, 936 E. 54th st.; Sheridan, 9035 Escanaba av., and Van Vlissingen, 137 W. 108th pl.

Will Open Six High Schools

High school courses will be offered at six south side schools: Du Sable, 4934 Wabash av.; Englewood, 6201 Stewart av.; Hirsch, 7740 Ingleside; Lindblom, 6130 S. Wolcott av.; Morgan Park, 1744 Pryor av., and Tilden, 4747 Union av. Students soon will be notified at which school they should register on June 25. Tuition fees will be $12 for the first major, $8 for the second major, and $6 for each minor. Each subject offered gives regular semester subject credit.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, June 4

This is the month when crab grass infests some lawns and every effort should be made to get rid of it or control it. It can be done by raking with a steel toothed rake and mowing to cut off the heads. It is best to rake the infested areas over several times now, destroying the clipping later. Small areas can be cleared by digging by hand.

Tuesday, June 5

In areas where the Mexican bean beetle is prevalent spray or dust the plants with magnesium arsenate as soon as the plants have made some growth. It may be necessary to repeat the applications four or more times at intervals of 10 days.

Rotenone dust is effective and may be applied thru a cheesecloth, but have the dust reach the under side of the leaves. Arsenate should not be used after the pods are half grown, for it is highly poisonous to humans. This applies to all crops.

Wednesday, June 6

Trim or prune privet hedges again this month, altho it is necessary to do so several times to insure a close and shapely hedge. The most effective barrier that can be obtained from hedges is when they grow thickly from the base and are kept in good form.

Thursday, June 7

Mulch the ground among rhododendrons, azaleas, and kalmia or mountain laurel with leaf mold. Peat moss may be obtained in bales and may be more abundant than leaf mold. Grass clippings also may be found useful for the same purpose. Tender water lilies still can be planted. Sow some of the double portulaca in the sunny rock garden or along the narrow strip between the cement driveway and the house or wherever a small area can be utilized.

Friday, June 8

If it is desired to dig tulip bulbs, wait until the leaves have turned yellow signifying that the bulbs have ripened or entered their resting period. Keep in a dry, airy place until fall, then replant.

Tuberous begonias can be planted in a shady place. The highly colored, fancy leaved caladiums also can occupy a shady place or be used in a north window box. House plants should be occupying an outdoor, shady place. Plunge the pots to the rim. They must be watered every day. Some plant food applied at least once a month is desirable.

Saturday, June 9

Softwood cuttings of many kinds of plants may be made now which enable the gardener to increase his supply of desirable plants. Herbaceous perennials like the delphinium, phlox, chrysanthemum, Sweet William, creeping phlox, iberis, arabis, may be made after flowering.

103 MUNDELEIN SENIORS INCLUDE 8 OF S. W. SIDE

Eight southwest side women are among the 103 Mundelein college seniors who will receive degrees tomorrow from Archbishop Stritch in the college theater, 6363 Sheridan rd.

They are: Madeline Stuehler, 7916 Sangamon st.; Celia Kilgariff, 7340 Sangamon st.; Virginia Kienzle, 7921 Wolcott av.; Mary Catherine Fitzpatrick, 508 W. 44th st.; Virginia Boots, 4103 S. Ashland av.; Dorothy Clark, 8801 Bishop st.; Irene O'Flaherty, 3926 62d st.; and Dolores Corrigan, 6742 Normal av.

The Very Rev. James Hussey, S. J., acting president of Loyola university, will give the invocation, and the Rev. William Magee, S. J., assisted by Dr. Miriam L. Rooney, will present the candidates for degrees. G. Michael Schmeing will preside as marshal.

South Side Moose Women Will Hold Chapter Night

Chapter night will be held by South side chapter, Women of Moose, June 11 in Moose hall, 426 W. 63d st. Sarah Dahl, past parliamentarian of the Chicago Heights Academy of Friendship, will be a guest.

ENGINEER GETS 2D CLUSTER TO THE AIR MEDAL

Sgt. Vernon L. Bonzell, 11021 Wentworth av., recently was awarded a second oak leaf cluster to the air medal for meritorious achievement while participating in aerial flights in the European theater of operations. As an aerial engineer on a C-47, Bonzell was part of a group that supplied allied armies and evacuated wounded. Overseas 20 months with the 1st allied air borne army, Sgt. Bonzell wears battle stars for Normandy, northern France, Rome-Arno, and Germany.

Music Pupils Give $800 to Philippine War Relief

Philippine War Relief, a beneficiary of the Community and War Fund of Chicago, was the recipient recently of $800, the proceeds of a musical given by pupils of Mrs. Augusta Siroky, 5036 S. Damen av. The program was presented in honor of Mrs. Siroky's 35 years as a teacher. The money will be used to buy food, clothing, and medicine for the Philippine people.

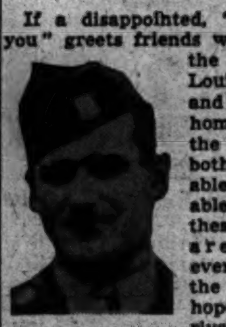
WAIT TELEPHONE CALLS OF SONS RECENTLY FREED

3 Joyful Families Expect Reunions



Pvt. Finn

If a disappointed, "O, it's only you" greets friends who telephone the Joseph Pacer, Louis Chatman, and John Finn homes these days, the response is both understandable and forgivable. In each of these southwest area homes, every ringing of the phone renews hope of the arrival of a son liberated from a German camp.

The call eagerly awaited by Mr. and Mrs. Pacer, who live at 3259 64th pl., is from their son, Corp. Gene Pacer, 33. Altho no word has come directly from Corp. Pacer, the American Red Cross recently notified his parents that he had been liberated and was in good health.

Caught by Foe in 1943

Overseas since October, 1942, Corp. Pacer was taken prisoner in February, 1943, while he was serving with an anti-aircraft unit in Tunisia.

The release of Pvt. Carl Chatman, 23, is literally "a dream come true" for his mother, Mrs. Louis Chatman, 6445 Green st. One night she dreamed of walking down a street and meeting her son coming from a German camp. Four days later she received a letter from an army chaplain, telling of Pvt. Chatman's liberation, and assuring her that he was well and in good spirits.

Since then Pvt. Chatman has written that he and his buddies "are being fattended up for the trip home." He hopes to be in America in a few weeks.

Captured in France

A graduate of Lindblom High school in 1937, he entered the army in July, 1942, and went overseas a year later. He was an infantry man in the 3d army when he was captured in France Nov. 9, 1944.

Altho joyful at the return of Pvt. John O. Finn, 24, from Germany, Mr. and Mrs. John Finn, 5638 S. Ashland av., are waiting to have a real celebration when both their prisoner sons are home. No word has come from Sgt. William Finn, 22, but V-E day brought hope that he will be here soon. He was taken prisoner more than five months ago.

Flees Nazi Prison March

The elder son, John, was captured near Luxemburg at almost the same time, but escaped when American troops neared Halle, where he was held. With five British service men and another American soldier he walked calmly out of a column of prisoners being moved ahead of the approaching Yanks and went to meet the 2d ranger division.

"The German guards didn't even try to stop us," he relates. "They knew our boys would be there right away and that it was all over for Germany."

Pvt. Finn is now spending a 60 day furlough with his parents.

Little Flower Sanctuary Group to Meet Tomorrow

Members of Little Flower Sanctuary society will witness a salad demonstration tomorrow night in the school hall, 80th and Honore sts. They will receive communion this morning at the 8 o'clock mass. The Rev. Timothy A. Sullivan is spiritual director of the group and Mrs. Marion Adlam is president.

Fund for Englewood Y Building Totals $96,000

Over $96,000 has been collected by 125 volunteers in the Englewood Y. M. C. A. building fund drive. Raymond Blunt, general chairman, said he hopes to reach the $104,000 quota by tomorrow. Workers in Auburn Park and west communities have raised $40,000.

Lieutenant's Bride

MRS. PAUL FISHER

Mrs. Paul Fisher Jr., pharmacist's mate 3d class in the coast guard's women's reserve, was Miss Mary Lou Pulliam before her marriage to Lt. Fisher of the army air forces. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Luther Pulliam, 5833 Trumbull av., she is a graduate of Columbia university college of pharmacy. Lt. Fisher, who recently returned from the European theater, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fisher of New York City and a former student of Cornell university.

WOMEN SOUGHT AS NURSES' AIDS FOR HOSPITALS

Women between the ages of 18 and 50 who have had a high school education are urged to apply for daytime service as nurses' aids in five southwest side hospitals where a help shortage exists. Only 15 aids are serving Holy Cross, Ingalls Memorial, Roseland, St. James, and St. Anthony's hospitals, the Red Cross stated. Two are needed for every one now on duty.

The five hospitals listed their quotas conservatively, requesting only the minimum number of aids required to give hospitalized patients the care essential for their well being, Red Cross officials said.

An accelerated training course will be offered during June and July for volunteers. Applications and further information may be obtained Monday thru Friday, 9 to 5 p. m. at 529 S. Wabash av.

CAPT. F. G. SHEA GIVEN FRANCE'S CROIX DE GUERRE

Capt. F. G. Shea

Capt. Frank G. Shea, 24 years old, who has been piloting a B-24 over the European battlefronts for the last two years, has received the croix de guerre from France, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Shea, 5441 May st., recently learned.

He attended Quigley preparatory school and De Paul university before his enlistment in 1941. Capt. Shea also has the distinguished flying cross, the air medal with six oak leaf clusters, the bronze star, and a Presidential citation.

He is engaged now in evacuating British and American prisoners of war. His brother, Sgt. Jack Shea, serving with an artillery battalion in the same theater of operations, reported meeting Frank recently.

ROGER 5, SUGAR 5, THAT'S GI TALK FOR RADIO'S FINE

BY LARRY WOLTERS

A few weeks ago a terse note from a marine sergeant of the 5th division on Iwo Jima reached the Armed Forces Radio service in Hollywood. It said: "We received your Roger five Sugar five. Your programs are enjoyed by all hands. We connected the transmitter of our gun sections with the receiver of the set in order that we might hear your broadcasts during lulls in firing."

Col. Thomas Lewis

Col. Thomas H. A. Lewis, chief of the A. F. R. S., visiting Chicago last week, explained that, reduced to ordinary language, the sergeant's short wave talk—Roger for clearness, Sugar for signal strength—meant that A. F R. S. short wave reception from San Francisco was perfect.

Jet Propulsion for Troops

Similar messages are received from hundreds of A. F. R. S. installations all around the world from Okinawa to the occupied portions of Germany and the steaming atolls of the Central Pacific, because it brings our fighting forces overseas the best shows from home [minus commercials] and specially produced shows for overseas and news. Our 22 short wave transmitters at home beam nearly 4,300 hours of programs monthly to the troops abroad. These short wave programs are either picked up direct on short wave receivers or they are rebroadcast at many points overseas by long wave transmitters. Col. Lewis calls short wave the jet propulsion machine for news from home.

And each week transcription units averaging 126 separate radio programs, a total of 51 hours of entertainment from home, are flown to the A. F. R. S. outlets the world around by the air transport command and the naval air transport service.

They Go to Ships, Too

All A. F. R S. transcriptions are stamped on flexible and unbreakable discs, resistant to heat and cold. Approximately 38,500 are flown to stations each month. And some 33,000 each week are distributed to ships for playing on loud speaker systems.

The special programs include such overseas favorites as Command Performance, which recently featured an all-star adaptation of the Chicago Tribune comic, Dick Tracy; G. I. Jive, with Jill, the service men's favorite feminine entertainer; Mail Call, Your Home Town, Hymns from Home, Jubilee, Show Time, and At Ease.

Col. Lewis calls this radio system our second technique for achieving "Victory Thru Air Power." He ranks radio news and entertainment from home next to letters from home as morale builders.

Col. Lewis told how various "regional" A. F. R. S. networks have been developed in the Pacific regions. In the Solomons and New Caledonia the "Mosquito" network of A. F. R. S. stations functions. In the Southwest Pacific the "Jungle Network" stretches from Milne bay on New Guinea to Manila. A "Sarong" network is in process of formation.

On these and other groups of stations many soldier and sailor stars have been developed. And they have created many programs of their own. In New Caledonia they even broadcast their own "world series."

New stations are being developed for the American occupation forces in Germany.

Why are these far flung American radio stations operating? Because they maintain the welfare of our fighting forces, they combat the lies of the enemy, and they bring troops touches of home which will ease their transition back into civilian life.

Dolores Gray will sing with Wayne King's orchestra on the new show to be introduced over WMAQ-NBC at 6 p. m. today.

FINAL CITIZENS HOUR IS SLATED FOR SATURDAY

The final broadcast of the Citizens of Tomorrow program's sixth season will be recorded next Wednesday in W-G-N's main audience studio for broadcast at 10 a. m. next Saturday. More than 100 high school students will attend. A feature of the program will be the "Parade of Ambitions" in which students who have been named during the season to the program's roll of honor tell of their hopes for the future.

Joe Konitzki, a senior at Elgin High school, will sing "I Got Plenty of Nothin'" from Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess." Philip Maxwell will be the conductor.

All the honor roll students will be guests of the Chicago Association of Commerce at a luncheon Wednesday. Later they will tour Tribune Tower and be guests of THE TRIBUNE at a dinner at the Sherman hotel.

GRIEG MEDLEY TO BE AIRED ON THEATER OF AIR

In memory of Edward Grieg's birthday which falls on June 15, the Chicago Theater of the Air will include a medley of Grieg's more familiar work next Saturday. The program will be broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB and the coast-to-coast Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. "Solveg's Song" will be sung by Marion Claire and the chorus. The opening number of the medley, "Excerpt from String Quartet" will be played by the orchestra and the entire ensemble will be represented in the final number, "Triumphal March from 'Sigurd Jorsalfar.'"

Henry Weber will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus.

1944-45 Theater Season Quantity High, Quality Low

'Turtle' Hangs Up the Year's Long Run Mark

By Claudia Cassidy

It's better to put on rcse colored glasses when you start to check up on the Chicago theater season of 1944-'45. Otherwise, its pinched pallor is pretty sad to contemplate. Considering the limited number of theaters in operation—the Blackstone, Civic, Civic Opera House, Erlanger, Harris, Selwyn, Great Northern, and Studebaker—the quantity was not to be scorned. But the quality—now there's quite another story.

For the statistical file, we had 304 weeks of playgoing with 46 productions of which 24 were plays and 22 were musicals. This compares with 306 weeks in 1943-'44 for 23 plays and nine musicals, and, if you care to delve farther back, to 235 weeks in 1942-'43, 195 weeks in 1941-'42, and 178 weeks in 1940-41. Of our 24 plays this past season, 15 classified as new, five as return engagements or revivals, and four were held over from the previous season. Of the 22 musicals, six were new, 13 were return engagements or revivals, and three were held over.

The long run record for this season belongs to "The Voice of the Turtle," which has completed 35 weeks at the Selwyn and shows no sign of pausing for breath. "Kiss and Tell" added 33 weeks to its previous season record for a total of 89, and "Oklahoma!" added 31 for the Erlanger's booming 60. That meant virtual capacity—I believe half a dozen ticke's went unsold on bad nights when every one thought they were cleared out—and the musical could have lingered indefinitely had not the Theater guild yanked it out to placate outraged subscribers in other cities.

The Harris, which hit the jackpot last year with a solid 52 weeks of "Kiss and Tell," hung up 51 this season. It had 14 weeks of that same "Kiss and Tell," eight of Ruth Gordon's lively "Over 21," 23 of "Ten Little Indians," and, so far, six of "Dear Ruth." The Selwyn and Erlanger tied for second place with 49 weeks each. The Selwyn had one holdover week of "Rebecca," two of "Let's Face It" [the Danny Kaye show that didn't click with Benny Rubin], 11 of "Ramshackle Inn," and 35, so far, of the "Turtle." The Erlanger had 31 holdover weeks of "Oklahoma!", six of "Harriet," three of "The Searching Wind," two of the down at heel "Rosalinda," six of "Othello," and one, so far, of "Life With Father."

The Blackstone rang up 37. It had four weeks of Katherine Dunham's "Tropical Revue," five of Gloria Swanson's "A Goose for the Gander," three each for the bawdy "Early to Bed," the disappointing version of "The Cherry Orchard," and "The Student Prince," seven of the turkey version of "Star and Garter," eight of "Chicken Every Sunday," and four of "Jacobowsky and the Colonel." The Studebaker's 36 weeks included 19 of "Kiss and Tell," two each of a return visit of the slightly revised "Tropical Revue," a revived "Connecticut Yankee," an ill advised revival of "Personal Appearance" for Gladys George, and a fortnight of "Ten Little Indians" at the tag end of its run, plus five for a return of "Over 21" and four for the dull excursion into the sewer known as Mae West's "Catherine Was Great."

The Civic Opera house, stagestruck by the possibility of huge grosses, achieved 32 weeks of theater. By far the most successful of its numerous productions was the army air corps' "Winged Victory," a big show that could hold its own in the vast reaches of a house holding almost 4,000. In five weeks it took in more than $240,000 for army emergency relief. "One Touch of Venus" did well enough at the box office for four weeks, but the show was lost and Mary Martin was devastated. Two engagements of "The Merry Widow" ran up 10 weeks, "Blossom Time" clung for three, and there were two weeks each for "Rose Marie," "The New Moon," "Wildflower," and "Mme. Du Barry." "Porgy and Bess" had a limping week in poor production, and "Countess Maritza" has played one week.

The little Civic theater accounted for 27 weeks, 13 of them for the season's chief delight, "The Glass Menagerie." Otherwise, the fare was disastrous—eight weeks of "School for Brides," two for a revival of "That's a Laff," four for "Sleep No More." The rehabilitated Great Northern had 19 weeks, five a holdover of "Uncle Harry," two each for "It's High Time," "Wallflower," and a return of "The Waltz King," which had been a flop the first visit. The lowest ebb of the season was the vulgar "Two in a Bed," which ran four weeks, and one of the biggest personal hits of the season was Burl Ives' singing in "Sing Out, Sweet Land!", which could have stayed longer, but was jerked by the Guild after another four weeks.

Because I don't know quite what else to do with it, I include the Coliseum's "Alaskan Stampede" in this tabulation, tho the truest description yet written of that colossal flop was turkey on ice. Not tabulated, because they are specialized, are eight weeks of Yiddish theater, including Jacob Ben-Ami's "Miracle of the Warsaw Ghetto," "The Little Queen," "Shulamith," "A Song of New Russia," "Good News," and "Nathan Takes a Wife."

Naturally, the most notable event of the season was the opening here of "The Glass Menagerie," which went on to national acclaim and the New York critics' prize. My awards of admiration go to Eddie Dowling, for seeing what could be done with Tennessee Williams' sensitive play, and doing it; to Laurette Taylor for the most radiant performance in seasons; to Anthony Ross, for the outstanding supporting performance of the year as the Gentleman Caller; to Julie Haydon for achieving delicate distinction after a bad start; to Jo Mielziner for his clairvoyant understanding of the magic that can lurk in drabness tenderly touched; to Mr. Williams for his faith in theater and those who love it.

My thanks, too, to "The Voice of the Turtle" for being as deft a job as the commercial theater can hope to wangle, to John Van Druten for writing and directing it and, with Alfred de Liagre Jr., for keeping it fresh. A bow to the cast, notably Hugh Marlowe, for making our company second only in the date of opening. Another bow to Oscar Serlin for cherishing "Life With Father" so you can't regret a rosy word you ever said about it. A posy to Burl Ives, the sweetest of singers. And a deep, sweeping curtsey in full court regalia to Louis Calhern, whose playing in "Jacobowsky and the Colonel" is theater in the grand style.

DUEL CLIMAX TO A FEUD

Pistols, but no coffee, as the Oscar Karlweis-Louis Calhern feud approaches its climax in the Blackstone's "Jacobowsky and the Colonel." The comedy ends its engagement Saturday night

Drama Notes

To last week's apparently inadequate list of remaining little theaters in Chicago add without delay the Lake Shore Players, who hold forth at 1531 N. Clark st. and seem to put on three plays a year for week-end performances. "We were insulted, really insulted," writes their secretary, Ethel du Pont, "by not being included in your list. We have been in existence for years and shall be in existence ages from now."

The Theater Guild has placed in trust with the Dramatists' Guild a fund of $2,500 to be awarded to playwrights returning from service, probably in grants of $500 each. This step was taken when the board in charge of the Guild's 25th anniversary awards came to the conclusion that no entry justified an award, and decided that the reason must be that most of the promising young writers are now in uniform.

Artists Named for Chicago Opera Co. Season Opening Oct. 8

THE Chicago Opera company, again under the direction of Fausto Cleva, opens its 1945 season of six weeks at the Civic Opera house Monday evening, Oct. 8, with Massenet's "Manon," sung by Bidu Sayao, Armand Tokatyan, John Brownlee, and Nicola Moscona. Mr. Cleva conducts. The 30 performances of the extended season will offer 16 operas, one of which is not yet named, and seven of which are revivals. Most of the artists have been signed, but a few strays are still being sought, and the name of the chosen ballet will be announced next week. Performances again will be given each Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday night and Saturday afternoon, and prices are the same as last year's—that is, $1.80 to $6 for all except the Friday night operas sponsored by the board of education, which cost from $1.20 to $4.50. All prices include tax.

In addition to "Manon," not heard here since it was staged for Helen Jepson and Richard Crooks in 1942, the revivals include Rossini's "The Barber of Seville," Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," Wagner's "Parsifal," Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci," and Verdi's "La Forza del Destino." Operas repeated from last season include Bizet's "Carmen," Verdi's "La Traviata," "Rigoletto," "Aida," and "Il Trovatore," Gounod's "Faust," Puccini's "Tosca," and Debussy's "Pelléas and Mélisande." Sorry, no "Rosenkavalier." The town is hexed.

These are the artists signed so far:

Sopranos—Josephine Antoine, Elvira Helal [new], Inge Manski, Jeanette MacDonald, Zinka Milanov, Jarmila Novotna, Bidu Sayao.

Mezzo-Sopranos—Bruna Castagna, Doris Doe, Rosalind Nadell [new], Gladys Swarthout, Kerstin Thorborg.

Tenors—Kurt Baum, Mario Berini, Emery Darcy, Frederick Jagel, John Brooks McCormack [new], Nino Martini, Lodovico Oliviero, Alessio de Paolis, Armand Tokatyan.

Baritones—Richard Bonelli, John Brownlee, Wilfred Engelman, Martial Singher, Louis Sudler [new], Alexander Sved, Lawrence Tibbett, Leonard Warren.

Basses—Virgilio Lazzari, Emanuel List, Nicola Moscona, Gerhard Pechner, Ezio Pinza, Ralph Telasko.

Conductors—Fausto Cleva, Eugene Goossens, George Szell, Bruno Walter. One more will be added.

Assistant Conductors—Alexander Aster, Leo Muller, Wolfgang Martin.

Chorus Master—Konrad Neuger.

Stage Director—Lothar Wallerstein. At least one more will be added.

Among the newcomers, Mr. Sudler is best known to Chicago, as he lives here and recently made a successful concert début as soloist with the Chicago Mendelssohn club. He will sing Silvio in "Pagliacci" for his bow into opera. Mr. McCormack is a tenor of opera, oratorio, and radio who will sing the Duke of Mantua to Mr. Tibbett's Rigoletto. Miss Helal is a lyric soprano due as Micaela to Miss Swarthout's Carmen, and Miss Nadell is a young mezzo-soprano listed for several secondary roles.

Gladys Swarthout — Fausto Cleva — Laurence Tibbett — Bidu Sayao

Mr. Walter will conduct "The Marriage of Figaro" and "La Forza del Destino." The Mozart cast probably will include Pinza, Sayao, Novotna, and Brownlee, and "Forza" will be sung by Milanov, Baum, probably Pinza, and definitely Telasko. Mr. Telasko sang Zuniga for us last season when Mark Love fell ill. Mr. Cleva liked him and sent him to Mr. Walter, who gave him the role of the buffo monk, Melitone. For the Verdi opera Mr. Walter will have an additional chorus of 35 voices, prepared by Harry T. Carlson, conductor of the Swedish Choral club. This chorus also will be used in "Parsifal," to be conducted by Mr. Szell, with Darcy in the title role, Thorborg as Kundry, Singher as Amfortas, and List as Gurnemanz. Because Mr. Cleva prefers the way he used to blend voices when he was chorus master at the Metropolitan, the "Parsifal" choir will use about 12 boys' voices and the rest contraltos—to get away from what he calls "that white tone."

Mr. Goossens again will conduct "Pelléas and Mélisande," which he revived for us last season, and the cast again includes Sayao, Doe, Singher, Tibbett, and List. Miss MacDonald will sing Marguerite in "Faust," Miss Antoine is due for Rosina in "The Barber," and Miss Milanov will be a new "Tosca," with Tokatyan and Sved.

The complete list of the season's operas, with dates, soon will be released when the subscription drive begins. The class B or apprentice chorus begins rehearsal June 18 and will join the class A or professional chorus eight weeks before the opening of the season. Mr. Cleva regrets the loss of several orchestra members, notably his prized first horn player, now in the South Pacific. But he is getting together the best men available, and will augment the regular orchestra by 15 men for "Parsifal." Both orchestra and singers will be on their own, as he has turned thumbs down on that phony system of amplification.

In addition to the Chicago season, the company plays three Milwaukee performances, again under the wing of Margaret Rice. They are "Manon," Oct. 30, with the same cast that opens the season here; "The Marriage of Figaro," Nov. 13, with Pinza, Brownlee, and Novotna, Walter conducting, and "Rigoletto," Nov. 18, with Tibbett.

Miss Sayao's Manon, her first in Chicago, continues a tradition that started here in 1886, but for all practical purposes began with our resident opera in 1914. The cast held Garden, Muratore, Dufranne, and Huberdeau.

Meanwhile, apologies to Erich Leinsdorf, second of our interrupted sketches of Ravinia conductors. This business of news is always feast or famine. Better luck next week.

40 Programs to Be Given Under Stars

By Albert Goldberg

Devotees of free outdoor music with a great moon overhead, gentle [sometimes] zephyrs off the lake to cool the fevered brow, the classic pile of the Chicago Natural History museum in the background and Chicago's inspiring sky line framed against the summer sunset—in short, Grant park concerts—again may revel in their favorite amusement this summer. Robert J. Dunham, president of the Chicago park district, which now defrays all expenses of the concerts, announces that there again will be music on the lake front nightly except Monday and Tuesdays for a total of 40 concerts, beginning Wednesday, June 27, and extending thru Sunday, Aug. 19.

Wednesday, Friday, and Sunday nights will be devoted to symphonic music, with a single organization, the Grant Park Symphony orchestra, functioning thruout the season. Nicolai Malko has been appointed regular conductor of the new orchestra and will conduct during the first four weeks and the final week of the series. Walter Larsen, managing director of the concerts, has assembled the personnel of the orchestra from members of leading symphony orchestras of the country. Its concertmaster will be Fritz Siegal, who has functioned in that capacity with the Illinois, Seattle, San Diego, Indianapolis, and CBS orchestras, and with him on the first stand will be Herman Clebanoff, concertmaster of the New Orleans Symphony orchestra. From the last mentioned organization also will come the first cellist of the new orchestra, Margaret Cree Evans. Sheppard Lehnhoff, formerly of the Chicago Symphony, will officiate as first viola, and two other members of the Orchestra hall group will occupy first chair positions, Jerry Stowell, clarinet, and Reinhold Schilke, trumpet. Phillip Farkas, former first horn of the Chicago and Cleveland orchestras, reported to be engaged by the Boston Symphony for next season, will play solo horn.

Five guest conductors will relieve Mr. Malko during the season. Izler Solomon, now conductor of the Columbus Philharmonic, will make his first appearances here since the demise of the Illinois Symphony, on Aug. 1, 3, and 5. Hans Schwieger, a young conductor whose work with the Fort Wayne Philharmonic has attracted the attention of musicians, will conduct on July 25, and Robert Stolz, composer of "Two Hearts in Three-Quarter Time," will direct two concerts of Viennese music on July 27 and 29. Ignace Strasfogel, assistant conductor of the New York Philharmonic, comes with the personal recommendation of Artur Rodzinski to conduct on Aug. 8 and 10. Paul Breisach of the Metropolitan Opera will complete the list of guest conductors with a program of opera music on Aug. 12.

Saturday night programs at Grant park will be given by Cavallo's Symphonic band of 60 pieces, directed by P. A. Cavallo. Thursday nights will be devoted to service musical organizations, with United States navy talent from Great Lakes Naval Training station providing programs during the first four weeks and army musicians from the 6th service command during the last half of the season.

Soloists will appear on all programs. Prominent artists include Patricia Travers, violinist, June 27; Percy Grainger, pianist, June 29 and July 1; Vivian Della Chiesa, soprano, July 4; Regina Resnik, soprano, July 6 and Aug. 12; William Miller, tenor, July 7; Fritz Siegal, violinist, July 8; Selma Kaye, soprano, July 11; Eleanor Steber, soprano, July 13; Margery Mayer, contralto, July 14; Tossy Spivakovsky, violinist, July 18; Donald Dickson, baritone, July 20; Charles Sears, tenor, July 21; Joseph Schuster, cellist, July 25; Hertha Glaz, contralto, and Michael Bartlett, tenor, July 27 and 29; Virginia Haskins, soprano, July 28; Suzanne Sten, mezzo-soprano, Aug. 1; Richard Tucker, tenor, Aug. 3; Joanne Jennings, soprano, Aug. 4; Hugh Thompson, baritone, Aug. 8; Zadel Skolovsky, pianist, Aug. 10; Attilio Baggiore, tenor, Aug. 11; Thomas Hayward, tenor, Aug. 12; Todd Duncan, baritone, Aug. 15; Virginia Parker, soprano, Aug. 18.

The remainder of the soloists will be young Chicago artists chosen by a series of auditions. These will appear, with the exception of Saul Dorfman, pianist, on Aug. 17, in pairs on the Sunday evening programs. The list includes Winifred M. Heckman, contralto, July 8; Lydia Smutny, pianist, and La Julia Rhea, soprano, July 15; Beatrice Eppinelle, pianist, and Louis Weber, soprano, July 22; Andre Aerne, boy soprano, and Sidney Weiss, violinist, Aug. 5; Dorothy Staiger, soprano, and Carol Smith, contralto, Aug. 19.

The American Opera company lists three performances at Kimball hall this week. "Il Trovatore" will be sung this afternoon at 3 by Rosaltha Hale, Mildred Staley, Harold Willer, and Michael Lester. "Faust" is the bill tonight at 8, with Eleanor Schutz, Mildred Staley, Lola Gilbert, William Zane, Roberto Girardi, and Harold Willer. "Martha" will be sung in English on Thursday at 8, by Josephine Fairchild, Alyce McCarthy, Michael Tester, Gerard Finnerman, and Harold Willer.

VIOLINIST

Patricia Travers, 17 year old violinist, who will be soloist with the Grant Park Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Nicolai Malko when the season of free concerts open Wednesday evening, June 27.

June Heralds Advent of Top Flight Cafe Revues

Wayne King Returns to Beach Walk

By Will Davidson

This month of June sees not only the advent of summer but the arrival of a lot of very high priority cafe shows.

Wayne King [Seymour Photo]

Carl Brisson started it off last Friday with his bouncing return to the Mayfair room of the Blackstone hotel. And last night Wayne King made the big news of the month by taking up the baton once more at a place where he gained much of his fame—the Edgewater Beach hotel. Word of the exact date of his return came too late to be included in last Sunday's advance announcements. Weather permitting he is now ensconced on the beautiful beach walk, and I think you are going to like the big band, the vocalists, and everything about Wayne's new organization. Emil Vandas, who has been leading the Beach orchestra for so many months, remains as Wayne's concertmaster.

Next big night on the program is Friday, when Emile Petti brings his enlarged orchestra to the Bismarck hotel's Walnut room, and Les Brown moves into the Sherman. Then a week later, on the 15th, Dorothy Dorben unveils her second revue in the Stevens hotel's Boulevard room. Frankie Masters and his band head the list, with a show cast that includes Frank Cook, harmonicist; Copsey and Ayres [I always want to call them Copsey and Eva] the dance team, and Rene and Russell, trampoline stars. Master Masters' singers include Phyllis Miles and a girl quartet, Marty, Pat, Kay, and Jo.

Joan Merrill finally makes her return appearance at the Rio Cabana on June 22, the same night that Vaughn Monroe takes over the College Inn bandstand in the Hotel Sherman. And on June 28 the Palmer House introduces its all time top priced show, starring Patsy Kelly, Barry Wood, Eddie Peabody, and Eddie Oliver's orchestra.

If you want to look ahead into July, there is Harry Cool's much anticipated arrival at the Blackhawk on the 11th.

Boswelling the Bistros!

Two great cafe shows have been inked in for a return date. The Palmer House, intensely happy with the results achieved by Henny Youngman, George Olsen, Lathrop and Lee, and Sheila Vogelle, is planning to bring them all back in the not too distant future. The 51 Hundred club has contracts with Jan Murray and Viola Layne for future engagements. These two young stars proved finds for the 51 Hundred. . . . . Earle Smith, the talented piano star playing at the Knickerbocker hotel, is now featured in a new radio show.

Joannell, the singer, comes back to the Buttery in the Ambassador West hotel on June 19 for a return engagement.

Dance pupils of Melba Cortes—many of whom have graduated into the lines of better cafes and supper clubs—will give a recital in the Eighth Street theater next Sunday afternoon, June 10, at 2:30 p. m. Miss Cortes is a former Merriel Abbott dancer and recently took over management of Miss Abbott's dance studio.

The Chez Paree is tickled pink with Sophie Tucker's drawing power, so much so it isn't worrying too much about that August moving date. . . . . Charlie Wright's orchestra, with Dawn Roland as its delightful thrush, is continuing a swell job in the Bellerive hotel, Kansas City. You remember them from the Camellia House.

IN 'TURTLE'

Hugh Marlowe, who recently signed a contract to stick with "The Voice of the Turtle" for another year, which means thru its long run at the Selwyn and then west to Hollywood.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Next season will witness at least eight changes in the personnel of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Three veteran members of the orchestra will be retired on pension: Franz Esser, viola; Hjalmar Rabe, bassoon, and Orville Barker, violin. Two members of the violin section, David Moll of the firsts and Leon Brenner of the seconds, have resigned to accept radio positions. Leonard Schaller, bass clarinet, will go to the New York Philharmonic. Sheppard Lehnhoff has been engaged by the National Symphony orchestra of Washington, D. C., as first viola. George Soeller has resigned as assistant first flute and will be replaced by Peggy Hardin, a Northwestern university graduate, pupil of Ernest Liegl and David Van Vactor, who has played second flute with the Kansas City Symphony for the last two seasons.

The two new members of the viola section will be Samuel Feinzimer and Isadore Zwerov, both former first violists of the Illinois Symphony orchestra. Feinzimer has more recently been a member of the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, and Zwerov played six seasons with the Kansas City Symphony.

The Jewish Peoples Choral society will present the oratorio "Moshiach Ben Yosef," text by B. Shteinman, music by Joseph Schaefer, at its 31st annual concert in Orchestra hall this afternoon at 3. Eugene Malek will conduct, and in addition to the oratorio the program lists folk songs and music by contemporary American, Palestinian and soviet composers. The soloist will be Selma Kaye.

The Universal Opera company will present Verdi's "La Traviata" at the Eighth Street theater tonight at 8. Giovanni Berrafato will conduct and the principal roles will be sung by Enrico Clausi, Josephine Stevenson, and Otto Slatinsky Jr.

Coupon books for the Ravinia festival will be sold to reduce attendance costs for regular customers. Because of increased expenses involved in the presentation of the concerts this season, it has been found necessary to raise the price of the coupon books. Books will contain 15 coupons and will sell at $10, plus $3 federal tax. Since regular gate admissions and reserved seats will be raised to $1, plus 20 per cent federal tax, purchasers of coupon books will effect a saving of $5 on each book. Each coupon is good for one gate admission or one reserved seat in the pavilion. Men and women in uniform and children will be admitted for 40 cents, including tax.

Six Pictures Lead the List of May Bests

MAY'S BEST PICTURES
"I'll Be Seeing you."
"Enchanted Cottage."
"Practically Yours."
"Without Love."
"Bring On the Girls."
"Thunderhead, Son of Flicka."

By Mae Tinee

"I'll be Seeing You." I think you'll like this movie. It tells of a girl and a soldier, neither of whom is given much space in our social scheme. The director has given the story skilful handling, and there are several memorable scenes. The dialog is simple and natural, the casting well night perfect, the result—a poignant and intelligent film which I hope you'll see.

"The Enchanted Cottage." A romantic tale taken from the play by Arthur Wing Pinero. If you know the difference between "enchanted" and "haunted," believe that old houses hold many secrets, etc., you'll enter into the spirit of the story. Such fantasy as this can easily become farce, but it never does in this film, due to clever direction. Dorothy McGuire again proves here ability with the sincerity and wistfulness of her portrayal, and Mr. Young runs her a close second as an embittered young aviator.

"Practically Yours." Here we have a nice, silly razzing of our glorification of our national heroes. MacMurray and Colbert are old hands at this sort of comedy and their respective roles fit 'em like the paper on the wall. There are all sorts of crazy situations, of which my personal pet was the subway scene. The word "entertainment" may honestly be applied to this film. I had a fine time seeing it, and I hope you do the same.

"Without Love." Any movie with Spencer Tracy in it is bound to be pretty good, as far as I'm concerned, and with the help of Donald Ogden Stewart's lines, "Without Love" is an entertaining film. There always is a good deal of kidding which wards off any possible banality, and Keenan Wynn is a decided asset to a good cast—his role as a henpecked playboy provides some of the best laughs, and he's a pleasantly droll inebriate.

"Bring On the Girls." You might see this—just for fun. It's light musical comedy with a lot of laughs, music, and color all over the place. Eddie Bracken is convincingly woebegone as the poor little rich boy, and Sonny Tufts is as happy-go-lucky as ever, lifting his voice in a couple of gay little ditties. The picture is definitely his, but Veronica Lake is attractive in technicolor and Spike Jones and his orchestra give a version of "Chloe" which should certainly end all versions!

"Thunderhead, Son of Flicka." If your patriotism in leaving any available train space for service men has resulted in an unfulfilled yen for the wide open spaces, you can get a nice taste of them in this film. You'll find mountains and pines and clear, rushing streams, all pleasingly photographed in color. Based on the novel by Mary O'Hara, the screen version is as simple and wholesome as the book.

HORROR FILM

Henry Daniell, looking pretty grim for his role in "The Body Snatcher," the latest gory number on the screen at the Grand.

Mantle Picks His Ten Best Plays of Year

[Every June since 1920 Burns Mantle has made known his choice of Broadway's 10 best plays, to be incorporated in condensed form in his "Year Book of the Drama." This list, both as a newspaper dispatch and in book form, is by extreme odds the most widely read set of play choices in the country. Today's space, then, is Mr. Mantle's.—John Chapman.]

By Burns Mantle

NEW YORK [Special]—As you know, Mr. Chapman, comes the first of June, and the theater season is, as the Jerries were saying, kaput. Or, as the French prefer, fini. Anyway, the season is thru—officially. As we both know, in this theater capital, it is never finished actually. Summer shows come in, winter shows go out, and one season trends on another's heels, with a dozen playhouses still bidding for trade.

Anyway, as you intimated last Sunday, at this time of year, after the prizes are awarded a period of stock taking sets in. Now, it happens that there is a certain year book of the drama in America, called "The Best Plays," of which I, your correspondent, am the editor. For that book it has been for 26 years the editor's custom to select the 10 plays of each season which, in his judgment, best represent the higher achievements of the playwrights, and the most representative support of playgoers, of the departed season.

Well, sir, this particular June found your friend in rebellious mood. He did not agree with either the New York Drama Critics' Circle award or the Pulitzer prize committee's selection. If, said he to himself, "The Glass Menagerie" is the best drama of the year, as the critics insist, and if "Harvey" is the best play of the year, as declared by the Pulitzer committee, then I, the editor of "The Best Plays," am a Chinaman.

The best drama of the season, written by an American author, [i. e., the most important play in all circumstances, as well as the most skillfully constructed play dramatically], is "A Bell for Adano," adapted by Paul Osborne from the novel of John Hersey. And if it isn't "A Bell for Adano," which is important, it is "I Remember Mama," adapted by John Van Druten from the book of short stories by Kathryn Forbes, which may not be important, but darned good entertainment, skilfully contrived.

And the best original play of the year, [i. e., one written without the aid of a collaborating novelist, as the Pulitzer judges are said to insist it should be, is John Patrick's "The Hasty Heart." Mary Chase's "Harvey" would be a good second choice in this particular category, seeing that it is the most strikingly original of the season's contributions.

YOUNG STARS

Peggy Ryan and Donald O'Connor are the exuberant young stars of "Patrick The Great." At the Palace.

Or, for that matter, this editor could be quite easily induced to settle for Norman Krasna's "Dear Ruth."

A strong bid for either award could be made for "The Late George Apley," by John P. Marquand and George S. Kaufman. This high level comedy, I have a strong conviction, would have been the selection of the late Joseph Pulitzer himself—he being, by the stipulations and confession of his will, most interested in the annual production that should "best represent the educational value and power o. the stage in raising the standards of good morals, good taste and good manners." In other words an outstandingly intelligent, clean, original and helpful dramatic entertainment.

Oh, well, Mr. Chapman, differences of opinion provide handy hooks on which to hang columns and columnists, but they are not to be taken too seriously. So, let's to our selections of the 10 best plays of the theater year. Here are the Mantle choice selections:

"A Bell for Adano," by Paul Osborne [and John Hersey].

"I Remember Mama," by John Van Druten [and Kathryn Forbes].

"The Glass Menagerie," by Tennessee Williams.

"Harvey," by Mary Chase.

"The Hasty Heart," by John Patrick.

"The Late George Apley," by John P. Marquand and George S. Kaufman.

"Dear Ruth," by Norman Krasna.

"Soldier's Wife," by Rose Franken.

"Foolish Notion," by Philip Barry.

"Anna Lucasta," by Philip Yordan.

Going back to our friendly disagreement with the selectors' major awards, I am convinced that these were made, not for the quality of the written plays, but, in both instances, for the individual performances of their respective stars. Take the gifted Laurette Taylor out of "The Glass Menagerie" and you greatly reduce its appeal as drama.

What is true of Miss Taylor and "The Glass Menagerie" is doubly true of Frank Fay and "Harvey." This is probably the happiest illustration of perfect casting that has happened in our time, at least since Hartley Manners wrote "Peg O' My Heart" for Miss Taylor. "Harvey" isn't a "great" play, nor is Mr. Fay a "great" actor. But combining one with the other provides appealing entertainment.

The other best plays provide, I feel, their own justification as nominations. Miss Franken's "Soldier's Wife," tho it was produced early in the season and therefore has faded somewhat from critical and judicial memories, treated an important post-war theme with intelligence and fine understanding.

'HOTEL BERLIN'

Pretty Andrea King was the favorite of a German general before the bombs began to fall on "Hotel Berlin." At McVickers.

Philip Barry's "Foolish Notion," tho it, too, is greatly indebted to the presence of Tallulah Bankhead at the head of its cast for its popularity, is a thoughtful and provocative human comedy, brightly written and attractively set forth.

There could have been substitutions for Mr. Yordan's "Anna Lucasta." Two that come to mind are George Kelly's "The Deep Mrs. Sykes" or the Richardson-Berney "Dark of the Moon."

"Anna" is, after all the familiar story of the prostitute reformed thru love, or at least impelled seriously toward reform. Whether, had it been produced as written, which was the story of a Polish rather than a Negro family, it would still have captured and held the interest it does in its performance as a story of small town Pennsylvania Negroes, it would be hard to say. Unquestionably its reading and exceptional performance by Negroes has definitely strengthened its drama and its significance as a social tract. Hence the preference given it.

Well, Mr. Chapman, that's the season and its awards as I see them. Want to make anything of it?

News and Notes in the World of Music

Marjorie Morgan, soprano, will give the last of her four historical song recitals at Kimball hall on Wednesday at 8:20. Earlier recitals in the series were given in Lufkin hall. The program will be devoted to such modern composers as Quilter, Griffes, Marx, Chausson, Wolff, Debussy, Prokofieff, and Ravel. William Whitaker will be at the piano and some of the accompaniments will be provided by a string quartet of Chicago Symphony orchestra players: Rudolph Reiners, Victor Charbulak, Charles Foidart, and Alois Trnka.

A program of music for two violins by a father and son, Nathan and Phillip Aaron—the former his son's teacher—will be given at Kimball hall on Tuesday at 8:20. Two compositions by the elder Aaron will be played, in addition to movements from Bach's double concerto, Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante, and various transcriptions.

Pierre Monteux will appear as guest conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra next season at three concerts in its home city and one in New York. Mr. Monteux's Chicago activities, as far as is known at present, will be confined to his week at Ravinia, beginning Aug. 7.

With all the men and the former director of the Northland college a cappella chorus in service, the 52 year old school of Ashland, Wis., was not to be deterred in its musical activities. Accordingly a girls' chorus has taken the place of the former mixed group, and a woman, Kathryn Ragsdale Church, now functions as the director. The chorus will appear here in Kimball hall tomorrow night at 8:20 with solos by Edith Schindler and Corinne Fossum, contraltos, and June Emerson and Patricia Berg, sopranos.

Kathryn Ragsdale Church

The choir of the Fourth Presbyterian church will sing a special choral service under the direction of Barrett Spach tonight at 8. Included in the program will be Eric De Lamarter's "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings" and "O Thou Eternal One," three "Songs of Praise" by George Dyson, and anthems by Tschesnokoff, Tschaikowsky, Vaughan Williams, Everett Titcomb, and William Harris. Soloists will be Florence Gullans Smith, Maurine Parzybok and Paul Nettinga.

William Steinberg, remembered for his successful appearances as guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will conduct two performances of "Die Walküre" and two of "Tristan and Isolde" next month at the Opera Naçional in Mexico City.

Eugene Ormandy has signed a new five year contract as conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra. Since his present contract has one year to run, this means that Mr. Ormandy will continue in his present post until the spring of 1951.

The United temple chorus of Long Island announces its second annual competition for the Ernest Bloch award for a composition based on a text chosen from the Old Testament and set for women's chorus. The award will consist of $150, publication by Carl Fischer, Inc., and performance by the chorus at its spring concert. Judges will be Douglas Moore, Lazare Saminsky, Hugh Ross, and Isadore Freed. The 1945 award was won by Herbert Fromm of Boston for his "The Song of Miriam." Information may be obtained from the United temple chorus, box 736, Woodmere, N. Y.

BOOK NEWS AND REVIEWS

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

IT is strange that in nearly 200 years no previous commentator on the case of Elizabeth Canning—the "first great disappearer," as Edmund Pearson called her—should have hit on the very plausible solution of this famous mystery now put forward by Lillian de la Torre in her brilliant historical detective story, "Elizabeth Is Missing," just published by Knopf. The reason would appear to be that earlier writers on the subject have too readily assumed that Elizabeth was either [a] telling the truth or [b] telling lies. Miss de la Torre believes there is a third alternative and her admirable book is based on that belief.

Betty Canning, old inhabitants will remember, vanished from her accustomed scenes on Jan. 1, 1753, remained away for four weeks, then returned one evening, in bedraggled state, with a wild tale of imprisonment and escape. She had been kidnaped and held by gypsies, she said, and, altho public opinion was sharply divided on the merits on her tale, a number of persons came close to being hanged on the strength of it. In the end she was found guilty of perjury and deported to the American colonies. The story is one of the classic mysteries of the missing and it has attracted writers in number, among them such notables as Henry Fielding, Voltaire, Andrew Lang, and Arthur Machen.

A Rich and Raffish Tale

It is not surprising that the adventures of Mrs. Canning's lass, Betty, have captured popular interest for nearly two centuries. Apart from the mystery, it is a rich and raffish tale with the quality of a picaresque novel—bursting with what Hollywood calls the "menace" and the "fundamental letch." There have been bigger and better mysteries along the years, but few with such a stirring appeal to cynic and sentimentalist alike. For myself, I have always believed Betty just a pretty little liar; but I have no quarrel with Miss de la Torre's more charitable solution, which is simple and reasonable and satisfying.

Incidentally, this solution came to her in a dream, the author told me when I met her in Chicago a few weeks ago. At any rate, she woke one morning with a word sounding in her mind, and the word was her answer to the problem that had been occupying her thoughts. She attaches no occult significance to the circumstance, however; we agreed that probably it was her own subconscious conclusion, not a communication from the long departed Miss Canning—who wouldn't have known the word anyway, perhaps, since it had not been invented in her day.

As originally conceived, Miss de la Torre's Canning opus was to have been one of a series of short stories starring the great Dr. Johnson as a sort of 18th century Mycroft Holmes, solving the mysteries of his time from an armchair—an astonishing idea. Thirteen of the Johnson tales have been written and, of these, three have been published by Ellery Queen. Some day they will all be brought together in covers, and the sooner the better.

The Inaccessible Santayana

Publication of "The Middle Span" [Scribner], the second volume of George Santayana's huge autobiography, which began with "Persons and Places," makes timely an amusing anecdote told me by John Hervey about his friend, the late Albert Cotsworth, well known Chicago organist.

Some 35 years ago Cotsworth spent a fortnight in Boston and Cambridge, where he had an uncle on the Harvard faculty. He was taken about and introduced to all the lions, literary and academic, with one exception, Santayana, the celebrity he wanted most to meet. Wherefore, as his visit neared its end, he said to his uncle: "I have been hoping somewhere to meet or see George Santayana. I would rather make his acquaintance than that of anybody else at Harvard. I regard him as the most exquisite master of style writing in America today, and he is a great thinker as well. Would it be possible for me to meet him before I leave?"

His uncle shook his head sadly. "My dear Albert," he answered, with a quizzical smile, "I fear that I cannot help you to attain your ambition. Prof. Santayana is inaccessible to ordinary mortals. He is the center of a cénacle, which outsiders are not allowed to profane. It is composed of a few persons of wealth, who greatly admire him, and a circle of ladies, mostly in high society, who rather more than admire him. Aside from these, there are one or two acolytes chosen from his most worshipful pupils. Within this circle no one else may tread. Its profanation by anyone like yourself, in particular, is, I would say, unthinkable. Prof. Santayana does not suffer Bostonians gladly—and imagination falters at the mere suggestion of his being obliged to encounter anybody from Chicago.

Apollo Among the Scythians

"The vast, uncharted interior of this benighted land and the denizens thereof do not excite his interest—as indeed how could they, considering that even the merest edge of the continent excites his most refined disapprobation? His presence here at Harvard is due wholly to economic reasons; otherwise he would not be found in its purlieus, where he may be likened to Apollo among the Scythians. You might ask me for half of Cambridge and I could obtain it for you more easily than the privilege of meeting Prof. Santayana, whose remoteness excels even that of the dalai lama in Tibet. Confine yourself, my dear boy, to the perusal of his works, which you so greatly appreciate, and content yourself with the thought that you may—at one precious interval—actually have been within a reasonable proximity of the man himself. More than that you cannot hope for!"

Hitler's Hidden Treasure

There were disappointed faces in an American infantry regiment, reports the Associated Press, when mechanics opened Hitler's safe in his private residence in Munich. All that was found was 12 copies of "Mein Kampf," all first editions and most of them autographed.

I don't know what the boys were looking for, but if they think first editions of "Mein Kampf," autographed or unautographed, are not valuable, they are mistaken. The few copies that have turned up in London and New York, in recent years, have brought handsome prices. In the years to come, prices may well be staggering.

A correct first edition, I understand, is in two volumes, published in boards, at Munich in 1925-'27. An autographed copy was offered by a well known English dealer shortly after the beginning of the war at £55, or about $225. The first edition is said to have been small and to have been largely destroyed.

PLAIN PEOPLE WHO SETTLED THE WEST

Community Builders in Solid Book

"THE TOWNSMAN," by John Sedges. [John Day, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle

Here is a straight and solid book. It is the story of the American west that survived, that became counties and states. It is not the wild west, nor the country of adventure or Indian or buffalo or bandit. It is the west of the small town and the plain family and the wish to build in one place. Here are the families that did not go on. Here are the women who said—This far and no farther with my children. Here is the beginning of society, the start of community. There are no six-shooters tearing the Saturday night air. There are only plows tearing the Saturday morning soil, the heavy and grass-rich earth.

The intent of the novel is in its title. It is the life not of the wilderness men, the frontier scout and the wagon guide. Nor is it the life of the boom town, the big city growing from the empty land. It is the life of a man who wanted neither of those. He wanted a sturdy town, and he got it. He did not want a buffalo-wallow, nor did he want a wealthy city. The small, the dependable, the steady town.

Jonathan Goodliffe is the hero of the book, if that term applies to a man of quiet life. His father drives the family from an English village, over the protest of the mother and Jonathan, to the unknown Kansas plain. The father moves on west, but the son stays, becomes the local schoolteacher, the designer and shaper of a new town. No violence, save the ordinary fury of love attained and unattained, of birth and illness and dying. Thru it all the patience and the wisdom of Jonathan provide the cohesion of the community.

Nor is it as dull as I make it sound, for the book is full of people, and of a strong variety. One of the most successful stories within the book is that of a Negro family, living on the edge of town and yet remarkably at the center of its life.

One of the virtues of the novel, rare in historical fiction, is the controled style. So often there is an overwhelming lushness in stories of the past, an excessive concern for costume, decoration, manners. None of that here. And often there is a constant sentimentality which denies the whole environment in which the action occurs. There is little of that here, although the danger is constant and there are pages when it breaks thru with such sentences as "At such times Judy's eyes were dewy with happiness."

The mother is saved from being a sentimental figure only by a direct and practical concern with the labor of her daily life. It is probably in the area of love, however, that the novel is weakest, for there is too great a tendency to describe a woman simply as beautiful, and then expect the immediate response in every man. I must say, however, that there is a very satisfying homely woman. Many people will read this book, and with pleasure.

Mr. Miller Shows Charming Prejudice Writing of Wife

"ALL OUR LIVES: Alice Duer Miller," by Henry Wise Miller. [Coward-McCann. $2.75.]

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

The White Rabbit put on his spectacles.

"Where shall I begin, please your Majesty?"

"Begin at the beginning," the King said gravely,

"And go on till you come to the end; then stop."

Mr. Miller quotes this advice only to disregard it. He begins and ends nowhere in particular. This curious book which he has dedicated to his wife's memory is a pastiche of biography, anecdote, literary criticism and appreciation, shop talk, essays in miniature, and innumerable quotations, long and short, from Mrs. Miller's spoken and written words. The method of presentation is data-istic. Each of the six long chapters is divided into many brief sections, each headed with an epigraph which starts Mr. Miller off on a fresh line of thought.

Whether the author of "Come Out of the Kitchen" would ever have got a biography had she not also been the author of "The White Cliffs of Dover" seems rather doubtful. Mr. Miller admits the comparative narrowness of her range and the indifference of the critics toward her, tho he comforts himself by remembering that fellow authors admired her technical skill and dexterity. I do not doubt that this is true; it often is in such cases; but most of the admirers Mr. Miller cites specifically themselves exemplify commercial rather than artistic success.

Mrs. Miller's background was very ultra-ultra; in her later years she moved in the literary and artistic smart set. It is clear that she was a more complex and more forceful personality than the casual reader of her stories could be expected to gather—instance, her courage, for example, or her passion for the higher mathematics—tho probably a dispassionate reader's judgment of her will be considerably less beglamored than that of her charmingly prejudiced husband could be expected to be. He has written a book about her which never fails to be interesting, tho it stops short of being quite satisfying; and the materials for a vivid portrait are here, even if the portrait itself still remains to be painted.

There is a good deal of careless writing, and there are some errors of fact: Henry James, for example, wrote not one but a number of plays, and Charlotte M. Yonge did not spell her name "Young."

Alexander Woollcott Was Strictly a One Life Stand

"A. WOOLLCOTT: His Life and His World," by Samuel Hopkins Adams. [Reynal & Hitchcock, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Claudia Cassidy

Somewhere in the satirical sharpshooting concerned with that Woollcottian saga, "The Man Who Came to Dinner," Moss Hart, I think it was, remarked in extenuation that most of the people in the play had so large a bulge of talent that they were naturally skimped in other places to make up for it. I haven't heard a more satisfactory explanation of the oddities of celebrities. It is acute, urbane, understanding, even a touch affectionate.

These qualities go into Mr. Adams' 375 well illustrated pages of Woollcott biography, and I am sure you will forgive a stage-struck churl if I admit that to me the Messrs. Kaufman and Hart did it better in three acts. The not too sagacious sage of Bomoseen was essentially a theatrical personality, larger than life size, vastly entertaining while he lasted, but scarcely of the enduring stuff of literature. When the curtain went down he had been fun, but his was strictly a one life stand. It's already a bit dated in the light of bookshelf revival.

Or am I wrong about it? Maybe so. Perhaps the life of Alexander Woollcott should be reviewed only by an adoring friend or bitter enemy, and he had plenty of both. I knew him only as a lively critic, a superb story teller, an amusing writer of what Mr. Adams sardonically dubs twice sold tales, and as the man who came to act himself in the wheelchair satire that etched him in his own life's blood—a mixture of dragon's milk and treacle, a highly inflammable, volatile liquid with the low boiling point known to my trade as temperament. Had I known him as a person, I probably would have been as bewitched as many of my friends who emerged from the churning cauldron of his attachment forever plated with the shining, stainless steel of belligerent loyalty.

Mr. Adams' story of Woollcott and his times is longer than my flagging interest found justifiable, and perhaps only Woollcott himself could have embellished that slender tale to its highly wrought hilt. But the Adams version is comprehensive and generally accurate, tho he has a curious misconception of Woollcott as the orginal St. George, the drama critic, riding out to battle the serpent producer. Generally, it is a balanced portrait which probably will annoy both the idolators and the detractors, but it seems to this outsider to do tart justice to the man and his work. At least, Adams never betrays his friend with gush. He obeys what he calls Aleck's precise and caustic admonition, "God help you, Sam, if you prettify me!"

This tale of the drama critic, the essayist, the town crier who cried out loud, the scourge of editors, the scorpion among wits, and the pet of the more emotional public is not prettified. It begins at Woollcott's birth on the community farm in New Jersey that colored his social and political thinking thru life, and it tells in plain terms the repellent story of the unprepossessing boy known as Putt for putrid, who became a show-off to attract attention. It scotches the undercover rumor of homosexuality and creates a rather sadder legend of an impotent man, almost a eunuch in billows of fat, yet a man susceptible to women.

But the most interesting part of the book, to most people, will be Woollcott the celebrity, emerging from his newspaper cocoon as the waddling moth whose earthbound wings fluttered their brightest in the flame of fame. The twice sold tales recur, the legend grows apace, and in the end you know exactly what Maggie, the demon secretary, meant when, in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," she said to "that portly, Falstaffian figure," with a rare mixture of venom and admiration, "I may write a book about it all: 'Cavalcade of Insults; or Thru the Years with Prince Charming.'"

Wacky Yarn of Talking to Animals

"MR. WILMER," by Robert Lawson. [Little, Brown, $2].

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

"Mr. Wilmer" is my nomination for the month's most delicious literary concoction. Officially, it may be a book for children, but if a child of eight chuckles over it, one of 80's enjoyment would go up in spirals of laughter, for it takes a grownup to relish the subtlety of its satire. "Mr. Wilmer" is the mildest, the most unnoticeable of men, who runs a tabulating machine all day and is as staid as a ledger all the rest of the time. Without warning one morning on his way to work he realizes that the policeman's horse is talking to him.

Robert Lawson

He thinks nothing of the incident until on his regular weekly visit to the zoo Toby, the lion, who has been lashing about his cage in a mad rage, confides to Mr. Wilmer that the attendants and the vets and the director of the zoo are all "blithering idiots" who can't find out what's the matter with him when all that's troubling him is a titanic toothache. When William Wilmer tells the attendant that the lion has a toothache Mr. Wilmer is of course considered nuts.

When he loses his job, bounced, booted, and bedamned for making a few mistakes, the nadir of his life has been reached. To console himself he goes back to see the suffering Toby. How his conversation with Toby leads to fame and a dazzling fortune complete with romance fills the other 200 pages of this delicious tale.

"Mr. Wilmer" is much more than a mere book about a man who could "talk animal." It is a subtle satire on the fireworks rise of men who strike the popular fancy, a satire on public exploitation and a satire on human frailties. All of the stock characters and stock situations are present, but all used as freshly as a skilled artist uses the old stock primary colors.

Robert Lawson illustrated as well as wrote "Mr. Wilmer." Admirers of "Ferdinand the Bull" will remember his satirical art.

What Russia Thinks and Talks About

"THESE ARE THE RUSSIANS," by Richard E. Lauterbach. [Harper, $3.]

Reviewed by George J. Scharschug

Mr. Lauterbach provides some interesting observations on the men and women who make up the vast part of the 170,000,000 citizens of Russia. He offers interesting sketches of Stalin, boss of this vast section of the world's population, and some of the dictator's closest associates.

Richard Lauterbach

This information is valuable to America as diplomats of the United States strive to reach agreement for world peace. Due to an almost complete censorship black-out during the years of the establishment of the soviet republic and World War II., our leaders must deal with a nation about which few unbiased facts are available.

Russia presents, perhaps, the most baffling piece in the jig-saw puzzle that is Europe today. In fact, all Europe is a mess. It reminds one of a crowd around a poker table after an all-night session.

Every nation sits there with a chip on its shoulder and practically no chips on the table—except Stalin's Russia. Most of the chips are in front of Russia, but the biggest chip of all appears to be on its shoulder.

Having driven the nazi invader from his land and overrun or won political domination of a vast part of Europe, Stalin is cocky. According to Mr. Lauterbach's observations, so are many of the people whom Stalin rules with an iron hand. Many of them are also suspicious, irritable, and arrogant. A young lieutenant said to the author: "After the war England, Russia, and America will have everything."

The wife of a Russian journalist, explaining why she and her husband dodged questions which might throw light on what Russia is thinking and doing, said:

"You are our friend now. We think you will be our friend always. But we do not know."

A Red army soldier, recuperating from wounds, said:

"I suppose the man, Stalin, may have to die some day. But Stalin, the ideal, is ours now and forever."

And a widely quoted poem, laudatory of Stalin, ends with this line: "He, like the morning, stands over the world."

Personal note—If Mr. Lauterbach's information is correct, Stalin and this reviewer have one thing in common. Inveterate pipe smokers, we both prefer the same brand of American tobacco—15 cents a packet, sometimes less expensive at chain stores.

Zany Family Tries Running a Saloon

"THE HALF-HAUNTED SALOON," by Richard Shattuck. [Simon & Schuster, $2.50.]

Turn a wacky saloon over to the wacky family of a proper, prim man and you have the makings of a rollicking story. Add a lot of merry-go-round animals as bar ornaments, a talking dog, and an alcoholic psychiatrist who is triply haunted by the multiple ghosts of his departed schizophrenic patient, and you begin to get enmeshed in the sticky strands of that brand of humor sometimes known as cockeyed. Mr. Shattuck has attempted what he calls a VERY light novel, and at moments he reaches high points of hilarity. On the whole, however, his situation is just a little too fanciful, and his underlying philosophy can't struggle thru the load of forced ridiculousness. "The Half-Haunted saloon" is only a half-successful novel.

Informative Volume Tells of Malaysia

"PEOPLES OF MALAYSIA," by Fay-Cooper Cole. [Van Nostrand, $4.]

Reviewed by Wilton M. Krogman

This is an important book. It is authoritative, well written, informative. It is authoritative because the author spent years in the field under the auspices of the Chicago Natural History museum, which now houses the finest Malayan collection in the world. The lay reader will find clearly written, well illustrated pages; the specialist will find references, tables, and appendices at the volume's end.

The book is part of the new world-mindedness wherein we shall know our neighbors as we know ourselves. "Davao," "Mindanao," "Borneo" leap from the pages into the reality of present day bloody strife. All who have men in the Pacific theater will want to know where they are fighting and under what conditions. This book answers many questions.

Malaysia comprises the Dutch East Indies, British Malaya, and the Philippines, an area of 80,000,000 population that has long been exploited for spices, sugar, quinine, oil, tin, and rubber. As a result the cultural pattern shows Chinese, Japanese, Hindu, Portuguese, Spanish, Dutch, British, and American elements superimposed upon a native culture.

In a careful analysis of 10 type-peoples Dr. Cole illustrates the blending of aboriginal and acquired cultural traits. We learn, in a step by step procedure, the ways in which various groups have fashioned their lives, and how they have adapted themselves to the "civilization" brought in by outsiders. The result of this analysis is a clear-cut interpretation of the ways in which a sophisticated people deal—or should deal—with a more simple people.

Malaysia is important. Here east meets west, empire meets empire, nation meets nation, people meets people. In politics, in economics, in bio-social development, the area is destined to play a big part in the chess game of post-war adjustment. For those who want to know the southeastern orient this is a must book.

How Our Form of Government Has Aided Others

"THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION AND ITS INFLUENCE ON WORLD CIVILIZATION," by Robert R. McCormick. [The Chicago Tribune, $1.]

Reviewed by William Shinnick

In a foreword to this tightly packed but highly informative volume of history Col. McCormick has written: "A reading of the histories and constitutions of Europe . . . has revealed that everything good in those constitutions stemmed from the American Revolution, Constitution, and Bill of Rights, and that the same was true of the countries in this hemisphere and of what little good has come into Asia."

That is an accurate explanation of what the book is about—the grand philosophy of republican government that has been developed into workability only by our country, and the hope it has given and is still giving the oppressed peoples of the world.

Just as significant is the author's review of the little known relations in the past of the United States and the little nations. He tells how the Latin Americans, thru the workings of the Monroe doctrine, maintained their territorial and political integrity while Africa and Asia and the gorgeous isles of the western Pacific were being seized and exploited by the European powers.

He tells how the Samoans virtually begged the United States to take their fine harbor of Pago-Pago to prevent it falling into other hands. He tells the heartening story of how the United States acquired Alaska and the Hawaiian Islands by decent negotiations, and how the Filipinos, alone of the invaded Asiatics, fought Japan in the early stages of the present war and made it possible to save Australia.

Cuba, released from Spanish rule and freed to make its own place in the world; Canada, battling to independence against the titled oligarchs of England, and Russia, a traditional friend of America in the past, are all dealt with in this book, which is a compilation of radio speeches made by Col. McCormick in the early part of 1945.

Newspapers Are Training Ground for Many Authors

By Harry Hansen

New York.

THERE probably are a few newspapermen who envy Jimmie Street because he broke away from the daily grind and established himself as a writer of stories and novels, but on the whole his experience is typical. The newspaper still is the great training ground for writers, and the number who pass thru its mill is very large. James Street worked in the city room of the paper that hires me, and so did H. Allen Smith, the screwy totem pole sitter; in days past A. J. Liebling, Joe Mitchell, John Mason Brown, Mel Heimer, Helen Worden, and Arnold Elliott breezed thru these halls; all have written successful books. Mr. Street gained a following by writing historical novels about one family, the Dabneys, beginning with "O, Promised Land," and based much of his plot on events in his native Mississippi. His current book is a collection of short stories, justly entitled "Short Stories by James Street." You will find that it has an introduction describing the author and signed G. W. J. That happens to be George W. Joel, the author's publisher.

Mr. Street makes no claim to heaven-sent inspiration; he is trying to write stories to entertain and is succeeding fairly well. Mr. Joel tells me that Mr. Street is about to migrate to Chapel Hill, N. C., for, being a southerner, he likes living there, and since he is interested in southern history he will make good use of the library of the University of North Carolina.

For a Free Market

One of Morris L. Ernst's favorite theories is that the health of free enterprise lies in access to the market place; that the tendency of business and industry to combine in ever larger units and to dominate the field restricts the development of new industries, and that the government should supervise the market place to the extent of giving individual organizations their chance. This is tied up with freedom of expression and communication, which he sees restricted by the tendency toward amalgamation of newspapers, the control of motion picture theaters by a few producers, the high cost of radio programs, and the inability of small newspapers to survive in an era of high manufacturing costs. He touched on this briefly in his autobiography, "The Best Is Yet," but he will really go to town on the communications phase in a new book called "It Matters Now," which Macmillan will issue in November. He has been engaged in systematic research on this subject for a number of years and, having been counsel for publishers in censorship cases, can speak with knowledge about pressure systems that affect publishing of books.

New Authors Greeted

Members of New York's literary world have met in the last few days in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Lincoln Schuster to greet Dorothy Caruso, author of "Enrico Caruso, His Life and Death," and in the home of Antoine, the famous hairdresser, who entertained as the author of "Antoine," the reminiscences of his career here and in Paris.

Alfred Kreymborg, whose new book, "The Selected Poems of Alfred Kreymborg, 1912-1944," has just been published by Dutton, is back from Washington, where he made eight 15 minute recordings of poems and his mandolute for the Library of Congress. Getting poets to make records of their own poems is one of the fine activities of the library and suggests how much we have lost by not having recording instruments for the older poets—as well as for all the great of the earth whose voices, in addresses or songs, have been lost forever. Mr. Kreymborg has managed to express himself effectively for many years without raising his voice; his poetry has always been comprehensible to every one, and he has never failed to write in behalf of freedom and justice—the honored, inevitable themes of the true poet.

Second M-G-M Contest

The second annual novel contest of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer opens for publishers June 15 and closes July 7. In the course of that time probably 100 manuscripts will find their way to the judges, and the one chosen will get $125,000 outright, with a possible $50,000 more if sales reach a certain point, and $25,000 to the publisher wholly independent of what the author gets. Only publishing houses will submit manuscripts. Last year the award went to "Green Dolphin Street," which may sell 1,000,000 before it slows down. The judges also thought highly of "A Lion Is in the Streets," which subsequently went to the William Cagney organization for a larger sum than the prize winner achieved. At least that's the report. I wish some of the old timers who slaved at their desks might have had access to this golden flood, for even with the high income taxes there is a sizable amount left for the author; and, as there are always by-products in later years, possibly even retakes of a popular motion picture, he has a chance to increase his original earnings. The contest was the idea of V. Vetlugin, who was here from Hollywood this week completing arrangements. Miss Constance Smith actually is in charge in the New York office of M-G-M.

More Life with Father

Anecdotes about Clarence Day and the Day family, now enshrined in the national imagination by "Life with Father," will never cease. The latest are to be found in Henry Wise Miller's captivating book about Alice Duer Miller, "All Our Lives." One of the best deals with an occasion when Mr. Miller was present at dinner with the Days and the boys had filled the ice cream with salt. The three lads swallowed their spoonfuls of salty ice cream without a grimace merely to witness the explosion when Father took his, and they were fully repaid. The play, "Life with Father," still is running on Broadway—in its sixth year. The National Father's Day committee—I don't know what interests it represents, but there must be some—is happy, because this helps keep Father before the public and tells me that another famous father book was Joshua K. Bolles' "Father Was an Editor." I am also informed that William Cullen Bryant's father ought to be remembered, because he found his son's poems, "Thanatopsis" and "To a Waterfowl," in a desk and sent them to the North American Review, which published them and made them the "hits of 1817." The building in which Bryant edited the New York Evening Post stood on Broadway until a few years ago; the site now is covered by an immense drug store, and the only tablet I could find advertised aspirin.

Wherever news hawks are gathered...

Photograph by Time and Life in Paris

Wherever news-hawks gather to talk shop, you hear the name of Bob Casey mentioned with affection and admiration—with the stories and legends that have built up around him in his thirty-odd years as "a newspaper-man himself."

Author of some twenty books (see below), one of the great reporters of all time, ace war correspondent for the Chicago Daily News, he has covered more of this global war—land and water—than any other correspondent. His trained eye has taken in every significant detail; he has seen the exciting, the picturesque, the amusing, the terrible, the real story. His sense of humor has never deserted him, his robust laughter is never stilled by danger, his instinct for human interest is immense and infallible.

Wherever he is, whatever he sees and writes about in his own vivid and picturesque language, the reader is there with him. His war coverage has been so outstanding in every sector that his stories have been hailed by seasoned newspapermen as literature as well as history.

ERNIE PYLE: (after reading SUCH INTERESTING PEOPLE off the Okinawa beachhead)—"I only wish I could hear Bob Casey tell all those stories in person, lying on his cot in France, and roaring and shaking with his own laughter. Bob's laughter would be good for us now."

LINTON WELLS said (in reviewing I CAN'T FORGET)—"If I were asked to name the most competent craftsman in the field of foreign correspondence, my unhesitating choice would be that amiable, redoubtable Irishman, Robert J. Casey. He paints pictures that are clear and indelible—highlighted with irony that is as piercing as a rapier, sarcasm as sharp as a razor, humor as infectious as the Bubonic plague and sympathy as caressing as an adoring sweetheart's hands."

WILLIAM HILLMAN: "The American newspaperman writing the liveliest prose on the Battle of Britain is Robert Casey."

QUENTIN REYNOLDS: "We saw the inimitable Bob Casey in France, whose fat fingers had the lightest touch on a typewriter I ever saw. Casey was so far ahead of us not only in reportorial ability but in sheer writing that, instead of being jealous of him, we were merely proud that he was a member of our profession."

JOHN SELBY: (of the Associated Press) "When this war is done, it will be books like Robert J. Casey's TORPEDO JUNCTION that we will rely upon for the story of when and how. He is primarily a reporter and that is why his record is so valuable."

TIME MAGAZINE: "Correspondent Casey has seen this war in all its peculiar phases and helped mightily in making the Chicago Daily News foreign service the best in the U. S."

BOB CASEY also did a fine job of reporting World War I. His diary of that war, in which he served as a Captain of Field Artillery, was published in 1927 under the title THE CANNONEERS HAVE HAIRY EARS and was an immediate success. That wasn't his first book, however, and even a bare list of his books reflects his versatility and his standing as a man of letters. THE LAND OF HAUNTED CASTLES, the story of the Luxembourg he has loved since those First World War days, was published in 1921, followed by THE LOST KINGDOM OF BURGUNDY in 1923. There were a succession of other books: THE GENTLEMAN IN ARMOR, BAGHDAD AND POINTS EAST, FOUR FACES OF SIVA, EASTER ISLAND. He wrote five mysteries, all set in Chicago, all growing from his own experiences as a crime reporter there, all successful. They were: THE SECRET OF 37 HARDY STREET, THE SECRET OF THE BUNGALOW, NEWS REEL, HOT ICE, THE THIRD OWL. He wrote a romantic adventure, CAMBODIAN QUEST, and an uproarious satire, THE VOICE OF THE LOBSTER. And who can forget the collection of his own humorous verse in THE VEST POCKET ANTHOLOGY? His three most recent books, probably his best known and most successful, are I CAN'T FORGET (1941), TORPEDO JUNCTION (1942) and SUCH INTERESTING PEOPLE (1943).

HIS new book, THIS IS WHERE I CAME IN, will be published in July. This is the story of Casey's latest experiences in the European theater—of his days with the men of the British Fleet in the Atlantic and the Mediterranean, of the mounting tension in England as D-day drew nearer, of the miracle of D-day itself and the D-plus days through Normandy to Paris and on to the Siegfried Line. It is pure Casey, shrewd, observant, lively with his particularly entertaining brand of humor, packed with stories of the interesting people he met—the Londoners under the buzz bombs, the sailors on the landing ships, the GI's on the beachheads, the French farmers who milked their cows as tanks ground through their hedgerows and shells leveled their homes, the children who played around the command posts as their liberators were directing the break-through that finished von Rundstedt in the west. The advance of the Americans from Paris carried him over the route he had followed in reverse four and a half years ago. At last he stood on a hill outside Longwy and watched the broken German columns winding into the mists and out of France. He had stood on the same hill in 1940 and seen the terrible armor of Germany roll into France. "I think I'll go home," said Bob Casey, "This is where I came in."

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Delos Avery

DEPARTMENT OF WHY DON'T YOU

"WHY," inquires G. M. S., "don't you tell us where we can find love songs and love stories about gentlemen who prefer elderly ladies? I mean like Jimmie Walker loving somebody in December as he did in May, or that poet who said if a lady's endearing young charms faded away it would be all right with him, and there was a line in it about how around the dear ruin each wish of his heart would entwine itself verdantly still. I think things like that are cute."

Well, G. M. S., you might make a start by looking up a character named Ko-ko, in "The Mikado," by Gilbert and Sullivan, where you will find your theme somewhat eloquently developed. And then you might go back to circa 1900, to George du Maurier's "Trilby," where a Rasputin-like person named Svengali weaves some fancy prose on your subject.

Ko-ko, you remember, was in favor of postponing marriage until the lady became really venerable. He addresses a relic named Katisha, who, in his opinion, needs a bit more ageing:

There is beauty in extreme old age—
Do you fancy you are elderly enough?
  Information I'm requesting
  On a subject interesting:
Is a maiden all the better when she's tough?

Are you old enough to marry, do you think?
Won't you wait till you are eighty in the shade?
  There's a fascination frantic
  In a ruin that's romantic:
Do you think you are sufficiently decayed?

But Svengali's purring speech to Trilby reaches, I think, the deepest note.

"How beautiful you are! It drives me mad! I adore you. . . . I like you thinner—you have such beautiful bones!" Svengali is sure the poet, Heine, would love her, too. "He would adore you for your beautiful bones; he would like to count them one by one . . . Ach! What a beautiful skeleton you will make—and very soon, too!"

Is that about what you meant, G. M. S.?

BITTER WOE DEPARTMENT

This column's sympathy, like that of De Valera to the Germans when they lost their fuehrer, goes out to Poetry magazine, which has just sent postcards to all subscribers saying:

> The editors call your attention to a regrettable error in the May issue. James Laughlin's poem, "The Avalanche," should end with the line, "monument to self-destruction!" [page 73]. The next line, "Love you that so long a," is the beginning of another poem whose title, "The Shape of Love," was unfortunately omitted.

Since this may shed light upon a mystery hitherto baffling—how to tell the difference between the beginning and the end of a modern poem—I think a copy of the magazine, with a copy of the postcard attached, ought to be deposited in a cornerstone, for the perusal of future generations. It would also be interesting to learn how many adoring readers liked the composition as printed better than as intended. It certainly starts with an avalanche, slips neatly into suicide, and then [avalanches being hard to stop] roars ahead into an assortment of love affairs, featuring girls with glass hands, girls with cinders in their mouths—and why not? One begins at last to understand why the room where printers work is called a "composing room." They surely do compose.

If there is a Nobel prize for the most extraordinary single line of modern verse, how about giving it to the line that caused all this excitement:

"Love you that so long a . . ."

CURIOSITY

Wonder what plan of selection guided the editor of the Oxford Companion to American Literature? It omits Miriam Michelson, who wrote some pretty good novels and short stories, and includes her brother, Albert, who was a wizard in science but a dud in literature. It also omits Charles, brother of Miriam and Albert, and includes Mickey Mouse!

NOTES—President B. D. Zevin of the World Publishing company writes to say that he has always thought the You Know Me Al letters, attributed to Ring Lardner, were written by Nicholas Murray Butler. He refutes this column's suggestion that Clare Boothe Luce might have written them by telephoning the lady and obtaining her "indignant denial," together with her statement that she was "in pigtails then." . . . Rousseau Van Voorhies of the Boswellians reports that the honorary degree, doctor of frustration, has been given to Gertrude Stein.

the brick foxhole
By RICHARD BROOKS

Jeff Mitchell is trained to fight, willing to fight—but like thousands of others, he's sweating out the war in a barracks at home, far from the wife he loves. Then he hears a rumor about her—goes berserk—a murder is committed—and Jeff is wanted by the police.

This is the basic situation of a novel which has the suspense of the best kind of detective story, but other qualities as well which make it a work of tremendous power and significance.

• BERNARD DEVOTO: "A true book and a courageous one."

• MORRIS ERNST, author of The Best Is Yet . . . : "The best book so far published dealing with the bitter frustration of the men in uniform who never left our shores."

• NIVEN BUSCH, author of They Dream of Home: "THE BRICK FOXHOLE is a wonderful book . . . as you read, the barracks Richard Brooks describes, and their environs, take on stature, until his Brick Foxhole is as big as Raskolnikoff's tenement, or Robinson Crusoe's island; maybe as big as the whole U. Forester's Hero Shows New Talent

"COMMODORE HORNBLOWER," by C. S. Forester. [Little, Brown, $2.75.]

Reviewed by James Gray

Because he is a novelist who writes thoughtfully about the Napoleonic wars, C. S. Forester inevitably reminds one of Tolstoi; because he is a novelist who writes with a specialist's devotion to the sea, Forester reminds one of Conrad. It would seem likely that a small, orderly talent might be cast into the shadow of complete eclipse by two such huge, chaotic geniuses. But Forester has managed to remain noticeable because a steady glow of humorous and original insight illuminates his literary gift. Caught between giants he attracts and holds attention by the very unassertive and unspectacular quality of his intelligence.

C. S. Forester

His character, Horatio Hornblower, already has progressed thru three novels as a captain of the British navy, earning his steady growth in prestige by his resolution and resourcefulness. He has had many adventures calling for both physical endurance and mental agility. Now in the new book which presents him as a knight and a man of property on land, a leader of a squadron at sea, he is the same combination of courage and cunning that he has been thruout his long, fictive life. He is a sea dog whose bark and bite are equally formidable but whose stern assumption of authority is with him a duty, not an indulgence. His mask of resolution conceals many an attractive human subtlety and wavering from certainty.

Here his assignment is to proceed into the Baltic to woo Napoleon's enemies and harry his friends. Commodore Hornblower sinks French ships, cuts off the flow of supplies and even leads a land attack against one of Bonaparte's generals in the assault at Daugavgriva. His readiness of wit prevents a Finnish fanatic from shooting either the czar of Russia or the king of Sweden, or both, met in conference at St. Petersburg. At the close, just before he collapses from an attack of typhus, Hornblower's gift for diplomacy succeeds in persuading a Prussian general to throw over the Napoleonic cause.

These events are reported seriatim, in the manner that is necessary and effective in a novel intended for publication as a serial as this one was. In book form the sharpness of these divisions tends to undermine the pleasure of steady progression in character development. One invests oneself in a group of characters and a set of incidents only to find them abruptly abandoned in favor of a new central source of interest. But Commodore Hornblower's firm hand helps to hold things together, and C. S. Forester's equally firm hand dispenses sturdy values in each section of the book.

Author Turns Essayist with Telling Effect

"THE YOGI AND THE COMMISSAR," by Arthur Koestler. [Macmillan, $2.75.]

Reviewed by John Abbot Clark

This is Arthur Koestler's first book of essays. Most of them have already appeared in various British and American publications in the last two or three years.

The author of "Scum of the Earth" and "Darkness at Noon" says he has never ceased to marvel "each year at the fool I had been the year before." He is still "unable to understand how I was able to bear last year's state of profound ignorance." [Cf. Hazlitt.]

Speaking of the intelligentsia and their occupational diseases, he observes that getting out of tune with one's social environment "creates neurotic tensions and feelings of guilt. One might in theory be a thousand times in the right, and yet feel guilty for butting against the accepted wrong."

He believes that to quarrel with society "means to quarrel with its projections in one's self, and produces the classical neurotic split patterns." [Cf. Socrates.]

"Seen," says Koestler, "from the melancholy angle of a Continental [or rather of that bunch of homeless Leftists to whom I belong . . .], the bankruptcy of Left horizontalism is becoming increasingly apparent."

He feels that the spreading of "Russian pseudo-communism over Europe can be stopped only by a true Socialist movement . . . the creation of a new fraternity in a new spiritual climate, whose leaders are tied to a vow of poverty to share the life of the masses, and debarred by the laws of fraternity from attaining unchecked power."

In the same essay, he notes that never in history "has a ruling class or caste voluntarily relinquished its privileges and power. . . . Individual members of a ruling class may have an enlightened philosophy; the class as such is fatally bound to obey the rules of the struggle for power." [Cf. Koestler.]

And in the first sentence of the first essay in the book, we read: "I like to imagine an instrument which would enable us to break up patterns of social behaviour as the physicist breaks up a beam of rays. . . . Looking thru this sociological spectroscope . . . the whole distressing muddle would become neat, clear, and comprehensive." [Cf. God.]

Young Jack Rabbit Gets His Education

"HOP-A-LONG," by Loyd Tireman. [University of New Mexico Press, $1.25.]

In this second book of the Mesaland Series designed to acquaint small children with the animals and plants of the southwest, a young jack rabbit learns some valuable lessons from Big Fat and Little Ugly; the prairie dogs, and from Hungry Owl, and meets adventure in a sand storm and a snow storm. The author and Ralph Douglass, the illustrator, both members of the faculty of the University of New Mexico, previously collaborated in another book, "Baby Jack and Jumping Jack Rabbit," which has been republished. Their style is lively like their subject.

THE INSPIRING STORY OF AMERICA'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE UNIVERSAL FIGHT FOR INDIVIDUAL FREEDOM

The AMERICAN REVOLUTION and Its Influence on WORLD CIVILIZATION

BY ROBERT R. McCORMICK
Editor and Publisher of the Chicago Tribune

- What was the effect of the American Revolution in Latin America, Canada, in the lands bordering the Pacific, in England and Europe?
- Who built a government so strong that when they lost control of it they were unable to break it down?
- Where was forged the only government which has been able to function in peace and war without overthrowing the liberties of the people?
- What American statesman advised the British minister how to outmaneuver America?
- Why did our conduct in the Philippines break every precedent of the conduct of white men in the Pacific?
- To what American ambassador has a monument been raised in Westminster Abbey—near that of Major Andre?

THESE QUESTIONS and many others are answered in this arresting narrative which tells of the effects of the American escape from tyranny and how counter-revolutionary forces underlie today's world crisis. In support of the thesis that the American Revolution was the turning point in the world's history, this new book traces the struggle made by various peoples to enjoy the human rights inherent in the principle of self-government.

Marshaling historical facts since the revolt of 13 of the 17 British colonies in North America, the author identifies the influences which would stifle the human gains inspired by America's example.

Sound in scholarship, plenary in concept and exhaustively documented, this record identifies the reactionary forces threatening the ideas which not only have made America great, but also gave tremendous impetus to social and political progress thruout the world.

Here, for the first time, is condensed for quick reading, by layman and student, the story of the impact of America's ideals on world civilization. Throwing new light on many significant conflicts which advanced or impeded the fight for individual freedom and self-government, this new book is a powerful, closely-reasoned discussion of the opposing forces behind today's world problem and outlines America's potential contribution to its solution.

ADRIA LOCKE LANGLEY'S "A Lion Is in the Streets" is having a tremendous sale in Chicago. . . . Nearly every book store here reports it has been the No. 1 best seller ever since publication. . . . The book business, like so many others, is highly unpredictable. . . . In contrast to Mrs. Langley's action-packed new novel, Ira Wolfert's thrilling "American Guerrilla in the Philippines," published April 22, so far has not had the sale forecast for it. . . . And this despite excellent reviews by topnotch critics. . . . Some of the experts are wondering whether the Wolfert book suffered from a rather dull jacket or from the fact that the critics praised it for its high literary value rather than for its human interest.

THE JUNIOR BOOKSHELF

By Agatha L. Shea

TITLE	SUBJECT	VERDICT
"JONICA'S ISLAND," by Gladys Malvern. [Messner, $2.]	When Jonica Kleiger became indentured servant to the Van der Voort family in old New Amsterdam, she was a happy little girl. Soon, however, misadventure overtook her in the new life, and before the mystery was cleared up, she had been thru an Indian uprising and a smallpox epidemic.	Mystery, adventure, and romance make this story of 17th century America a thrilling tale with an unforgettable heroine. One of the year's best books for older girls. Illustrations by Corinne Malvern accentuate the "humanness" of the story.
"ALL THOSE BUCKLES," by E. R. Gaggin. [Viking, $2.]	Braeside was a quiet little village, and it didn't quite see how it could take in the Buckle family with those six lively children even tho they had lost their farm home to the air corps for a base. But when those six children revived old friendships between neighbors, and turned the whole town into one big neighborhood, Braeside knew it couldn't get along without them.	One of the season's finest stories, with a lovable family and a mother who knows just how to manage them.
"WIZARD AND HIS MAGIC POWDER," by Alfred S. Campbell. [Knopf, $1.75.]	Tales of the Wizard of Jersey who, because of his wisdom, his magic powers, and his valuable thinking cap, solved many a problem for his neighbors.	A collection of folk tales from the Channel Islands. For fourth and fifth grade readers.

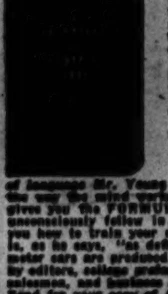
A Technique for Producing Ideas



Where do the money-making ideas come from—those ideas that make successful novels, radio programs, moving pictures, advertising campaigns, and businesses? James Webb Young, one of the highest paid idea men in the advertising business, set out to answer this question for his students at the University of Chicago. The result is a little book that you can read in an hour but will remember the rest of your life. In the simplest and clearest of language Mr. Young has succeeded in describing the way the mind works in all creative people. He gives you the FORMULA which they consciously or unconsciously follow in producing ideas. He shows you how to train your mind so that idea production is, as he says, "as definite as the process by which motor cars are produced." These Tales Will Please Male Reader

"HALF-A-HUNDRED: Tales by Great American Writers," edited by Charles Grayson. [Blakiston, $3.]

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil

Perhaps the best way to review this book would be to quote verbatim the "overture" which the editor has written as an introduction. But that procedure would deprive the reviewer of the privilege of telling what he thinks is the rightness and the wrongness of it. Not that there is anything much wrong. This is a collection of 50 stories, all of them entertaining and some of them magnificent, from as many living American writers — good, solid reading in the sort of book that can be picked up and read for a half hour or so and then laid up for the next period of leisure.

Capt. Charles Grayson

But when the editor says that these writers "form such a team as to end all anthologies like this for a long time to come . . ." he seems to be claiming a pinnacle of superiority that can't be touched until these or other writers turn out some better stories — a claim much at variance with the modest title, which calls them merely "tales by great American writers."

Capt. Grayson also remarks in his introduction that he is fed up with the "dreadful type of clambake" usually put out by anthologists, in which "tired titles" appear again and again. He says, "For the most part the reputations of those venerable yarns are [something omitted] because they were first in the field, not because they have remained preëminent in it." Well, well! I have always thought that good yarns never die, but Grayson wants to bury them.

It's a false premise. There isn't a single story in this book which is superior to the old favorites, tho some may achieve a similar immortality. But what really hurts Grayson's argument is that he had no guiding principle in his selection: these are stories he liked very much or which were highly praised by his friends and army comrades. Their choices make a fine array of present day writers, and a variety of types and techniques. But not in every instance is the story chosen one of that author's best. Good, yes, but that isn't enough.

So now you see why it would have been wrong to use Capt. Grayson's introduction as a review. He thinks most anthologies are dreadful clambakes; I still maintain there are no bad story collections — but some are better than others. This is one of the best, and it will appeal strongly to masculine readers, because the stories are all by male writers, and are the sort that men like. You couldn't get a better book for a service man.

An Author Who Lived Her Own Book of Thrills

"NO PASSPORT TO PARIS," by Alice-Leone Moats. [Putnam, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

The author of "Blind Date with Mars" reveals herself again in her new book as a courageous, hardworking and objective reporter, determined wherever possible to get her news firsthand.

In 1943 she went to Spain as a correspondent, fortunate in speaking the language fluently and possessing valuable contacts. She made friends with zealous members of the Falange as well as republicans with prison haircuts. She traveled everywhere, visiting the slums of Madrid, a fair at Seville, a concentration camp for foreigners near Burgos, a wedding in Galicia. Fourteen months of close study convinced her that, altho nine out of ten Spaniards disliked Franco, they were grateful to him for keeping them out of the war and for improving their living conditions. The people she found truly neutral, wanting only peace and the reconstruction of their country.

Meanwhile, the intrepid Miss Moats had resolved to visit occupied France. And so in April, 1944, armed with a forged passport, her trip arranged by members of the French underground, she crossed the Pyrenees by foot and donkey back in a perilous adventure reminiscent of a Helen MacInnes thriller. The thrills continued all the way to Paris where one day she interviewed leaders of the French underground and the next incautiously dined with French collaborationists who numbered a German minister among their guests.

The only allied journalist to enter Nazi-held territory during the war, her account of the three weeks she spent in France makes fascinating reading.

Rocket Power in Past and Future Here Discussed

"THE COMING AGE OF ROCKET POWER," by G. Edward Pendray. [Harper, $3.50.]

This is the heyday of that little group of men who for many years have braved the guffaws of the world and gone steadily ahead perfecting their knowledge of rockets. Fantastic stories about trips to other planets had put a brake on popular acceptance of rocket flights. No man knows this better than G. Edward Pendray, secretary of the American Rocket society and one of its founders in 1930.

Now the jet bombs and planes and the German V-2 rocket bomb have made the world conscious that at last the age old science of rocket flight is reaching maturity and will have a profound effect upon our lives. What that effect may be is part of the subject matter of Mr. Pendray's illuminating book. He traces the history of rocket flight with admirable completeness, and analyzes in understandable language the possibilities for the future. Many illustrations make this one of the best introductions to a very up-to-the-minute subject. WILL DAVIDSON

WHY have there been 105,000 advance orders for this first novel by an unknown writer?

BECAUSE it is

"a robust tale, full of the untamed, coarse eloquence of a backwoods spellbinder, dramatizing the two passions of a domineering man—love and power—spiced with a vernacular of amusing folk talk and rough expletives... The story glows with life... The pitch is high and the feeling intense throughout... It is one of the best-told novels of 1945."

RICHARDSON WRIGHT, N.Y. Herald Tribune Book Review: "For a good many years Louis Bromfield has been working up to this book ... Pleasant Valley is the story of Malabar Farm and of the spiritual awakening that comes to those who make the desert places glad ... A crusading book? Certainly it's a crusading book —and an important one. A book that every countryman and every gardener should read and get excited about."

HARRY HANSEN, N. Y. World-Telegram: "... one of the most heartening books that has ever come from a sophisticated city chap... You'll enjoy it, even if a penthouse terrace is your idea of a lawn. For it is that amazing contradiction—an optimistic book about farming."

LOUIS BROMFIELD'S

Pleasant Valley

ORVILLE PRESCOTT, *N. Y. A Burocrat's Apology for Burocracy

"BIG DEMOCRACY," by Paul H. Appleby. [Knopf, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Walter Trohan

Here, for all the world to see, is the working of the burocrat mind. Mr. Appleby, who undertakes the defense of the burocrat, is qualified to do so by 11 years on the public pay roll: 1933-'40, assistant secretary of agriculture; 1940-'44, undersecretary of agriculture; 1941-'42, member of the United States food mission to Britain; 1941, chairman, international wheat conference; 1942, chairman, international wheat council; 1942-'43, assistant to the secretary of state; head, office of foreign territories; 1943, delegate to the Hot Springs, Va., international food conference; 1943, United States member of the united nations' interim commission on food and agriculture, and 1944, assistant director, bureau of the budget.

It is Mr. Appleby's thesis, albeit a specious one, that big democracy differs from little democracy as the complex differs from the simple. Under "big" democracy the government, and inevitably the burocrat, is going to have more responsibility and power. Mr. Appleby insists the burocrat is at heart a fine, hard working fellow who only takes over power to be the servant of his fellowmen and not for any love of power itself, and with scarcely a thought of his own status in life or its advancement.

This is reminiscent of the ingenuous argument of the Florida statesman, Sen. Pepper, that congress should reserve the authority to declare big wars and delegate the authority to a world organization delegate to declare little wars. Mr. Pepper did not undertake to define what is a little war and what is a big war. To this reviewer war is war and democracy is government by the people, and you can't sugar coat an oligarchy of burocracy by calling it "big" democracy.

A Prize Winning Story of German Days of Unrest

"YEARS BEFORE THE FLOOD," by Marianne Roane. [Scribner's, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Arno L. Bader

This is a timely story of so-called "good" and "bad" Germans. John Rant, an American of German descent, pays a visit to his relatives who run a toy factory in the small south German town of Gundelfingen. His cousin, Friedrich Rant, is the same man he has always known—harried, short of temper, American in his passion for efficiency and progress, but withal human, honest, and of liberal opinions. And Eleonore, his wife, is the same emotional but unintelligent woman around whom the social life of the family centers.

Marianne Roane

Yet something, the American senses, is wrong. Gradually he sees that what is wrong is the Germany of 1927, the Germany between Versailles and Hitler in which resentment, unrest, and violence are growing. Friedrich Rant, who has watched these new developments in his country with misgivings, eventually accepts the advice of his cousin and leaves for America. His wife, after toying momentarily with a young Nazi doctor, follows him with their daughter.

"Years Before the Flood," a first novel and winner of a Hopwood award, is a sensitively written book. The author excels in characterization, and the portraits of Friedrich, Eleonore, and the child Magdelone are vivid and convincing.

Life in Forest Is Described in Idyllic Fashion

"NINE MILE BRIDGE," by Helen Hamlin. [Norton, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Russell MacFall

Not many school marms marry game wardens, and fewer still go to live for three years in one of the bleakest wildernesses of America — the northern timberlands of Maine. And probably Helen Hamlin is the only one who would have enjoyed it and had the wit to describe her experiences as entertainingly as she has done in "Nine Mile Bridge." As the granddaughter and niece of Maine game wardens, she was no stranger to the woods and lakes of her native state. When she was graduated from normal school she applied for a school in Churchill in a lumbering and trapping region near Quebec.

Helen Hamlin

Here she regularly was proposed to and regularly turned down French-Canadian lumberjack suitors until Curly, a Maine game warden, won her and they went to live at Umsaskis lake, where neighbors were miles away and the ranger telephone line was the only means of communication with frontier civilization thruout the winter.

The first year they ran short of food and developed a deep repugnance to beans; the next year they moved into a larger log cabin at Nine Mile Bridge, and became experts at living alone and liking it. Training of a husky dog team, fishing and hunting trips, visits from the outdoors men—trappers, sportsmen, and wood characters—are incidents posed against the background of the seasons. For winter and its deep snows, the brief unfolding of spring, summer with its freedom and its deer flies, and the glory of autumn in the woods are the ever present verities of such a life to a degree unknown to the city dweller.

But as Curly once said: "We are rich. We are healthy and we live the way we want to live." Mrs. Hamlin's book is a testimony that she, too, enjoyed her three years in the woods, and that she has had the enthusiasm and the talent to make the reader share their small excitements and primitive pleasures.

What Makes Men Normal Is Studied

"YOUNG MAN, YOU ARE NORMAL," by Earnest A. Hooton. [Putnam, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Wilton M. Krogman

Anthropologist Hooton has long protested that the medical profession studies only the unwell, and that even the army only superficially defines a 1-A. At Harvard, under the Grant study, they finally gathered 268 "normal" [i. e., good physical and scholastic condition] young men. These human guinea pigs were exhaustively analyzed by a battery of tests: anthropological, morphological, physiological, endocrinological, neurological, psychiatric, psychological, sociological, and medical. Hooton reports on the study.

Earnest A. Hooton

The 268 paragons average 19.57 years old, are 5 feet 10¼ inches tall, weigh 158.5 pounds, tend to be long headed, with dark brown hair, dark eyes; are of rugged muscular build and generally have good posture; 88.5 per cent of them come from the New England and east central areas; they are mostly Protestant; 66.6 per cent come from families where the annual income exceeds $5,000 and 38.3 per cent are defined as in an "upper social bracket"; in intelligence they rank in the 97th percentile, which means they exceed the average [50 per cent] by 47 per cent.

The subjects were classed on a personality basis as "sound" [37 per cent], with "minor flaws" [45 per cent], and as "handicapped" [18 per cent]. With respect to general physical appearance they were classed as "strongly" masculine [90 per cent] and "moderately," "weakly," or "very weakly" masculine [10 per cent]. In most of the many other physical, physiological, and psychological performance tests the strongly masculine type shows marked superiority.

Hooten evidences a strong eugenical bias thruout, urging stricter hereditary, biological selection. The book, popularly written, reads like a highbrow "plug" for the muscle molders, the body builders, the "physique gets the gals" boys. It seems that if your muscles are O. K. your mind and manners will tag along!

THE MURDER CHART

By Drexel Drake

ENTRY	PERFORMANCE	PAYOFF
"POINTER TO A CRIME," by A. Fielding. [Mystery House, $2.]	Soon after young Mrs. Annabelle Robson received a large inheritance, she was murdered. Unsavory circumstances pointed strongly to a male cousin who profited strongly by her death, and a young woman infatuated with Annabelle's husband.	Well built up puzzle with clews pointing in wrong directions. Murderer planned cleverly, but detective was even more clever.
"MURDER IN PLAIN SIGHT," by Gerald Brown. [Phoenix, $2.]	So many avaricious women had part interests in handsome Curt Vallaincourt that Duke McCale, private detective, had a knotty problem on his hands when Curt was murdered, just before he was to marry 30 million dollar Boston heiress.	Altho action in this smoothly written tale is too long delayed, it is a well plotted puzzle with surprising twists. Colorful demonstration of greed for luxury working overtime.
"THE MORGUE THE MERRIER," by June Truesdell. [Dodd, Mead, $2.]	As soon as John Grover and his bride arrived at the house he had rented, a corpse they discovered disappeared. There followed a succession of murders, delaying the honeymoon endlessly.	Plot is loose jointed. Some eerie spots in the tale but it piles up episodes in a fashion to make it a balmy concoction.
"MONEY TO BURN," by Helen Woodward. [McKay, $2.]	Some one stole $8,000 from cashier's cage in furniture store during excitement caused by waste basket fire. Search for thief among employes, who included three glamor girls, impeded by murder of one who was about to spill facts.	Wordiness and detail slow pace of fairly interesting crime puzzle. Plot has good points but characterization is shallow.

People Like Those Every One Knows

"THE HUMAN IMAGE," by Robert Smith. [Harper, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kenneth Horan

The people in this delightful story are wholly natural and entirely endearing. Mrs. Johnson, the fairly youngish heroine, has two small sons and a husband who has left her to fend for herself. She keeps a boarding house, when she can get any one to take rooms with her, and one night her dreams are interrupted by the sound of a burglar crashing about on the first floor. Springing from her far from downy couch, she leaps downstairs and into a situation that forms a new pattern for her life.

Robert Smith

It takes place in a Boston suburb in the year 1917, and there are a great many people involved in Mrs. Johnson's fate. In fact, they form a kind of merry-go-round that swings her and her two boys into an easier and a far more exciting sphere of activity.

Robert Smith, author of "Hotel on the Lake," has a particular gift for depicting human nature in action. He tells his stories with such faithfulness that his characters become familiar and real and the reader is inclined to pause and say, "Why, I know some one just like that." His people are made up of goodness and badness, of heroism and cowardice, of generosity and selfishness.

They form an entirely recognizable slice of life, and altho in this instance their field of activity is a Boston suburb, they have their counterparts all over America. Wherever there are struggling, striving, happy and unhappy human beings, there are people like Robert Smith's characters. It is a refreshing thing to read about their entirely natural reactions.

10 Books Listed for Improving Race Relations

By Frederic Babcock

In connection with the Chicago Conference on Home Front Unity, now being presented by the Mayor's Committee on Race Relations in co-operation with representative local organizations, THE TRIBUNE'S Book department has been asked to name ten recent books which it regards as the most important or significant in the effort to cement and improve race relations here and elsewhere.

These selections have been made by Fanny Butcher, Kelsey Guilfoil, and Polly Goodwin of this department:

"Freedom Road," by Howard Fast.

"George Washington Carver," by Rackham Holt.

"Black Boy," by Richard Wright.

"Strange Fruit," by Lillian Smith.

"Earth and High Heaven," by Gwethalyn Graham.

"American Dilemma," by Gunnar Myrdal.

"Let My People Go," by Henrietta Buckmaster.

"Deep River," by Henrietta Buckmaster.

"New World A-Coming," by Roi Ottley.

"Swing Low," by Edwin A. Peeples.

The first session of the conference was held in the city council chambers last Tuesday afternoon. On Tuesday of this week the subject will be "Forces That Divide Us," with Prof. Melville J. Herskovits, Oscar C. Brown, Max Kroloff, Edwin Morgenroth, Dr. Harold Ruopp, Henry Epstein, and Thomas H. Wright taking part in the round table discussion. At the final session, Tuesday afternoon of next week, the topic will be "Plans for Democratic Living."

Edwin R. Embree is chairman of the committee sponsoring the meetings, and Thomas H. Wright is executive director.

A Child's Prayer for Little Things

"A PRAYER FOR LITTLE THINGS," by Eleanor Farjeon. [Houghton Mifflin, 85 cents.]

Democratic Methods in Employment

"MEN AT WORK: Democratic Methods for the Power Age," by Stuart Chase. [Harcourt, Brace, $2.]

Reviewed by Arthur Bergholz

The general reader has come to rely upon Stuart Chase for information upon emergent economic needs and progress. He will not be disappointed in these excellent case studies of the growing art of human relations as a factor in industrial efficiency, and in the forms of democratic coöperation between citizens and their government to improve their way of life.

Stuart Chase

Somewhat more than half of the work is devoted to on-the-spot studies of the expansion of personnel techniques to meet the needs of total production. The remainder of the work gives three descriptions of communities: a city, a farm community, and a whole region [TVA], solving new problems to the mutual benefit of all its members.

Space does not permit equal treatment of both. However, the premise of the techniques used in both kinds of activities is the same and comment upon it in terms of personnel relations will serve to give the reader light upon what Stuart Chase has done in this vivid and significant work.

Industrial personnel relations had their genesis in applicant interviewing, record keeping, job description. From this simple beginning personnel management began to undertake aptitude testing, to analyze jobs by time and motion studies. It borrowed most heavily from psychology and industrial engineering.

When, however, it discovered that it could not account for all the factors affecting an employee's efficiency it began to relate the findings of anthropology, sociology, and psychiatry concerning human nature to its problems.

Once this borrowing became extensive and carefully correlated to working conditions, a momentous discovery was made. It was that the worker brought his total personality to his job, not merely his skills. An individual as a personality is a composition of skills and social attitudes and sentiments. As a worker he is affected by what he feels and thinks outside his job as much as what he does on the job itself.

This discovery meant a broader base for personal techniques. But in itself it was incomplete, for it had an equally important corollary: managers, too, bring their total personalities to their jobs. Once managers and workers tackled their jobs as persons, and not one as a manipulator and the other as automaton, new standards of industrial efficiency were created.

Stuart Chase traces the emergence of the new methods which arose out of this dual discovery. He recounts the pioneering work done in the Western Electric plant where the first experiments were documented and so ably recorded in the book "Management and the Worker." He goes on to tell of the utilization of these findings and their expansion to incorporate the managers themselves in the work of the training within industry programs [TWI].

Obvious as this discovery appears, it is of great germinal importance for future democratic action. It places as regulative principles, the instinct of workmanship, human decency, mutual respect rather than acquisitiveness, selfishness, and individual aggrandizement.

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

HARRY J. OWENS of our town has done a brand new, American language translation of the famous old classic, "The Scandalous Adventures of Reynard the Fox." . . . Reynard was first translated in 1481 by William Caxton, the first English printer. . . . Mr. Owens follows in the tradition of Caxton, for he is a member of the firm of R. R. Donnelley & Sons, Chicago printers. . . . Goethe did the great modern poetic version of the tale in 1794. . . . John Masefield, poet laureate of England, took the title for an epic in 1919.

Mr. Owens, who obviously enjoyed every moment of his work in bringing this amusing classic into modern idiom, says: "The medieval story tellers who originally brought the material together saturated it with genius. That is why the book was a best seller for centuries and why it remains a story that will never grow old. . . . No one can read 'The Scandalous Adventures of Reynard the Fox' without recognizing some of his friends and enemies."

A Shining Lure for Readers

Mr. Owens, in introducing the delightful scoundrel, says: "The History of Reynard the Fox should be read, first of all, for sheer amusement. It is not only one of the funniest stories ever written, but it offers rich entertainment in amazing variety; razor edged wit, fast moving adventure, intrigue, oratory, and salesmanship which produce results before your eyes, priceless satire, romance [of a sort; perhaps we had better call it sex]. Only one thing you will never find in it and that is boredom."

That paragraph, your Spotlighter claims, is the most titillating advertising copy of the season—altho it is intended merely as an introduction to the book. . . . That delicate touch about sex takes the gold plated fox's brush in this literary hunt. . . . Illustrations by Keith Ward are in the satiric mood. . . . The book will be published June 11.

To celebrate Thomas Mann's 70th birthday on June 6, a new translation into English by H. T. Lowe-Porter is being printed of the story, "The Tables of the Law," which originally appeared in the collection of anti-nazi tales called "The Ten Commandments." . . . It is a retelling of the early life of Moses.

A Key to the Kehoes

The Dodd, Mead intercollegiate fellowship award of $1,200, given annually to an undergraduate in an American or Canadian college who plans a career as a writer—won first by Maureen Daly with her fresh and tender "Seventeenth Summer"—was a dual award this year to Constance Beresford-Howe of McGill university in Montreal and to Karon Kehoe of Hunter college, New York. . . . Kehoe is also the name of the winner of an Avery Hopwood award presented each year to a student or recent graduate of the University of Michigan—William Kehoe. . . . His book, "A Sweep of Dusk," will be published on June 15. . . . He is now living in New York. . . . Their enterprising publishers ought to give a joint "Key to the Kehoes" party.

I have never seen stranger bedfellows, so to speak, on a bookshelf than three books which stood side by side on our review shelves last week. . . . "The Bedside Treasury of Love," selected by T. Everett Harré; "Male Call," the comic strip by Milton Caniff of "the effortless war activities of Miss Lace," which the camp newspapers carried to every GI's delight, and the second volume of Helene Deutsch's "Psychology of Women," titled "Motherhood." . . . One of the office wags insists that Veronica Dengel's "Hold Your Man!" should have been there, too.

Hervey Allen Halfway

Word has just come from Farrar & Rinehart, his publishers, that if no unexpected delays intervene, Hervey Allen will reach the half way mark of his gigantic novel, "The Disinherited," with the publication of the third part of the work in late 1946. . . . It will be called "The City of Dawn." . . . Then, with the addition of a little material, the three books will be published in one volume to be called "Sylvania." . . . Incidentally, "Anthony Adverse" has just gone into its 36th edition, this one of 10,000 copies.

"Bedford Village" was, you remember, the second of the proposed three parts of "Sylvania," which is to be just half of the completed work of "The Disinherited." . . . Most of us thought that upper New York state was the locale of Bedford Village. . . . An enlightening letter from Alice B. Flitcraft informs me that Old Fort Bedford is now Bedford, Pa. . . . "Mr. Allen spent many summers there with his family, as a boy, in the old Judge Hall estate. . . . [He] was in Bedford some time collecting material for his book. The place is brimming with historical interest. It is on the original trail between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh now called the Lincoln highway. The people at home would be crushed to learn that folks in the midwest are giving credit to New York state for Bedford village. It has been the first opportunity to actually put Bedford on the map."

Speaking of trails, our former fellow Chicagoan, Julia Cooley Altrocchi, has written a scholarly and interesting book on "The Old California Trail," the old Oregon-California route which lured the pioneers of covered wagon days. . . . Mrs. Altrocchi is now living in Berkeley, Cal., where her husband is a professor at the university.

"Black Boy" Travels Far

Richard Wright's "Black Boy" is certainly doing some traveling. . . . It has been bought by Sweden, Palestine, England, Denmark, Norway, and Brazil for publication in those countries. . . . The dramatic rights to his "Native Son" have been sold to Argentina and Sweden, and the Stockholm and Buenos Aires premieres of the play took place simultaneously in March. . . . Switzerland also has taken an option on the play for production in Germany and Denmark some time—and Switzerland has also recently bought the German rights to the original novel, "Native Son," as have Brazil, Sweden, and Argentina. . . . To date there have been circulated a total of 410,000 copies of "Black Boy" in the U. S. A.

The popularity of Richard Wright's books is explainable on any score, either of interest or of literary skill, but how do you explain this? A correspondent who was covering the capture of Manila swears that when he climbed to an artillery post beside the Pasig river, overlooking the beseiged Intramures, everything was ablaze. . . . Shells from long toms whistled. . . . Machine guns spattered. . . . But thru it all Capt. Francis X. Shannon Jr. of Cincinnati sat in a chair absorbed in reading, believe it or not, Margery Wilson's "Pocket Book of Etiquette."

THE GOLDEN TOTEM

BY BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

(Copyright: 1945: By Barrett Willoughby)

INSTALMENT XXII.

A COUPLE of hours later Stella was moving efficiently about the kitchen at Illahee, tossing up a salad, frying bacon, scrambling eggs. She wore fresh white slacks and a shirt, with an apron about her waist. Her red hair was slicked back into a knot on the nape of her neck, and a total absence of make-up gave her face a young, almost innocent look.

She kept going to the window to look out at Perry, pacing the terrace. He still wore his damp clothes covered with the soil of his fire fighting; and as he walked his bare head turned so that his anxious eyes were always on the entrance of the cove.

He and Stella, after futile attempts to put out the cabin fire, had devoted their efforts to keeping it from spreading to the timber. Fortunately, the trees had been cleared away from the building for some distance. They did not leave until there was nothing left of the honeymoon cabin but a jumbled square of burning logs, still whipped by the wind, but no menace to anything near-by.

On the way back to Illahee, the sobered and subdued Stella briefly told Perry of Lynn's attempt to wake him; the girl's departure alone in the Julie to overtake MacFarlane, and her, Stella's, ride up Melody Hill to get Court Faber's assistance.

Stella came out on the terrace again, her kitchen apron fluttering about her slacks. She was carrying a tray with two ice-clinking highballs on it.

"Salud, amigo!" she called, with forced cheerfulness. "This is one time when you actually need a drink. Toss this one off and then come in and throw some hot chow into you. You haven't had anything to eat since morning."

"Thanks, Stella. But I'm not having any——" He tapped the back of his middle finger against the glass she held out to him. Then he glanced at his wristwatch. "They ought to be showing up now any minute, don't you think?"

She looked into his tortured young face, blackened by smoke and the charred wood of the fire. Something akin to pity and remorse moved at the back of her big dark eyes. "Dont worry so much, Perry. That guy Faber has run up and down this inlet ever since he was a kid. He'll find her, all right."

He passed a hand over his eyes. "God, Stella, it's awful to be so helpless. No boat. Do you suppose they'd stop for something at Periwinkle Isle? Lynn was always wanting to get ashore there. Maybe that's why they're late!"

He turned and brought a hand down on her shoulder. His face had a new look of purpose. "Stella, I've grown up today. I've become a man—and not a drinking man, either." He smiled his boyish, beguiling smile. "Give me your blessing, lady.

"There's a little job I've got to do over at the mine right away. When I come back, I'll put both horses up for the night. Lynn will be here by that time. I'll wait and eat dinner with her. I'll have something very important to tell her."

In the plunging Stardust, Lynn clung to a hand hold, cringing as the boarding sea smashed against the front glass of the cabin. She heard it rush overhead and pour into the cockpit. Some of it gushed thru the opening in front of the wheel and slapped her in the face. She kept her eyes closed and her lips pressed together lest she cry out.

In a daze of fear she waited for what might happen next to a foundering cruiser.

She couldn't credit her senses when she felt the clutch of the current slacken . . . felt the Stardust return almost to an even keel . . . felt the water smoothing out.

Then she heard Court say, "Open your eyes, Lyneen."

Slowly she lifted her lids. She was looking across a twilight expanse of wind-roughened sea into the sunset. The last of the crimson and gold glory was raying up behind a mass of magnificent purple clouds that held fire in their hearts. Astern, the portals of the Bottleneck darkly lifted. And just outside them a line of tide rips leaped and foamed like gnashing teeth stained with the red of the sunset.

The Stardust had come thru. They were safe. Lynn went weak with relief, and a reverent joy filled her heart. She said quietly, "The earth is so beautiful, so wonderful. And—and you are, too, Court," she added shyly.

He turned a face that was anything but beautiful with the wind whipping his hair about above the red band. When he smiled at her she saw that running the Bottleneck had taken a tremendous toll of him. "It was the luck of the Irish, and my memory of Flan's eddy that brought us thru," he answered, and, reaching over, he covered her hand with his.

He could steer with one hand now. They stood that way for a while, neither of them speaking. The Stardust, rising and falling on the swells, was headed down the darkening coast. The twilight was soothing. Lynn felt no curiosity as to their destination. She was vastly content just to be alive—and beside him.

After a while she remarked, thoughtfully. "Ever since I came to Alaska, Court, you have somehow always been on hand to rescue me from some mess I've gotten myself into. How did you know where I was this time?"

"Mrs. Chandler rode up to the penthouse to tell me. She was worried about you, and sorry, I think, about something she had done to MacFarlane."

"Yes." Lynn's voice was toneless. "I didn't find him, Court. He wasn't in the skiff. Do you think . . ." She couldn't finish the sentence.

He started to say something, checked himself; and silently pressed her hand.

Lynn's teeth began chattering. "Good Lord, Lynn! I forgot your clothes are soaked. Hold the wheel."

He took a slicker from a hook, put it on her, and snapped it together all the way up to her chin. "In thirty minutes—or less," he promised her, "you'll be sitting beside a roaring fire, drinking coffee."

"Brrrrrr!" gratefully responded Lynn.

They entered a small cove sheltered from the wind by encircling hills, and filled with evening purple. Court cut the engine. Silently the cruiser coasted on smooth, silver water, its prow shoving into ripples the dark reflection of the shore. A deep, satisfying sense of repose flowed into Lynn.

There was the end of the cove ahead—a crescent beach with dusk-blurred masses of foliage above it and a silhouetted row of tall totems leaning into the twilight. Lynn recognized the deserted Thlinget village Greer had shown her the day he took her to Illahee.

Court said, "We can't go back home until low water, about nine o'clock. I thought you wouldn't mind waiting here."

Lynn knew he was going to take her ashore to the Indian ruins, but she was not prepared for the impressive spectacle that awaited her when he led her into the small, cleared space before the Chief's House.

The entrance to the house was an oval opening between the folded wings of the lowest figure on the totem. Court drew aside the deer hide that hung within. Feeling that she was taking part in some ancient ritual, Lynn stepped thru.

She found herself in a room perhaps forty feet square, tanged with the pungency of ancient woodsmoke, and lighted only by a driftlog fire flaming on a square of earth left bare in the middle of the planked floor. Sparks soared up with the smoke thru a hole in the low, black roof.

Lynn was standing a couple of feet higher than the floor on a wide platform that extended around the four walls.

Court was pleased by the wonder and interest she expressed. He said, "I knew you'd like it—Alaska, as it was before the Russians came. In that farthest corner you'll find a little cubbyhole of a room where the Chief used to sleep. I've put some of my clothes and a blanket there—things I had aboard the Stardust. If you'll change and toss out your wet things, I'll put them by the fire to dry. And then I'll see what provisions Tonglaw left in his cache under the platform."

Later, when she returned to the fire, Court seated her on evergreen boughs over which he had spread the blanket. Her damp hair had dried in dusky-gold ringlets all over her head; she was bare-legged; and the rest of her was all but lost in white cotton shorts and a shirt, tattered but clean. He looked her over and, with laughter in his voice and warm approval in his eyes, addressed her as "Huckleberry Finn."

As he moved about getting supper he kept up a flow of information that took Lynn's mind off the loss of MacFarlane, as, doubtless, it was intended to do. "Tonglaw and I," he remarked casually, "had lots of fun in this old Indian house when we were kids. His grandparents always came down here to catch their winter supply of salmon, and we'd tag along. They were caretakers for the old hunting cabin my family used before Illahee was built—the place you now use for an office—but they lived, of course, on Periwinkle Isle."

"O! So that's why——" She checked herself. If she told him she had paddled down the inlet that night and watched him and Tonglaw laughing over their papers in the Periwinkle cabin, he might think she'd been eavesdropping. "I mean," she dissembled, "I wonder why I never thought of Tong as belonging in this section of the country. Possibly because Mr. Greer once told me he had hired him in Seattle."

"He did. Tong had gone down to San Francisco for a vacation—he'd been studying law pretty hard at the university—and as usual he'd gone broke playing the ponies. He'd worked his way back to Seattle, arriving just in time to get himself hired by Jeff Greer. Greer asked him no questions, and of course, Tong isn't a talkative gent." Court grinned. "What sort of houseman does he make, Lynn?"

"He's superb! But I didn't think so the day I arrived. He brought my luggage up to the ivory room and when I thanked him he gave me the most scornful and the meanest look I've ever seen. I thought he was going to throw me out."

"I know. That was my mother's room. He was devoted to her, and somehow he got the wrong impression of you——"

"You needn't be so delicate about it, Court. Mrs. Strum, kind, blunt soul, got the same impression and told me about it." Lynn could laugh at that now.

"I soon set Tong right. He no doubt became remotely polite and—"

"Remote? Heavens! Why, he was always at my heels. Sometimes I'd get furious because I thought he was spying on me. Then again—well, he acted like my bodyguard."

"He was, Lynn. Pinch-hitting for me."

"Are you kidding, Court?"

"No. I didn't like the setup at Illahee. I thought it well for you to have a friend close by. Especially before Mrs. Chandler came. But—" he deftly broke an egg into the frying pan—"We don't need to go into that."

Remembering Tonglaw's timely arrival the night she and Greer were alone in the living room, Lynn felt herself flush. Then her mind raced back thru past weeks at Illahee. "Those flowers I used to find on my desk at the office in the morning—there haven't been any since Tong went away."

"I know it. It would have looked pretty funny if Greer had come in some morning and found me arranging posies on his secretary's desk."

They laughed together at the picture his words had conjured up.

"The flowers were lovely, Court. And that note with the water lilies lured me up to Martin Lake that day I found you and Flan there."

He lifted the frying pan up from the coals, and held it so, while he turned his radiant smile on her. "It did? That was a day to remember always. Only—it spoiled me rather badly. Every time I pass Martin Rock, now, I feel cheated because I don't find you there."

He arranged supper on the narrow planked space between them. Bacon and scrambled eggs, crackers, canned pineapple, and a blackened steaming pot of coffee. Lynn thought it the most delicious food she had ever eaten.

She put her coffee cup down and he held a lighted match to her cigaret, and to his own.

"Nice." She drew out the word, contentedly.

They smiled at each other, then smoked without speaking, their eyes on the rainbow flames of the driftwood. Sparks flew up thru the black hole in the roof.

He broke the silence with an abrupt: "What do you think of me, Lynn?"

She met his direct, waiting look, but evaded a direct answer. "I—I feel as tho I'd known you all my life."

He nodded understandingly. "It does happen that way sometimes. But what I mean is—do you trust me?"

She spoke after a moment's reflection. "I've heard things about you and your mine that have made me doubtful, at times. But always in the end, somehow, I had faith in you."

His dark brows went up unevenly. He gave her a long, glad look that finally took on a hint of humor. "There's only one other thing you could say, Lynn, that would mean as much—or more—to me than that." He paused; then flung up his hand and brought it down with an impatient snap. "Heck! If I could only tell you tonight what—but it's no use. I must wait until the end of the week. I can set you right on one thing, tho. I have no mine. Not yet. I have Melody Hill, and if it would not bore you, I'd like to talk about it."

"Do. I'm getting 'curiouser and curiouser.'"

"You know, Melody's my baby—sort of. And has been ever since Flan told me my grandfather got the quartz for the fireplace from a stringer near the foot of the Hill. I was about 9 years old then. My kid idea, founded on ignorance, of course, was that in Melody we had another Chichagoff mine which, in case you don't know, Lynn, was so darned rich its owners were fond of saying it ran 25% rock.

"But after I learned something about geology and mineralogy I was convinced we had something not as spectacular, perhaps, but far more dependable—a vast deposit of low grade ore. From then on my aim in life was to prove this."

"Then you didn't want to sell Melody Hill to—to any one?"

"I should say not! Melody's to be a family institution, Lynn. My job is to prove we have the ore, and then interest capital enough to develop a mine. Why, I expect my grandson to—but it's a little too soon to be talking about him, isn't it?" He flashed her a grin, and went on: "Just before my last semester Flan and Scud and I staked the Hill for ourselves. Dad owned all Illahee property. Between us we had all the ground we wanted. But none of us had any money. And no one would lend us any, just on the chance that I'd find something in Melody.

"And so the plan was that after I'd finished at the university, Dad and Flan and I would drive in on the old stringer tunnel to see what lay in the heart of Melody Hill. This was the cheapest way to tap the ore body because while the stringer lasted, the gold we took from it would help pay for the evacuation of the tunnel."

Lynn nodded, tho she was vague as to just what he meant.

"Then, if we found—but this stuff must be boring to a girl, Lynn. Let's talk about something else."

"O, no. I want to hear what happened when you came home, a full-fledged mining engineer."

He waited a moment, then continued in a softer tone. "Men don't come any finer than my dad, Lynn. That was the trouble—he was just too darned fine to understand modern business ethics. I found that while I was away that last semester he had tried to make some money to help me. He had invested in some Peruvian mining stock. He didn't write me about it because he thought he was going to surprise me with a big check at commencement. Poor Dad! Well, the upshot of it was I came home to find he'd lost Illahee. The place had passed to a friend of his, Jeff Greer—the Lodge, furnishings, land, stringer tunnel, every darned thing that stood in Dad's name.

"He was heart-broken, of course. But he thought Greer would be glad to let us go in on the stringer tunnel, provided we declared him in on anything we discovered in Melody Hill.

"While I was trying to decide what we should do, Dad got a message from Greer. He was arriving in Juneau on the next steamer.

"Dad insisted on going alone to town in his own little cruiser to meet Greer and bring him back to Illahee. That morning Flan and I had to go up on the Hill to inspect our property stakes. We intended to get back to Illahee in time to see Dad off. I'd already figured out for him the exact time when it would be safe to go thru the Bottleneck, but—I think dad must have started out too early. He—he must have gone thru before the tide was slack."

Lynn had been listening without comment, comparing Court's story with the version Greer had given her. Here, according to that version, was where Court would put the blame for his father's death on her employer. But Court, looking introspectively into the fire, said, "I'll never forgive myself for not staying home that morning to make sure Dad got the right start." He drew out his cigarets, forgot to offer Lynn one, took one for himself, and forgot to light it.

"Flan and I dropped everything to search the coast for Dad. We found him. . . . After the funeral we came home to Illahee.

"Greer had already moved in, which, of course, was quite within the law. I hadn't much heart for business just then, but because Dad had such faith in him, I told him what I expected to find in Melody Hill and offered him a fourth interest for the right to go in on the stringer tunnel, and use it as an outlet for the ore.

"He accepted enthusiastically. Not only that, but he offered his services as manager for two years. He guaranteed within that time to make enough money to pay me a good salary and to retire himself with a satisfactory sum, leaving me enough capital for further development. Furthermore, he promised, on his retirement, to return the entire property to me, including Illahee, to do with as I pleased."

"How wonderfully generous!" Lynn could not help commenting.

"It certainly was," agreed Court. "But the fly in the ointment was this—he was to make all this money by selling stock in what was to be called the Golden Totem Mining company. His idea was to promote the sale of stock by advertising Melody Hill as "a mountain of gold-bearing ore." And he purposed, in his advertising, using grandfather Court's name, which still carries weight in the mining world, and my own name as a mining engineer."

"And you couldn't agree?"

He laughed. "Of course not. We couldn't know we had a mountain of gold-bearing ore until we tested Melody Hill and proved it. And one of Greer's conditions was that we were to do absolutely nothing toward proving it until he had retired from the company. He maintained it wasn't necessary; we could sell enough stock on the showing he could make in the stringer tunnel. And he had other plans which involved the Lodge itself." Lynn could detect no condemnation in Court's voice.

What Has Gone Before

Lynn Clonard spends her vacation with one of her Aunt Julie's friends and meets Perry Holloway, who is heading for Alaska. Perry asks her to marry him. They become engaged and will marry at Christmas time. Perry wires he has a job as foreman in a mine and asks her to come immediately to Alaska and marry him there. Lynn has just enough money for a one-way passage. Court Faber, young mining engineer, rescues Lynn and her dog from an accident on the boat. Perry is late meeting her, arriving helplessly drunk. Lynn tells Perry she will not marry him. Jefferson Greer tricks Lynn into asking for a job as secretary at his mine, the Golden Totem. En route to the mine Lynn learns that Greer is Perry's boss. Out canoeing, Lynn sees Faber and Tonglaw, Greer's houseman, studying over papers. Lynn meets Flan O'Hara and Court, who is impressed when he learns she is not married. Later Greer tells Lynn he loaned money to Faber's father and in his absence acquired the Golden Totem when the mortgage was foreclosed. Court's father was drowned and Court is still bitter. Greer sends Perry to Juneau to meet some prospective investors. While Perry is gone Greer tells Lynn she is his ideal woman. Mrs. Stella Chandler, one of Greer's former secretaries, arrives with the party from Juneau. Greer discovers Court is taking advantage of the high tide to get his drill stem across Greer's land. Lynn helps Court outwit Greer. Stella checks the records and investigates the mine. Mrs. Strum, housekeeper, threatens to disclose her loss in Greer's Peru venture, but Greer promises to reimburse her. Greer confesses to Stella that the mine is a fraud. Out looking for MacFarlane, Lynn's boat is caught in a strong tidal current when the motor fails.

Fashions and Fancy

By Judith Cass

One of the first American women to return to Paris to live is Mrs. Philip Copelin, formerly of Dowagiac, Mich., who is remembered as a most chic and attractive young woman by the many who have met her on her visits here with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Nugent. Titian haired Mrs. Copelin's luggage contains many erstwhile unfamiliar items to this seasoned traveler. Crammed into the four hand lockers, such as sailors use, that she is taking with her are such unglamorous but necessary items as woolen undies, socks, stockings and sweaters, and even slacks, an article of dress which the customarily Parisian gowned Mrs. Copelin never before had donned. Some precious space is taken up by suits and shirts for her husband, whose wardrobe was limited to bare necessities when he flew to Europe six months ago. He finds he must now pay $50 for custom made shirts which before the war cost $6. The warm clothes will help Mrs. Copelin combat the lack of heating in the Paris apartment which Mr. Copelin has leased. He has been living in but two rooms of their quarters, however, for that is the most space he can manage to keep warm. The Copelins, who were married in Antwerp, were among the last Americans to leave Belgium after the war started. Their Paris diet will be supplemented by a modest allowance of foodstuffs which will be shipped periodically from this country.

The Nugents were among the guests who spent a productive evening recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Sims Jr. Faced with the necessity of painting a dozen or more ice cream chairs and some iron tables to be used at their Michigan summer home, Mr. and Mrs. Sims took a leaf from "Tom Sawyer" and invited a small group to come and watch the proceedings. Fortified by a country supper, of which the piece de resistance was frankfurters baked in a coating of biscuit dough, the guests naturally pitched in to help, and what would have been a long and tiring job for the hosts alone consumed but an hour or so with several willing hands to coat the charming little chairs with fire red paint. Mrs. Sims wore practical farmerette apron top overalls and a white blouse for the job. Her husband had secured a painter's apron for himself and a supply of painter's caps for the guests. Realizing that they probably would paint for their supper, the other guests came similarly prepared. The brand new blue jeans the Nugents wore will come in handy when working around their Lakeside, Mich., cottage this summer. Capt. George E. Rose Jr. wore khaki fatigue dress and his wife was clad in an old tweed suit which she described as on its last legs.

Costume of the week: Mrs. B. Botsford Young's smart navy herringbone tweed suit, mannishly tailored and fashionably "aged" which proves that the good tweed suit continues in style for several seasons. It was brightened by a simple, high necked blouse of lime green. Atop her sculptured three-inch bob, arranged in headhugging waves, was a small brimmed sailor, with a bunch of pastel flowers perched high at the back of the crown. A neat little face veil of blue fell just below her chin. Longish gloves of white pigskin, a navy bag of leather with fitted compartment for cosmetics, and trim leather pumps with streamlined bows completed the costume.

Miss Jamee Claire Haskins, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hoskins, also is on the coming season's debutante list. She will be introduced at a tea-dance Dec. 24 in the Racquet club. She, too, is a senior in the Girls' Latin school, and plans to go away to college in September.

Garden Club of Illinois Holds First Summer Meeting June 11

By Irene Steyskal

The Hoosier poet had a phrase for it, a line of verse coined from an amalgam of sunshine, clover scent, and a feeling of lazy well-being induced by musing at a cloud flock grazing in the blue. Knee deep in June is the way James Whitcomb Riley described that pleasant state in which gardeners, hikers, and picnickers find themselves at this time of the year. Members of the Garden Club of Illinois will step fully into it Monday, a week from tomorrow, at their first summer meeting.

Trees and hedges are in new leaf and the irises and full skirted peonies are like a Massine ballet in pink and blue in the hillside garden of the James Langleys' estate in Cass st., Joliet. Mrs. Langley has offered the garden and the wide, comfortably furnished veranda of her home for a meeting place to the Joliet Floral and Garden club, hostess group for the occasion, and there the women, bringing their box lunches, will gather at 12:30 p. m. Mrs. Walter L. Eriksen, president of the Joliet club, and her assisting committees, will add a beverage and salad for the garden party.

The approach to the Langley place is by a winding road thru the 350 flowering acres of Pilcher park. A walk thru parts of the park that have special horticultural interest has been planned by the hostess club for the visitors, who also will be taken to several of the handsome private gardens in the Cherry Hill district.

Preliminary to the general meeting, Miss Elizabeth Howland, president of the Garden Club of Illinois, will have a conference with the board of directors at 10:30 a. m. Summer gatherings of the state club are open to all members of affiliated groups.

A large attendance is expected at an Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs garden department meeting in federation headquarters, 30 W. Washington st., Tuesday afternoon, to hear Mrs. Walter S. Brewster on flower arrangements. Mrs. Brewster is considered an authority on the subject in horticultural circles. She illustrates her talk with color slides. Mrs. Harry H. Messich, state garden chairman of the federation, plans to come from Charleston for the program. She will give a talk which has been received enthusiastically by clubs in southern and central Illinois on "Romance of Perfume."

The federation has a representative, Mrs. Frank A. Barta of Palos Park, on the board of governors of the Chicago Horticultural Society and Garden Center, which, before recent reorganization, was the Horticultural Society of Chicago. Mrs. Barta will present Mrs. Thomas A. Connors of Lake Forest at the federation meeting to discuss the purposes and aims of the horticultural society, of which she is membership chairman. Mrs. Brewster is a member of the board of governors and Mrs. Frederick Wilmot, garden chairman elect of the federation, who also plans to be present, is a member of the professional and commercial group of the horticultural society's governing board.

Since its reorganization the society has set up a garden center at the Chicago public library, just within the Randolph st. entrance. The chief horticulturist in charge at the center is Frank K. Balthis, formerly of Garfield park conservatory.

Mrs. Messich will convene the

Dorothy Bulander Is Betrothed to Lt. L. W. Larson

At a recent dinner party observing the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Larson of St. Lawrence av., Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Bulander of Wheaton announced the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy, to the Larsons' son, Lt. Larson Jr. of the army air forces. Lt. Larson was not present for the party, for he is serving aboard a B-29 bomber in the Pacific war theater. Before entering the service he attended Wheaton college, where his fiance now is a student.

Household Forum

[Have you some household help that lightens labor or conserves on materials? Is there some convenience you could enjoy? We'll be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers. Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

Mrs. Bill H., Chicago—If your husband does any painting around the house, keep him supplied with big picnic plates. Such a plate makes an excellent spot to park a paint brush. No danger of tipping over the can nor so much likelihood of spilled drippings.

Mrs. John F., Gary, Ind.—We make our own rust removing solution by mixing 5 pints of vinegar and 1 pint of powdered alum. Brush this on a rusted surface with a stiff wire brush and rinse with cold water.

Mrs. Hazel K., Columbus, O.—I cleaned some old leghorn and panama hats last week by just giving them a good bath in lukewarm water and mild soap. I scrubbed them—lightly but persistently—till they came clean, then rinsed well and laid them in the shade to drain before I blocked them. I use the same method for loose woven straws, but am much more sparing with the water.

A SIGN on the window of the little office just off the main street of Monett, Mo., says "Abstracts and Notary." But, shucks, that doesn't half tell the story. Step inside the office and you'll find that only half of the small room is given over to an office desk, adding machine, typewriter, and files. The other half is filled with showcases crammed with embroidered pillow cases, knitted baby sweaters and bootees, with saucer sized tams to match, tiny girls' dresses, aprons, blouses, and a vast array of potholders, pincushions, and crocheted flowers for one's hair. If you pass thru the curtains into the "back room" you'll find machines for making buttonholes, hemstitching, and covering buttons standing cheek by jowl with a great boxful of chicken feed sacks waiting to be made into little girls' dresses. And, surprisingly enough, yards of fabric for aprons and blouses and balls of yarn and crochet cotton to keep the agile fingers of 16 homeworkers busy in their spare moments.

Somewhere in this melee you will find Hazel Lawson, the handsome, forty-ish proprietor, smartly dressed in a businesslike black jersey, with her graying hair in a becoming hairdo and her hazel eyes bright with the joy of living. Maybe she will be filling out a ration blank to help a soldier get gas and sugar for his furlough at home. Maybe she will be making out a housewife's fuel oil blank, or doing some of the abstract work mentioned on the sign. Possibly she will be typing form letters for a merchant or making out a tax report. Perhaps she will be planning a new crocheted gadget with her partner, Evelyn Patton, her junior by 20 years, or she may be studying menus.

Soon after Hazel and Floyd Lawson were married 18 years ago they came to Monett and started a credit association. Hazel was an excellent stenographer, and they made the business pay from the start. Twelve years ago Hazel became a notary, and that helped bring in more business. When income tax reports became difficult Hazel began to help her puzzled clients with that job. Then, as they became increasingly intricate, she studied laws and changes until she can make out a really complicated report. And do it correctly! Three years ago Mr. Lawson enlisted [he is now T/Sgt. Lawson], and Hazel took in Evelyn Patton, whose husband also had gone into service, as her partner. Evelyn can sew like a breeze, and since Monett had no gift shop the two women decided to start one. That business, too, was a success from the start.

"We don't have much time for Red Cross work," mourned Hazel. "However, we help out by making buttonholes for any garments they make."

The partners have other ways of helping to make the world a better place. They do hemstitching and other machine work for churches at special low rates, and ration blanks are filled out for service men without charge. Since the county seat is at the opposite corner of the county, a great many blanks for licenses and rationed items pass thru their little office. And the gift shop is booming.

"Sometimes we are here until midnight, making buttonholes," said Hazel, boasting a bit.

"Then you have nothing to do until morning, with the curfew on!" I quipped.

"Most of the time," she said, seriously. "But maybe it is one of the days when my cleaning woman hasn't shown up. Then I make beds for my roomers."

"Roomers? On top of all this work?"

"It seemed a shame to be alone in an eight room house when so many railroad workers wanted a good place to live," explained Hazel. "So I just rented out some rooms, and now I have five regulars. My cleaning woman is 70 years old, and she washes for families and cleans offices, too. Sometimes she doesn't get around to me. So on those days I turn to and do up the rooms after I get home."

"You don't get breakfast for your roomers, I hope!" I had reached the point where nothing would have surprised me.

"O, no," said Hazel. "Just Sunday dinners. Poor fellows! They are so grateful for home cooking; I just whip up a little dinner for them on Sundays. I don't go to much bother. Usually I just serve fried chicken, hot rolls, gravy, mashed potatoes, a vegetable, and good salad. O, yes, dessert, of course. You know we grow fine strawberries in this county, so I have strawberry shortcake as long as I can. Then I have fresh blackberry cobbler and things like that. The men pay me well. Nearly every one gives me $1."

I stood aside to think that one over while Hazel handed out yarn and told a lean fingered country woman to make six more of those soakers like she had made before. Then she sold a graduation gift to a well dressed woman and filled out a ration blank for a soldier. Each of the three told Hazel it was nice the flood didn't do her any harm.

The flood? I wanted to know about that.

"Ah! Ah!" warned Evelyn. "Monett doesn't like to talk about that. We are just a little ashamed of Kelly creek!"

Hazel took me outside, down the street past the cobbler's shop, and there was Kelly creek, a bubbly little stream flowing gently beneath the street and coming out into the sunshine to wind its way out of town between two store buildings. I hadn't known it was there, I told Hazel.

"You wouldn't," she said. "Except in rainy weather. Particularly after a number of rains have soaked the ground. Then the surface waters pour down the hills to Kelly creek and the fun begins. It floods this whole district."

Little by little, the story of that recent three night flood came out.

"It was a strange flood," Hazel said. Evelyn heartily agreed. "Every day the water would go down so that one could see the sidewalk. Then, late in the day, more rains would come, and at night Kelly creek would go on another rampage. At the railroad depot the water was just ready to go into the door. Along the tracks the switch engine was stalled, along with several freight trains, and even one passenger train with a lot of people aboard was stopped by the flood and the people had nothing to eat for 24 hours.

"We didn't expect that first flood, either," continued Hazel. "In fact, that first night we had worked on buttonholes here at the shop until 10:30. We hadn't been home a half hour before the woman in the cafe across the street phoned us that if we wanted to save anything in our shop we'd better get down here. Evelyn picked me up in her car and we parked it at the top of the hill and waded down to the shop as fast as we could. Water already was pouring along the street, so the first thing we did was to put the flood board in the door. Flood board? Why, everybody around Kelly creek has one!"

I learned that a flood board is a wide, stout board about 3 feet high that fits in the doorway with the base along the threshold.

"We wedged the cracks with cotton and feed sacks," said Hazel. "But, even so, water seeped in until one of us had to keep mopping all night. The water kept getting higher and higher, and finally it was clear up to the top of our flood board. It roared and swirled and beat against it just as tho it was determined to get in. We put all of our merchandise up out of the lower cases and our office files. But finally we got scared about ourselves. Neither of us can swim!"

"We kept the top of the safe clear," said Evelyn. "We figured that we could climb up there and holler for help. Then, around 6 o'clock in the morning, we looked out and we could see the sidewalk. The flood had gone down as quickly as it had come up. We just cleaned up the shop and put things back in place, and business went on as usual."

"Then, the next night," said Hazel, "we had to go thru it all again. But that night we only had to stay until 2:30 a. m. The third night was the worst of all. We didn't try to go home after closing hours. We just stayed here, battling water every minute, until 7 o'clock in the morning."

"I'll bet you went home after that and slept the sleep of the just!"

"O, my, no!" said Hazel. "That was the night all those people were marooned in the passenger train. Were they ever hungry when they got out! They rushed into that little cafe across the street and literally swamped the woman who runs it. She's a widow, trying to run the cafe for her son while he's in service. So we just locked up our shop and went across the street to help her. I washed dishes, Evelyn fried hamburgers, and we just hunted up everything we could for those hungry folks to eat."

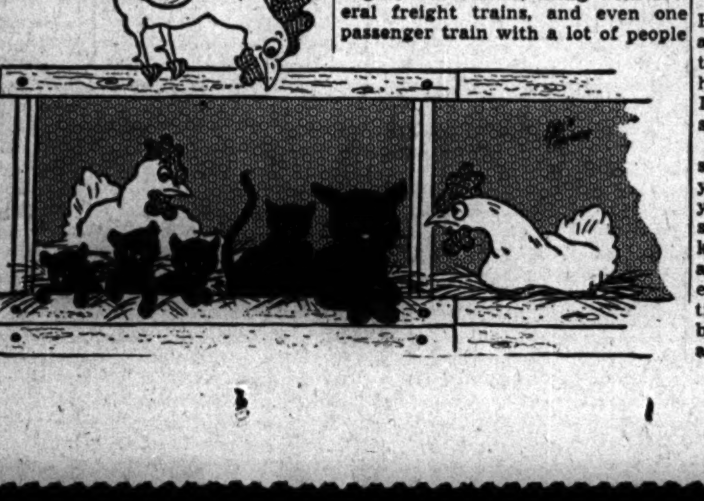
A young woman came in and asked Hazel to fill out an application for a driver's license. Evelyn went into the back room, and the whirr of the hemstitching machine began again. I started to leave, but Hazel stopped me.

"Don't go," she said. "I have some antique buttons I want to show you. And, if you had time, I wish you could run up to the house and see my big black cat that has four kittens in a hen's nest along with a setting hen. The old hen is mothering the cat, the kittens, and a setting of eggs. Now that would really be something interesting to write about."



Saddle and Cycle Club Gives Party to Mark 50th Anniversary

By Thalia

The Saddle and Cycle club celebrated its 50th anniversary a week ago last night. It was founded by Chicago's elite in 1895, when Foster av. was far out of the city and it was no libel to call a club built there on the lake a country club. It was a day when horses and carriages were a chic means of transportation, and it was fashionable to ride to the social hounds on bicycles, hence its name the Saddle and Cycle club.

During the half century since it was organized not only has transportation, but the city itself, made fabulous strides, and now "the Saddle," as every one calls it, is a tiny green oasis in the sand colored cement and concrete which not only hem it in horizontally but also vertically. Tall skyscrapers are so near that in the future of helicopters, it could probably not even be a landing field.

The golden anniversary was celebrated with gay pomp and war time ingenuity. There was no attempt to make it a costume party, altho a few feminine members appeared charmingly in dresses which their mothers had worn to the silver celebration.

The ladies were presented with paper chrysanthemums and fans to put them in the spirit of the gay '90s and a dance program to remind both young and old that once in the dear dead past gentlemen signed their names compromisingly to an evening's tripping of the light fantastic.

The gentlemen were instantly transformed with the application of a little false herbiage on the upper lip, "handle bar" moustaches especially appropriate to the club's name. A few brown derbys were an added touch.

John Root, the president, added a false nose and a wig, and after dinner Philip Maher, in a brown derby over a luxurious wig, and bearing a gigantic beer glass [which I suspect was a historic relic of the Hinky Dink and Bathhouse John collection] settled himself at the piano and, surrounded by the "Rusty Hinge" singers, likewise distinguished by what used in the '90s to be called "spinach," gave forth in songs of the period. One of the hits was "Take Me Out to the Saddle and Cycle," a topical version of "Take Me Out to the Ball Park." One of the warblers was Thomas Underwood, former president, who, in 1941 succeeded Louis C. Sudler, who made a semi-professional debut recently at Orchestra hall as a baritone. Another was Albert De Wolfe Erskine, one of the charter members, whose tenor was, every one agreed, as mellifluous as it had been in 1895.

Every one was delighted to see Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, who were charter members of the club. It was their last Chicago appearance for some months, for they left on Tuesday for their home in Santa Barbara. Mr. and Mrs. Meeker have both spent a quiet winter on account of illness and their appearance at the Saddle's anniversary party caused almost as many toasts as the golden celebration itself. The Hopewell Rogers were also happily toasted. Mr. Rogers was a former president and also a charter member. The Ernest Noyes were likewise sharing pleasant memories of the club's founding.

Every one was having such a gay time that few noticed the decorative changes which the lovely and efficient Florence Noyes Senseney had

Girls' School at Park Ridge Will Hold Graduation

The Park Ridge School for Girls will hold its 68th annual graduation exercises for eighth grade students at 8 o'clock Friday night in the school auditorium. Miss Helen Burcham, class president, will welcome visiting relatives and friends, and special awards will be given to outstanding students of the class.

The graduation address will be made by the Rev. John B. Hubbard, minister of St. Mary's Episcopal church of Park Ridge, and the school chaplain, the Rev. Paul J. Keckley, will give the invocation. Diplomas are to be presented by Miss Ethel Barger, superintendent. Mrs. Griswold A. Price, who heads the school's board of directors, will preside at the assembly.

Women of the Moose to Hear Radio's Magic Lady

Miss Frances Ireland, the "magic lady" of radio, will give a program for chapter 129 of the Women of the Moose at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the hall at 1016 N. Dearborn st. Miss Ireland is one of the few professional women magicians. Tomorrow's meeting is the annual membership night assembly of the chapter. Miss Louise Pekie, senior regent, will preside.

wrought, but every one spoke of the bank of rubber plants which filled the bay windows and which gave a new sense of coolness and calm to the huge room. To remind every one that 50 years ago horses were the club's parking problems, in one corner of the room was an exhibit of old harness and coachman's uniforms and stirrups.

Of all the parties ever held at the club, the one which had the most thunderous social repercussions, still echoing after 20 years, was a dinner dance given in honor of the present duke of Windsor, then prince of Wales, on his only night in Chicago in 1924. Wolcott Blair was his host.

Only the pure butter fat on the cream of Chicago society was invited to meet the prince. That ultra social skimming of Chicago did not include all of the members of the club, and those not invited found in their mail what many of them considered a peremptory reminder of that fact. Signed by Hunt Wentworth as secretary, a handsomely printed notice read: "The executive committee begs to announce that the Saddle and Cycle club will not be available to members from noon Monday, Oct. 13, until Tuesday morning, Oct. 14." The murmurs all over town were concentrated in the righteous bellowing of one pillar of the city. "Do they think all of us not invited to meet the prince were going to stampede the place like a herd of bison?" Almost to a man and a woman those who were invited accepted. Many a social reputation was made and a few were ruined by the prince's patronage.

Some of the guests of the Saddle and Cycle club anniversary party had spent the day working at the Garden Mart of the Lake Forest Garden club held in the village square during the day. By an ingenious use of white picket fences and wooden pillars, topped with pots of flaming red geraniums, the square became an enclosed garden in itself. One of the most successful spots was a booth with handsome flower arrangements done by some of the club's blue ribbon winners of the past.

The arrangements complete with container were sold to swell the fund which is used for nature study in the Lake Forest public schools. The contents of a little wishing well into which coins were spilled out of pocketbooks will provide flowers for the hospital at Great Lakes. At a small table under an umbrella Mrs. Edward L. Hasler, with the help of her attractive daughter, Mrs. John Simpson, made and sold unique pins which she creates from shells.

Choice cuttings from famous gardens found eager buyers, as did the home canned delicacies and the herbs and favorite recipes of famous hostesses. Proceeds from all sales swelled the study class fund.

From the garden club mart some of the visitors went to the last session of the Bevan auction for the benefit of the Presbyterian hospital at which, in less than 20 minutes, a few rugs brought almost $4,500. One well known Lake Forester's living room will be carpeted by matching gems which she bought for $450 each.

A few miles away the Barrington Garden club also held a successful garden market but gas rationing kept your Thalia from viewing its horticultural splendors. That sale will finance the planting at Vaughan hospital and air Barrington Boy and Girl Scouts, and two Barrington school teachers will be sent by the club to the Ohio Conservation laboratory.

Dating back 300 years are some of the items in the new exhibition at the Art institute of "The American Craft Tradition in Household Art, 1650-1850," which opened to the public on Wednesday. The afternoon before, the Antiquarian society held its spring tea surrounded by the fascinating bits of early New England. The rare collection has always been, I hear, in the family of Mrs. Dudley Phelps Sanford of Aiken, S. C., who loaned it to the Art institute.

Chauncey McCormick, president of the mumeum, said at the tea that the institute would be delighted to own this fine collection. Since the society includes many of Chicago's most generous as well as wealthiest women, perhaps some one will present to the institute these remarkable examples of early American ingenuity and art. Mrs. Phillip Miller, president of the society received the members and their guests. In addition to the directors, who include Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill, Mrs. A. H. Patterson, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Frank Hibbard, Mrs. James C. Hutchins, Mrs. Paul Magnuson, Mrs. Morris McCormick, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. George A. Ranney, Mrs. Clive Runnells, Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, and Mrs. Edwin A. Seipp, the day's hostesses included Mrs. C. Morse Ely and Mrs. James Ward Thorne, whose beautiful miniature rooms are installed near-by and who is donor of the Thorne fund from whose revenue the exhibit was brought here.

Members of the Arts club were invited to a presentation of three one-act comedies by the Playwrights Theater a week ago Friday. Miss Alice Gerstenberg, founder of the group, was the producer of the three plays, one of which was presented for the first time. It was "Her Children" by Francesca Falk Miller. A few days before the party the domestic staff of the popular club was unexpectedly pared down by fate, and it was found impossible to provide the refreshments which had long before been planned. Those who had made reservations were all notified of the casualties in food and service and told that there would be, for the first time in the history of the club's evenings neither food nor drink but only the feast of reason. The privation did not affect the attendance, however, for it was capacity.

Everywhere one goes, no matter on how high a moral or a social plane the conversation starts out, it always evens off on the matter of food. But unlike the reaction of man to the weather—you remember that Mark Twain said that everybody talked about it but nobody ever did anything about it—altho everybody talks about food, they also do something about it—they efficiently even if vociferously do without.

TO WED ENSIGN

Miss Mary Jane Antonello, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Antonello of Oak Park, who have announced her engagement to Ensign Edward Bryan Dunigan Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Dunigan of Oak Park. Miss Antonello is a graduate of Rosary college. Ensign Dunigan, a graduate of the University of Notre Dame, is on duty in the Pacific.

Calendar of Chicagoland Club Events

Tho the primary interest of the Better Films Council of Chicagoland is in motion pictures and film appreciation work, the organization has established the custom of deviating from its usual study routine and devoting one program each year to literary works. The club's newly elected president, Mrs. Joseph R. Chesser, will assume hostess duties at this season's literary gathering, a book review tea, which has been set for 1 o'clock Friday in the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs headquarters at 30 W. Washington st. Mrs. Chesser, who succeeds Mrs. Charles R. Holton, is former motion picture chairman of the federation. The book talk will be given by Mrs. Arthur L. Bergbom, who heads the federation's 7th district, and the musical portion of the program will be presented by Mrs. Lloyd Van Schoyck, soprano, with Mrs. Robert Brauer as accompanist.

Mrs. Joseph R. Chesser

Members of the Frauenverein, a service group affiliated with the Altenheim, German Old People's home, will elect officers and hear annual reports at their first meeting of the summer, scheduled for 12:30 o'clock Tuesday in the home in Forest Park. Mrs. Theodore Kuehl will conduct the business session, and names of nominees will be presented by Mrs. Hans Barten, chairman of the nominating committee. Mrs. Barten was assisted in drawing up the slate by Mrs. W. A. L. Schaefer, Mrs. William S. Orth, Mrs. Anna Albert, and Mrs. Richard Mueller.

Mrs. Edward B. Weinstein will be inducted as president of the Musarts Club of Chicago at the society's annual spring luncheon, to be held at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday, June 13, in the Standard club. Among other officers to be installed with Mrs. Weinstein are Mrs. Robert L. Huttner, Mrs. Harold I. Chayes, and Mrs. Ed Harris. Sharing the afternoon program will be Billie Hyman, who will give a book talk; Pauline Sacks, who will be accompanied in a group of songs by Pansy Jacobs, and Adelaide Gould, pianist.

With Mrs. William F. Noelle presiding, the Mothers' Drama club of the Navy pier will meet at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday in the Lake Shore fieldhouse.

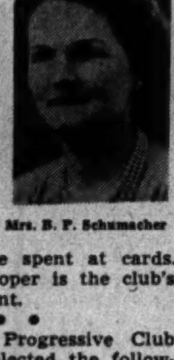
Recently elected board members of Matrix, a club for professional women writers, will be entertained at a buffet dinner at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday in the home of the new president, Mrs. Gilbert Brett, 3921 N. Frontier av. A board session will follow the dinner and social hour.

• • •

Mrs. B. P. Schumacher, who recently was reëlected president of the Chicago Woman's Ideal club, will be hostess to members and guests of her club at the society's annual summer outing, set for Thursday in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Luncheon is scheduled at noon, and the afternoon will be spent at cards. Mrs. Lane R. Cooper is the club's new vice president.



Mrs. B. P. Schumacher

Party Planned by Parental School PTA

If substitute fathers and mothers can supply the appreciation and understanding that are prime ingredients in the shaping of a normal life for boys and girls, the youngsters of the Chicago Parental school are fortunate.

Unique among Parent-Teacher associations in the city is that which serves the resident school under Juvenile court jurisdiction at 3600 Foster av. The P.-T. A., none of whose members are the actual parents of children there, have a large garden party planned for next Saturday afternoon and evening, and will be an applauding audience for field events, demonstration by the school drum and bugle corps, and a baseball game staged by the boys, and a Latin America fiesta by the girls.

Mrs. William E. Joss

Mrs. William B. Joss, recording secretary of the P.-T. A., is chairman of arrangements, and the entire board is helping the school staff and youngsters prepare for the event.

The visitors will be taken on a tour of the buildings and grounds. Exhibits of handicraft will be on display, and the articles, potted plants and refreshments will be on sale. Beginning at 1:30 o'clock, the party will continue until 7.

Mrs. Joss is a chairman in the Northwest Parent-Teacher council. She formerly was president of the Mayfair P.-T. A.

Fenger Senior Wins Swedish Scholarship

The name of Elaine May Hockinson is newly inscribed on the American Daughters of Sweden honor roll of students. Next Saturday the club will confer its University of Chicago scholarship on the young Fenger High school senior, who is the fifteenth to receive the award, at a 1 o'clock luncheon in the Swedish club, 1258 N. La Salle st.

Miss Elaine May Hockinson

A festive occasion for the Swedish Daughters, the annual scholarship luncheon is planned with special program and draws a large guest contingent. Among those present at the party for Miss Hockinson will be B. A. E. Bratt, vice consul of Sweden, and Mrs. Bratt; T. J. Boyd, principal at Fenger High school; Mrs. George Thompson, 1st district president of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs; the Rev. John Norris Hall, and from the University of Chicago, Prof. Gosta Franzen, Dr. Helen Gamer, and William E. Scott.

Dr. Gamer, chairman of the department of Germanic languages and literatures at the university, will give the principal talk, and Mr. Scott, who is assistant dean of students on the Midway, will make the scholarship presentation speech. The award which Miss Hockinson is to receive is valued at $330.

Beula Edwards and Raymond Allyn Smith will be presented in a musical. Mrs. Edwards is a radio singer and she also is soloist in the Bryn Mawr Community church, where Mr. Smith is choir director and organist. He is president of the Midwestern Conservatory of Music. Miss Nellie Fredeen will preside. The program has been arranged by Mrs. George E. Q. Johnson, chairman of the scholarship committee.

In selecting the scholarship winner, Mrs. Johnson was assisted by Mrs. Alma Swane and Mrs. Siegrid Benson. Miss Hockinson has an outstanding record at Fenger both in scholarship and in school activities. She is editor of the Fenger Courier, is vice president of the debating society, sings in the school chorus and is in the Drama club, has been the WAC school delegate to American Youth radio program, is in the debating society, and is a member of the National Honor society. She has chosen medicine for her future field of study.

In planning the party, Mrs. Johnson has not overlooked the club's dominant interest in war service. She has arranged to have articles made by war veterans at the government hospitals in the vicinity on sale that afternoon. The individual patients will receive the full price received for each article sold.

TO WED OFFICER

Miss Betty Jane Erman, whose marriage to Lt. (j. g.) Dan C. Hirsch Jr., son of Mr. Hirsch of Lake Shore dr., will take place tomorrow. Miss Erman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Erman of Hyde Park Blvd.

Closing Lectures in U. of C. Series Scheduled

Closing lectures in a public series on "The Veteran and His Community," presented under the auspices of the University college of the University of Chicago, will be given by Floyd W. Reeves, professor of administration at the University of Chicago, and Lester Benston, director of rehabilitation with the American legion. Mr. Reeves will speak at 7:30 Wednesday night on "The Education of the Veteran," while Mr. Benston's talk on "The Community Adjustment of the Veteran" will be given at the same hour on Wednesday, June 13. Both talks will be given in Curtiss hall.

Three thousand persons are expected for the annual meeting tomorrow of Chicago chapter of the Red Cross. Mrs. S. Sloan Colt of New York, American Red Cross deputy commissioner for the European theater, will be here to address the luncheon gathering, which is set for noon in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

Mrs. Colt returned only a few days ago from Europe. She replaces Douglass Poteat, executive vice chairman of the American Red Cross, as the principal speaker. Mr. Poteat is unable to be here.

Mrs. Colt went to England in the fall of 1942 as assistant director of welfare to work with Red Cross Commissioner Harvey D. Gibson. Within a few months she became second in command of American Red Cross operations in Britain and western Europe. As part of her duties she helped direct more than 3,000 American and 25,000 British assisting workers in serving United States troops overseas. During the 80 days of heavy robot bombing, Mrs. Colt was a familiar sight pedaling her way on bicycle thru London streets, unwilling, with typical American impatience, to waste time waiting for overloaded transportation.

Before Mrs. Colt's talk on her overseas experiences, Col. A. A. Sprague will give the annual treasurer's report on Chicago Red Cross; Martin Kennelly, war fund chairman, will talk briefly on the 1945 fund, and Henry F. Tenney, chapter chairman, will give an over-all review of the year's work. The nominating committee will report on the election of director and officers.

A series of summer programs begins this week at the Chicago Woman's club with a lecture at 11 a. m. Wednesday by Dr. Huberta Frets Randall. Dr. Randall has taught both at the University of Chicago and at Northwestern university. She was graduated from the University of Holland and holds her doctorate from the Sarbonne in Paris. Dr. Randall is now associated with American Relief for Holland. Her talk at the club will be on the "Democratic Future of the Dutch East Indies." She will speak in Curtiss hall.

Mrs. Robert E. Lanestrem is the newly appointed chairman of summer activities at the club.

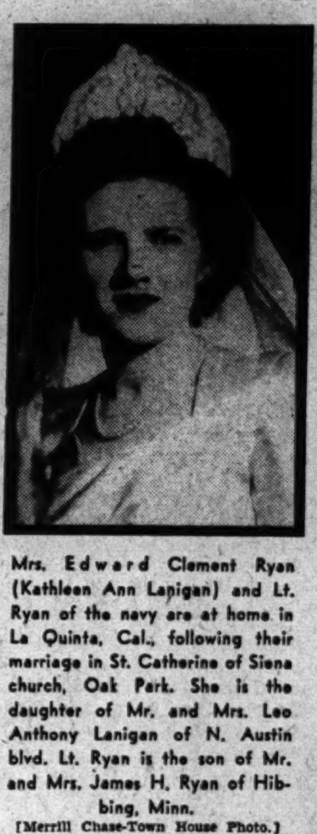
The Chicago College club turns its spotlight on one of the members, Alberta McVicker Whidden, this week. A luncheon will be given for her at 12:30 p. m. Wednesday, with Miss Madeleine Foreman and Mrs. Newton E. Turney sharing the hostess role. Mrs. Whidden will give a critical commentary on Adria Locke Langley's "A Lion Is in the Streets." The book, published last month, is the author's first novel.

Children's Theater

The Children's theater of the Art institute will give its closing performance of the Mexican fiesta ballot, "Pedro and the Fighting Cocks," at 3 o'clock today in the Goodman Memorial theater.

OFFICER'S BRIDE



Mrs. Edward Clement Ryan (Kathleen Ann Lanigan) and Lt. Ryan of the navy are at home in La Quinta, Cal., following their marriage in St. Catherine of Siena church, Oak Park. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Anthony Lanigan of N. Austin blvd. Lt. Ryan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Ryan of Hibbing, Minn.

Artists from Chicagoland to Open Show

By Eleanor Jewett

The forty-ninth annual exhibition by artists of Chicago and vicinity will open next Thursday in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. The exhibition previously has been held in the early spring and has been limited to painting and sculpture. This year, we understand, there will be only a handful of paintings, forty oils is the current report, and a rather extensive showing of commercial art and drawings. One gallery is devoted to sculpture. The jury for the show was made up of Milton Horn, Raphael Soyer, Boardman Robinson, Ben Stahl, and Karl Zerbe, a strictly modern jury.

Another important exhibition for June is the Woman's Salon, which will open June 17 at the Findlay Galleries, Michigan av. at Van Buren st.

Lloyd Goodrich, director of the American Art Research Council, 10 W. 8th st., New York 11, N. Y., has sent out an appeal. The council, established by the Whitney Museum of American Art, is gathering material for a biography of the late Marsden Hartley, in collaboration with Hudson D. Walker. A complete catalog of Hartley's work also is being made. The council would be most grateful to any one who has letters from Hartley, if they would lend them; and, too, any information about privately owned Hartley paintings, drawings, and pastels would be welcome. Correspondence should be addressed to the American Art Research Council.

Florence White Williams, well known Chicago painter and teacher, has gone east to live. Her new address is 32 Union Street, Greenfield, Mass. Her studio has seven windows opening on a garden. Those who have followed Miss Williams' work will know how much such an outlook will mean to her. Flowers, trees, and boats have long been on her list of favorite subjects.

"May Morning" by Maud Miller Hoffmaster is a beautiful woodland scene of birches and Michigan pines to be found at the Traffic club, Palmer House. Mrs. Hoffmaster has had successful exhibitions here and abroad in the years before the war. For a time her delightful illustrations appeared in the Sunday Tribune. At present she is doing a remarkable work in establishing an art center in the music camp at Interlochen, Mich. She has drawn plans for a building housing galleries and a large work studio; the building is under construction and may be in use this summer. Mrs. Hoffmaster teaches at Interlochen and has a few private pupils and a host of visitors every summer in her charming studio on the lake at Ahgosa, a few miles east of Traverse City, Mich.

Roma Harlan, whose portrait of Capt. B. B. Wygant, in command at Abbott Hall, is on exhibition in the Out-of-Chicago artists' exhibit sponsored by the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts at the Drake Hotel, is planning a one-man show of recent portraits of military and naval men at the Lake Shore club from June 15 to July 15.

The pleasant exhibition of paintings by members of the Men's Sketch club in the Club Woman's Bureau, Mandel Brothers, is of particular interest because the painters involved are all business men of various professions and trades who have taken up art as a hobby. Some of them have achieved almost professional proficiency. The exhibit is an entertaining spot in which to while away a few idle minutes.

The Art institute opened a new exhibit last Wednesday bearing a long title: "The American Craft Tradition in Household Art, 1650-1850." It is a remarkable collection of Americana, including furniture, kitchen utensils, and other objects, even a queen bee carrier, lent by Dr. and Mrs. Dudley Phelps Sanford of Aiken, S. C.

• • •

Elsie Jones and Arthur Lidov, two Chicago modernists, have an exhibit of work in the Room of Chicago Art. Elsie Jones is a graduate of Northwestern university who has had little formal art education with the exception of studying from time to time with Francis Chapin. She is married and has four children who are her favorite models—when she can get them to pose. Her paintings are gay and swiftly painted. Her paintings of small boys are amusing and her view of the Great Lakes Naval hospital interior, with its glimpses of recuperating veterans, is timely.

Arthur Lidov strikes a far different note. His magnified heads of intensely introspective men are tinged with melancholy; almost equally morbid are his imaginative paintings of large birds and curious forms.

TO BE MARRIED

Miss Lorayne Carolyn Baldock, whose engagement to Warren H. Tellefsen of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Tellefsen of N. New England av., has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton B. Baldock of N. Newland av. Miss Baldock is a student at Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Ia. Mr. Tellefsen is in the navy V-12 unit at Dartmouth college.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Life in the Elegant Eighties

Dear Readers: This is to thank all those who sent in letters on the subject "Why I'm Glad I Lived in the '80s." Even if you didn't win the prize, you may feel that you accomplished something in setting down in black and white your memories of the past. Let me suggest that every one who has not yet done this should write down his or her recollections and keep them for the family.

Mrs. Jennie B. Armstrong, Marquette, Mich., was the prize winner, as you know. But here are brief quotations from other letters.

C. H. Strawbridge, River Forest, remembers the chivalry of the '80s. Women did not need to stand in a street car. "When a woman entered, every man rose immediately, doffed his hat and offered her his seat. This did not warrant a conversation with her." . . . Mrs. Nellie J. Crispe, 4026 N. Tripp av., is glad she knew some remarkable people who lived in the '80s, and recalls dining with Samuel F. Smith, author of the words of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." Other friends of Mrs. Crispe were Dwight L. Moody and "Aunt Lizzie Aiken," a devoted Baptist missionary, whose name will be remembered by older members of that church.

A. J. Mokler, once of Chicago, now of Casper, Wyo., writes of the cost of living in his youth: "Furnished, steam heated room, on State st., cost [1884] $10 a month; breakfast, consisting of fruit, ham and eggs, coffee, fried potatoes, bread and butter, cost 25 cents; a good supper, 25 cents. Thanksgiving day turkey dinner, 60 cents. A good suit of clothes, hat included, cost $18 to $22. I was 21 years old. The whole world was at peace. It would be glorious could we return to the good old '80s." . . . Mrs. Arthur Hercz likes to recall children's parties she attended in the no longer existent mansions of the Hucks, Seipps, and Hotzes [north, south and west sides]; Johnny Hand playing for the dancing, which had been taught by the first Mr. Bournique; supper from Kinsley's, crowned by individual molds of ice cream, with birds in sugar nests; and lastly, souvenirs to take home, large satin boxes, filled with Gunther's candies."

F. H. Washburn, Pleasant Hill, Tenn., thinks people were more contented, friendships more lasting and sincere. . . . Mrs. John B. Arntz, Muskegon, Mich., has fond memories of Sundays when children wore their best clothes and mother popped corn, made molasses candy or froze ice cream for visiting juveniles. . . . Henry D. Kurtz, 5731 Maplewood av., Chicago, begins his letter with the Psalmist's words, "I have been young and now am old," and says he is glad he lived in the '80s, when children were taught honesty, love and consideration. "We had but little," adds Mr. Kurtz, "but that little was shared with others. We were happy in our innocence."

Mrs. F. W. Merriman, Racine, Wis., writes of winter joys: "A swift horse; a comfortable sleigh, with plenty of fur robes and a string of silver sleighbells. Of course, you had to wear several layers of wraps and a hood and a heavy veil over your face, which kept freezing to your lips, but in spite of all that, it was a grand sport." . . . Harry V. King, Plaisance hotel, Chicago, writes of the influence wielded by Dr. E. P. Goodwin of the First Congregational church, and—a lighter memory—of the first performance of the "Mikado" in America, which he heard June 29, 1885. . . . Mrs. C. Hinz, 3815 N. Saginaw av., has memories of a childhood spent in South Superior, Wis., when she picked strawberries at a cent a quart, yet there was so much freedom in those days, she wishes she might go back to them.

Jane Monahan, in a charming letter, tells of her experience selling laces at Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co.'s store. "Point lace and Duchess lace were 'musts' at weddings of that day. The ladies were truly elegant, not so hurried as now and always a bit lofty in manner, in keeping with their trailing skirts. Very little makeup, except when Carrie Watson came in with half a dozen of her lovelies, and how we wanted to stare, but were afraid." . . . Mabel H. Goltra, Jacksonville, Ill., says: "Dear to my heart were the glass blowers' exhibitions, Babyland Magazine and my wax doll, wearing high white kid boots." . . . Harry H. Long, La Crosse, Wis., spent his early days in Bureau county, Ill., where he learned farming, mining, and brickmaking, and played the violin at country dances. "We learned, too, that round dollars are made from square deals."

Mrs. George Leavenworth, Biloxi, Miss., writes in rhyme, recalling the thrill of the first telephone call she made. . . . Dr. George M. McBean, Chicago, remembers the abundant table in his home, with beefsteak for breakfast, broiled over hot coals. The bread was homemade. "What could taste better than a nice hot piece, soaked in butter?" writes Dr. McBean. He continues: "It was the day of the simple life, perhaps the unrecognized, but hoped for millenium, flavored with a little milk of human kindness, understanding and sympathy." . . . Mrs. Clara A. Watson, Franklin Park, calls the most interesting fact about the '80s a historical one: "We had five Presidents of the United States, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur, Cleveland, and Harrison. No other decade had so many."

Mrs. Ralph Jefferson, Chicago, writes: "Even helping to clean the student lamps has a glamor now." . . . J. P. Stewart, Western Springs, Ill., recalls the Exposition building, Michigan av., at Adams st., where he saw wonders which to him were as great as the exhibits in the great museums of today. One of these was a mammoth whale. . . . William E. Ambeck, Chicago, writes of friends and neighbors in the '80s: The poet Whittier; Frank A. Munsey, publisher, and Galen Stone, well known banker. . . . William G. Spoerl, Chicago, a clerk at $2 a week for Charles Gossage, State and Washington sts., finds his most enjoyable memory that of hearing Patti sing at the opening of the Auditorium, 1889.

Again, thanks to all who wrote to us!

Sigma Kappa Pi Plans Busy Day Next Sunday

Chicago chapter of Sigma Kappa Pi has a full program for next Sunday, opening with a cocktail party at 2 o'clock in the Knickerbocker hotel for Mrs. Lee Erickson of Chicago, newly elected president of the national sorority. Following an afternoon business session and initiation, a 6 o'clock dinner and installation services for Mrs. Erickson and her supporting corps of officers is scheduled. New vice presidents are Mrs. Walter Halleman Jr. of Chicago and Miss Ilah Nelson of Denver, Colo.; secretaries, Miss Betty Fitzgerald and Miss Louis Knauf, and treasurer, Miss June Livingstone, all of Chicago.

City Alumnae Laying Plans for Busy Week

Not long after Miss Louise Wesley Hunt went overseas to serve with the American Red Cross, Chicago chapter of the Southern Seminary alumnae, of which she is a member, invited her mother, Mrs. Maryland V. Hull, to become its first honorary member. That was three years ago, and while Miss Hunt now serves "somewhere in India," Mrs. Hull continues to "pinch hit," as she terms it, for her daughter in alumnae activities.

Just now, Mrs. Hull is busy with arrangements for the alumnae group's spring luncheon, set for 12:30 o'clock Saturday in the Palmer House. Mrs. William C. Winkler of Oak Park, also an honorary member, has been invited to serve as hostess at the party, for which more than 90 invitations have gone out. Mrs. Winkler is the mother of the Chicago area president, Mrs. George Zinkil, who recently moved from Oak Park to Carthage, Ind. Mrs. Zinkil has a new baby and probably will not be able to attend the fete.

Transportation permitting, Mrs. H. Russell Robey, director of the seminary in Buena Vista, Va., will be here for the luncheon. Other special guests will include Mrs. Margaret Euler, official representative of the school in the Chicago area as well as the north shore alumnae representative, and Mrs. James Armitage and Mrs. James Seebold, south side representatives. Tomorrow is the deadline for reservations, which may be made thru the alumnae secretary, Miss Josephine Tressing of 3001 Wilson av.

WEDS LIEUTENANT

Mrs. William H. Hohnemann, the former Paulette M. O'Connor, whose marriage to Lt. Hohnemann of the naval reserve, of Monterey, Cal., took place recently in the Holy Name Cathedral. She is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Peter P. O'Connor of N. LaSalle st., and was graduated from Northwestern university. Lt. Hohnemann, a graduate of the University of California, and his bride are at home in San Diego, Cal.

Another Saturday event of interest in alumnae circles is the benefit book review tea to be sponsored at 2 o'clock in the Stevens hotel by the University of Illinois alumnae of Sigma Delta Tau sorority. Mrs. Florence Bourke Ellis will give the book talk, and proceeds will go into the sorority's war service activities fund.

The current season's social activities of the Chicago Illinae club, University of Illinois Alumni association, were wound up recently at the organization's annual luncheon in the La Salle hotel. Mrs. F. W. Kraft, who was reëlected president at that time, will meet in July with the new officers and board members to plan for the new season, which will open in September.

Miss Lorraine Tyszko, Mrs. E. J. Harrigan, and Miss Alice Donahue are the new vice presidents; Mrs. E. H. Engel and Mrs. W. E. MacFarland, secretaries, while Mrs. A. R. Watkins was reëlected treasurer. Other board members include Mrs. R. F. Howe, Mrs. T. W. Morrow, Mrs. S. S. Sommerfield, Mrs. C. O. Heinze, Miss Jessie Viehoff, Miss Beulah Jacks, Mrs. L. M. Thompson, Miss Mary Bransfield, Mrs. C. D. McDaniel, Miss Alice Hausler, Mrs. J. G. Sponsel, and Mrs. W. I. Brockson.

The club's projects during the last season included the completion of a recreation room for the orthopedic department of the Illinois Research and Educational hospitals. Also, holiday parties were given for children of the orthopedic and pediatric departments of these hospitals, and other recreation and entertainment provided.

Always a traditional part of Alumni day festivities at Northwestern university is the tea at which officers of the Associate Alumnae organization are hostesses. This year's party will be held Saturday from 3:30 until 5:30 o'clock in Scott hall on the university's Evanston campus. Mrs. Stuart K. Fox of Wilmette, president, will be assisted in receiving the alumni guests by Mrs. Elmer Jewell Dick and Mrs. F. Gordon McWilliams of Winnetka, Mrs. Wesley Race, Mrs. Eugene Stearns, and Mrs. O. Lowell Hastings, all of Evanston; Mrs. Lewis B. Ermeling, Wilmette, and Mrs. Richard Breeden of Skokie.

Western college alumnae will hear Miss Susan Peabody, an alumna, discuss "The Painter's Problems," when they gather for 6 o'clock dinner Wednesday in the College club. Reservations should be made not later than tomorrow.

The Mothers club of the Alpha Phi Pan Hellenic sorority will induct Mrs. Edwin Scott Ford as president for the forthcoming season at an 11 o'clock gathering Thursday in the sorority's Northwestern university chapter house. Others to be installed include Mrs. Miles Wright, Mrs. Walter H. O'Brien, Mrs. Emory Stoker, Mrs. Neal Dow Howard, and Mrs. C. Melvin Hunt. Mrs. Edwin G. Booz is retiring president.

Lt. Jean Howland, Army Nurse, Weds Pvt. Tozer

Mrs. Gardner S. Howland of Downers Grove announces the marriage May 18 of her daughter, Lt. Jean Howland of the army nurse corps, to Pvt. Lowell R. Tozer of the army, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Alden W. Tozer of S. Prospect av. The wedding took place in San Antonio, Tex. The bride is a graduate of Iowa State university and of its nursing school. Pvt. Tozer attended the University of Chicago. He recently returned from duty overseas.

Mrs. Roper in Race for Head of State Clubs

One of two aspirants whose candidacy has been announced for the presidency of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs is Mrs. Robert W. Roper of Kewanee. Mrs. Roper's name is presented by the 15th district. She is the retiring district president.

Mrs. Robert W. Roper

For the first time in its history, the federation will conduct an election by mail ballot this year, the state convention having been canceled because of war transportation curtailments. The votes will be tabulated and the election announced at the closing meeting of the state board June 19-21 in federation headquarters here.

Active in club work for 21 years, Mrs. Roper started her club career as a member of the Iowa federation. Returning to her native Illinois 16 years ago, she has been identified ever since with the federation of this state. She has had a two year term as district president, and has served her club, the Kewanee Woman's club, which is the largest in the district, in various departmental chairmanships, as vice president and as president. This year she has been active on the state board and executive committee.

Mrs. Roper was graduated in 1921 from the Western State Teachers college, where she majored in music, and she also attended the University of Southern California.

Mrs. Theodore S. Chapman of Jerseyville, the opposing candidate, is the 20th district president. Her picture and biography as a club woman were printed in last Sunday's TRIBUNE. Mrs. Parker Bennett, who was presented by the 18th district, has withdrawn her candidacy.

Delta Phi Theta Will Count Ballots June 17

Chicago members of Delta Phi Theta sorority will gather Sunday, June 17, in the Continental hotel for a 1 o'clock luncheon at which mail ballots in the sorority's national election will be tabulated. The national chapter contributes annually to the Dyslexia institute, which assists persons having difficulties with reading but who otherwise are normal. The local Chicago groups and the four out-of-town chapters have their own charitable projects.

Outing Club to Visit Forest Preserve Tract

The Deer Grove Forest preserve will be the destination of the Outing club when members assemble this morning at the Chicago and Northwestern station in time to board the 10:15 a. m. train. M. Perczella Munro and Raunie Lindgren will be guides for a leisurely hike from Palatine thru meandering trails in the park area to Barrington, where a train will be boarded for Chicago at 6:09 o'clock.

Fox River Service Club Dinner Dance Wednesda

The Service club of Fox River sanitarium will hold its annual benefit dinner dance Wednesday night in the Chez Paree. Chairmen for the party are Mrs. William Romanoff, Mrs. Philip Schatz, and Mrs. Harry Buntman. Mrs. Philip Livingston is president of the philanthropic organization.

Jewish Clubs Will Install New Officers

Miss Pearl Podorowsky
[Seymour Photo]

Chicago unit of Junior Hadassah, young women's Zionist organization, has two large gatherings on the immediate calendar. In a ceremony scheduled for 8 o'clock Wednesday night Miss Pearl Podorowsky, who recently was reelected president of the society, will be installed with members of her board, and next Sunday night a dinner-dance in the Terrace Casino of the Morrison hotel will mark the close of a drive for funds with which to carry on the organization's humanitarian work in Palestine.

Mrs. James Olshan, president of Senior Hadassah, will be guest speaker at the installation program, which is to be held in the Standard club. Mrs. Sylvia Richie Devine will be mistress of ceremonies. Newly elected officers are Miss Lillian Hoffing and Miss Charlet Durschlag, vice presidents; Miss Mildred Seidschreiber, membership chairman; Miss Rhoda Lebovitz, fund raising chairman; Miss Jean Claus, American affairs chairman, and Miss Florence Greenfield, education chairman.

Tickets to the dinner-dance will go to members who have raised as much as $25 for the Palestinian projects, which include the children's village of Meier Shfeyah for underprivileged boys and girls, the Henrietta Szold school of nursing, Youth Aliyah, which provides for maintenance and education of European refugee children, and the Jewish national fund thru which land is acquired for Jewish settlement and cultivation. Rabbi Ralph Simon will be guest speaker at the party.

At 12:30 o'clock Wednesday Mrs. Benjamin Lavin of 300 S. Hamlin av. will open her home for the annual earning fund luncheon of the Ivriah Women's organization. The party also will be the occasion for installation of officers of the society, which sponsors the School of Jewish Studies for Girls, under supervision of the Associated Talmud Torahs of Chicago.

Mrs. Herzl Rosenson succeeds Mrs. David L. Weiss as president, Mrs. David Rosenberg and Mrs. Ben Glassman are vice presidents, Mrs. Samuel Shulman, Mrs. Maurice Merrit, secretaries; Mrs. Benjamin Cohen, treasurer, and Mrs. Harry Glassenberg, Mrs. Leonard C. Mishkin, and Mrs. Max Kopstein, committee chairmen.

Women Plan for 1945 War Fund Drive

Mrs. Otto Madlener
[Du Bois—the Drake]

Mrs. P. D. Block Jr.
[Du Bois—the Drake]

Early bird tactics have been adopted by the women's special gifts division of the 1945 Community and War Fund drive. Well before the campaign is under way this fall, the division will have done its special job of visiting the 2,000 wealthy women on its list to solicit contributions.

Walter P. Paepcke, general chairman of the 1945 campaign, has announced that Mrs. Otto Madlener, 1430 Lake Shore dr., and Mrs. Philip D. Block Jr., 1540 Lake Shore dr., will direct the work of the division's 200 solicitors, Mrs. Madlener as chairman and Mrs. Block as vice chairman.

Goals and definite dates for the drive have not yet been set, but September is the likely period for the appeal of the special gifts division. Last year, as a section of the women's division, the special gifts wing raised $305,943 of the division total of $539,513. Mrs. Madlener and Mrs. Block gained experience in that campaign, serving as vice chairmen under Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams III.

A different organizational system for increased efficiency has been devised for the 1945 appeal. This year the women's special gifts division will function as a separate unit. Working in five geographical zones, far north, near north, Hyde Park-Kenwood, South Shore, and Beverly, each of the 200 solicitors will be assigned to visit 10 prospective contributors. Mrs. Madlener and Mrs. Block already have started revising the prospect list and organizing details of the campaign. Their office is in Community and War Fund headquarters, 100 W. Monroe st.

Both are actively identified with other civic services. Mrs. Madlener is a member of the Grant hospital women's board, where she organized a patients' library, is a Red Cross Gray Lady, and is associated with the Library of International Affairs as a board member. She also is active with the University, the Saddle and Cycle, Racquet, Lake Geneva Country clubs.

Mrs. Block is vice chairman of the women's board of Michael Reese hospital, where she does volunteer work in the clinic, and even in emergencies has worked there as a ward assistant, a waitress, and cashier in the coffee room. She is treasurer of the Women's Exchange of Chicago.

The Community and War Fund represents the National War fund in the Chicago area. Money raised in this area is allocated to 187 health and welfare agencies of the community fund, and helps finance the U. S. O., U. S. O. camp shows, War Prisoners' aid, United Seamen's service, American Field service, and 17 allied relief agencies.

Beverly, Mass., Sees Normal Season Ahead

Beverly, Mass. The far famed Massachusetts north shore, that picturesque bit of coast stretching from Nahant to the tip end of Cape Ann, is in for its best season since the war. With dim-out and brown-out regulations now but history, and with the relaxation of many other war time regulations, social life will soon resume its normalcy—something which the north shore has not experienced for five years.

There has been an unusually heavy demand for summer homes in all of the colonies this season, and there will be few shuttered cottages. Even the OPA is worried about some of the rental charges but property owners are happy after five summers of comparatively slow demand for cottages. For the most part the sojourners on the north shore are estate owners but at the same time there are hundreds of summer homes, from cottages to mansions, which are often offered for rental. The midwest and southern demand has been featured in yearly leases. Most of the large hotels are opening next week and reservations are being made to extend well into the autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett of Chicago are again at Whitehall, their lovely hilltop estate at Chapman's Corner in the Beverly Cove colony. The Bartletts were in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., for the winter and have been in Chicago before coming east. The large and attractive studio at the Bartlett home is being opened this week and as usual will prove a place of interest to family friends all the summer. The gallery has some fine paintings and includes many which were done by Mr. Bartlett, who has a well established reputation as an artist.

Former Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. William Phillips are at Highover, their Wenham Lake estate at North Beverly for the summer. Mr. Phillips who recently returned from London where he was on a special mission is now serving in the state department. His friends have the feeling that he may again return to Rome as United States ambassador when political conditions become more settled.

Princess Serge Belosselsky with her husband is at Castle Hill, in Ipswich, for the early north shore season. Princess Belosselsky is the former Florence Crane, daughter of Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. of Chicago.

Chicago sojourners on the north shore will have an opportunity this summer for the first time to enjoy the new million dollar David S. Lynch Memorial park at Burgess Point, Beverly Cove, a gift to the city under the will of Mr. Lynch. It is said to be the finest seaside park in all New England and is located not far from the summer homes of Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett and Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter of Chicago whose estates are in Beverly Cove, the same district as the park.

Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris of Chicago is at Eagle Head, her summer home at Manchester. The week before Mrs. Morris arrived for the summer fire swept thru the servants' quarters of the house, one of the show places on the north shore, and caused a loss estimated at $5,000. The fire was extinguished before it entered the main house and did not interfere with Mrs. Morris' plans for opening the mansion.

WED RECENTLY

Mrs. John Joseph Walsh (Jane Curtis) of the WAC and Lt. (j. g.) Walsh of the navy medical corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Walsh of Menomonee av., were married recently in Long Beach, Cal. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Curtis of Arlington, N. J., attended the University of Alabama and now is stationed in Evanston. Lt. Walsh, attended Loras college and is a graduate of Loyola University Medical college. He is attached to the marine corps in the Pacific.

Picnic Season Is Now Open at Pittsfield

Mrs. Wait Talcott, Rockford, Ill., started the Berkshire picnic season

Pittsfield, Mass. yesterday when she entertained the Great Barrington Garden club, at her summer home, Rollaway Hill, North Egremont. Farm raised broilers sizzled on an outdoor grill in a hemlock grove overlooking Prospect lake. Near-by is Mrs. Talcott's rock garden, a symphony of color. The mile long circuitous highway from the main road to Rollaway is now lined with wild azalea, or swamp apple pink and the air is permeated with its delicious spicy aroma.

In 1917 Mrs. Talcott and the late Mr. Talcott bought the 100 acre farm and with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George O. Forbes, founded a summer colony in a glorious section of the Berkshire hills. Near-by at Greystones are Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey T. Barnes, formerly of Rockford. Neighbors also are Edward Duff Balken, art expert of the Carnegie institute, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Spahr, Pittsburgh.

In Pittsfield state forest, of which Mrs. John Alden Spoor's Blythewood farms was formerly a part, is the largest unspoiled area of wild azalea in New England. Growing on bushes from 2 to 25 feet high, it flanks a four mile mountain highway from Great Radium Springs past Lulu Cascade to Ten Acre Berry pond, 2,100 feet elevation, now surrounded by the swamp pinks.

This pond was named for old John Berry, who after the battle of Bennington, Aug. 16, 1777, staked his claim on the mountain eight miles from what is now Pittsfield's civic center. The cellar hole of his log cabin may still be seen and his grave is somewhere in this superb garden of azalea. From a promontory where Berry brook starts tumbling over the ledges of a gnarled old tree lined ravine one looks straight down 1,500 feet into Goodrich Hollow, the home of members of the Goodrich family for 148 years. The Berkshire Garden center, Mrs. William Felton Barrett, president, has urged that another recently discovered azalea area on state owned Tower mountain be made easily accessible after the war.

The Richmond Garden club, founded in 1915 by Mrs. W. Rockwood Gibbs of Lake Forest and of which she has been the only president, is to open its 30 season on Tuesday with a meeting at Model farm, the Dalton home of Mrs. Frederick Goodrich Crane [Thekla Wilkes] whose husband, Comdr. Crane, U. S. N., is on a month's leave from the west coast. The speaker at the meeting will be Mrs. Robert B. English, West Hartford, Conn., southern New England zone chairman of Garden Club of America.

Prentiss L. Coonley, one time Chicago capitalist, had a two day auction this week of Sheraton, Hepplewhite, rosewood, and Shaker pieces with which the late Mrs. Coonley [Mary Lord] had intended to furnish her 26 room Cotswold "cottage" at Folly farm, Great Barrington. Partly finished, but never occupied, the gray stone replica of a 14th century house in the Cotswold hills of England, stands upon a Berkshire hill, stark and ghostlike amid uncut shrubs and timothy. Folly farm is the 550 acre nucleus of the great 13,000 acre estate created at a cost of $1,250,000 by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Pearson, who went down with the Lusitania in 1915.

Mrs. James Ransom Walker and her sister, Mrs. David Shields Cook of the Drake hotel, are at the Red Lion inn, Stockbridge. Mrs. Walker's summer home on Prospect Hill is closed for the duration.

Curtis hotel at Lenox was opened yesterday for its 126th season. Mrs. Clinton O. Jones is the third generation of the family that has owned it since 1859. Lester Roberts is manager for the 16th year.

Mary-Alice Grexa Wed to Robert W. Sprenger

The marriage of Miss Mary-Alice Grexa and Robert Wilker Sprenger, son of Mrs. Edgar Sprenger of Wauwatosa, Wis., took place May 26 afternoon in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Grexa of N. Sacramento av. The Rev. Gordon W. Brant officiated at the ceremony.

Mrs. Perlman to Be Honored by B'nai B'rith

Open house will be held for Mrs. Louis L. Perlman, president of the district 6 grand lodge of B'nai B'rith, next Sunday in the Rogers Park Masonic temple, 1716 Lunt av., with North Shore lodge and women's unit in the host and hostess roles. The party marks Mrs. Perlman's 15th anniversary of active service with B'nai B'rith. Eight midwestern states are encompassed in the district over which Mrs. Perlman directs the activities of B'nai B'rith women.

Mrs. Louis L. Perlman

Present for the gathering will be Henry Monsky, national president of the lodge, who will give the principal talk on the program. Mr. Monsky has been one of the consultants to the American delegation at the San Francisco security conference.

Mrs. Perlman's early interest in the lodge was directed to the junior program, to which she gave 10 years' service. She was for two years chairman of the district 6 juniors, was national director of the B'nai B'rith Girls, and last year was one of the leaders who started the youth commission on whose executive committee she is a member. Other organizations in which Mrs. Perlman is active are the National Council of Jewish Women, Hadassah, the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the Jewish Big Sisters, and the women's division of the Urban league.

Endocreme helps give most women a younger-looking face and throat

Seems too good to be true, doesn't it. But it's a fact. ENDOCREME, can, for most women, help improve the skin itself, not merely its superficial appearance. For thousands ENDOCREME . . . with its 8-year record of success . . . is getting results hitherto thought impossible through use of cosmetics. This is because it contains ACTIVOL. ACTIVOL . . . a great modern achievement . . . is a scientific replacement for woman's own natural, skin-vitalizing substance. When ENDOCREME is absorbed by the skin, it helps to restore the normal growth of cells and tissues. Thus, most skins tend to take on new youthfulness, to become fresher, firmer, smoother, more alluringly beautiful again. Isn't this the best way you can invest your cosmetic dollars? Many report vast improvement in only 30 days.

Endocreme . . . in successful use since 1937

Blue Mounds One of Scenic Spots of S. Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. [Special] — West of Madison and near Mt. Horeb at the "Land of the Sky" is the famed Blue Mounds, one of the scenic spots of the Southern Wisconsin Lakelands area, and the largest and one of the best equipped picnic grounds in the state.

Here at the highest point in southern Wisconsin, 1,760 feet above sea level, is a historical spot in the state that is rich in Indian lore. It still preserves the old Indian trails, has fine riding trails, and superb hill and dale byways for the hiker, a new concrete swimming pool, large outdoor tables for picknickers, fireplaces, a stadium for sports attractions, and three large community buildings.

Here, atop Blue Mounds park the visitor has one of the most striking views that Wisconsin affords, with 300 miles of skyline and the capital city of Madison, 25 miles distant, visible on a clear day.

The beautiful spring on the eastern slope of the mound is an unusual attraction for it pours forth 15,000 gallons of clear cool water every 24 hours. The concrete dam recently constructed created two pools, one for swimming and another stocked with rainbow trout. Also available are bathhouses and showers.

GREAT LAKES CRUISES

Heavy Season Expected for Lake Cruises

By Mildred Peterson

Chicago's busiest season as a lake cruise center opens tomorrow when the Georgian Bay Line's S. S. North American sails at 11 a. m. for Buffalo, returning June 11 at 7 a. m. One other pre-season cruise is scheduled to take care of the large number of advance reservations that have been pouring in during the winter months. The North American will leave June 11 at 11 a. m. for Parry Sound, Ontario, Canada, returning June 16 at 7 a. m.

June 16 marks the summer opening of regular sailings of both the North American and the C. & B. Line's S. S. City of Grand Rapids with June 22 the first cruise of the Clipper Line's S. S. Milwaukee Clipper. All ships dock in the Chicago river, east of the Michigan av. bridge and south of Tribune Tower.

Seven day, 2,200 mile cruises of the North American, will be made every Saturday thru Sept. 1 with stops at Mackinac Island, Midland, Detroit, Cleveland, and Buffalo, docking the following Saturday in Chicago at 11:30 a. m.

Picnic lake cruises of the City of Grand Rapids—for organizations, clubs or individuals wanting a day's outing—leave Chicago every morning, June 16 thru Labor day, at 9:45 and return at 8:45 p. m. with the 25 mile moonlight dance cruise starting at 9:30 p. m. and ending at 12:30 a. m. except on Saturday when the ship remains out a half an hour longer.

The daylight cruises arrive at Silver Beach, St. Joseph, Mich., at 1:45 p. m. and Benton Harbor 15 minutes later, allowing passengers time at either the beach playground or a visit to the House of David colony. Sailing time from Benton Harbor is 4:15 p. m. and Silver Beach a quarter of an hour later. Special rates for students are in effect during June.

The Milwaukee Clipper offers daily cruises from June 25 thru Aug. 31, Monday thru Friday, sailing from Chicago at 9:30 a. m. and returning at 11 p. m. with a stop in Milwaukee from 3:15 to 5:15 p. m. except on Friday, when it leaves Milwaukee at 4:30 p. m. and arrives at 10:30 p. m.

Its regular week-end schedule, June 22 thru Sept. 3 [take your car on board if you wish] leaves Chicago Friday at 11 p. m. and arrives at Muskegon at 6:30 a. m. Saturday, allowing two days in the resort area of western or northern Michigan. The Clipper leaves Muskegon at 7 p. m. Sunday and arrives in Chicago at 7 a. m. Monday. On Saturdays and Sundays it makes 11½ hour round trips between Muskegon and Milwaukee.

Officials of all three lines say their reservations are heavier this year than at any other time and that many cruises, including those in August, already are booked to capacity.

"Gasless" outings on Lake Michigan are becoming more and more popular, according to these officials, and there are no regulations on lake vacationing and travel.

New Recreation Areas Proposed in Pisgah Forest

ASHEVILLE, N. C. [Special].—Post-war plans calling for extensive improvements on all recreational areas in Pisgah national forest have been completed, Carl G. Krueger, forestry supervisor, has announced.

Completed areas will be reconditioned and several which were under construction at the beginning of the war will be finished. Layouts of some of the playgrounds will be remodeled and modern equipment will be installed.

Five additional areas, in addition to the 17 already open to the public, are tentatively planned. Work on this project, however, will begin only when the other areas have been put in first class shape.

Baraboo, Wis., Ready to Greet Summer Visitors

BARABOO, Wis. [Special]—Ben Jones, veteran secretary of the Baraboo Chamber of Commerce, reports that this colorful area is prepared to fulfill vacation needs of Chicagoans. "Devil's Lake and the state park provide a pleasant change of scene with opportunity for healthful recreation and rest," said Mr. Jones. "Wisconsin Dells are nearby and this combined scenic, rustic vicinity makes for a good war time vacation, since we are only 175 miles from Chicago. All of our resorts and a few more rooms than last year are available for those who need vacations."

A FRIEND IN NEED

[If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer need, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Clothing always is a matter of deep concern in the homes of those who are existing on meager incomes and able to purchase few necessities other than food and shelter. Frequently there are instances in which the provision of apparel, plus the applicant's individual resourcefulness, will "up morale" and help restore self-assurance. We therefore urge our readers to look over garments hanging in closets or packed in drawers with an eye to sharing them with a few of our less fortunate neighbors, whose appeals follow.

Mrs. X. managed, with the help of an agency, to keep a home for herself and child during the long years of her husband's illness and hospitalization. Her own frail health precluded employment, but she stretched her meager income to cover budgeted necessities. Now her husband is home, but the nature of his ailment strictly limits him in matters of employment. Consequently, it is difficult for them to meet their living expenses, and clothing is the last thing they can afford. However, by her ingenuity in remodeling and lengthening garments, Mrs. X. has been able to keep their daughter fairly presentable for school, but there has been nothing for herself and husband. We hope woman's clothing, size 14, and a man's suit and topcoat, size 38, can be supplied. The address is on the south side.

The T. family, living on the near north side, comprises parents and five children, girls, 3½, 7½, and 10 years old; and boys, 6 months and 12 years old. Mr. T. is able to work only sporadically because he is crippled. His wages can not provide clothing for his family, in addition to basic living expenses. Altho garments for all the children will be appreciated, the needs of the three school age youngsters are of major importance. With the exception of the baby, the children are small for their ages, the girls wear sizes 2, 6, and 8, and the boy, size 10.

• • •

Mrs. L. is a deserted mother who depends upon the relief for the support of herself and eight sons, 15, 14, 11, 9, 7, 6, 5, and 3 years old. The problem of clothing has been a source of endless worry, often affecting the children's attendance at school. Of paramount anxiety now is the necessity of supplying suits and shoes for the two eldest sons, who are to be graduated this June. Because of want and adversity, there have been few real pleasures, and she hopes her sons' needs will be filled and that they will have cause to remember their graduation as a happy occasion.

Enid Gowan-Stobo Is Bride of Warren Parker

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gowan-Stobo of S. Coles av. announce the marriage, April 16, of their daughter, Enid, to Warren Parker of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Parker of Cregier av. The wedding took place in the chapel of St. Paul's church.

Lady of the House

Thunder muttered and rumbled in the low-hung clouds. Rain came down, floating pink and white petals to the grass. Lilacs hung their heavy heads, and the flickering flower candles on the chestnut went out. Cock robin sat in patent disgust on the wet trellis, wondering why breakfast for him and his family in the nearby apple tree hadn't been set out.

Aunt Ella came in, raincoat and hat dripping. "Oh, what a beautiful morning! Oh, what a wonderful day!" Grinning cheerfully. She loves to walk in warm rain, sans umbrella and like impedimenta. Says it's very soothing.

"What really brought you this morning?" I probed.

"Had to get away from a woman who thinks the world has been rocked off its foundations an civilization gone to pot. Ought to keep closer to Nature. The old lady gets pretty rough at times, but she binds up the wounds and heals the hurts, even when man has inflicted them, and then goes right on . . ."

We talked a bit about all the tragic waste and grief and suffering of war, no matter who wins . . . when it seems as tho the whole human race is headed back toward savagery.

Then we recalled how one sunset we had stood together in a grove of old, old trees, the magnificent boles about us in deep shadow, their heads still high in the sun. Probably some had stood there when the first colonists settled in little groups along the water courses; when the Minute Man stood guard at Concord bridge; when the tide of civilization moved slowly to that west where older trees were standing tall in those dark ages when successive waves of invading savage hordes overran the "old countries" and this new land was known only to its native wandering tribes.

"No, civilization isn't marching toward defeat, and millions of us will keep right on getting comfort and sustenance for body and soul from old Mother Nature, if we'll just take it."

With that Aunt Ella took the last apple muffin and finished her coffee. I am sure if she walked thru a burned out town or a mine sown field she'd find the only flower that dared poke up its head—and probably some cozy place to "boil up a cup of coffee."

Working in her parsley bed one twilight, Mary Edith Shaw saw 10 orioles in one tree, and wrote—

Behold the Birds

Benignest thoughts were mine to infold
While the sun's goodnight caress
Edged a trailing veil of clouds with gold
As a troupe in evening dress
Alighted in my cherry tree
And staged a noisy pageantry.

Subtilely an angel chorus near my door,
A decade clad as Lord Baltimore,
Extolled the grace of a "growing hand"
That placed seats for a pinioned band
To render a vocal concert free
And imbibe full measure of ruddy fee.

Darkness sheathed it from my sight
And sped its migratory flight;
I attempted this meager tribute
For the joy migrant flocks contribute
When nations are shocked and scattered
From cities bombed and shattered.

And Grace Jewett Austin recalls the joy of walking—

On Meadow Grass

I had not thought a whole long year had gone with busy sun
Since I had walked on fragrant meadow grass;
—Not hay, but grass whose day was not yet done,
Sweet, springing, lovely as I pass.
I thought how many pleasures I had sought afar,
The treasure spent, the toil of hand and brain,
Yet as the silent pool brings close the distant star,
My walk on meadow grass gave joy I'd sought in vain.

Wait, swaying grass-stalks, till I pluck a few,
Add a red clover's generous head to my small store,
Wee asters wild that I in child days knew,
And languishing sweet clover, loved the more.
The meadow gave its gift to hand and heart,
It gave the meadow lark with soul a-poise;
Come now with me into this place apart—
On meadow grass your cares can make no noise.

Receiving from a Gold Star mother a "quite unexpected gift" of a lovely box of assorted greeting cards, Gertrude Robb thinks of—

Things

The simple oft encountered things—
A neighbor's kindliness,
A bird, alert upon a bough,
A sweetheart's soft caress,
A book, a friendly greeting,
A sunset's lingering smile,
The everyday expected things,
All make this life worthwhile.

But, oh, the special little things—
A swift kiss in the dark,
A sudden shaft of sunlight,
The flash of a meadowlark,
A flower that blooms unbidden,
An unexpected gift,
The precious, priceless little things
That give the soul a lift.

Carmen Carter, teaching her youngsters the joys of gardens of their own, hails—

June

Her cheeks are red, red roses,
Her eyes are bluebird blue,
Her gown is of the morning mist,
Trimmed with sequins of dew.

Her hair is golden sunbeams
Floating softly on the breeze,
Her voice is the gentle murmur
Of zephyrs thru the trees.

Her slippers are green velvet;
And when she passes by,
Nature stops to smile at her
And enviously sigh.

After five years of waiting, four yellow lady's slippers in the garden have come into bloom, as if they would say, with Wordsworth, to my impatient self,
"Come forth into the light of things,
Let nature be your teacher." M. M.

NATURALLY! Clearer, Fairer Smoother Skin with Mercolized Wax Cream
DON'T try to hide darkened, discolored, or weathered skin with layers of foundation and powder. Thousands of smart women use Mercolized Wax Cream, for it contains a special "active" ingredient that really helps nature clear and lighten your skin, gives your complexion an extra translucence and depth, a lovelier natural coloring. Even freckles lighten and fade with Mercolized Wax Cream. You will discover a fairer, lovelier and truly younger looking skin, one that is smoother and firmer. Mercolized Wax Cream helps make and keep your skin looking as young and lovely as your skin can look. That is why faithful users would not trade their lovelier complexions with women years younger. Use only as directed.
STARTLE your skin to fresher loveliness with Saxolite Astringent. Temporarily contracts loose surface skin, reduces prominence of premature fine lines and wrinkles. Removes excess surface oil.

Hot Weather Casual Styles Cool, Clever

Casual clothes, dresses that are so cleverly made that they can be worn as basic dresses, are the final test of any designer's wizardry with line and fitting. Such clothes have become, each season, more and more important, especially for career girls. For these are the discriminating shoppers who ask for simple dresses every season.

Current collections of summer models are sleek examples of flattering simplicity. The sheath silhouette has never been used to better advantage than in these classic models in rayons, linens, jerseys, and cottons. The results are clothes that are dateless, washable, and wearable, for they are made of colorfast cottons and other summer fabrics.

Rayon jersey in a fascinating array of colors is the most popular material. For this liquidy soft fabric drapes beautifully. The color range is perfect—from pale pastels of a single tint to the exotic floral prints and the dazzling all whites. Yellow and flush pink are headliners, with pale lime green and the chartreuse tones a close second.

White or pastel tinted background prints are effective with brilliant colored printed designs, some all-over designs, and others featuring bold, big, brilliant masses of color. Stripes and plaids come in third place, with stripes varying in width. Plaids and checks are found in all sizes, and the small white dotted patterns apparently never go out of fashion.

The newest and smartest of casual clothes come in semi-rough textured real linen. These are more expensive than the jersey, cotton, or rayon clothes, but well worth every penny. Linen this summer gets a realistic treatment in the duet of shirt and skirt. Two contrasting colors are used; Navy with white, russet with almond green, gold with brown, and so on. The skirts are beautifully tailored; so are the shirts with short sleeves and convertible turnover collars. Such a team has a complete costume look because of the symmetry of silhouette, as the shirt is worn under the belt of the skirt.

Cool rayon with a linen texture makes some of the most successful one piece dresses of this summer's collections. The smartest and neatest are those with rows of contrasting stitching, as white with navy blue, dark brown, or black. Saddle stitching is another effective detail. Such a dress is casually simple, yet with bright summer straw and colored footgear or bag, it becomes festive enough for afternoon parties.

Star attractions again are the sun back dresses teamed with bolero or short, fitted jacket. You'll find them in cool, dark cottons, in rayon butcher's linen, in genuine linen, in expensive silk shantungs, and in rayon prints.

The dresses are cut with open backs. Some have wrap-over skirts that would fool an expert, so expertly is that ample wrap-over cut and managed. The top is a cool halter or the deeply cut camisole top. Some are simply cut in the coolest possible silhouette; others have a soft fold-over top or the bra style neck line. Many are sold separately, the buyer selecting a bolero or jacket of other color or material with which to complete a street or town ensemble.

Sketched are four new summer casuals to be found in a Chicago store. For further information call Superior 0200.

Designs for Needlework

By Ellen Bruce

The drawstring collar bag and matching half hat, No. E-1194, are crocheted of four ply cotton and are ideal accessories for summer clothes. The hat is made of circular medallions, and it is fastened in back. Both are quick and easy needlework tricks to make which require little time.

A novel luncheon set is the one worked in cross-stitch embroidery with a motto as the central motif and attractive figures filling the corners. Hot iron transfer pattern No. 710 may be used for 36, 45, or 54 inch squares.

For instructions in making either of these items, send 15 CENTS in coin [30 CENTS for both—wrap coins securely] to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th av., New York 1, N. Y.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 no trump	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of diamonds.

The final contract was six spades. On an examination of the combined holding it becomes apparent that the slam contract is not a sound one. The odds are very heavily against fulfillment. In the first place there is an inevitable heart loser. After which there is the queen of trumps to worry about, not to mention the distribution of the adverse trumps and the little matter of handling the odd club. But in the actual bidding it is rather difficult to avoid reaching the slam. This is apt to be the case on hands in which there is such a distinct duplication of values as is the case in the diamond situation, where South's ace-king are duplicated by North's void. North's response of three clubs was made specifically for the purpose of affording South the opportunity to show a major suit if he happened to have one; the void in diamonds, militating somewhat against a final no trump contract.

The five of diamonds was opened and declarer was called upon to time his sequence of plays perfectly in order to fulfill this precarious contract. The diamond ruff must not be taken now because it will be required for purposes of entry into dummy later in the play. The first trick was won with the king in the closed hand and a high trump led just for luck. The three of hearts was then led to the nine in the dummy. East actually took the trick and returned a club. Declarer won and overtook the 10 of hearts with the jack to try the spade finesse. This succeeded and the remaining trump was drawn. The king of hearts was then cashed, dummy entered with a diamond ruff, and the losing club discarded on the established heart.

Note that if the diamond is ruffed in dummy early, East will refuse to take his ace of hearts till the third round, and declarer will have no entry to dummy in the end play to cash the long heart.

More Canned Vegetables

People of the United States eat twice as many canned vegetables today per capita as they did in 1909, but only one-fourth more fresh vegetables.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

Waterproof cement paints are available which are effective in making many a wet basement dry. . . . This paint will seal up small pores and cracks in the walls and form a bond with the surface of the wall. . . . It comes in eight different colors as well as white, so if you are planning to rejuvenate your basement this summer and give it added good looks as well as moisture resistance such a paint is well worth looking into. . . . It can be applied on a cement or cinder block surface, or on concrete or stone. . . . Application, made with a brush or a spray, is not hard.

There will be plenty of cracks to be patched if a house has been given hard use thru the winter months. . . . To patch a crack in a wall there are patching plasters which may be mixed with water and applied by pressing the material into the crack or hole with a putty knife. . . . If houses and their problems are new to you, it need not disturb you as to how the plaster should be "trimmed off." . . . Wait till the patching material is hard and then you can sandpaper it smooth.

There also is a floor cleaner on the market which will remove paint, varnish, and enamel and bleach and clean at the same time.

[For further information on above items send stamped addressed envelope to Louise Bargelt, Home Owners' Editor, The Chicago Tribune.]

Cotton striped seersucker is one of summer's favorite materials for cool, good looking sports and play clothes. The best feature of some of the season's seersucker outfits is that one complete ensemble may almost constitute a wardrobe, since it is interchangeable. It may go from beach to bakery with equal aplomb.

For street wear, the red and white striped seersucker shirt and separate skirt are the order of the day. This classic shirt may be worn with shorts for a fast moving tennis game. A detachable skirt which buttons down the front has a contrasting band of material above the hem line. These two items are sold separately in sizes from 10 to 16.

The play team of shorts and halter top have several interesting details. First of all, they are sold as a unit and priced under $5. The well fitting, smooth shorts have a tiny plait at each side of the front, and cut straight in back. An adjustable bra with a halter neck line has a drawstring above the midriff which enables the top to fit perfectly at all times. These are available in sizes 10 to 16 and in red and blue stripes.

Patterns by Clotilde

The feminine contingent of the summer outdoor set, regardless of age, needs plenty of suitable costumes for healthful fun in the sun. Today's four patterns provide a variety of sun clothes, all of them smart and feminine.

Providing all the exposure and functional styling required of a sun outfit, No. 3739 nevertheless puts fluffy ruffles or lace all around the straps, bodice neckline and pockets. More of the feminine trimming goes around the bolero which converts the short frock into a costume suitable for wear on the street on a hot day.

No. 3784 combines a bra top with shorts and adds a brief skirt which has optional pockets. "Screaming" prints and bright colors are definitely in order for this outfit, as are dainty pastels and pristine white.

That growing girl in the family circle will like the sun suit with or without ruffles. It's comfortable, easy to make, and simple to launder, which are factors to appeal to any mother faced with a staggering Monday wash.

Even the toddler is remembered in today's pattern selections. No. 2739, with its clever little fish applique included, makes a full skirted outfit and also a sun bonnet.

Style No. 3739 is designed for sizes 10 to 20. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 35 inch fabric, 5½ yards of ruffling. For dress alone, 2¾ yards wtih 3 yards of ruffling.

Style No. 3784 is designed for sizes 11 to 19. Size 15 requires 2 yards of 35 inch material for play dress, 1½ yards of ruffling; 1 yard for shorts.

Style No. 2739 is designed for sizes 4 to 10. Size 8, 1½ yards of 35 inch fabric for playsuit, 1⅛ yards for blouse.

Style No. 2739 is designed for sizes 1, 2, 3 and 4. Size 2 requires 1¾ yards of 35 inch fabric with 3¾ yards of binding; 1⅛ yards with 3 yards of binding for dress alone.

Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

The summer edition of The Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions is now on sale at the Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn st. and Tribune Tower lobby, for 15 cents. The cost is only 12 cents if the book is ordered with a pattern from the address in coupon.

Cool Summer Beverages Are Sugar Saving

By Mary Meade

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

The advent of summer always calls out long forgotten chilled fruit punch recipes. We shall have to modify those recipes this year, for many of them call for large amounts of sugar to be used as a sweetener. It's a shame that cutting down on sugar means cutting down on lemon juice, too, for lemon juice is one of our best refreshers with a high vitamin C contribution to offer to summer diets.

It's more economical of sugar to add it to punch in the form of sirup. This way all of the precious sweetness is dissolved, and there's no loss in undissolved crystals which so often remain in the bottom of a punch bowl or beverage glass.

Corn sirup may be used as a beverage sweetener, but has only about half the sweetening power of sugar. A sugar sirup may be stretched with a measure of corn sirup quite satisfactorily.

Grape juice, being naturally sweet, is a favorite punch base, but grape juice is expensive in blue points and needs stretching. An excellent summer beverage may be made by combining grape juice with gingerale or lemon soda. No sugar is needed.

Wine punches are sugar savers. Wine and soda is growing in popularity as a summer refresher. Any favorite wine may be used. Claret and burgundy are the popular choices in red wines; sauterne or rhine wine are favorite white wines for this purpose. To make a mild, flavorful, and refreshing wineade, place three or four ice cubes in a tall glass, fill the glass half or two-thirds full of wine, and add sparkling water to near the top. Stir gently and serve.

Orange Cooler
[Serves two or three]

2 to 3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup strained orange juice
1 cup angelica or white port wine
Ice cubes
Orange slices

Shake lemon juice, orange juice, and wine with ice cubes to chill. Pour over cubes in tall glasses. Garnish each glass with half slice of orange.

Pink lemonade can be made very nicely by adding a red wine flavor to standard lemonade. Or, the wine may be poured over the back of a spoon into the lemonade, so gently that it forms a floating red layer on top of the yellow beverage and looks really elegant.

A dozen party guests can be pleased "as punch" about this punch.

Summer Fruit Punch
[Serves twelve]

1 quart blackberries, loganberries or youngberries
1 cup sugar
1 bottle chablis, sauterne, or any white table wine
1 bottle claret, burgundy, or any red table wine
¾ cup lemon juice
1 large bottle gingerale
Lemon and orange slices

Add the sugar to the berries and let dissolve. Chill thoroly. Chill all ingredients, and punch bowl too if possible. No ice is used to dilute this mixture. Pour liquids over sugared berries and garnish with paper thin lemon and orange slices.

Tropical Tea
[Serves six]

12 fresh mint sprigs
½ cup sugar or honey
4 cups strong tea [hot]
1½ cups orange juice
½ cup lemon juice
Crushed ice

Sprinkle sugar over, or add honey to, half the mint leaves. Keep in a warm place for half an hour. Pour hot tea over leaves, stir a few seconds to dissolve all honey or sugar, and strain. Add fruit juices and pour into glasses half filled with crushed ice. Garnish with remaining mint sprigs.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

The world is full of a number of compacts. Some are just sensible affairs. Some are just gadgety. Some are luxurious in appearance but turn out to be pretty trying when a woman puts them to actual use and learns the hard way that a good mirror and a generous powder well are more important than effective outer handsomeness.

In our book one of the new offerings fills every detail of this bill of requirements. It's superlative. We love lucite, with its crystal-like luster and transparency; this case is gleaming lucite, plus marvelous, modern design. It's slender; and its closures are so new, so efficient that they're positively exciting.

It's a handsome house for one of the world's nicest powders, old and honored. This just shouldn't be described as a "cake" of powder, because this is different. It's hand pressed, and it fluffs off on the puff at the most airy touch.

The powder is available in refills, too. Which is good, because the compact will not only last for years but be in high style for years. It's like a beautiful piece of costume jewelry, sparkling and different, with a handsome gold finished sunburst set square in the crystal-like top. You haven't seen anything quite like this, and if you like compacts that are serviceable and stunning as well it's something you shouldn't miss.

Mrs. Marcus Again Elected Head of Hematology Group

Mrs. Philip Marcus has been reelected president of the Hematology Research foundation, which recently celebrated its first anniversary with a membership of 630 persons. The foundation, established to provide funds for research into leukemia and other blood diseases, contributed $16,000 for this purpose during the year.

Other officers for the 1945-'46 season are Mrs. Victor Rubin, Mrs. Edward Marks, and Mrs. Milton Bogolub, vice presidents; Mrs. Jack Hornstein, Mrs. Harold Geiger, and Mrs. Leo Braverman, secretaries; and Mrs. Joseph Reader and Mrs. Irving Frankel, treasurers. Miss Goldie Berger, Miss Rose Ersler, Miss Marion Schuman, and Miss Mary Cowen are among the 26 members of the board of directors.

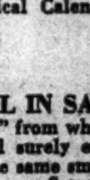
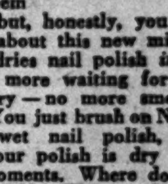
A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting.

NEW YORK, N. Y., June 3rd. From garden patch to Grocery shelf . . . that's the straight route of vegetables and fruits "earmarked" by the H. J. HEINZ Company especially for babies! Picked from the nation's most fertile soil, they stop en route only long enough for HEINZ experts to cook and vacuum-pack them by the most modern and scientific methods. This insures you that HEINZ Baby Foods retain the fresh, delicious flavor, natural colors and high degree of valuable vitamins and minerals so essential to baby's growth. That's why HEINZ strained vegetables and fruits are so good for even tiny babies! And for the strained-food graduates, there's HEINZ Junior Foods . . . intermediate dishes designed to supply a well-balanced menu . . . chopped to particle size to encourage chewing by the toddler. Seasoning is mild and flavorsome. Ask your Grocer for HEINZ Baby Foods . . . backed by a 76-year reputation for unexcelled quality. And now on to other BUY-LINES . . .

Write for Unusual Musical Calendar Today!



Send for this short-cut to IMPORTANT facts about the world's great music,—the famous MUSIC LOVERS' CALENDAR in 17" x 28" size that can be framed as a beautiful wall print. Facts about the great masters from 1680 to 1944 (Bach to Gershwin) are given in "at-a-glance" illustrations and text. Get copies to give as gifts to children studying music. MUSICAL CALENDARS are on sale in the Book Section at Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, or address mail requests, with remittance to the Musical Calendar Department, S-6, Bismarck Hotel, Chicago 1, Illinois.



Hurry—hurry—hurry! That's everyone's slogan these busy days. And it's all the more reason for using NAIL-DRI! Excuse me if I seem repetitious—but, honestly, you just must know about this new miracle liquid that dries nail polish immediately. No more waiting for nail polish to dry—no more smeared manicures! You just brush on NAIL-DRI over wet nail polish, and "whoosh," your polish is dry in a matter of moments. Where do you buy NAIL-DRI? Why, at Beauty Shops, Drug Stores and Department Stores,—but if your favorite shop or store doesn't yet have its stock of NAIL-DRI, write The Rilling Company, 607 Fifth Avenue, S., Minneapolis 15, Minn., for information!

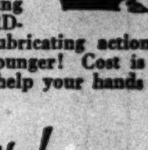
DIAL IN SATURDAY! Are you forever getting yourself into "situations" from which you have to scramble hard to withdraw gracefully? Then you'll surely enjoy hearing Billie Burke nimblewit her way out of many of the same small scrapes we are forever getting into ourselves! She's on the air every Saturday for her favorite smile-shiner, quick-action LISTERINE TOOTH POWDER,—a-dithering and a-dathering in her charming fashion . . . in and out of all kinds of situations! I think you'll enjoy this show . . . good for any woman's sense of humor! Remember the time, 10:30 every Saturday morning . . . dial in over WBBM!

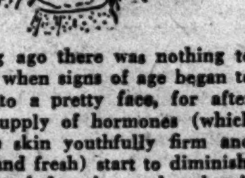
Don't hesitate to tell your Mr. Him that you smoke VICEROY Cigarettes . . . so he can get them for you whenever he sees them on hand at his tobacconist! Show him the unique filter tip that acts as a sifter of tobacco resins, tars and other throat irritants. Show him how the filter keeps tobacco crumbs IN the cigarette, rather than flecked into your mouth or onto your teeth. He'll be bound to approve your choice of this SMART smoke for the SMART woman . . . and just a puff or two on a VICEROY will convince him that this fragrant blend of fine domestic and Turkish tobaccos is full of fine smoking enjoyment for him, too!

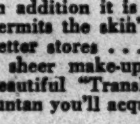


Those tiny lines that cross and criss-cross the skin on the back of your hands become deeper and more noticeable during hot weather . . . for exposure to the hot sun dries the skin and causes it to look coarser. So why not make YARDLEY Hand Cream a MUST every night before you retire this summer? It sinks in without leaving one trace of stickiness or greasiness . . . but it's working to give your hands a new and smoother texture. YARDLEY'S Hand Cream is particularly efficient in its lubricating action . . . helping your hands to look softer and fairer and younger! Cost is only 65c at finer stores everywhere . . . use regularly to help your hands look prettier all summer! I know you'll be pleased!

A Household Necessity!

Just a little over a year ago I wrote a paragraph in BUY-LINES about something new the WELCH Grape Juice Co. were offering the public. Today that "something new" has become a real necessity in helping wise housewives over the twin-crisis caused by sugar and butter shortages. Yes,—you know the product . . . WELCH'S Orange Marmalade! The amazingly quick acceptance of this marmalade, made especially for American taste, lies in a simple secret . . . most EVERYBODY likes the taste of fine, fresh oranges from which it is made! No substitutes . . . no bitterness! Try WELCH'S Orange Marmalade as a butter and sugar "helper-outer" . . . delicious on all kinds of bread, a sweet-treat to top off sugar-short meals! Ask your Grocer for WELCH'S Orange Marmalade!





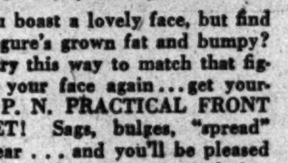
Pardon me, if I repeat . . . but I do want you to recognize this little sketch. It's a box of "Translucid" Face Powder, prepared by HOUBIGANT especially for women who believe that sheer, natural-looking make-up is the short-cut to real charm. There are 9 glorious shades to choose from,—but the most important thing is that this lovely powder is micro-milled for perfect smoothness and clinging quality. In addition it is sheer-sifted to reward with a clear, even powder-film that permits the skin's natural tones to "glow through"! Cost is $1.50 a box at better stores . . . ask for "Translucid" Face Powder by HOUBIGANT . . . a sheer make-up for sheer beauty. Watch BUY-LINES for news of the beautiful "Translucid" Face Powder blends for the particular shade of suntan you'll acquire this summer! Ask to see them!

Not long ago there was nothing to be done when signs of age began to creep into a pretty face, for after 30 the supply of hormones (which keep the skin youthfully firm and smooth and fresh) start to diminish. You'll be glad to know that there's a new cream for women over thirty . . . it's called PLUS 30 Cream and contains active hormone ingredients that can be absorbed by the skin. Women over thirty usually can see results after using one jar of PLUS 30 Cream. Cost is $3 (plus Fed. Tax) for a 30 day supply. This cream is desirable after 30 . . . and URGENT after 40! Just ask for PLUS 30 Cream by Bonne Bell at The Fair or Stineway Drug Stores.

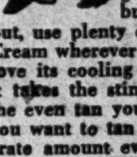
Keep Daisy-Fresh!

Gentlemen of today don't hesitate to tell us just what they prefer . . . they laugh at our hats, their eyes measure any extra pounds we pick up, they voice approval heartily when we wear a perfume they love. But they don't tell us if we're forgetful about personal daintiness . . . they just wander away! So be sure you check yourself on this score . . . KNOW you're fresh as a daisy because you're protected regularly with a fine deodorant. And why not make it pleasant for yourself? I'd advise softer, smoother AMOLIN Deodorant Cream that spreads easily as face cream . . . vanishes . . . and leaves your underarms soothed and rose-petal fragrant! AMOLIN Cream is thrifty, too . . . for there's more in the jar and it STAYS soft to the last bit! Cost is 29c and 49c . . . at Drug and Department Stores!

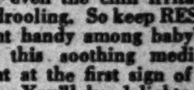
No matter whether you like a riot of curls a-top your head or a lightly waved simplicity in your coiffure . . . CROWNING GLORY Cold Wave Permanent can give it to you! And right at home, too . . . given by none other than yourself! It sounds impossible . . . but this original cold wave designed for use right at home can bless you with just the permanent you want within about 3 hours! It contains no ammonia, is non-irritating and so harmless—ideal for children's hair, too! Cost of the complete CROWNING GLORY set is only $2 at Cosmetic or Notions Counters. Ask for it and save yourself MONEY, TIME and COMFORT as you give yourself a beautiful permanent wave!



Do you boast a lovely face, but find your figure's grown fat and bumpy? Then try this way to match that figure to your face again . . . get yourself a P. N. PRACTICAL FRONT CORSET! Sags, bulges, "spread" disappear . . . and you'll be pleased as punch with the way your clothes fit! Reason is that the famous inner vest of a PRACTICAL FRONT CORSET gently lifts and supports the stomach, so that "bulge" is flattened in 1 minute flat! A PRACTICAL FRONT CORSET redistributes excess flesh so that inches are cut from your figure . . . streamlining your figure smartly . . . AND comfortably! Ask your Department Store for this "figure-trimmer" or write to Nancy Sasser, 271 Madison Ave., New York 16, N. Y. for name of store nearest you.



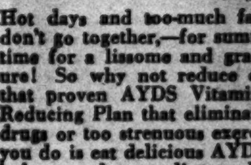
Want to have a really glamorous tan? Then arm yourself with a jar of GOURIELLI'S Active Ozone Cream and use it as I suggest. If you get burned that first day out, use plenty of ACTIVE OZONE Cream wherever the sun hits. You'll love its cooling reaction . . . the way it takes the sting out of burn . . . the even tan you'll see next day. If you want to tan slowly, apply a moderate amount every day before exposure. ACTIVE OZONE Cream is ideal for tanned skin because it releases nascent oxygen the minute it touches skin, and oil and moisture in the cream give the lubrication tanned skin needs, keeping skin soft and pliable! Cost is $2 and $1.25 at smart shops; or at Gourielli, Inc., 16 E. 55th St., New York 22, N. Y.



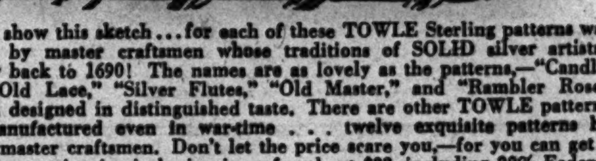
Such little mishaps may cause baby pain . . . chafe of diapers, heat rash and even the chin irritation caused by drooling. So keep RESINOL Ointment handy among baby's things . . . use this soothing medicated ointment at the first sign of skin irritation. You'll be delighted at how it helps . . . quickly relieving itching and red-raw irritation sting. Remember that RESINOL Ointment serves other members of the family, too . . . there's nothing like it for relieving itching, burning discomfort of little pimply spots, occupational rashes, poison ivy, dry eczema, tender feet and local irritation (so often occurring monthly). RESINOL is a quick soother of sunburn and minor burns, too. Be sure you keep it on hand always!

An End To Furniture "Mishaps"!

Don't leave the tops of your desks and tables unprotected this summer,—for we all know how easy it is for guests, friends, and even the family, to circle and stain fine furniture with damp tumblers. Protection of cherished pieces is easy with shining Plate Glass "tops" cut from fine PITTSBURGH Plate Glass . . . and while we're on the subject of fine furniture . . . if it's good enough to buy, why not see to its protection there and then by buying "tops" of PITTSBURGH Plate Glass at one and the same time? You'll be surprised at the cool "shine" glass furniture tops impart to the room, too . . . and they're so easy to clean! See your Department or Furniture Store; or look in your telephone directory under PITTSBURGH Glass Products for quick "fittings" of Plate Glass "tops" for your furniture!



Hot days and too-much fat simply don't go together,—for summer's the time for a lissome and graceful figure! So why not reduce easily by that proven AYDS Vitamin Candy Reducing Plan that eliminates harsh drugs or too strenuous exercise? All you do is eat delicious AYDS Candy before meals according to directions in the box. AYDS help dull the appetite making it easier for you to eat less. You don't cut out any meals—you simply cut them down. AYDS are vitamin-fortified, too! Money returned if you don't get results on the first box you try ($2.25 for a month's supply or $5.50 for a triple size). Ask for AYDS at Netcher's Boston Store, The Fair, Mandel's and leading Drug counters!



I love to show this sketch . . . for each of these TOWLE Sterling patterns was designed by master craftsmen whose traditions of SOLID silver artistry stem way back to 1690! The names are as lovely as the patterns,—"Candlelight," "Old Lace," "Silver Flutes," "Old Master," and "Rambler Rose" . . . each designed in distinguished taste. There are other TOWLE patterns being manufactured even in war-time . . . twelve exquisite patterns by TOWLE master craftsmen. Don't let the price scare you,—for you can get a whole place setting in six basic pieces for about $22, including 20% Federal Tax! Start buying now and add pieces as you can afford them!

I'M SURE GLAD HE'S MY POP!

And an arbitrary date in an arbitrary month was chosen to tell him so and to take stock of some of the inestimable reasons why. A day when you remember your joint raid on the pantry, the way he struggled to help you through your first course in algebra, or the pride you both took in the shiny buttons on his uniform. It's a day, too, that's demanded a lot of insight and understanding on our part to see that we are supplied with just the right gifts for your favorite kind of father.
